WINNIPEG, July 21. — The profit-taker took a hand in yesterday's session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, giving wheat futures their most severe check in more than a week of rising prices. At the close, values were 1⅝c to 1⅝c lower, July at 84¾c, October 85⅞c to 86c, and December at 87¼c to 87½c.

Only a late rally prevented futures from closing with a still greater loss, as former purchasers, taking heed of showers in the West and a forecast of more, turned sellers and unloaded their holdings. Half an hour before the close values were 2½ cents lower, but made a moderate recovery in the late dealings.

Export sales of 1,250,000 bushels of wheat failed to stem the decline. Destined for August shipment, 1,000,000 bushels were sold from the stock on hand at Churchill, Man., and the remainder of the day's export business was made up of scattered loads for both Atlantic and Pacific clearance. The Saskatchewan wheat pool was believed to have sold the Churchill wheat.

Liverpool also eased yesterday, closing ¼d to ⅝d lower. Argentine wheat shipments for the week totalled 4,500,000 bushels, a 1,000,000-bushel increase over last week's clearances. Australia's exports were slightly under last week's, totalling 2,000,000 bushels.

COMMON DECENCY.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir:

When a party politician can go to a member and say "I worked for you and did a lot to put you in and keep the other fellow out" he should have the decency to say when the other fellow gets in "I got this job far beating you and now I'l lget out." That's fair.

READER.

MR. HEPBURN ON PROHIBITION

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The following is a statement by Premier Hepburn:

"Referendum is a difficult question. Take Essex for example. This county, because of its proximity to the United States, is wet. Then we have Huron County, which is dry. No one has any quarrel with Huron for being dry, but I do not believe the people of Huron County should be allowed to impose their will on the people of Essex County. I am therefore opposed to a general referendum. I would rather see the principle of local option in operation."

Now, Sir, to superficial thinkers this may sound fair and reasonable, but will it stand the test of sound logic?

Let us carry it out to its logical conclusion.

If it is wrong for the people of Huron to impose their will on the people of Essex, then it must be wrong for some of the people of, say Peterborough County, to impose their will on the rest of the people of Peterborough County, and, if so, what becomes of local option?

The position is clearly untenable. Of course the majority must rule, and the fairest way is to take the whole province, or the whole Dominion, as a unit, rather than small areas. At present a vast majority in the province is dry, but the will of the minority is being imposed on the majority.—Yours very truly,

J. C. SMITH.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

DRUMHELLER ALBERTA.

This newest of Canada's young cities owes its being to the proximity of coal, which has caused it to forge ahead very rapidly. Incorporated as a village 21 years ago, it became a town in 1916, and a city in 1930.

It was formerly a ranch owned by Thomas P. Greentree. When the Canadian Northern, now the Canadian National, was being projected through the west, Greentree's homestead was purchased as a townsite by Samuel Drumheller, of the C.N.R. townsite department. The citizens of the little community adopted Drumheller's name for their official name.

YOUTH IS HELD IN MURDER CASE

Brother-in-law Claims He Was Away When Greek Woman Slain

REVOLVER MISSING.

GLACE BAY, N.S., July 21 (CP)—Young Nicholas Markadonis was still held for questions to-day while police investigated the mysterious shooting of his 28-year-o'd sister-in-law, Mrs. Steve Markadonis, slain while she filled a milk bottle for her baby.

A bullet through the back of the neck killed the youthful Greek housewife yesterday in the kitchen of her home here. The house was supposedly empty at the time except for herself and her elderly mother-in-law, Mrs. George Markadonis, who found the body after hearing a "commotion."

Nicholas Markadonis, 18-year-old brother of the dead woman's husband was taken into custody for questioning early this morning. He told police he was in Dominion No. 6 a few miles away, at the time of the shooting—around 4.00 o'clock.

Mrs. Markadonis was killed by a 25 calibre revolver. It penetrated the back of her neck and lodged at the base of her skull. No trace of the revolver could be found.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, July 21 (A.P.) — Stocks steadied in to-day's brief market session after an initial burst of selling and carried numerous issues to a new low for the year. The meals, leaders of yesterday's relapse, recovered some of their previous losses. The close was irregular. Transfers aproximated 550,000 shares, the largest Saturday total in more than a month.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, July 21 (C.P.).—In a quiet half-session of trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange, prices declined to lower levels to-day. Changes were mainly fractional.

McColl Frontenac eased ⅛ at 13. Sherwin Williams was down ½ at 14½, while Southern Canada Power declined ⅛ at 13½. General Steel Wares was off ⅛ at 4½. Canadian Pacific Railway eased ⅛ at 13⅛. International Nickel declined ⅛ at 24¾.

Brazilian Traction at 8½ recovered ⅛. Canada Northern Power advanced ½ at 21. Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" gained ⅜ at 6¾.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS.

TORONTO, July 21.— (C.P.) — Volume showed little expansion in to-day's short session on the Industrial Board of the Toronto Exchange and prices were barely steady, being influenced by a note of uncertainty prevailing on the New York board.

Nickel closed unchanged while Ford A dropped below the 19 mark, C.P.R. dropped a half point and Brazilian at 8¾ was down ⅛. Two of the distillery stocks, Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams registered losses of ⅛ to ¼ and Industrial Alcohol held a small advance at the close. The brewery stocks moved with the trend, with Canada Malting developing the main weakness in a drop of a point to 30.

TORONTO MINING

TORONTO, July 21 (C.P.) — Market leadership still rested in God's Lake in the closing session of the week on the mining section of the Toronto exchange, that Manitoba issue climbing to a close at $4 for a gain of 20 cents, winding up a week in which it has doubled its price under volume running into huge figures.

Very little action developed in the high-priced gold group. Dome picked up 25 cents in some broken lot trading. Wright Hargreaves gained 10 cents while Bralorne, Teck Hughes and Hollinger were down 5 to 10 cents each.

Noranda at $42 was unchanged, and Mining Corporation lost 5. Sherrit 4 and Sudbury Basin remain unchanged.

BILL BRONHRON BEATEN

Nova Scotia Guides Provide Real Thrills

Time: During the full moon of August.

Place: Lake William, Lunenburg County, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Scene: A beautiful woodland lake with sloping banks clothed with evergreens and silver birches.

Performers: The licensed guides of Nova Scotia, true sportsmen, celebrated for their skill in the various arts of hunting and woodcraft.

Lake William, Nova Scotia, has become well known in recent years as the scene of the Sports Tournament of the Nova Scotia Guides. These men stage a full week's program unique on this continent in atmosphere and appeal. Hundreds of tents are set amid majestic pines and birches, and at night the scene has irresistible charm. Numberless camp fires light up the surrounding forest and lake and the moonbeams strike the water and stray through the trees. Crowds gather around the camp fires and hearty community singing is a pleasing feature.

The days are given over to a varied and interesting program. 200 yard range are provided for heavy rifle contests and separate ranges for the .22 rifle and revolver contests. The Trap Shooting Association of the Maritime Provinces of Canada hold their annual shoot in connection with these sports. A sheltered cove affords a fine setting for fly-casting from a float along a line of markers to show distance. Last year Bill Edson, champion fly-caster of New England, broke the world's record for distance at this Meet. Exciting canoe races and burlesque and spectacular contests furnish fun and variety. Tub races, greased pole contests, canoe tilting, kettle boiling and landing the human fish are amongst the regular stunts. The latter is a strenuous contest between the best fly caster and a powerful swimmer with a special harness over his shoulders. The Nova Scotia Government exhibits at this Meet native wild animals including moose, deer, bear, raccoon and others, also native birds.

Many who attend the Nova Scotia Guides Tournament bring tent and blankets and rough it among the big trees. Others find abundant hotel accommodation in nearby hotels, country inns or farmhouses. Of course the best of fare is served on the grounds. The dates for the 1934 Meet are August 20—26.

Mayor Houde Lays Own Five-Year Plan

MONTREAL, July 21 (C.P.)— Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal has his own five year plan. It is a plan for the social and economic reconstruction of Canada and would last over a period of five years.

Mayor Houde's plan, as outlined by the mayor himself yesterday, has six main points. They are; back to the land movement on a national scale; Canada-wide adoption of old age pensions; tax of five per cent on all incomes over $12,000; general legislation for gradual re-establishment of the woman in the home and the man in business; legislation setting maximum hours of work and minimum wages for all of Canada; and curb on "financial buccaneers" by a law under which five directors in each corporation would become responsible for the acts of their organization.

NO CRIME WAVE.

WALKERVILLE, Ont., July 21.— (C.P.).—Here is one city that cannot boast a crime wave. Commenting on the fact that Walkerville has no court cases to dispose of, and the Chief Constable said no court had been held for two weeks, and added, "'On that occasion, we only had one drunk on the docket."

Neighbors

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., July 21 (CP)—Mrs. Esma Taylor's cow got into John Lantrip's garden, and got Mrs. Taylor into court. She was bound over to the Grand Jury on a charge of shooting at Lantrip. She said he had used an axe on her cow.

Quakes In Panama Open Huge Fissures

PANAMA, July 21.—(A.P.)— A second series of earthquakes terrorized inhabitants of David City, in interior Panama, early to-day. Nearly all of the town's buildings have been destroyed by disturbances of the past four days.

The latest shocks destroyed some damaged walls, but there were no casualties.

Dwellers on islands off the coast reported great earth fissures and violent earth movements.

This apparently bore out the theory of local seismographers that the centre of the opening disturbances Tuesday was in the sea.

Tents and other supplies were sent to David City, which has a population of 6,000 and preparations were made to give other aid. Money may be forwarded to help the inhabitants rebuild their homes.

German Battleship Visits England First Time In 20 Years

For the first time in more than 20 years, a German battleship visited an English port. The post-war German cruiser, Leipzig, is shown as she steamed into Portsmouth harbor. She is capable of 32 knots an hour and is of the 6,000-ton class. The Konigsberg, sister ship of the Leipzig, is another visitor a Portsmouth.

Pair Of Ceremonial Garters Be Welcomed, One No Use Says England's 'Lady Bountiful'

LONDON, July 21. (A.P.) — Lady Houston, England's "Lady Bountiful," wants a new pair of garters—the ceremonial kind the King confers on famous men.

Writing in her magazine, the Saturday Review, to-day, she says:

"The deaths of the Duke of Wellington and the Duke of Marlborough have created an unexpected problem for filling two vacancies that have arisen in the Order of the Garter.

"As one would be of no use to me, I modestly suggest that I be given them both."

Lady Houston became England's wealthiest woman when she inherited the $35,000,000 estate of her late husband, Sir Robert Houston, the shipping magnate, several years ago. Her charitable gifts earned her the title of "Lady Bountiful."

The first aeroplane flight over Mount Everest was financed by her.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY EXAMINER

A Hard Death

MADISON, Wis., July 21. (AP) — Death from starvation has come to Tony, 15-year-old leopard at Vilas Zoo, three weeks after he bit off his tongue.

His affection for Duchess, a sleek lioness occupying an adjacent cage, proved his undoing. Although repulsed by Duchess on many previous occasions, Tony tried again three weeks ago to win her favor. He thrust his tongue between the bars and fondly licked Duchess' neck. The lioness turned savagely and seized his tongue between her teeth. Tony's jaws snapped together, severing his tongue.

Despite the efforts of Fred Winkelman, zoo director, and attendants to feed him, Tony gradually weakened and finally succumbed to starvation.

GRAIN WILTING

the way of the wheat—winter-killed to such an extent that there is not much of this crop reported.

Just Half a Crop

Hay is even lighter than was expected three weeks ago. Most of it is in, and about half a crop is the general estimate although in some instances the yield is much better than that figure. A. D. Runions, representative of the Department of Agriculture, believed the hay will return about 60 per cent crop.

The pea fields need rain. A big percentage of this crop has been cut already, but the later sowing has been showing signs of wilting this week.

Roots are progressing satisfactorily with a substantia potato harvest in sight.

Market gardeners endorse the reports of the need of an old fashioned reviving rain. The tomatoes are ding well, but the ground lacks moisture at present.

On the whole the townships are facing a minor crisis which will be ayoided if rain comes within the next few days.

NEW YORK, July 21. — While willing sellers are absent, willing buyers are also few in number. The stalemate which exists in the market can be and will be broken but it is probable that several days or a few weeks will elapse before definite change in sentiment takes place.

Telephone has long been considered an issue of investment merit and rightfully so. It's earnings over a period of years has been excellent and if these were normal times "T" would be a purchase. However, in view of both recent monetary developments are the gradual trend toward money inflation as well as political agitation for further rate revisions by utility companies the outook is none too promising.

Broker's Opinions

Jackson Bros. — "Action of the rails should give the cue to the immediate trend of equities.

Fenner & Beane—"We would prefer to buy on recessions in the expectation that the next price movement would be a break through recent trading ranges into higher territory.

Waldo Young — "The industrials have not yet broken the July 3rd lows but climax of immediate phase may not be reached until Monday morning. At any rate it is not a time to withdraw from positions taken and held over a period of weeks for the longer pull. Nothing has occurred despite the discouraging appearance of the market during the past two days to make immediate decisions on withdrawals from positions imperative. We should have a climax of this selling phase by Monday forenoon. In meantime would avoid selling on weakness either today or Monday. I would expect stocks like American Can, Sears, Dupont, Air Reduction, Montgomery, Cerro De Pasco and U. S. Smelting to show the best rallying power.

New potatoes were offered at 25 cents a peck, and one dealer reported two cars of last year's crop having arrived in the city during the week, bringing no comfort to the local growers.

The remnant of the strawberry crop made a light offering, and wild raspberries were moving freely at ten and twenty cents a box, with $1.50 asked for a large pail.

YOUTH IS HELD IN MURDER CASE

Brother-in-law Claims He Was Away When Greek Woman Slain

REVOLVER MISSING.

GLACE BAY, N.S., July 21 (CP) —Young Nicholas Markadonis was still held for questions to-day while police investigated the mysterious shooting of his 28-year-old sister-in-law, Mrs. Steve Markadonis, slain while she filled a milk bottle for her baby.

A bullet through the back of the neck killed the youthful Greek housewife yesterday in the kitchen of her home here. The house was supposedly empty at the time except for herself and her elderly mother-in-law, Mrs. George Markadonis, who found the body after hearing a "commotion."

Nicholas Markadonis, 18-year-old brother of the dead woman's husband was taken into custody for questioning early this morning. He told police he was in Dominion No. 6 a few miles away, at the time of the shooting—around 4.00 o'clock.

Mrs. Markadonis was killed by a 25 calibre revolver. It penetrated the back of her neck and lodged at the base of her skull. No trace of the revolver could be found.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, July 21 (A.P.) — Stocks steadied in to-day's brief market session after an initial burst of selling and carried numerous issues to a new low for the year. The meals, leaders of yesterday's relapse, recovered some of their previous losses. The close was irregular. Transfers aproximated 560,000 shares, the largest Saturday total in more than a month.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, July 21 (C.P.).—In a quiet half-session of trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange, prices declined to lower levels today. Changes were mainly fractional.

McColl Frontenac eased ⅛ at 13. Sherwin Williams was down ½ at 14½, while Southern Canada Power declined ½ at 13½. General Steel Wares was off ⅛ at 4½. Canadian Pacific Railway eased ⅛ at 13⅛. International Nickel declined ⅛ at 24¾.

Brazilian Traction at 8½ recovered ⅛. Canada Northern Power advanced ½ at 21. Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" gained ⅜ at 6¾.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS.

TORONTO, July 21.— (C.P.) — Volume showed little expansion in to-day's short session on the Industrial Board of the Toronto Exchange and prices were barely steady, being influenced by a note of uncertainty prevailing on the New York board.

Nickel closed unchanged while Ford A dropped below the 19 mark, C.P.R. dropped a half point and Brazilian at 8¾ was down ¼. Two of the distillery stocks, Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams registered losses of ¼ to ¼ and Industrial Alcohol held a small advance at the close. The brewery stocks moved with the trend, with Canada Malting developing the main weakness in a drop of a point to 30.

TORONTO MINING

TORONTO, July 21 (C.P.) — Market leadership still rested in God's Lake in the closing session of the week on the mining section of the Toronto exchange, that Manitoba issue climbing to a close at $4 for a gain of 20 cents, winding up a week in which it has doubled its price under volume running into huge figures.

Very little action developed in the high-priced gold group. Dome picked up 25 cents in some broken lot trading. Wright Hargreaves gained 10 cents while Bralorne, Teck Hughes and Hollinger were down 5 to 10 cents each.

Noranda at $42 was unchanged, and Mining Corporation lost 5, Sherrit 4 and Sudbury Basin remain unchanged.

Nova Scotia Guides Provide Real Thrills

Time: During the full moon of August.

Place: Lake William, Lunenburg County, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Scene: A beautiful woodland lake with sloping banks clothed with evergreens and silver birches.

Performers: The licensed guides of Nova Scotia, true sportsmen, celebrated for their skill in the various arts of hunting and woodcraft.

Lake William, Nova Scotia, has become well known in recent years as the scene of the Sports Tournament of the Nova Scotia Guides. These men stage a full week's program unique on this continent in atmosphere and appeal. Hundreds of tents are set amid majestic pines and birches, and at night the scene has irresistible charm. Numberless camp fires light up the surrounding forest and lake and the moonbeams strike the water and stray through the trees. Crowds gather around the camp fires and hearty community singing is a pleasing feature.

The days are given over to a varied and interesting program. 200 yard ranges are provided for heavy rifle contests and separate ranges for the .22 rifle and revolver contests. The Trap Shooting Association of the Maritime Provinces of Canada hold their annual shoot in connection with these sports. A sheltered cove affords a fine setting for fly-casting from a float along a line of markers to show distance. Last year Bill Edson, champion fly-caster of New England, broke the world's record for distance at this Meet. Exciting canoe races and burlesque and spectacular contests furnish fun and variety. Tub races, greased pole contests, canoe tilting, kettle boiling and landing the human fish are amongst the regular stunts. The latter is a strenuous contest between the best fly caster and a powerful swimmer with a special harness over his shoulders. The Nova Scotia Government exhibits at this Meet native wild animals including moose, deer, bear, raccoon and others, also native birds.

Many who attend the Nova Scotia Guides Tournament bring tent and blankets and rough it among the big trees. Others find abundant hotel accommodation in nearby hotels, country inns or farmhouses. Of course the best of fare is served on the grounds. The dates for the 1934 Meet are August 20—26.

Mayor Houde Lays Own Five-Year Plan

MONTREAL, July 21 (C.P.)— Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal has his own five year plan. It is a plan for the social and economic reconstruction of Canada and would last over a period of five years.

Mayor Houde's plan, as outlined by the mayor himself yesterday, has six main points. They are: back to the land movement on a national scale; Canada-wide adoption of old age pensions; tax of five per cent on all incomes over $12,000; general legislation for gradual re-establishment of the woman in the home and the man in business; legislation setting maximum hours of work and minimum wages for all of Canada; and curb on "financial buccaneers" by a law under which five directors in each corporation would become responsible for the acts of their organization.

NO CRIME WAVE.

WALKERVILLE, Ont., July 21.— (C.P.).—Here is one city that cannot boast a crime wave. Commenting on the fact that Walkerville has no court cases to dispose of, and the Chief Constable said no court had been held for two weeks, and added, "On that occasion, we only had one drunk on the docket."

Neighbors

Quakes In Panama Open Huge Fissures

PANAMA, July 21.—(A.P.)— A second series of earthquakes terrorized inhabitants of David City, in interior Panama, early to-day. Nearly all of the town's buildings have been destroyed by disturbances of the past four days.

The latest shocks destroyed some damaged walls, but there were no casualties.

Dwellers on islands off the coast reported great earth fissures and violent earth movements.

This apparently bore out the theory of local seismographers that the centre of the opening disturbances Tuesday was in the sea.

Tents and other supplies were sent to David City, which has a population of 6,000 and preparations were made to give other aid. Money may be forwarded to help the inhabitants rebuild their homes.

Escuminac, N. B., breakwater extension, Harold N. Price of Moncton, about $22,232.

The explosions of the Lambrechies coal mine in Belgium, which meted death to 54 miners, caused postponement of the proposed reduction in wages of mine workers.

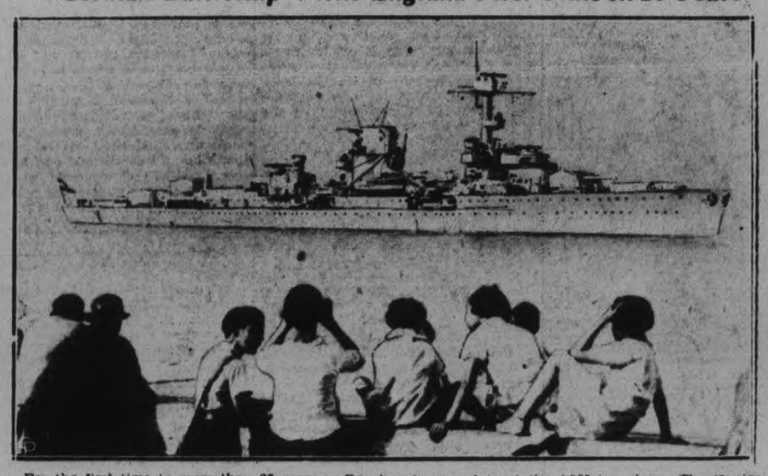
German Battleship Visits England First Time In 20 Years



For the first time in more than 20 years, a German battleship visited an English port. The post-war German cruiser, Leipzig, is shown as she steamed into Portsmouth harbor. She is capable of 32 knots an hour and is of the 6,000-ton class. The Konigsberg, sister ship of the Leipzig, is another visitor at Portsmouth.

Pair Of Ceremonial Garters Be Welcomed, One No Use Says Engl and's 'Lady Bountiful'

LONDON, July 21. (A.P.) — Lady Houston, England's "Lady Bountiful," wants a new pair of garters—the ceremonial kind the King confers on famous men.

Writing in her magazine, the Saturday Review, to-day, she says:

"The deaths of the Duke of Wellington and the Duke of Marlborough have created an unexpected problem for filling two vacancies that have arisen in the Order of the Garter.

"As one would be of no use to me, I modestly suggest that I be given them both."

Lady Houston became England's wealthiest woman when she inherited the $35,000,000 estate of her late husband, Sir Robert Houston, the shipping magnate, several years ago. Her charitable gifts earned her the title of "Lady Bountiful."

The first aeroplane flight over Mount Everest was financed by her.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY EXAMINER

A Hard Death

MADISON, Wis., July 21. (AP) — Death from starvation has come to Tony, 15-year-old leopard at Vilas Zoo, three weeks after he bit off his tongue.

His affection for Duchess, a sleek lioness occupying an adjacent cage, proved his undoing. Although repulsed by Duchess on many previous occasions, Tony tried again three weeks ago to win her favor. He thrust his tongue between the bars and fondy licked Duchess' neck. The lioness turned savagely and seized his tongue between her teeth. Tony's jaws snapped together, severing his tongue.

Despite the efforts of Fred Winkelman, zoo director, and attendants to feed him, Tony gradually weakened and finally succumbed to starvation.

the way of the wheat—winter-killed to such an extent that there is not much of this crop reported.

Just Half a Crop

Hay is even higher than was expected three weeks ago. Most of it is in, and about half a crop is the general estimate although in some instances the yield is much better than that figure. A. D. Runions, representative of the Department of Agriculture, believed the hay will return about 60 per cent crop.

The pea fields need rain. A big percentage of this crop has been cut already, but the later sowing has been showing signs of wilting this week.

Roots are progressing satisfactorily with a substantia potato harvest in sight.

Market gardeners endorse the reports of the need of an old fashioned reviving rain. The tomatoes are ding well, but the ground lacks moisture at present.

On the whole the townships are facing a minor crisis which will be avoided if rain comes within the next few days.

NEW YORK, July 21. — While willing sellers are absent, willing buyers are also few in number. The stalemate which exists in the market can be and will be broken but it is probable that several days or a few weeks will elapse before definite change in sentiment takes place.

Telephone has long been considered an issue of investment merit and rightfully so. It's earnings over a period of years has been excellent and if these were normal times "T" would be a purchase. However, in view of both recent monetary developments are the gradual trend toward money inflation as well as political agitation for further rate revisions by utility companies the outook is none too promising.

Broker's Opinions

Jackson Bros. — "Action of the rails should give the cue to the immediate trend of equities.

Fenner & Beane—"We would prefer to buy on recessions in the expectation that the next price movement would be a break through recent trading ranges into higher territory.

Waldo Young — "The industrials have not yet broken the July 3rd lows but climax of immediate phase may not be reached until Monday morning. At any rate it is not a time to withdraw from positions taken and held over a period of weeks for the longer pull. Nothing has occurred despite the discouraging appearance of the market during the past two days to make immediate decisions on withdrawals from positions imperative. We should have a climax of this selling phase by Monday forenoon. In meantime would avoid selling on weakness either today or Monday. I would expect stocks like American Can, Sears, Dupont, Air Reduction, Montgomery, Cerro De Pasco and U. S. Smelting to show the best rallying power.

GARDEN PRODUCE VERY PLENTIFUL

New Potatoes 25 Cents Peak on Local Produce Market.

EGGS 18 TO 22.

Garden produce previded the bulk of the local market this morning, with a scupcon of the pungent little onion pervading the atmosphere.

Chickens were comparatively scarce at an average price of twenty cents a pound. Eggs were quoted at from 18 to 22 cents and butter at 21 and 22 cents.

New potatoes were offered at 25 cents a peck, and one dealer reported two cars of last year's crop having arrived in the city during the week, bringing no comfort to the local growers.

The remnant of the strawberry crop made a light offering, and wild raspberries were moving freely at ten and twenty cents a box, with $1.50 asked for a large pail.

A slenderizing model is today's attaractive dress. It is quite suitable for the matron, yet has much youthful charm.

Very pretty are the sheer cotton chiffon voile prints, eyelet batiste, handkerchief-finish lawn prints, etc., for such a dress.

Washable silks in plain pastels, white or prints, sheer linen prints, etc., are also lovely for this model.

For practical wear, the dress would be nice carried out in multicolored checked seersucker, or pastel pique.

Style No. 2998 is designed for sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material with ⅜ yard of 39-inch contrasting.

Peppy Baby Marie Scratches Doctor

CALLANDER, Ont., July 21.—(C.P.)—The five amazing infants of Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne to-day continued their remarkable progress toward norma llife expectancy and the possibility of receiving their first actual water bath. But that may be some time yet.

The quintuplets celebrated their 54th day of their routine incubator life, gaining strength and weight under the care of their Northern Ontario physician, Dr. A. R. Dafoe. A small red birthmark on the left thigh of tiny Marie, who demonstrated her strength by scratching the doctor as he straightened her little blanket, was identified as a naevus type of tumor.

The doctor, however, said he had been keeping a close watch on the tumor and was satisfied there was nothing alarming about the child's condition in this regard. Because of the baby's tiny size nothing can be done at present, the doctor said, but when she gains strength radium treatment may be used as a matter of precaution.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

In Ripley's Odditorium at the Century of Progress, one of the exhibits is a man who has unilateral control of his eyes.

Standing before you with both eyes looking straight ahead, he will move the right eyes slowly outward until it is looking out of the right corner of the eye.

Then he will return it to center and move the left eye outward in the same way, bring it back, and then move it until it gets right into the corner of the eye next to the nose.

The cases of this condition recorded in medical literature are very few. There are only two of them in American medical magazines, and about five or six in German.

In the Southern Medical Journal this month there is the report of a case. The young man who was the patient had been unable to get very far ahead in his school work, so he was taken out and put in his father's printing office. Here, too, he appeared to be very stupid, and supposing that his backwardness might have something to do with his vision, he was taken to the oculist. There the true state of affairs was discovered. The patient himself was unaware of his queer faculty. His headache and fatigue were due to the strain he subconsciously exerted to keep his eyes moving synchronously.

For most of us, the nervous system has been trained so that if one eye glances to the left, the other follows it exactly.

There is an interesting story of a similar case in Scotland. A pickpocket was arrested in Edinburgh. His victims had testified that the man was cross-eyed. But this man's eyes were normal. The police force arranged to play a trick on the suspect. While he was being examined a make-believe fight was staged in the next room and a pistol fired, and the man cautiously moved one eye towards the direction of the disturbance, and it was immediately evident why he had been described as cross-eyed.

People with this abnormality are tremendously handicapped, because if they become tired the eyes are liable to go off center and they see double. Most of them are unable to get through school for this reason, and in the event that they do any close work, they have terrific headaches, and are generally regarded as lazy and stupid and incompetent.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

P.: "Can you please tell me how to get rid of a birthmark?"

Answer: There are several methods, ranging from the use of carbon dioxide snow to radium and ultra-violet light. The treatment depends largely upon the nature of the birthmark. In the thick, spongy forms, radium is probably the best. In the flat, strawberry marks, ultra-violet light usually is most successful.

P. B.: "Is water from a hot water tap all right to drink? I work in a theater and carry my lunch, and make tea by running water from a tap over a tea bag."

Answer: Such water is perfectly safe.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The walls of a sun porch or a screened-in verandah are really the side of the house. They may remain unornamented, or they can form a feature of the decorative treatment. Unless the sun porch partakes more of the room idea and less of the verandah, it should be furnished like an indoor room, but suggest decidedly the open-air element. There are sun parlors which rightly deserve the name parlor. Sunny they may be, but they certainly have little about them to indicate they are for open air enjoyment. When they are of this sort they can have bookcases or shelves along the walls, and furniture which would never withstand exposure without serious damage. The walls can have framed pictures on them provided they are of fields and streams, summer landscapes, seascapes, etc. But pictures are not recommended.

* * * * * * *

Simple wall hangings are preferable. Pottery wall pockets for flowers, especially when filled with gay blossoms and trailing vines introduce a garden feature. So also do ornamental wrought iron plant brackets with flourishing plants in pots in their standards.

* * * * * * *

The treatment of screened-in piazza walls must be kept very simple to be appropriate, but this does not deter them from supplying pleasant decoration. A welcome note is struck by a wall pocket, or rack of wood or bamboo, in which is an array of palm leaf fans, or others of the flat sort which are chosen for their ornamental as well as their practical value.

* * * * * * *

An electric light in a quaint lantern fixture adds decidedly to the appearance of a piazza wall of an old-fashioned house. A modern outdoor fixture goes best with modern porch furnishings. There are styles which are gratifying to the eye, both because of the good light afforded and the shape and ornamental features of the fixture. It is important to have some illumination on the piazza, and if the house is not equipped with electricity, a regulation lantern can be hung from a good-looking bracket type of long hook. These wall lights are useful in sunporches, but as electric lamps can be featured in them appropriately, they are not so accented, as in screened-in piazza decoration.

* * * * * * *

A washable wall hanging dresses up a piazza wall. It must be secured to the wall so that it does not blow with a disturbing flutter in the wind. India prints are suggested. Be sure they will launder. Not all of them have fast colors. A cross-stitch picture such as the Tandem Coach is charming. When the background is a grey green and the coach and horses, etc., are in cross-stitch silhouette in dark rich pumpkin yellow the effect is quaint. Or a Chinese color combination blue background with cross-stitching in Chinese red is fascinating. Old coaches were often this shade of red and yellow, so the color combinations are true to type as well as artistic. In such wall hanging the medium and foundation must be fast color to withstand laundering.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

By GLADYS GLAD

Woman Pays for Excess Poundage Of Body, Famous Beauty States

That famous operatic star, Nanette Guilford, was recently ordered by a municipal court judge to pay $1,034 to a well-known surgeon for 18 pounds of flesh that he had assisted her in losing. Nanette, you see, was slated to appear at the Opera Comique in Paris. She wanted to look her best, so she enlisted the aid of the surgeon, in order to lose weight. And after she'd succeeded, the surgeon, like Shylock, demanded that she pay for her pounds of flesh.

Nanette had to pay for the pounds of flesh that she'd lost. But most heavy women have to pay for the excess pounds that they retain. Not in actual money, of course. But they do pay in discomfort, discontent and lack of allure.

If there's any one time when excess flesh becomes a discomfort and a burden, it's during the hot summer season. Yet summer is such an easy time to reduce that it is a mystery to me how anyone could possibly prefer the discomforts that result from overweight during hot weather. In the summertime, the body is satisfied with far less fuel than in the wintertime, you know. Rich, heavy, fatty dishes just naturally are supplanted by light salads, and vegetable and fruit dishes. And as a consequence, a well-planned reducing diet, such as the one outlined in my "New Figure" booklet, is very simple to follow, because the foods involved are the foods that comprise most ordinary summer dishes.

Food is required chiefly as fuel for the work of the body. Our bodies must do something with every morsel of food that we put into them. If we eat only enough to meet our bodily requirements, our weight remains normal. If we eat too much, the excess is stored away as fat. And if we reduce our food intake, our bodies draw upon their fat reserve and our weight decreases.

Every gal should see to it during the summertime that she eats just enough food to enable her body to do its daily work with ease—and no more. The more work she does, of course, the more food she'll need. But if she consumes more food than her body can utilize, she'll put on a lot of excess poundage, and will probably feel perfectly miserable during the torrid weather.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT HOUSES

A Weekly Home Feature Service Supplied to The Examiner by Home Builders' Service Bureau, 177 Jarvis Street, Toronto 2

CARPENTRY

Carpentry, consisting of the framing and closing of a building, and the finishing work (cabinets, built-in cupboards, wardrobes, trim, doors and finished flooring, etc.), is usually performed by the general contractor.

Floor joists must be levelled with special care. To stiffen the walls, and, incidentaly, serve as a fire-stop and draught preventative, wooden blocks of same dimensions as the studding should be inserted between floor and ceiling.

Reference is made in the specifications to "trussing"; this means distribution of a heavy load over a doorway so that the vertical members or jambs prevent sagging. Steel beams resting on wood are inadvisable, occasioning uneven settlement due to the rigidity of steel and shrinkage of wood; steel should rest on steel, iron on masonry.

An Interval for Drying

For a week or ten days after the plastering is finished construction work should be stopped to permit thorough drying and shrinkage of the lumber before applying trim. A saving may be effected in selecting quantity stock millwork, but individuality, of course, is an important factor and worth the additional cost of special work.

Woods and Their Applications

White pine is admirable for exterior painted trim. Oak is good where carving is specified, while chestnut serves adequately for adzing and wire brushing.

As awnings impose considerable strain on over-window millwork, such timber should be well anchored. The best exterior trim for stained treatment is oak, chestnut or walnut. Cypress is not generally used because of its shrinkage tendency. Stain for chestnut trim must be carefully selected as the sap flows when damp, often causing wall stain.

The Entrance

The main entrance door of a home is a conspicuous feature and an effective medium for architectural expression. If agreeable to the eye it suggests friendly hospitality and creates an atmosphere of harmony. A solid pine door is practical if the decoration is to be pigment rather than a stain. With a veneered door, so as to withstand the onslaughts of dry and damp weather the various plys of wood should be held by waterproofed glue.

The Garage

In general, garage doors are constructed of white pine or cypress these light woods causing less strain on hinges and framework than heavier material, such as oak. They are also sold in stock thicknesses.

The overhead type and counter-balanced spring type of garage door have many advantages and their easy operation make them popular.

Interior Doors

Doors for vestibule, stairhall, living-room, dining-room, library, sunroom or breakfast room, should harmonize with the prevailing architecture; however, good stock doors that can be used to advantage are available in numerous designs. Stock doors may be installed in the service section also usually of white pine with panels either of pine or fir.

For Interior Trim

Woods most commonly used for interior trim, wardrobes, stairways and doors, are oak, walnut, mahogany, birch, poplar, figured gum and Ontario white pine. Pigment spreads rapidly on poplar, the grain being dense, and as sap streaks are not objectionable such wood makes a satisfactory base. The result with pine is less favorable even when well coated with shellac.

The stairway treads call for serviceable hardwood, such as oak, maple or walnut, although, where a mahogany stain is desired and the price of walnut is prohibitive, birch is occasionally used. The handrail should conform to the tread, but the balustrade and stair risers may be of different wood. For rear service stairs, pine serves admirably.

Montreal Sea Scouts Arrive Back In City

Tanned to a rich chocolate shade, the five young Sea Scouts who set out a month ago on a 1,500-mile cruise from Montreal to Lake Simcoe and back in a 227-foot whaler, paused at George street wharf last night on their way back to their home city. They report an excellent trip.

"We did plenty of arm work," George Duncan, captain of the ship, declared, pointing to the several pairs of oars. "Sailing was good in the large open stretches of water but there was nothing to do but row in the narrow channel stretches."

The other members of the crew are Wesley Duncan, John Swift, Jack Bradbury and Harold Hicks, all of Montreal. All the lads are under 20 years of age. By day they have been on the move quite steadily and at night they have been sleeping in the open. When the weather is clear, they chose a grassy spot on the nearest shore for their beds, and in bad weather they throw canvas over the hull of the craft and bunk on its long seats and floor.

The boys are moving on to-day, heading down the Trent Valley system for Lake Ontario and ultimately Montreal.

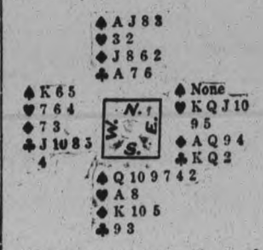
PRE-EMPTING WINS AND SAVES GAME.

When you have made up your mind to play a hand for game, and at your own choice of call, the best policy is to bid game at once, just as East did today. Had he made an opening bid for less than game South would have overcalled with spades, and gone game. The opening bid of 4-hearts, fourth hand, was higher than South dared bid. Both sides were vulnerable. The declarer's hold pre-emptive bid won game for his side. Also it saved the other side from bidding the game which it could win.



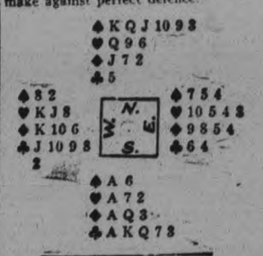
The opening lead was the 7 of spades. Dummy played low. North saw that he need not overtake, if the lead was the fourth best, so he played his 3. East ruffed with the 9. Later on he might need the 5 to enter dummy.

East led the king of hearts. South's ace won. Again the declarer ruffed with an honor when South led another spade. East pulled the last opposing trump, glad that trumps broke, as East must ruff again when opponents won with their ace of clubs. It is often surprising how even 6 trumps melt away when the declarer ruffed continually.

North declined to play his ace of clubs until East's third lead of that suit. Then North led his ace of spades, again forcing the declarer. The only thing that East could do was to lead his ace of diamonds, followed by a low diamond. South won the second diamond trick at the tenth trick, he led his good king of diamonds. Dummy ruffed and all remaining cards of the declaring side were good. The hand fulfilled its game contract, losing one trick in trumps, one in clubs and one in diamonds, but the declarer held none too great strength.

How should South Play?

South played the following hand at 6-no trumps doubled. The opening lead was the jack of clubs. Before Monday think how many he should make against perfect defence.



SETTLEMENT NEAR

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21. (AP) Hopes of peace stirred anew along the strike-torn Pacific coast to-day—despite martial law threats at Portland and disorders at Seattle—as federal agencies pressed for settlement of the prolonged maritime conflict. For the first time in two months, trucks driven by union men rolled along the San Francisco waterfront when the last line of a general strike collapsed with the unconditional return to work of teamsters.

PRAIRIE CROPS NORTHERN AREAS SHOWING WELL

Southern areas of Manitoba and Saskatchewan Needs Rain Badly.

GRASSHOPPERS ACTIVE

Wheat is in Blossom, Oats Heading Out, But Straw Short.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 21—With the exception of the Peace River territory weather has been generally hot and dry during the past week. The more northerly crop growing districts in all the prairie provinces show the best prospects. Southern acreage in Manitoba and Saskatchewan needs rain badly and grasshoppers and hail have caused damage in limited areas. Haying operations are well under way. Coarse grains need more moisture, according to the weekly crop report of the Agricultural Department, Canadian National Railways.

The Portage-Brandon division in Manitoba shows no improvements since the last report except in the more northern sub-division. If present hot weather continues considerable grain will be cut for feed purposes. In the Dauphin division weather has been hot and dry. Wheat is headed out and filling well. But additional rainfall would be beneficial. No report of rust damage.

Drought and Hoppers

In southern Saskatchewan the continued drought and grasshopper damage is causing considerable apprehension. The Saskatoon division reports grain is now all headed short. Conditions generally are fairly good but more rain is needed to insure grain filling out properly. Slight damage from insect pests is reported.

Weather throughout the Prince Albert division has been very warm with occasional showers. Grains are headed out but show an uneven stand, early sown grains being short while later sown crops will be of normal height. Continued warm weather, tempered with rains, required. No damage from any source reported.

Calgary Gets Hail

In the Calgary division of Alberta, crops continue to make good progress. Several heavy rains, mixed with hail, were experienced during the week in certain subdividne. Grasshoppers are reported but damage has not been great. In the Edmonton division wheat is mostly headed out and coarse grains are showing rapid progress. Some hail and grasshopper damage noted but not serious. Crops are generally progressing satisfactorily but more rain would be welcome in some sections.

Throughout the entire Peace River territory weather has continued cool anud rainy. Grain is in splendid condition, wheat is well headed out and warm weather is now needed. Some slight damage from hail reported in some districts.

Present prices on dry feed or good early grass fed butcher cattle are considered quite good selling on the local market from $4 to $5.25 prices for plain and unfinished cattle are very unsatisfactory and such animals should be held back wherever possible.

UNITED STATES PAIR DEFEATED

McGrath and Crawford Take Measure of Wood and Shields in Davis Cup Matches.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 21.—(AP). Vian McGrath, 19-year-old Australian tennis star and his more famous teammate Jack Crawford, to-day humbled Sidney B. Wood, Jr., and Frank Shields in the opening singles match of the Australian-United States interzone final of aDvis Cup pla to practicaly clinch the five match series.

Crawford first defeated Shields 6-1, 6-2, 12-10 and McGrath then scored a surprising upset over Wood 7-5, 6-4, 1-6, 9-7.

The defeat of Shields was not unexpected but Wood had been counted on to defeat his youner, ess experienced adversary and give the United States a fighting chance in the next three matches.

Lester Stoefen and George M. Lott, Jr., remain favorites to defeat Crawford and Adrian Quist in the one doubles encounter Monday but Crawford is a prohibitive choice to win from Wood next Tuesday even if Shields should overcome McGrath, and that is no certainty after the younster's great showing to-day.

The matches were played under threatenin conditions and on turf made slippery by an early morning rain. Only a rare 1,000 spectators were in the stands at the start although some 4,000 more were here for the finish.

Ban Non-Suit Move In Bradley's Trial

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., July 21 (C.P.).—A motion for non-suit was moved by defence counsel at the trial of Michael Bradley here today. The ground for the motion, as stated by counsel, was that the Crown had failed to prove its case. Judge Philemon Cousineau dismissed the motion.

It was announced that the defence does not propose to summon any witnesses. Consequently addresses to the jury by Crown and defence will proceed this afternoon, with the possibility of a verdict later in the day or this evening.

In moving the motion, Mr. Crankshaw said: "The Crown has failed to prove its case. The evidence of the Crown demonstrates the fact that five people were murdered. There is not a bit of evidence to prove that it was the accused. The Crown is resting its case on circumstantial evidence. There was no case made by the Crown. Admitting that the facts presented by the Crown are correct, they have not proved their case."

2nd Panama Quake Takes Toll of Lives

PANAMA, July 21 (A.P.). — A number of persons were reported killed this morning by a second series of earthquakes, which caused the public wharf at Puerto Armuelles to collapse.

No estimate of the number killed and injured was available. Property loss was said to have been high. The new quakes terrorized the inhabitants of David City, in the interior, destroying most of the houses still standing after the devastating tremors of mid-week.

TORONTO'S GRAND OPERA STAR MAKES HER U.S. DEBUT TO-NIGHT

Mlle. Val Yosha, (Edith Shuttleworth) Recently Majored in Mathematics at U. of T.

BEEN STUDYING ABROAD.

(By Mary Elizabeth Plummer).

NEW YORK, July 21 (A.P.). — To "Mlle. Val Yoska," grand opera's high C's proved more interesting than the "X" of highest mathematics.

As a result, the slender, auburn-haired girl who not long ago was Toronto University's ace triginometry student is making her United States operatic debut to-night.

She will sing the role of 'Amneris' in "Aida" at Asbury Park, N.J., with the New York Grand Opera Company. And down in front row will be her mother, Mrs. John K. Shuttleworth of Toronto.

"Of course I'm happy," she said, as she perched on her bed in a Broadway hotel, while her mother looked on.

"I've always looked forward to singing in New York, and this is right next door."

The singer swung a white-shod foot. She looked like Lily Pons—in a white dress with sailor emblems and a jaunty beret.

2 Years Abroad.

Still in her twenties, Val Yoska has behind her several concert tours and two years of European study with several operatic appearances, including one at La Scala.

Back home in Toronto, she is Edith Shuttleworth, who majored in mathematics, made the Toronto University swimming team, won a tennis prize, and an athletic letter—and planned a career in chemical research.

But concert offers followed on the heels of her first vocal tour, arranged by the University Extension Division. She hesitated between music and engineering school, and chose music.

"But I've sung," she said, "since I was so high."

"Near disaster," in the shape of a lost wig, marked her arrival in New York. A wig shop by mistake sold the "Amneris" wig she was to wear to-night.

The singer's mother went out and reclaimed it.

"Mother's my practical side," said the young soprano.

Her mathematical training proved of use once, she said. That was when she gave a "chromotographique" concert, using colored lights during her songs, and made a "perfectly beautiful" graph to guide eight electricians.

GERMAN CREDITS VERGE OF CRISIS

Two Fined, Jailed for Having Secret Accounts Abroad—Warnings Sent Out.

EXCHANGE RUNS LOW.

BERLIN, July 21 (C.P.).—Prison terms and fines added force today to Germany's desperate efforts to shield her perilously scanty supply of foreign exchange.

A special court imposed the sentences on three men, one a foreigner, for not revealing possession of foreign credits.

Hendrick Bahlmani of Holland was sentenced to seven months' imprisonment, and fined 12,000 marks (about $4,800) for "treason against public economy" for failing to reveal possession of a 90,000-florin credit in a Dutch bank.

The two Germans were sentenced to three years and one month and one year and two months, respectively, for concealing much larger amount.

New restrictions on the imports of fibrous and textile materials and steps toward reorganizing industrial life on a "self-sufficiency" basis indicated Germany was in desperate straits so far as international trade is concerned.

Such moves led observers to believe the third Reich is rapidly approaching a crisis in her financial life from which there will be no escape unless help comes from abroad in the form of new credits, lower tariffs or extraordinary bartering arrangements.

2 Austrian Bombers Captured, Face Death

VIENNA, July 21.—(A.P.)— Two Socialist bombers were captured to-day after seriously wounding a policeman who attempted t oblock their escape. Under the new decree of Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss, they must hang.

The pair had just dynamited the track of the Danube Riverbank Railroad and were leaving the city when the police intercepted them.

They fired three shots, two of them taking effect, but soon afterward were captured and confessed the bombing as well as the shooting.

Another Socialist was arrested for the possession of explosives. The charge also carried a compulsory death penalty.

In Aschenkirchen, two persons were injured by an exploding bomb. In the Tyrol, the traffic on the Mittenwald Railway was paralyzed by dynamiting. At Schattwald, also in the Tyrol, an electric sub-station was dynamited and in Salzburg a Heimwehr (Home Guard) leader was wounded by assassins.

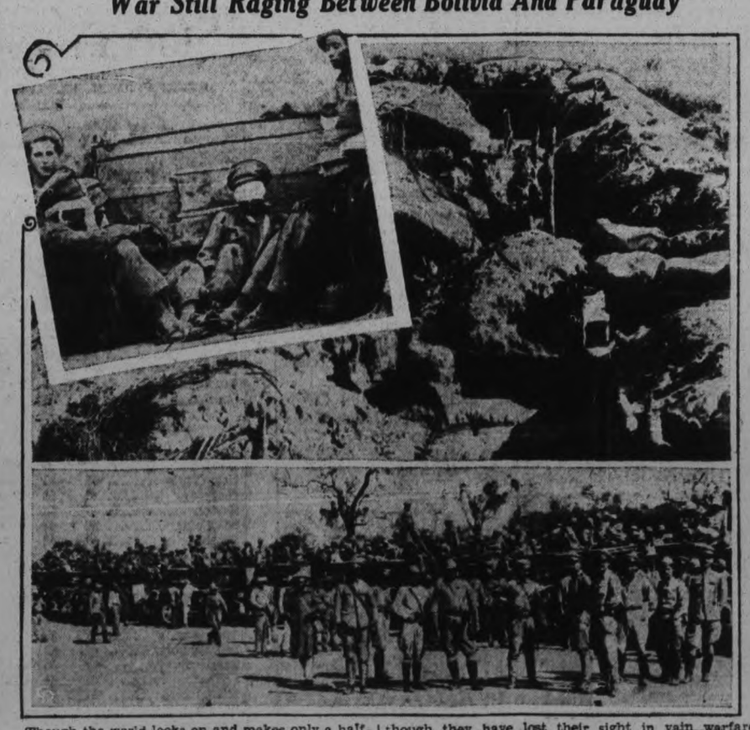
War Still Raging Between Bolivia And Paraguay



Though the world looks on and makes only a half-hearted move to stop it, war rages in all its ferocity in South America between Bolivia and Paraguay. Reports state that thousands have been killed in the war which has been going on for nearly two years. The layout shows scenes from behind the lines. UPPER LEFT, wounded Bolivian prisoners, glad of a chance for life in the hands of Paraguayans, even though they have lost their sight in vain warfare At RIGHT is seen a section of the crudely made trenches, while below are Paraguayan troops ready and eager for the fray; a photo taken just before they left for the Chaco front. Owing to the great danger and nature of the country, photographers have been unable to get actual photos of the fighting. There are the only photos of recent date that have come from the scene.

PRESTIGE INCREASED.

LONDON, July 21.—(C.P.-Havas).—Having conducted an investigation in continental Europe, Hector Bywater, British naval expert, drew the conclusions, according to his signed article in the Daily Telegraph to-day, that the prestige of Great Britain has been increased, that France, far from being bellicose, merely seeks to defend her northern borders, and that relations between France and Italy have cooled to some extent.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

EVERYTHING IS in readiness at Stamford for the return of the bangtails this afternoon. Plenty of horses, plenty of riders, and all that is needed to make the meeting a huge success is plenty of customers at the mutuel wickets. Toronto fans do not go for trotting races like they do for the runners. This was ably demonstrated on Thursday of this week when only twenty-five hundred turned out to Thorncliffe to see the Grand Circuit open its session, with all the star trotters and pacers on the North American continent in action. On any ordinary day when the runners are performing at the same place the crowd is always over six thousands, with double that number on opening days and Saturdays.

THEY TELL us there is a race at Niagara for this horse Pan which won at Dufferin some time ago and paid a fabulous price. One horse that is right at home on the Stamford racing strip is Reflecting, either in a sprint or over a distance of ground. The long shot price of the week was at Rockingham on Thursday when Monks Star paid $209.50 for every two dollar straight ticket. The second summer meeting at Hamilton begins on Aug. the fourth next or two weeks from today exactly. It might be interesting to know that Stamford Park led all tracks in this country in the percentage of winning choices for the season of 1933.

HAYFIRE the plater we told you about the other day was unfortunate enough to break his leg so badly that he had to be destroyed. Arthur Hullcoat has Barry back in his barn again and you can look forward to this one bringing home the bacon quite regularly now as Arthur seems to understand him thoroughly. The stewards at Detroit are still keeping up their fearless work. The latest was the winning effort of On Sir the other day after a few dismal performances. When the trainer did not give a satisfactory explanation they decided to refuse the entry of this one in the future. A valuation was made the other day of the racing stock of the Whitney Stable. The total value placed on it was $169,000 which is a lot of horse flesh to own. The famous Equipoise is included in the lot.

We hear that Tels has been working well and is ready. Over at Arlington there is one called Croon who is a lot better than a green hand. Some of the smart ones are expecting to make the winter's coal on this one. Unencumbered is at Detroit just limbering up and from now on will win his share. Last year he was a standout and will be just as good from the present time. Johnny Hynes the former trainer of the Thorncliffe Stable has started his new duties of conditioner of the horses belonging to the new C. and C. Stable. He is one of the best.

Electrics Cinch E.P.L. Playoff Berth

FOSTERS ARE ELIMINATED IN E.P.L. TANGLE

Four-Run Splurge in Opening Frame Gives Electrics 6-3 Victory.

SEVERAL BAD ERRORS

Fosters were eliminated from the E.P.L. race and C.G.E. cinched a playoff berth as a result of the Electrics' 6-3 victory over Fosters before a small crowd at the Exhibition Grounds last night. It was only a fair sort of game, several bad errors on each side and a couple of boners robbing the contest of considerable interest. A four-run splurge, mostly through errors, in the opening frame gave C.G.E. a safe margin right at the start. The Electrics will now meet Cogs in the playoffs.

Some excellent twirling was dished up on both sides. Gene McCarthy went the route for the losers and held C.G.E. to three hits, a scratch single to short in the first, and a single and double in the fourth. He fanned five, walked one and should have won the game with better support. Jack Barry hurled five frames for C.G.E. giving three hits in the third inning, fanning three and walking the same number. Clair McGillen finished with no hits, two strikeouts and three walks.

Houlihan, Bert Bailey and Doug Mowry got the only Foster hits, the latter being a double. For C.G.E. Weir hit a two-bagger, H. Mowry and Barry knocked singles. B. Bailey and McCarroll handled a few tough chances for the losers while Young pulled off a neat running catch for the Hatton crew. Two double-plays resulted from poor base-running by Foster players, second out in each case being in the nature of a bonehead play.

The Electrics stepped out and put the tilt on ice in the initial stanza with four markers, three unearned. Weir was safe on an error, Nicholls was hit by a pitched ball, Busby got to second on a bad heave and Mowry scratched a single. These and two outs sent in the runs. They got their other two markers in the fourth, Johnston being safe on an error, stealing second and tallying on Barry's single, the latter taking second on the throw-in and racing around on Weir's double.

Fosters failed to threaten except in the third when they got three on two errors, a walk, singles by Houlihan and B. Bailey and a two-base blow by Doug Mowry. With the bases loaded, a double-play retired the side.

Will The Pennant Fly Here For First Time In 25 Years

This most recent photo of Navin Field, taken during the Yankee-Tiger series in which the Detroits wrested from the New Yorkers the American league lead, may be the site of a world series for the first time in a generation. It was just 25 years ago—1909—that the Tigers won a flag.

INDIANS ADVANCE TO THIRD WHILE SENATORS DROP TO 6TH

Tigers Lose to Athletics While White Sox Beat Yankees in 13-inning Tilt.

GIANTS OUT ON TOP.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two rather significant changes were recorded in the American League standing of the clubs today but they didn't affect the rivals for the lead.

While the pace-setting Tigers and second-place Yankees were taking a pair of trimmings from tail-end clubs yesterday Cleveland Indians, responding to threats to the managerial security of Walter Johnson moved into third place ahead of Boston and St. Louis Browns slipped past the tottering Senators into fifth.

Due to Monte Pearson's wildness, the Cleveland tribe had a difficult time winning its fourth in a row and its second from the Red Hose, 5-3. The Indians belted Rube Walberg out in the second, putting together four hits and an error for four runs but Boston got three back in the sixth after a trio of walks and when Pearson became wild again in the eighth Mel Harder had to rescue him.

Rogers Hornsby's Browns took a more decisive method of shoving sixth place. They won 7-4 for their sixth straight triumph as George Blaeholder kept things under control until the ninth while his club made good use of nine hits.

Jimmie Foxx was the cause of Detroit's downfall. He clouted his 29th home run of the season in the eighth inning to provide the winning tally in the A's 5-4 victory and to put himself ahead of Bob Johnson in their race for the major league lead. The White Sox had to go 13 innings to beat the Yankees 7-6 on one base hits after the three circuit swats, including Lou Gehrig's 25th, had scored all the New York runs.

The proverbial "luck" of the Giants held good to give the National League leaders an extra half game margin over the Cubs. Four runs down to the lowly Reds in the fourth inning, they were halted for an hour by a rainstorm. When play was resumed Si Johnson had cooled off and couldn't halt the New York batters, who slammed out seven runs in the fourth and won 11-5.

The Cubs only succeeded in playing one scoreless inning against the Phillies before rain wiped out their game, leaving them 3½ games behind.

The third place Cardinals kept pace with the Giants by smacking down the Braves 5-1 behind the five-hit flinging of James Otto (Tex) Carleton. The Cardinal flinger had a perfect game in sight until Berger smacked his 21st homer of the season in the seventh.

Pittsburgh and Brooklyn had an open date.

California is winning all sorts of championships this year. Rowing, ring, track and field, tennis—why they're even putting on a champion strike.

BLAKE HURLS LEAFS TO WIN OVER MONTREAL

Booneman Score Seven Runs in Second Inning for 8 to 3 Victory.

BIRDS COP SERIES.

(By Associated Press.)

Rochester and Toronto had exchanged second and third place in the International League to-day, both only a game and a half behind the pace-setting Newark Bears.

Toronto moved into second place by the margin of two percentage points over Rochester by winning an 8-3 night game decision over Montreal Royals while the Red Wings were bowing to Buffalo, 12-11, in a three-hour "owl" game at Buffalo last night. Both games were decided principally by the wildness of Montreal and Rochester flingers.

Toronto took advantage of five passes and four hits to score seven runs in the second inning and clinch its victory over Montreal. Orlin Collier gave one hit and three passes before he retired in favor of Chad Kimsey, but the latter passed two more men and allowed three more hits before the side was retired. With this early advantage to work on, Sheriff Blake had no trouble pitching his way to triumph although he himself was wild, walking eight men. He allowed only four hits, however.

Rochester outhit Buffalo 17-11, but Norbert Kleinke, John Berly, and Johnny Michaels handed out 14 passes, and the Bisons turned most of them into runs.

The Redwings led 9-3 after 4½ innings, but Buffalo came back with nine runs in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth frames to win out and shove the Wings down into third place. Tom Winsett, Redwing outfielder, collected a to carry off hitting honors.

In the midst of its best winning streak of a bad season, Baltimore Orioles tripped Newark 3-2 in 10 innings for their fifth victory in seven starts. Vito Tamulis and Max Butcher waged a scoreless duel for nine innings, but in the first half of the 10th, Manager Guy Sturdy drove in one Baltimore run with a double and then preceded George Puccinelli across the plate when the latter clouted a homer. In the last half, Newark drove Butcher to cover after Vince Barton hit his 20th homer with one on, Lohrman shut off the rally one short of a tie.

Cy Blanton scored his second successive shutout as Albany trimmed Syracuse 4-0 in a night game. The Senator ace allowed only four hits and fanned seven.

Well, Mac, our ball team has at last slipped up on the road. After winning 5 straight away from home the lads travelled down to Kingston Wed. and was stopped dead in their tracks by that little Napoleon of the heaving mound, Mister Yammy Jamieson, which only give the Lee talent 3 measley blows and not a run. Twice our travelling representatives had a agent on every cushion and a hit on each of them occasions woulda meant the ball game, but the boys simply couldn't deliver in the pinches, the Ponies winning 3 to nil. Our Mister Calladine pitched a mighty sweet game hisself, holding the Ponies to 6 hits and 1 earned run, but with the Petes' attack slowed down to a crawl, the youngster didn't have a chance to hang up his 4th win in a row. The lads has been doing some timely hitting for quite a spell, but Wed. Mister Jamieson had them hog-tied when safe blows meant checking in at the counting station. The win was mighty sweet for the Ponies, which have been taking it on the chin pretty regularly before the home fans.

Last Sat., Mac, the lads made about as clean a job of beating Oshawa as they have did this season, winning without much argument, except 1 mister S. Johnston was involved in, by 5 to 0. Our Mister Deyell between intervals of fire-balling the motor boys into submission slipped in a old Sally dip-the-dipper that had the Dukes hitting nothing but the humid July air. Meanwhile our talent was pecking away at the left-handed offerings of Mister L. Wills with praiseworthy gusto, particularly our Mister Foley, who after pumping a fly the 1st time up hoisted a drive over the right field wall; in his next appearance at the plate then lined a single into right, and finished up with a terrific slam to left centre for 3 bases—a good day's work for anybody's hitter. Oshawa only had 1 real chance to score when they had runners on the 2nd and 3rd buoys with 1 hand down, but their Mister Wills was called out on strikes and Mister Hurst missed 3, so that was that, except that Mister Wills declared that the last 1 called on him was inside something short of a yard or 2, and he kicked up so much fuss about the thing that he was finally invited by Mister Johnston, the finely trained ump, to go chase himself out of there because he was through for the day, or words to that effect. Anyway, as usual in such cases, the empire had the last word and Mister Wills departed, muttering. Some of the Oshawa fans proceeded to tell Mister Johnston what they thought of him, but having been around the circuit for these many moons and having been insulted by experts, the arbitrator took it as if he liked it—and the demonstration didn't get to 1st base.

Mrs. Gilbert Nunns Will Defend Title Against Challenge of Mrs. W. D. Patrick.

STRONG EAST ENTRY.

(By Elmer Dulmage, C.P. Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, July 21 (C.P.). — If Marcel Rainville, Canada's Bunny Austin of tennis, has the defences to cope with the mightiest forehand in the Canadain court game, he will become the new singles champion of Ontario to-day over the head of Gilbrt Nunns, his Davis Cup captain.

Only the drilling forehand smash no one in this tournament has yet solved stands between the diminutive French-Canadian veteran and a title he really wants to win. Rainville trounced Walter Martin of Toronto, defending champion, yesterday in straight sets in their semi-final.

On the next court Nunns, Toronto's hope since Martin's downfall eliminated Bobby Murray of Montreal, Quebec titleholder, also in straight sets. These results produced Montreal-Toronto finals in both singles divisions.

Mrs. Gilbert Nunns, 1933 champion, will defend her crown to-day against the challenge of Mrs. W. D. Patrick of Montreal, the former Dorothy Gillespie of Vacouver. They won their semi-final matches yesterday.

The strong entry from the East landed Murray and Laird Watt of Montreal in the men's doubles final against the Jamaican pair, Don Leahong and Harry Dayee, and placed Mrs. Patrick and Effie Billing of Montreal in the women's doubles final against an Ottawa-Montreal pair, Mrs. L. H. Beer and Yvette Sawyer.

C.G.E. Provides Snappy Brand of Ball to Defeat Rurals at East City Bowl.

C.G.E. girls provided the biggest upset of the season in the softball loop last night at the Ashburnham Bowl when they tumbled the league-leading Keene team by a count of 26 to 19, for their second consecutive win in the second half, and this loss, incidentally is the second straight defeat which the Rurals have suffered.

The Electrics came through with a snappy brand of ball and showed plenty of pep and fight in every frame. Helen Newson pitched for the winners and showed strength in the pinches, while her teammates backed her up in great style. Marilyn McCarthy started for the losers and worked for five frames. She fanned three but gave eleven free passes and was replaced by Mary McCarthy, who walked one and was touched for five hits.

Solid clouts salted the decision away for the locals, and they grabbed a lead in the sixth when Helen Newson hit a double and D. Byers added a homer to send in six counters. Roberta Gainor connected for the only four-base hit for Keene.

EVERYTHING IS in readiness at Stamford for the return of the bangtails this afternoon. Plenty of horses, plenty of riders, and all that is needed to make the meeting a huge success is plenty of customers at the mutuel wickets. Toronto fans do not go for trotting races like they do for the runners. This was ably demonstrated on Thursday of this week when only twenty-five hundred turned out to Thorncliffe to see the Grand Circuit open its session, with all the star trotters and pacers on the North American continent in action. On any ordinary day when the runners are performing at the same place the crowd is always over six thousands, with double that number on opening days and Saturdays.

THEY TELL us there is a race at Niagara for this horse Pan which won at Dufferin some time ago and paid a fabulous price. One horse that is right at home on the Stamford racing strip is Reflecting, either in a sprint or over a distance of ground. The long shot price of the week was at Rockingham on Thursday when Monks Star paid $309.50 for every two dollar straight ticket. The second summer meeting at Hamilton begins on Aug. the fourth next or two weeks from today exactly. It might be interesting to know that Stamford Park led all tracks in this country in the percentage of winning choices for the season of 1933.

HAYFIRE the plater we told you about the other day was unfortunate enough to break his leg so badly that he had to be destroyed. Arthur Hullcoat has Barry back in his barn again and you can look forward to this one bringing home the bacon quite regularly now as Arthur seems to understand him thoroughly. The stewards at Detroit are still keeping up their fearless work. The latest was the winning effort of On Sir the other day after a few dismal performances. When the trainer did not give a satisfactory explanation they decided to refuse the entry of this one in the future. A valuation was made the other day of the racing stock of the Whitney Stable. The total value placed on it was $169,000 which is a lot of horse flesh to own. The famous Equipoise is included in the lot.

We hear that Tels has been working well and is ready. Over at Arlington there is one called Croon who is a lot better than a green hand. Some of the smart ones are expecting to make the winter's coal on this one. Unencumbered is at Detroit just limbering up and from now on will win his share. Last year he was a standout and will be just as good from the present time. Johnny Hynes the former trainer of the Thorncliffe Stable has started his new duties of conditioner of the horses belonging to the new C. and C. Stable. He is one of the best.

Electrics Cinch E.P.L. Playoff Berth

FOSTERS ARE ELIMINATED IN E.P.L. TANGLE

Four-Run Splurge in Opening Frame Gives Electrics 6-3 Victory.

SEVERAL BAD ERRORS

Fosters were eliminated from the E.P.L. race and C.G.E. cinched a playoff berth as a result of the Electrics' 6-3 victory over Fosters before a small crowd at the Exhibition Grounds last night. It was only a fair sort of game, several bad errors on each side and a couple of boners robbing the contest of considerable interest. A four-run splurge, mostly through errors, in the opening frame gave C.G.E. a safe margin right at the start. The Electrics will now meet Cogs in the playoffs.

Some excellent twirling was dished up on both sides. Gene McCarthy went the route for the losers and held C.G.E. to three hits, a scratch single to short in the first, and a single and double in the fourth. He fanned five, walked one and should have won the game with better support. Jack Barry hurled five frames for C.G.E. giving three hits in the third inning, fanning three and walking the same number. Clair McGillen finished with no hits, two strikeouts and three walks.

Houlihan, Bert Bailey and Doug Mowry got the only Foster hits, the latter being a double. For C.G.E. Weir hit a two-bagger, H. Mowry and Barry knocked singles. B. Bailey and McCarroll handled a few tough chances for the losers while Young pulled off a neat running catch for the Hatton crew. Two double-plays resulted from poor base-running by Foster players, second out in each case being in the nature of a bonehead play.

The Electrics stepped out and put the tilt on ice in the initial stanza with four markers, three unearned. Weir was safe on an error, Nicholls was hit by a pitched ball, Busby got to second on a bad heave and Mowry scratched a single. These and two outs sent in the runs. They got their other two markers in the fourth, Johnston being safe on an error, stealing second and tallying on Barry's single, the latter taking second on the throw-in and racing around on Weir's double.

Fosters failed to threaten except in the third when they got three on two errors, a walk, singles by Houlihan and B. Bailey and a two-base blow by Doug Mowry. With the bases loaded, a double-play retired the side.

INDIANS ADVANCE TO THIRD WHILE SENATORS DROP TO 6TH

Tigers Lose to Athletics While White Sox Beat Yankees in 13-inning Tilt.

GIANTS OUT ON TOP.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two rather significant changes were recorded in the American League standing of the clubs today but they didn't affect the rivals for the lead.

While the pace-setting Tigers and second-place Yankees were taking a pair of trimmings from tail-end clubs yesterday Cleveland Indians, responding to threats to the managerial security of Walter Johnson moved into third place ahead of Boston and St. Louis Browns slipped past the tottering Senators into fifth.

Due to Monte Pearson's wildness, the Cleveland tribe had a difficult time winning its fourth in a row and its second from the Red Hose, 5-3. The Indians belted Rube Walberg out in the second, putting together four hits and an error for four runs but Boston got three back in the sixth after a trio of walks and when Pearson became wild again in the eighth Mel Harder had to rescue him.

Rogers Hornsby's Browns took a more decisive method of shoving the 1933 league champions down to sixth place. They won 7-4 for their sixth straight triumph as George Blaeholder kept things under control until the ninth while his club made good use of nine hits.

Jimmie Foxx was the cause of Detroit's downfall. He clouted his 29th home run of the season in the eighth inning to provide the winning tally in the A's 5-4 victory and to put himself ahead of Bob Johnson in their race for the major league lead. The White Sox had to go 13 innings to beat the Yankees 7-6 on one base hits after the three circuit swats, including Lou Gehrig's 25th, had scored all the New York runs.

The proverbial "luck" of the Giants held good to give the National League leaders an extra half game margin over the Cubs. Four runs down to the lowly Reds in the fourth inning, they were halted for an hour by a rainstorm. When play was resumed Si Johnson had cooled off and couldn't halt the New York batters, who slammed out seven runs in the fourth and won 11-5.

The Cubs only succeeded in playing one scoreless inning against the Phillies before rain wiped out their game, leaving them 3½ games behind.

The third place Cardinals kept pace with the Giants by smacking down the Braves 5-1 behind the five-hit flinging of James Otto (Tex) Carleton. The Cardinal flinger had a perfect game in sight until Berger smacked his 21st homer of the season in the seventh.

Pittsburgh and Brooklyn had an open date.

California is winning all sorts of championships this year. Rowing, ring, track and field, tennis—why they're even putting on a champion strike.

BLAKE HURLS LEAFS TO WIN OVER MONTREAL

Booneman Score Seven Runs in Second Inning for 8 to 3 Victory.

BIRDS COP SERIES.

(By Associated Press.)

Rochester and Toronto had exchanged second and third place in the International League to-day, both only a game and a half behind the pace-setting Newark Bears.

Toronto moved into second place by the margin of two percentage points over Rochester by winning an 8-3 night game decision over Montreal Royals while the Red Wings were bowing to Buffalo, 12-11, in a three-hour "owl" game at Buffalo last night. Both games were decided principally by the wildness of Montreal and Rochester flingers.

Toronto took advantage of five passes and four hits to score seven runs in the second inning and clinch its victory over Montreal. Orlin Collier gave one hit and three passes before he retired in favor of Chad Kimsey, but the latter passed two more men and allowed three more hits before the side was retired. With this early advantage to work on, Sheriff Blake had no trouble pitching his way to triumph although he himself was wild, walking eight men. He allowed only four hits, however.

Rochester outhit Buffalo, 17-11, but Norbert Kleinke, John Berly, and Johnny Michaels handed out 14 passes, and the Bisons turned most of them into runs.

The Redwings led 3-2 after 4½ innings, but Buffalo came back with nine runs in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth frames to win out and shove the Wings down into third place. Tom Winsett, Redwing outfielder, collected 4 to carry off hitting honors.

In the midst of its best winning streak of a bad season, Baltimore Orioles tripped Newark 3-2 in 10 innings for their fifth victory in seven starts. Vito Tamulis and Max Butcher waged a scoreless duel for nine innings, but in the first half of the 10th, Manager Guy Sturdy drove in one Baltimore run with a double and then preceded George Puccinelli across the plate when the latter clouted a homer. In the last half, Newark drove Butcher to cover after Vince Barton hit his 20th homer with one on, Lohrman shut off the rally one short of a tie.

Cy Blanton scored his second successive shutout as Albany trimmed Syracuse 4-0 in a night game. The Senator ace allowed only four hits and fanned seven.

EVERYTHING IS in readiness at Stamford for the return of the bangtails this afternoon. Plenty of horses, plenty of riders, and all that is needed to make the meeting a huge success is plenty of customers at the mutuel wickets. Toronto fans do not go for trotting races like they do for the runners. This was ably demonstrated on Thursday of this week when only twenty-five hundred turned out to Thorncliffe to see the Grand Circuit open its session, with all the star trotters and pacers on the North American continent in action. On any ordinary day when the runners are performing at the same place the crowd is always over six thousands, with double that number on opening days and Saturdays.

THEY TELL us there is a race at Niagara for this horse Pan which won at Dufferin some time ago and paid a fabulous price. One horse that is right at home on the Stamford racing strip is Reflecting, either in a sprint or over a distance of ground. The long shot price of the week was at Rockingham on Thursday when Monks Star paid $209.50 for every two dollar straight ticket. The second summer meeting at Hamilton begins on Aug. the fourth next or two weeks from today exactly. It might be interesting to know that Stamford Park led all tracks in this country in the percentage of winning choices for the season of 1933.

HAYFIRE the plater we told you about the other day was unfortunate enough to break his leg so badly that he had to be destroyed. Arthur Hullcoat has Barry back in his barn again and you can look forward to this one bringing home the bacon quite regularly now as Arthur seems to understand him thoroughly. The stewards at Detroit are still keeping up their fearless work. The latest was the winning effort of On Sir the other day after a few dismal performances. When the trainer did not give a satisfactory explanation they decided to refuse the entry of this one in the future. A valuation was made the other day of the racing stock of the Whitney Stable. The total value placed on it was $169,000 which is a lot of horse flesh to own. The famous Equipoise is included in the lot.

We hear that Tels has been working well and is ready. Over at Arlington there is one called Croon who is a lot better than a green hand. Some of the smart ones are expecting to make the winter's coal on this one. Unencumbered is at Detroit just limbering up and from now on will win his share. Last year he was a standout and will be just as good from the present time. Johnny Hynes the former trainer of the Thorncliffe Stable has started his new duties of conditioner of the horses belonging to the new C. and C. Stable. He is one of the best.

Electrics Cinch E.P.L. Playoff Berth

FOSTERS ARE ELIMINATED IN E.P.L. TANGLE

Four-Run Splurge in Opening Frame Gives Electrics 6-3 Victory.

SEVERAL BAD ERRORS

Fosters were eliminated from the E.P.L. race and C.G.E. cinched a playoff berth as a result of the Electrics' 6-3 victory over Fosters before a small crowd at the Exhibition Grounds last night. It was only a fair sort of game, several bad errors on each side and a couple of boners robbing the contest of considerable interest. A four-run splurge, mostly through errors, in the opening frame gave C.G.E. a safe margin right at the start. The Electrics will now meet Cogs in the playoffs.

Some excellent twirling was dished up on both sides. Gene McCarthy went the route for the losers and held C.G.E. to three hits, a scratch single to short in the first, and a single and double in the fourth. He fanned five, walked one and should have won the game with better support. Jack Barry hurled five frames for C.G.E. giving three hits in the third inning, fanning three and walking the same number. Clair McGillen finished with no hits, two strikeouts and three walks.

Houlihan, Bert Bailey and Doug Mowry got the only Foster hits, the latter being a double. For C.G.E. Weir hit a two-bagger, H. Mowry and Barry knocked singles. B. Bailey and McCarroll handled a few tough chances for the losers while Young pulled off a neat running catch for the Hatton crew. Two double-plays resulted from poor base-running by Foster players, second out in each case being in the nature of a bonehead play.

The Electrics stepped out and put the tilt on ice in the initial stanza with four markers, three unearned. Weir was safe on an error, Nicholls was hit by a pitched ball, Busby got to second on a bad heave and Mowry scratched a single. These and two outs sent in the runs. They got their other two markers in the fourth, Johnston being safe on an error, stealing second and tallying on Barry's single, the latter taking second on the throw-in and racing around on Weir's double.

Fosters failed to threaten except in the third when they got three on two errors, a walk, singles by Houlihan and B. Bailey and a two-base blow by Doug Mowry. With the bases loaded, a double-play retired the side.

GIANTS OUT ON TOP.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two rather significant changes were recorded in the American League standing of the clubs today but they didn't affect the rivals for the lead.

While the pace-setting Tigers and second-place Yankees were taking a pair of trimmings from tail-end clubs yesterday Cleveland Indians, responding to threats to the managerial security of Walter Johnson moved into third place ahead of Boston and St. Louis Browns slipped past the tottering Senators into fifth.

Due to Monte Pearson's wildness, the Cleveland tribe had a difficult time winning its fourth in a row and its second from the Red Hose, 5-3. The Indians belted Rube Walberg out in the second, putting together four hits and an error for four runs but Boston got three back in the sixth after a trio of walks and when Pearson became wild again in the eighth Mel Harder had to rescue him.

Rogers Hornsby's Browns took a more decisive method of shoving the 1933 league champions down to sixth place. They won 7-4 for their sixth straight triumph as George Blaeholder kept things under control until the ninth while his club made good use of nine hits.

Jimmie Foxx was the cause of Detroit's downfall. He clouted his 29th home run of the season in the eighth inning to provide the winning tally in the A's 5-4 victory and to put himself ahead of Bob Johnson in their race for the major league lead. The White Sox had to go 13 innings to beat the Yankees 7-6 on one base hits after the three circuit swats, including Lou Gehrig's 25th, had scored all the New York runs.

The proverbial "luck" of the Giants held good to give the National League leaders an extra half game margin over the Cubs. Four runs down to the lowly Reds in the fourth inning, they were halted for an hour by a rainstorm. When play was resumed Si Johnson had cooled off and couldn't halt the New York batters, who slammed out seven runs in the fourth and won 11-5.

The Cubs only succeeded in playing one scoreless inning against the Phillies before rain wiped out their game, leaving them 3½ games behind.

The third place Cardinals kept pace with the Giants by smacking down the Braves 5-1 behind the five-hit flinging of James Otto (Tex) Carleton. The Cardinal flinger had a perfect game in sight until Berger smacked his 21st homer of the season in the seventh.

Pittsburgh and Brooklyn had an open date.

California is winning all sorts of championships this year. Rowing, ring, track and field, tennis—why they're even putting on a champion strike.

BLAKE HURLS LEAFS TO WIN OVER MONTREAL

Booneman Score Seven Runs in Second Inning for 8 to 3 Victory.

BIRDS COP SERIES.

(By Associated Press.)

Rochester and Toronto had exchanged second and third place in the International League to-day, both only a game and a half behind the pace-setting Newark Bears.

Toronto moved into second place by the margin of two percentage points over Rochester by winning an 8-3 night game decision over Montreal Royals while the Red Wings were bowing to Buffalo, 12-11, in a three-hour "owl" game at Buffalo last night. Both games were decided principally by the wildness of Montreal and Rochester flingers.

Toronto took advantage of five passes and four hits to score seven runs in the second inning and clinch its victory over Montreal. Orlin Collier gave one hit and three passes before he retired in favor of Chad Kimsey, but the latter passed two more men and allowed three more hits before the side was retired. With this early advantage to work on, Sheriff Blake had no trouble pitching his way to triumph although he himself was wild, walking eight men. He allowed only four hits, however.

Rochester outhit Buffalo 17-11, but Norbert Kleinke, John Berly, and Johnny Michaels handed out 14 passes, and the Bisons turned most of them into runs.

The Redwings led 3-2 after 4½ innings, but Buffalo came back with nine runs in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth frames to win out and shove the Wings down into third place. Tom Winsett, Redwing outfielder, collected 4 to carry off hitting honors.

In the midst of its best winning streak of a bad season, Baltimore Orioles tripped Newark 3-2 in 10 innings for their fifth victory in seven starts. Vito Tamulis and Max Butcher waged a scoreless duel for nine innings, but in the first half of the 10th, Manager Guy Sturdy drove in one Baltimore run with a double and then preceded George Puccinelli across the plate when the latter clouted a homer. In the last half, Newark drove Butcher to cover after Vince Barton hit his 20th homer with one on. Lohrman shut off the rally one short of a tie.

Cy Blanton scored his second successive shutout as Albany trimmed Syracuse 4-0 in a night game. The Senator ace allowed only four hits and fanned seven.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Well, Mac, our ball team has at last slipped up on the road. After winning 5 straight away from home the lads travelled down to Kingston Wed. and was stopped dead in their tracks by that little Napoleon of the heaving mound, Mister Yammy Jamieson, which only give the Lee talent 3 measley blows and not a run. Twice our travelling representatives had a agent on every cushion and a hit on each of them occasions woulda meant the ball game, but the boys simply couldn't deliver in the pinches; the Ponies winning 3 to nil. Our Mister Calladine pitched a mighty sweet game hisself, holding the Ponies to 6 hits and 1 earned run, but with the Petes' attack slowed down to a crawl, the youngster didn't have a chance to hang up his 4th win in a row. The lads has been doing some timely hitting for quite a spell, but Wed. Mister Jamieson had them hog-tied when safe blows meant checking in at the counting station. The win was mighty sweet for the Ponies, which have been taking it on the chin pretty regularly before the home fans.

Last Sat., Mac, the lads made about as clean a job of beating Oshawa as they have did this season, winning without much argument, except 1 mister S. Johnston was involved in, by 5 to 0. Our Mister Deyell between intervals of fire-balling the motor boys into submission slipped in a old Sally dip-the-dipper that had the Dukes hitting nothing but the humid July air. Meanwhile our talent was pecking away at the left-handed offerings of Mister L. Wills with praiseworthy gusto, particularly our Mister Foley, who after pumping a fly the 1st time up hoisted a drive over the right field wall; in his next appearance at the plate then lined a single into right, and finished up with a terrific slam to left centre for 3 bases—a good day's work for anybody's hitter. Oshawa only had 1 real chance to score when they had runners on the 2nd and 3rd buoys with 1 hand down, but their Mister Wills was called out on strikes and Mister Hurst missed 3, so that was that, except that Mister Wills declared that the last 1 called on him was inside something short of a yard or 2, and he kicked up so much fuss about the thing that he was finally invited by Mister Johnston, the finely trained ump, to go chase himself out of there because he was through for the day, or words to that effect. Anyway, as usual in such cases, the empire had the last word and Mister Wills departed, muttering. Some of the Oshawa fans proceeded to tell Mister Johnston what they thought of him, but having been around the circuit for these many moons and having been insulted by experts, the arbitrator took it as if he liked it—and the demonstration didn't get to 1st base.

Well, Mac, old-timer, they tell me the beer will be back Mon., so as they say in the nudist camps, "Here's looking at you."

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

GILBERT NUNNS BEATS MURRAY

Mrs. Gilbert Nunns Will Defend Title Against Challenge of Mrs. W. D. Patrick.

STRONG EAST ENTRY.

(By Elmer Dulmage, C.P. Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, July 21 (C.P.). — If Marcel Rainville, Canada's Bunny Austin of tennis, has the defences to cope with the mightiest forehand in the Canadain court game, he will become the new singles champion of Ontario to-day over the head of Gilbrt Nunns, his Davis Cup captain.

Only the drilling forehand smash no one in that tournament has yet solved stands between the dim'nutive French-Canadian veteran and a title he really wants to win. Rainville trounced Walter Martin of Toronto, defending champion, yesterday in straight sets in their semi-final.

On the next court Nunns, Toronto's hope since Martin's downfall, eliminated Bobby Murray of Montreal, Quebec titleholder, also in straight sets. These results produced Montreal-Toronto finals in both singles divisions.

Mrs. Gilbert Nunns, 1933 champion, will defend her crown to-day against the challenge of Mrs. W. D. Patrick of Montreal, the former Dorothy Gillespie of Vacouver. They won their semi-final matches yesterday.

The strong entry from the East landed Murray and Laird Watt of Montreal in the men's doubles final against the Jamaican pair, Don Leahong and Harry Dayee, and placed Mrs. Patrick and Effie Billing of Montreal in the women's doubles final against an Ottawa-Montreal pair, Mrs. L. H. Beer and Yvette Sawyer.

C.G.E. Provides Snappy Brand of Ball to Defeat Rurals at East City Bowl.

C.G.E. girls provided the biggest upset of the season in the softball loop last night at the Ashburnham Bowl when they tumbled the league-leading Keene team by a count of 26 to 19, for their second consecutive win in the second half, and this loss incidentally is the second straight defeat which the Rurals have suffered.

The Electrics came through with a snappy brand of ball and showed plenty of pep and fight in every frame. BORLAND BREAKS FOUR-MAN TIE FOR $500 PRIZE AWARD

Pte. Martinsen of Quebec is Winner of Grand and All-comers' Aggregates.

FINAL DAY OF SHOOT.

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 21. (C. P. Cable) — Sergeant James Borland of Toronto won the rich Prince of Wales Prize, second only to the King's Prize itself, as the great Imperial Rifle Meeting here wound up to-day.

This came shortly after Private P. J. Martinsen of La Tuque, Quebec, was announced winner of the grand and the all-comers' aggregates.

Borland captured the $500 first award in the Prince of Wales match when he shot off a tie with four others. The five had topped the entry in the match on Thursday with 99 out of a possible 100.

Further Honors.

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 21 (C.P. Cable).—Private P. J. Martinsen of La Tuque, Quebec, to-day was announced winner of both of the Imperial rifle meeting's great aggregates, the grand and the all-comers.

Martinsen thereby gained acclaim as the most consistently-excellent rifle shot of the entire meeting. To win the grand, he posted the highest aggregate in 10 important individual matches; and to win the all-comers he had the finest total in six matches.

The Quebec man won the all-comers' aggregate outright with a total of 331 out of a possible 370. He won the valuable challenge cup and $25. It was the sixth Canadian victory in the event—the fourth in succession.

Martinsen won the grand, the senior event, only after shooting off a tie with two other men who had equalled his mark of 589 out of a possible 615. Sapper G. Ayres of the Royal Engineers and Flying Officer C. Bunch.

He took the Dominion of Canada challenge trophy, the N.R.A. gold cross and $50. It was Canada's seventh win in the grand, a Bisley feature since 1873.

Sgt. James Borland, of Toronto, placed 10th in the grand aggregate and George Emslie, of Toronto, 26th, each winning $15.

S. A. Smith of Perth, Scotland, was the winner of the rich St. George's challenge vase, the final stage of which was the morning's feature. This was open to the 100 best scorers in the first stage fired last Monday, and six Canadians were among the finalists.

The St. George's was cleaned up with 15 shots at 900 yards. Smith posted a perfect 76. Emslie and Alec Parnell of Montreal were best of the Canadians with 71 each. Martinsen had 70, young Rifleman Don Brereton of Winnipeg 68; Q.-M.-S. R. G. Hamilton, of Ottawa, 65, and Borland 63.

The Canadians lost out in the shoot-off for the Daily Telegraph cup. This was the fifth occasion on which Canadian marksmen had equalled the finest score in the match proper, only to lose the first award in a tie-shoot.

Major E. C. Dixon, formerly of the Northumberland Fusiliers, an old hand at Bisley, won the Daily Telegraph cup in a shoot-off with four others, including Captain A. C. Lucas of Toronto. In the match Lucas had scored a possible 50.

Rain poured down on the wide Bisley ranges during the night, and in the early stages of today's shooting a mist partly obscured the targets at the longer ranges.

With the schedule practically over, there remains a lot of bowling to do yet....The committee will meet shortly and draw up a program for the balance of the season.

If the bowlers themselves will just watch this column, we will, from day to day, keep them posted....That is our job and we will do the best we can to do it.

Another big crowd turned out last night to enjoy the Friday tournament. Twenty rinks in all made up the entry.... Several visitors were on hand and were the guests of the local bowlers.

The following skips were successful: Dr. Allan, A. Brown, J. Bennett and H. Coleman.

The E.P.L. parade is over—nothing left but the playoffs. It wasn't exactly a race, though the three teams started away from the barrier together. But it should have been a handicap affair. The favorite wasn't weighed down enough, the second wasn't a mudder the first few furlongs, and the third had to carry too much dead weight. You can't call that sort of thing a race. But at least the railbirds—the few faithfuls—saw a few interesting arguments and got a few laughs before the winners were announced. And now the playoffs should be better.

Cogs won it in a romp. They didn't lose a game, and nearly had heart failure the one tilt that Fosters tied them. C.G.E. finished second, not looking too brilliant about it either. All their players have not been coming out, but with the Electrics in the playoffs, this should be fixed up pronto. Fosters finished in the cellar and some fans thought they were lucky the cellar had a floor in it or they'd have gone right through to Manchuria! They tied two games and lost the rest. At that, the boys who turned out regularly for them, and Manager Darcy Fosters credit for sticking it out. They started late with the best players picked up by other squads, but kept battling away. Their loss last night put them out of the running.

Last night's tussle was spotty, good here and terrible there. Both sides had a hard frame when the other team got most of its runs. The pitching was good for both outfits, only three hits apiece being allowed. But twice, promising Foster rallies were cut off by double-plays, the direct result of dumb base-running. The C.G.E. crew will have its best team ready to tangle with Cogs when the playoffs commence in about a week's time. Both clubs should practice hard for this as the winner goes into the Intermediate "A" O.B.A.A. playdowns.

Fashion-Craft softballers couldn't field a full team at Central last eve and had to default to Brintons. They picked up a few players and staged a sort of burlesque, beating Brintons 8 to 6. Abbott vs Butcher and Naish were the tossers and—well, that seems to be about all that's worth mentioning about the affair. In fact, looking back on it, it seems to us we've given the darned thing too much space as it is.

C.G.E. gals jolted Keene considerably by putting the boots to the old dope-bucket and winning, 26 to 19, over at the Bowl yester gloaming. It was the second straight win for Electrics since the second half started. They must be taking this thing seriously at last. Good solid clouting, fair pitching by H. Newson and some neat support, earned C.G.E. the nod, while Keene pulled a flock of bobbies in the field and Marilyn McCarthy, on Keene's hilltop, proved far, far too generous. She was a positive spendthrift with free tickets to first, and in these hard times such squandering will never do. No, indeed.

Westclox lasses tripped lightly to Omemee last p.m. and there tripped the Omemee gals up heavily, 24-11 being the result. The Alarm Maidens are going nicely now and will be bad news for a lot of opposition henceforth. Mary Hall was pitching in good style, her teammates were backing her up in the field, and their hitting was of the four-star special type. The O's didn't look too terrible, either, but seldom appeared in the hunt. The tussle Tuesday at the Bowl between C.G.E. and Westclox should be worth seeng. Incidentally, wouldn't it be fun if two local teams were in the playoffs? We can imagine the hot rivalry by the two factions of fans.

Elsewhere in today's paper appears an outline of the City Tennis Championships Tourney, which starts here Tuesday and may run two weeks. Some dandy net competition will be dished up and players wanting in should see about it today, the last day for entering. The play last year was excellent and it should be just as good, if not better, this summer. Tennis has more followers here each year, and the play compares favorably with that of many other towns around this size in the Province. It is a mighty strenuous game and not infrequently, two well-matched racqueteers battle themselves to a point of exhaustion in a three-set match.

All quiet on the local lacrosse front. Not a peep from any quarter since Cobourg was canned and Campbellford resigned from this group. Belleville is preparing to play exhibition games while waiting word as to a league playoff with Kiwanis here. We did hear that there is much internal strife in the Cobourg camp, the manager blaming the president and vice-versa. Seems they were supposed to draw up the lacrosse schedule so as not to conflict with Lakeshore League ball games, but smack at the start, Cobourg is listed to play lacrosse here the same day as that town is playing ball with Bowmanville. Well, the O.A.L.A. will no doubt be mailing letters right and left up this way shortly.

KIWANIS VISIT JACKSON PARK

Prominent Features of Life at Health Camp to Appear in Motion Pictures.

MUCH PROGRESS MADE.

Holding their regular weekly meeting on the camp site, members of the Kiwanis Club with their wives paid a visit to the Jackson Park Health Camp yesterday evening. The visitors enjoyed a two-hour period of races and games with the seventy-two children at the camp before sitting down to supper on the park lawns.

Many feet of motion picture film of the children at play, of the camp facilities and prominent features of the camp life were taken by Fred Roy during the visit. The film is to be incorporated into a reel covering the Kiwanis activities in Peterborough and vicinity and is scheduled to be shown at Hollywood, Florida, on August 13. When the reel results to the city it will be available to local organizations which care to use it.

The Kiwanis expressed amazement at the capacity of the undernourished children for food as demonstrated when the youngsters took their evening meal. In the three weeks which have passed since the camp opened this summer, much progress has been made. Many children have been built up in weight to normal, and have made room for newcomers, but the waiting list still hovers in the region of 275. The daily camp capacity is about 70.

An invitation for the people of Peterborough to visit the camp and see for themselves the nature of the undertaking has been expressed by the club.

Canuck Victories

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 21.—(C. P. Cable.)—Here is the record of the remarkable Canadian successes in the N. R.A. meeting which closed to-day:

Team of eight won Kolapore Cup.

Team of 12 won Mackinnon Cup.

Pte. P. J. Martinsen, La Tuque, Quebec, won both aggregates—grand and all-comers.

Martinsen won stock exchange cup.

Sgt. James Borland, Toronto, won Prince of Wales prize.

Cpl. H. L. Taylor, Vancouver, won N.R.A. Journay match.

Martinsen won bronze medal in first stage of King's prize.

In five other matches, Canadians equalled best score, losing in shoot-off.

Now that we've had all-star football, baseball and polo games an all-star horse race wouldn't be such a bad idea—Cavalcade trying to beat his own shadow, the only thing that's been able to keep up with him.

An American league official recently remarked that there were only two big leaguers—namely, Al Simmons and Zeke Bonura—on the roster of the Chicago White Sox. The Cincinnati Reds probably would consider that a high compliment.

Large Entry List For Tennis Tourney

A larger entry list than last year is expected for the City Tennis Championship Tournament, starting here next Tuesday afternoon. It is only open to local netters and closing date for entries—which should be made to Max Cotton or Jack Kirkwood—is .tonight. Six, and maybe seven, events will be run off at the Peterborough and Kawartha Club courts, the tournament lasting about two weeks. Trophies and prizes, as well as the honor of being champions, go to the winners.

At least ten entries are expected in for the ladies' singles. Miss Isabel Davidson won this event last year, but since then has been married and is residing elsewhere. Mrs. Dewart and Miss Gladys Carvolth appear the outstanding singles players here at present. A smaller entry is expected in the ladies' doubles, and pre-tourney dope would indicate Mrs. Dewart and Muriel Donaldson as being the pair to beat in this. It is doubtful if there will be any entries at all in the junior ladies' singles.

The mixed doubles event should attract from twelve to sixteen players and should see some excellent play. Gladys Carvolth and Jack Kirkwood look strong in this event, while Muriel Donaldson and Walter Perks will be somewhere close to the finals. Miss Benson and Jack Donaldson, Kawartha's best, and Mrs. Dewart and Max Cotton, are other clever and experienced pairs that will be heard from.

No less than thirty-two are looked for in the men's singles, led by Max Cotton, the '33 champion. Good juniors of last year who will compete are Jack Cowling, junior champion, Howard Hammell and Chick Kirkwood. Jack Donaldson and Ted Rigby, first and second ranking in the Kawartha Club, will no doubt win their share, and George Scott, last year's runner-up, is expected to enter again. Roy Friend is a question mark, sometimes being unbeatable and other times playing poor tennis. Jack Kirkwood, semi-finalist last year, is also a finals possibility.

The Kirkwood brothers is the pair to beat in the men's doubles, though the Cotton-Cowling duo and the Friend-Hammell combination cannot be overlooked in doping them out. About sixteen entries are expected in the men's doubles, and some smart racquet work should be shown before the finals roll around. In junior men's singles, Howard Hammell and Gordon Kirkwood look outstanding. The first-round tourney draw will be published Monday.

Clockmakers Take Victory At Omemee

Mary Hall's speed-ball delivery was bad news to the Omemee girls last night on the Rural Grounds and the Westclox team took the big end of a 24-11 verdict, for the first win in the second half of the Girls' Softball Loop.

Dot Sherin pitched eight frames for Omemee, showing a steady style that had the Clock-Makers popping for three frames, but after that the city players hit their batting stride and turned the game into a slug-fest. Omemee showed improvement on the runways, but were robbed of several bases by the snappy infield work of the locals. Jean Hickson twirled the last two innings for Omemee.

The teams:

Westclox—Merrett, lf; B. Curtis, rf; Hawkes, 2b; Mortimer, 1b; Weth, c; Ferguson, ss; Chartren, 3b; Crary, cf; Hall, p.

Omemee—Rehill, cf; E. Bigelow, c; Hickson, p; Fisher, 2b; Pickett, 1b; Magee, rf; P. Bigelow, lf; McQuade, ss; Reddick, 3b; Sherin, p.

Umpires — Frick at the plate, Clancy on the bases.

Hindenburg, Neurath Parley Stirs Nation

BERLIN, July 21.—(AP)—A terse announcement that two of Germany's most powerful Conservatives, President Paul Von Hindenburg and Konstantin Von Neurath, Foreign Minister, were in conference today let loose a flood of conjecture.

The government veterans have their heads together at Von Hindenburg's Neudeck estate in East Prussia. It was there Adolf Hitler flew for a conference after the revolt suppression of June 30.

A subject believed before them was the future of Franz Von Papen, Vice-Chancellor and fellow-Conservative. Another belief was Von Hindenburg and Von Neurath talked over the proposed East Locarno pact, sponsored by France. German newspapers have accorded the subject a cool reception.

Under it Germany, Russia, France Poland and other smaller powers would guarantee peace in Eastern Europe, pleding mutual assistance against an aggressor.

Defence Opens Case In Bradley's Trial

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., July 21 (C.P.).—The case for the defence was opened here to-day in the trial for murder of Michael Bradley, 43-year-old Allumette Island farmer. Bradley, his brother and sister, Thomas and Johanna, and his uncle, John Bradley, on the morning of July 21, 1933, exactly a year ago to-day.

Twenty-nine witnesses have been heard for the prosecution; these have repeated the evidence which, in great part, was given at the inquest held at Chapleau on the victims.

The relations between the accused and the victims of the slaying were pictured to Mr. Justice Cousineau, presiding judge, and observations he had made to neighbors were all placed in evidence.

The trial may conclude to-night.

Now we know why Cavalcade was given that name. At the start of a race he's the last nag, in the back stretch he's a middle horse and at the finish he's the winner. In others, he's a one-horse cavalcade.

Blind Victim, Stabbed In Eyes By Robbers Picks Pair From Lineup By Voice Alone

PITTSBURGH, July 21.—(AP)—Blind George Stratigos sat in a chair at a police station. Before him stood six men, three city detectives and three robbery suspects. No names were mentioned, but each man was given a number, 1 to 6.

The man in the chair was asked by a police officer if he could identify, through the voice, the men who tortured him in the hodup of his bowling alley last April. Stratigos's eyes were all right then but the thugs stabbed him in the eyes and he will be blind the rest of his days.

Each of the men in the line-up was asked a question, detectives as well as suspects. Tense, straining to catch every word, Stratigos sat still, his 16-year-old son holding his arm around his father's shoulder.

As two of the men answered queries of the officer, Stratigos turned and said:

"Yes—those are the men."

The process was changed, the line-up mixed and different questions asked. Each time Stratigos picked out the same two.

The pair, John Arendash and Nick Derembeis, both of Homestead Pa., were held for further investigation.

What the other seven clubs would like to know is when Detroit's Schoolboy Rowe is going to graduate—out of the American league. The Schoolboy may not be so good at grammar or history, but his arithmetic is first class. He started counting strikeouts the other day whilst pitching against the Yankees and got up to 11 before the recess bell rang.

No. 1 Ranking Canadian Bike Rider

One of the sport upsets of the year was the victory of the Ottawa darkhorse in the Canadian amateur bicycle racing championships, George S. Turner, who is a fourth-year student at the Ottawa Technical School, thereby earned a place on the British Empire team which will compete for All-British honors at Manchester, England, on August 10.

BORLAND BREAKS FOUR-MAN TIE FOR $500 PRIZE AWARD

Pte. Martinsen of Quebec is Winner of Grand and All-comers' Aggregates.

FINAL DAY OF SHOOT.

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 21. (C. P. Cable) — Sergeant James Borland of Toronto won the rich Prince of Wales Prize, second only to the King's Prize itself, as the great Imperial Rifle Meeting here wound up to-day.

This came shortly after Private P. J. Martinsen of La Tuque, Quebec, was announced winner of the grand and the all-comers' aggregates.

Borland captured the $500 first award in the Prince of Wales match when he shot off a tie with four others. The five had topped the entry in the match on Thursday with 69 out of a possible 70.

Further Honors.

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 21 (C.P. Cable).—Private P. J. Martinsen of La Tuque, Quebec, to-day was announced winner of both of the Imperial rifle meeting's great aggregates, the grand and the all-comers.

Martinsen thereby gained acclaim as the most consistently-excellent rifle shot of the entire meeting. To win the grand, he posted the highest aggregate in 10 important individual matches; and to win the all-comers he had the finest total in six matches.

The Quebec man won the all-comers' aggregate outright with a total of 331 out of a possible 370. He won the valuable challenge cup and $25. It was the sixth Canadian victory in the event—the fourth in succession.

Martinsen won the grand, the senior event, only after shooting off a tie with two other men who had equalled his mark of 589 out of a possible 615, Sapper G. Ayres of the Royal Engineers and Flying Officer C. Bunch.

He took the Dominion of Canada challenge trophy, the N.R.A. gold cross and $50. It was Canada's seventh win in the grand, a Bisley feature since 1873.

Sgt. James Borland, of Toronto, placed 10th in the grand aggregate and George Emslie, of Toronto, 25th, each winning $15.

S. A. Smith of Perth, Scotland, was the winner of the rich St. George's challenge vase, the final stage of which was the morning's feature. This was open to the 100 best scorers in the first stage fired last Monday, and six Canadians were among the finalists.

The St. George's was cleaned up with 15 shots at 900 yards. Smith posted a perfect 75. Emslie and Alec Parnell of Montreal were best of the Canadians with 71 each. Martinsen had 70, young Rifleman Don Brereton of Winnipeg 68; Q.-M.-S. R. G. Hamilton, of Ottawa, 65, and Borland 63.

The Canadians lost out in the shoot-off for the Daily Telegraph cup. This was the fifth occasion on which Canadian marksmen had equalled the finest score in the match proper, only to lose the first award in a tie-shoot.

Major E. C. Dixon, formerly of the Northumberland Fusiliers, an old hand at Bisley, won the Daily Telegraph cup in a shoot-off with four others, including Captain A. C. Lucas of Toronto. In the match Lucas had scored a possible 50.

Rain poured down on the wide Bisley ranges during the night, and in the early stages of today's shooting a mist partly obscured the targets at the longer ranges.

BERLIN, July 21.—(AP)—A terse announcement that two of Germany's most powerful Conservatives, President Paul Von Hindenburg and Konstantin Von Neurath, Foreign Minister, were in conference today let loose a flood of conjecture.

The government veterans have their heads together at Von Hindenburg's Neudeck estate in East Prussia. It was there Adolf Hitler flew for a conference after the revolt suppression of June 30.

A subject believed before them was the future of Franz Von Papen, Vice-Chancellor and fellow-Conservative. Another belief was Von Hindenburg and Von Neurath talked over the proposed East Locarno pact, sponsored by France. German newspapers have accorded the subject a cool reception.

Under it Germany, Russia, France Poland and other smaller powers would guarantee peace in Eastern Europe, pleding mutual assistance against an aggressor.

Defence Opens Case In Bradley's Trial

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., July 21 (C.P.).—The case for the defence was opened here to-day in the trial for murder of Michael Bradley, 43-year-old Allumette Island farmer. Bradley, his brother and sister, Thomas and Johanna, and his uncle, John Bradley, on the morning of July 21, 1933, exactly a year ago to-day.

Twenty-nine witnesses have been heard for the prosecution; these have repeated the evidence which, in great part, was given at the inquest held at Chapleau on the victims.

The relations between the accused and the victims of the slaying were pictured to Mr. Justice Cousineau, presiding judge, and observations he had made to neighbors were all placed in evidence.

The trial may conclude to-night.

Blind Victim, Stabbed In Eyes By Robbers Picks Pair From Lineup By Voice Alone

PITTSBURGH, July 21.—(AP)—Blind George Stratigos sat in a chair at a police station. Before him stood six men, three city detectives and three robbery suspects. No names were mentioned, but each man was given a number, 1 to 6.

The man in the chair was asked by a police officer if he could identify, through the voice, the men who tortured him in the hodup of his bowling alley last April. Stratigos's eyes were all right then but the thugs stabbed him in the eyes and he will be blind the rest of his days.

Each of the men in the line-up was asked a question, detectives as well as suspects. Tense, straining to catch every word, Stratigos sat still, his 16-year-old son holding his arm around his father's shoulder.

As two of the men answered queries of the officer, Stratigos turned and said:

"Yes—those are the men."

The process was changed, the line-up mixed and different questions asked. Each time Stratigos picked out the same two.

The pair, John Arendash and Nick Derembeis, both of Homestead Pa., were held for further investigation.

What the other seven clubs would like to know is when Detroit's Schoolboy Rowe is going to graduate—out of the American league. The Schoolboy may not be so good at grammar or history, but his arithmetic is first class. He started counting strikeouts the other day whilst pitching against the Yankees and got up to 11 before the recess bell rang.

KIWANIS VISIT JACKSON PARK

Prominent Features of Life at Health Camp to Appear in Motion Pictures.

MUCH PROGRESS MADE.

Holding their regular weekly meeting on the camp site, members of the Kiwanis Club with their wives paid a visit to the Jackson Park Health Camp yesterday evening. The visitors enjoyed a two-hour period of races and games with the seventy-two children at the camp before sitting down to supper on the park lawns.

Many feet of motion picture film of the children at play, of the camp facilities and prominent features of the camp life were taken by Fred Roy during the visit. The film is to be incorporated into a reel covering the Kiwanis activities in Peterborough and vicinity and is scheduled to be shown at Hollywood, Florida, on August 13. When the reel results to the city it will be available to local organizations which care to use it.

The Kiwanis expressed amazement at the capacity of the undernourished children for food as demonstrated when the youngsters took their evening meal. In the three weeks which have passed since the camp opened this summer, much progress has been made. Many children have been built up in weight to normal, and have made room for newcomers, but the waiting list still hovers in the region of 275. The daily camp capacity is about 70.

An invitation for the people of Peterborough to visit the camp and see for themselves the nature of the undertaking has been expressed by the club.

Canuck Victories

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 21.—(C. P. Cable.)—Here is the record of the remarkable Canadian successes in the N. R.A. meeting whch closed to-day:

Team of eight won Kolapore Cup.

Team of 12 won Mackinnon Cup.

Pte. P. J. Martinsen, La Tuque, Quebec, won both aggregates—grand and all-comers.

Martinsen won stock exchange cup.

Sgt. James Borland, Toronto, won Prince of Wales prize.

Cpl. H. L. Taylor, Vancouver, won N.R.A. Journay match.

Martinsen won bronze medal in first stage of King's prize.

In five other matches, Canadians equalled best score, losing in shoot-off.

Now that we've had all-star football, baseball and polo games an all-star horse race wouldn't be such a bad idea—Cavalcade trying to beat his own shadow, the only thing that's been able to keep up with him.

An American league official recently remarked that there were only two big leaguers—namely, Al Simmons and Zeke Bonura—on the roster of the Chicago White Sox. The Cincinnati Reds probably would consider that a high compliment.

No. 1 Ranking Canadian Bike Rider

One of the sport upsets of the year was the victory of the Ottawa darkhorse in the Canadian amateur bicycle racing championships, George S. Turner, youthful veteran of the iron steed, who grabbed the Canadian all-around title and gained nomination by the Canadian Wheelmen's Association as the No. 1 ranking rider of the Dominion. Turner, who is a fourth-year student at the Ottawa Technical School, thereby earned a place on the British Empire team which will compete for All-British honors at Manchester, England, on August 10.

Large Entry List For Tennis Tourney

A larger entry list than last year is expected for the City Tennis Championship Tournament, starting here next Tuesday afternoon. It is only open to local netters and closing date for entries—which should be made to Max Cotton or Jack Kirkwood—is tonight. Six, and maybe seven, events will be run off at the Peterborough and Kawartha Club courts, the tournament lasting about two weeks. Trophies and prizes, as well as the honor of being champions, go to the winners.

At least ten entries are expected in for the ladies' singles. Miss Isabel Davidson won this event last year, but since then has been married and is residing elsewhere. Mrs. Dewart and Miss Gladys Carvolth appear the outstanding singles players here at present. A smaller entry is expected in the ladies' doubles, and pre-tourney dope would indicate Mrs. Dewart and Muriel Donaldson as being the pair to beat in this. It is doubtful if there will be any entries at all in the junior ladies' singles.

The mixed doubles event should attract from twelve to sixteen players and should see some excellent play. Gladys Carvolth and Jack Kirkwood look strong in this event, while Muriel Donaldson and Walter Perks will be somewhere close to the finals. Miss Benson and Jack Donaldson, Kawartha's best, and Mrs. Dewart and Max Cotton, are other clever and experienced pairs that will be heard from.

No less than thirty-two are looked for in the men's singles, led by Max Cotton, the '33 champion. Good juniors of last year who will compete are Jack Cowling, junior champion, Howard Hammell and Chick Kirkwood. Jack Donaldson and Ted Rigby, first and second ranking in the Kawartha Club, will no doubt win their share, and George Scott, last year's runner-up, is expected to enter again. Roy Friend is a question mark, sometimes being unbeatable and other times playing poor tennis. Jack Kirkwood, semi-finalist last year, is also a finals possibility.

The Kirkwood brothers is the pair to beat in the men's doubles, though the Cotton-Cowling duo and the Friend-Hammell combination cannot be overlooked in doping them out. About sixteen entries are expected in the men's doubles, and some smart racquet work should be shown before the finals roll around. In junior men's singles, Howard Hammell and Gordon Kirkwood look outstanding. The first-round tourney draw will be published Monday.

Clockmakers Take Victory At Omemee

Mary Hall's speed-ball delivery was bad news to the Omemee girls last night on the Rural Grounds and the Westclox team took the big end of a 24-11 verdict, for the first win in the second half of the Girls' Softball Loop.

Dot Sherin pitched eight frames for Omemee, showing a steady style that had the Clock-Makers popping for three frames, but after that the city players hit their batting stride and turned the game into a slug-fest. Omemee showed improvement on the runways, but were robbed of several bases by the snappy infield work of the locals. Jean Hickson twirled the last two innings for Omemee.

The teams:

Westclox—Megrett, lf; B. Curtis, rf; Hawkes, 2b; Mortimer, 1b; Webb, c; Ferguson, ss; Chartren, 3b; Crary, cf; Hall, p.

Omemee—Rehill, cf; E. Bigelow, c; Hickson, p; Fisher, 2b; Pickett, 1b; Magee, rf; P. Bigelow, lf; McQuade, ss; Reddick, 3b; Sherin, p.

Umpires — Frick at the plate, Clancy on the bases.

BORLAND BREAKS FOUR-MAN TIE FOR $500 PRIZE AWARD

Pte. Martinsen of Quebec is Winner of Grand and All-comers' Aggregates.

FINAL DAY OF SHOOT.

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 21. (C. P. Cable) — Sergeant James Borland of Toronto won the rich Prince of Wales Prize, second only to the King's Prize itself, as the great Imperial Rifle Meeting here wound up to-day.

This came shortly after Private P. J. Martinsen of La Tuque, Quebec, was announced winner of the grand and the all-comers' aggregates.

Borland captured the $500 first award in the Prince of Wales match when he shot off a tie with four others. The five had topped the entry in the match on Thursday with 69 out of a possible 70.

Further Honors.

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 21 (C.P. Cable).—Private P. J. Martinsen of La Tuque, Quebec, to-day was announced winner of both of the Imperial rifle meeting's great aggregates, the grand and the all-comers.

Martinsen thereby gained acclaim as the most consistently-excellent rifle shot of the entire meeting. To win the grand, he posted the highest aggregate in 10 important individual matches; and to win the all-comers he had the finest total in six matches.

The Quebec man won the all-comers' aggregate outright with a total of 331 out of a possible 370. He won the valuable challenge cup and $25. It was the sixth Canadian victory in the event—the fourth in succession.

Martinsen won the grand, the senior event, only after shooting off a tie with two other men who had equalled his mark of 589 out of a possible 615, Sapper G. Ayres of the Royal Engineers and Flying Officer C. Bunch.

He took the Dominion of Canada challenge trophy, the N.R.A. gold cross and $50. It was Canada's seventh win in the grand, a Bisley feature since 1873.

Sgt. James Borland, of Toronto, placed 10th in the grand aggregate and George Emslie, of Toronto, 26th, each winning $15.

S. A. Smith of Perth, Scotland, was the winner of the rich St. George's challenge vase, the final stage of which was the morning's feature. This was open to the 100 best scorers in the first stage fired last Monday, and six Canadians were among the finalists.

The St. George's was cleaned up with 15 shots at 900 yards. Smith posted a perfect 75. Emslie and Alec Parnell of Montreal were best of the Canadians with 71 each. Martinsen had 70, young Rifleman Don Brereton of Winnipeg 68; Q.-M.-S. R. G. Hamilton, of Ottawa, 65, and Borland 63.

The Canadians lost out in the shoot-off for the Daily Telegraph cup. This was the fifth occasion on which Canadian marksmen had equalled the finest score in the match proper, only to lose the first award in a tie-shoot.

Major E. C. Dixon, formerly of the Northumberland Fusiliers, an old hand at Bisley, won the Daily Telegraph cup in a shoot-off with four others, including Captain A. C. Lucas of Toronto. In the match Lucas had scored a possible 50.

Rain poured down on the wide Bisley ranges during the night, and in the early stages of today's shooting a mist partly obscured the targets at the longer ranges.

The Cogs continued in their quest for a play-off berth by nosing out the Nationals by the odd run in Monday's tilt. Three runs in the last of the eighth with 2 out spelled defeat for the Nats who seem to be unable to shake that last inning jinx.

A.S.A.A. handed the Albions an unexpected reverse by winning Wednesday's tilt and thereby remaining in the hunt for a play-off position. The Nationals bunched their hits in Friday's game and squeezed out a win over the Orioles with a 4 run rally in the last of the ninth.

Blind Victim, Stabbed In Eyes By Robbers Picks Pair From Lineup By Voice Alone

PITTSBURGH, July 21.—(AP)—Blind George Stratigos sat in a chair at a police station. Before him stood six men, three city detectives and three robbery suspects. No names were mentioned, but each man was given a number, 1 to 6.

The man in the chair was asked by a police officer if he could identify, through the voice, the men who tortured him in the hodup of his bowling alley last April. Stratigos's eyes were all right then but the thugs stabbed him in the eyes and he will be blind the rest of his days.

Each of the men in the line-up was asked a question, detectives as well as suspects. Tense, straining to catch every word, Stratigos sat still, his 16-year-old son holding his arm around his father's shoulder.

As two of the men answered queries of the officer, Stratigos turned and said:

"Yes—those are the men."

The process was changed, the line-up mixed and different questions asked. Each time Stratigos picked out the same two.

The pair, John Arendash and Nick Derembels, both of Homestead Pa., were held for further investigation.

What the other seven clubs would like to know is when Detroit's Schoolboy Rowe is going to graduate—out of the American league. The Schoolboy may not be so good at grammar or history, but his arithmetic is first class. He started counting strikeouts the other day whilst pitching against the Yankees and got up to 11 before the recess bell rang.

ONE ROUND AND OUT

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 21 (C. P.). — It was a one-round thriller, the fight between the goats and the bees.

The goats, a pair of pets owned by Paul and Bobby Murray, knocked down the hive and were stung to death.

KIWANIS VISIT JACKSON PARK

Prominent Features of Life at Health Camp to Appear in Motion Pictures.

MUCH PROGRESS MADE.

Holding their regular weekly meeting on the camp site, members of the Kiwanis Club with their wives paid a visit to the Jackson Park Health Camp yesterday evening. The visitors enjoyed a two-hour period of races and games with the seventy-two children at the camp before sitting down to supper on the park lawns.

Many feet of motion picture film of the children at play, of the camp facilities and prominent features of the camp life were taken by Fred Roy during the visit. The film is to be incorporated into a reel covering the Kiwanis activities in Peterborough and vicinity and is scheduled to be shown at Hollywood, Florida, on August 13. When the reel results to the city it will be available to local organizations which care to use it.

The Kiwanis expressed amazement at the capacity of the undernourished children for food as demonstrated when the youngsters took their evening meal. In the three weeks which have passed since the camp opened this summer, much progress has been built up in weight to normal, and have made room for newcomers, but the waiting list still hovers in the region of 275. The daily camp capacity is about 70.

An invitation for the people of Peterborough to visit the camp and see for themselves the nature of the undertaking has been expressed by the club.

Canuck Victories

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 21.—(C. P. Cable.)—Here is the record of the remarkable Canadian successes in the N. R.A. meeting which closed today:

Team of eight won Kolapore Cup.

Team of 12 won Mackinnon Cup.

Pte. P. J. Martinsen, La Tuque, Quebec, won both aggregates—grand and all-comers.

Martinsen won stock exchange cup.

Sgt. James Borland, Toronto, won Prince of Wales prize.

Cpl. H. L. Taylor, Vancouver, won N.R.A. Journay match.

Martinsen won bronze medal in first stage of King's prize.

In five other matches, Canadians equalled best score, losing in shoot-off.

Now that we've had all-star football, baseball and polo games an all-star horse race wouldn't be such a bad idea—Gavalcade trying to beat his own shadow, the only thing that's been able to keep up with him.

An American league official recently remarked that there were only two big leaguers—namely, Al Simmons and Zeke Bonura—on the roster of the Chicago White Sox. The Cincinnati Reds probably would consider that a high compliment.

No. 1 Ranking Canadian Bike Rider

One of the sport upsets of the year was the victory of the Ottawa darkhorse in the Canadian amateur bicycle racing championships, George S. Turner, youthful veteran of the iron steed, who grabbed the Canadian all-around title and gained nomination by the Canadian Wheelmen's Association as the No. 1 ranking rider of the Dominion. Turner, who is a fourth-year student at the Ottawa Technical School, thereby earned a place on the British Empire team which will compete for All-British honors at Manchester, England, on August 10.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 54

"I believe that dreadful Italian woman has got hold of her," Etta now went on, "or that Gillian went there because of something—some message, perhaps—anyway, I'm going to try in Soho first. I want you'—she turned to the two women—"to come along. If we're in force we may one or other of us stumble on something—you see"—it was Pointer now on whom her eyes rested—"I feel responsible for her in a way. I tried to help her. I thought she needed to get away to some quiet place."

"You can hardly expect me to go to Soho," Lady Tait said crisply. But Mrs. Burnham threw herself into the project.

"I don't believe she's there. I know she's going to try and reach her parents in Belgium, but I'll come with you. There may be something we can find out, and after all, she once turned to me, she may again." Mrs. Burnham hurried away to return almost immediately. She had not an ounce of vanity in her, and never wasted time on arrangements of hat or scarf. The two fairly ran out of the house into Etta's car outside. A much swifter, bigger car, as she noticed, than Mrs. Burnham had ever known her to drive before.

On the step Etta turned. "I'm going to the Ricci's first, then to her studio, and then the round of all the shipping offices that have to do with Osten or Calais," she told her brother, who had silently followed them out. Pointer saw them dash off, and saw a small delivery car with the name of a well-known brand of cigarets on it just behind them. It was a ramshackle looking concern but it could beat Miss Naylor's big hired car on three wheels.

Pointer had no intention of letting Mrs. Burnham run into danger, and though, so far, there seemed no danger from Etta Naylor, nor any reason why Mrs. Burnham should be in peril, from the first he had had her followed by a good man who, in case of necessity, would defend her.

Alysia came back just as her sister's car sped off. She found Lady Tait indignant at the fact that one of her nieces should deliberately, and against her express desire, thrust herself forward as a friend of Gillian Dundas.

"Even Lucy was coming round, slowly, of course, dear thing, to the sensible point of view," the elder woman began, and Alysia looked as though she quite agreed with her aunt as to Etta's uncalled-for interference in the dark mystery surrounding Gillian, but Pointer was in a hurry.

"May I have a word with the servants?" he asked. "I want to show them this envelope, and see if by any chance any of them ever saw it in Mr. Tait's possession. Have you yourself ever seen it, Miss Naylor?"

Alysia looked at it. She was told where, and when, it was picked up, and scrutinized it closely.

"Yes, I know it by those two dabs of red. You'll find a round smear of rouge inside from a pad. It's an envelope that Etta has had for weeks. I think she brought the receipt away in it last time she paid the Ricci's the quarterly present from John, anyway, she put a couple of lipsticks and a rouge pad in it and kept them all in a tortoise-shell box on her dressing table. She tried the lipsticks on it once while I was in the room."

Naylor, who was back in the room, listened attentively, and shot a keen glance at the tense figure beside them. Something about it struck him. The maid who looked after Etta was hastily summoned, Pointer seemed in a rare rush. She also recognized the envelope by its marks. She ran up and then hurried down to say that it was no longer in the box. She could not remember when he had seen it last. Certainly not for some days, but on the other hand, she did not think it as long ago as a week.

Pointer wheeled on Naylor. "I'm going to see if I can pick up Miss Dundas' tracks, yet I must have a word with you. Please come with me and we can talk in the car."

For a second Naylor hung back. Then he followed the other in his rush to the pavement, where Pointer said a few sentences to his driver.

"You think she's in danger?" The words seemed to burst from Naylor without his willing them.

Pointer was in the car, and somehow Naylor found himself beside him, and being whirled off silently and swiftly.

"I think she's dead," Pointer replied in a low, tense, voice. "I may be wrong. I shall act as though I expected to be in time. And if there is a chance it will be largely because you tell me everything that passed between you and Mr. Tait yesterday morning."

Naylor looked as though he could not speak for a moment.

"Come, Mr. Naylor," Pointer went on, still in the same driving voice of concentrated power that seemed to lift the other man along with him, low though it was. "As I see it, there are two crimes here, though closely linked. Blackmail in which Miss Dundas was concerned along with others, and murder in which she had no part, or, at most, the part of a catspaw. We believe that Lord Mills was being blackmailed, if not by her, then through her, and the same is true of Mr. Tait. I think Mr. Tait to d you as much the day he died. The only question in his mind was, who was behind her. I think he meant to drag that name out and pillory it in order to save Brown, though it meant acknowledging that he himself had suffered in the same way. Am I right?" The question came like a whip-lash.

Naylor did not speak. His lips set tight, he sat with his eyes staring straight ahead of him.

"I believe she has paid in full by now," Pointer went on very gravely, "but if she has a chance it may depend on whether I know everything you can tell me."

A look of positive agony crossed Naylor's face. Something like sweat stood out on his forehead.

"As far as we can, we shall not press the charge of blackmail," Pointer went on, realizing the dreadful dilemma of the other, his fear lest he should give information to the police that would send Gillian to prison. And, however much she deserved to go there, Naylor could not send her there; he was under her spell, though he refused to let it blind or even entirely bind him to her. His good sense, all that was sane in him, struggled against it, and by no means ineffectually.

"Why do you think she has paid in full—by now?" Naylor asked under his breath.

"Because, in my opinion, she's been kidnapped by very desperate people and, owing to the fact that she took part in blackmail, cannot turn for help to the only power that might save her, the power of the law. My belief is that Mr. Tait was summoned by Lord Mills just before the latter shot himself. He was summoned by a telephone call and Mills himself let him in. I think he warned your cousin against having anything to do with Miss Dundas or he would pay for it dearly. Mr. Tait had paid in the past on two occasions. I think Mr. Tait went away and found to his horror Miss Dundas installed in his aunt's house as Mrs. Burnham's protege, and taxed her with the truth. Her replied did not satisfy him, or their talk was interrupted before he had finished."

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves involved in a year of baffling, mysterious or intriguing circumstances, which, however, if managed cleverly, may be turned to excellent account.

A child born on this day may have a disposition inclining to the mysterious, intriguing, shrewd and possibly uncanny, curious or mystical.

LINDSAY WATER SYSTEM FAILS

New $25,000 Well Hook-up Falls Below Requirements —River Water Used.

TOWN MAY SUE.

LINDSAY, July 21 (Examiner Correspondence)—This town has a water problem on its hands at present. Citizens wondered on Thursday what happened the domestic supply. It had a weedy taste, was discolored and seemed unfit for consumption.

The trouble, it appears, was due to the heavy demands on the wells supplying the citizens with water owing to the heat wave. Added to this situation, came a break in the afternoon in the Hydro system due to the wind storm. The pumps which drive the water into the standpipe are electrically operated and, of course, they refused to work. Water was, therefore, pumped from the river into the mains, and this caused the trouble.

The Water Board is not at all satisfied with the water situation. The new system of wells cost about $25,000, the company which dug the wells guaranteeing that there would be a constant supply of one and one half million gallons daily. The system has failed to supply this amount.

The Water Board has taken action and will, it is understood, attempt to recover all the money paid to the contractor, and in the meantime consider the advisability of seeking other sources of supply.

Scared Newswoman Talks To MacDonald Acting Own Secretary Refusing Interviews

HALIFAX, July 21. (C.P.) — A Halifax newspaperwoman sat down to the telephone to interview the Prime Minister of Great Britain by long distance. "I'd like to talk to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald" she said, after being connected with his cottage at Digby, N.S.

"He is very busy and tired," answered a secretarial voice at the other end of the line. "What did you wish to speak with him about?"

The reporter explained she wanted to extend a welcome to Nova Scotia on behalf of her newspaper. "Do you think I could speak with him personally" she enquired.

"That's very kind of you" came the reply. "Mr. MacDonald will appreciate it. But he is granting no interviews whatever."

"Well, then," offered the reporter, "I won't try to interview him—just say 'Hello' and 'Good-bye.' I don't mind confessing that I'm scared to death to talk to him anyway."

There was a deep chuckle at the other end of the line.

"Well, you needn't be," said the same voice. "You've been talking to him for the last two minutes. He's just arrived, and he's looking forward to a delightful visit. The place is charming. His plans are not made yet; he will not know until later when, or if, he will visit Halifax."

And with a word of thanks for the paper's greeting, Ramsay MacDonald concluded the "interview."

2 Escaped Convicts Retaken By Posse

THOMASTON, Me., July 21—(A P)—Two of three convicted murderers who escaped from Thomaston State prison last night were captured today at Waldoboro by a posse of state police and prison officers.

The captured pair were Allen H. Twitchell, 39, and Archie L'Italien, 33. The posse pressed its search in the woods around Waldoboro for the other members of the group, James M. Twitchell, 25.

The trio fled the prison by scaling a wall.

State police posted at the railroad tracks at Waldoboro were the first to see the fugitives. All the searching forces were quickly mobilized in this vicinity and closed in on the group, first capturing Mitchell and later L'Italien.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 21 (C.P.).—Quiet ruled to-day where yesterday shotguns roared and 68 persons suffered injuries from buckshot or beatings in the Minneapolis truck drivers' strike.

Deliveries of milk and ice were made as usual this morning, despite the announcement 12 hours earlier by strike leaders that no such deliveries would be made to-day as a protest against the police shooting of pickets who attacked a truck of merchandise.

Suspect Attempt to Panic French People Into Heavy Armaments.

OR PREVENTIVE WAR

By PIERRE VAN PAASEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

PARIS, July 21.—"It is now only a question whether war this summer will come before or after the fall of Hitler," writes M. Jacques Bainville, distinguished conservative historian in the Action Francaise, the Royalist journal of France. This sensational statement is made apropos of the astounding revelations of Mr. Wickham Steed, former editor of the London Times about German spy activities in Paris.

According to Mr. Steed agents of the German Luft Gaz Angriff, the poison gas branch of the German army, have recently carried out experiments with harmless germs in crowded spots and populous neighborhoods in Paris and London. He mentions the Place re la Republique the Place de la Concorde, and the underground railway stations in Paris; in London, Whitechapel, Picadilly Circus, and the London tube stations. German officers in mufti, driving automobiles, are said to have measured air-currents in narrod streets and in parks with a view of circulating the action of gas and deadly microbes on the civil population in the event of war.

The fact that Mr. Stead published his secret information simultaneously in the magazine Nineteenth Century appearing in London and in the Echo de Paris appearing in Paris, and this publication coming hard upon the visit of General Weygand the inspector-general of the French army to Aldershot camp, where he has important conferences with British military chiefs, has aroused a suspicion that the publication of the sensational German secret reports is a manoeuvre to sow panic among the French people.

Preparedness Drive Fails

Several times the French government has been forced to postpone the so-called "great preparedness campaign," which was to teach the civilian population in Paris and other large centres how to conduct itself in the event of a hostile aerial attack with incendiary bombs, poison gas and deadly disease microbes.

Each time a group of French scientists under the leadership of Professor Paul Langevin and Prenant has called a mass-meeting of the citizens where it was demonstrated conclusively by scientists that positively nothing can be done to protect the civilian population against such an attack. Thousands of Frenchmen have decided to oppose the government's preparedness drive and the propagandistic agitation of the general staff for a preventive war against Germany. The opposition takes the form of passive resistance to the preparedness campaign which is said to include a whole week of gas alerts for all the inhabitants in Paris, the building of gas-proof shelters and bomb-proof cellars but above all a clamor for more armament and a systematic preparation to create the necessary atmosphere to raise the time-limit of compulsory service in the army from one year to two or three years.

Since the Echo de Paris, which published Mr. Steed's revelations in France, is generally considered the mouthpiece of the French general staff, one of its editors being in fact General de Castelnau, that paper's publication of Mr. Wickham Steed's revealtions, in interpreted by liberal, pacifist and social-democratic groups as a desperate attempt to whip up the war-spirit in France and get through the staff's plans for a big program of militarizing virtually the whole civilian population.

Grist for Fascist Mill

In England, it is pointed out in the French pacifist press, Mr. Wickham Steed's revelations paved the way for Air Marshal Lord Londonderry's speech in which he demanded an immediate increase in the aerial equipment of the British army. Lord Londonderry has just returned to England after a series of conferences with French military chiefs in Paris.

On the other hand the revelations of Mr. Wickham Steed are grist on the mill of the Fascist journals, who have now launched a furious anti-German campaign. A real anti-German campaign, involving the acquisition of masses of new military equipment, cannot be undertaken so long as there is a strong pacifist current in the country. Hence the Fascists demand for the sake of a united France dissolution of all anti-war organizations, peace leagues, women's societies, the organization of conscientious objectors, the closing of labor halls, and the prohibition of meetings where the inefficacy of anti-gas efforts are demonstrated.

Publish "Secret Document"

The French armament trusts, which favored the installation of a Fascist government in Germany and who contributed in financial support to the Hitler movement before it came into power, now seek to rouse the French people to a war against Germany by spreading fantastically sensational reports about German armaments and secret preparations, it was pointed out to me by Professor Paul Langevin.

In the meantime the authencity of the secret reports about German preparatons with deadly baccilli in France has by no means been demonstrated. Readers of the Nineteenth Century and of the Echo de Paris are asked to believe that proof lies in such formulas as these: O.P.F. Vers. u. Koor Cone, (ob) Merf. nmf. ca210, x1012, and to give another one: NR1. P. Rpg: ONOO.3.12 Km. B1-2; A975. mor. neg. S.g. ggt K423!

The above quotations from the secret documents are supposed to mean that underground railway stations in Paris and in London are death-traps in the event of an aerial attack.

The moral is: build more concrete shelters and help the "Bloody International" of the armament trusts to establish security by means of shells, bombs, tanks, guns and aeroplanes to be furnished by said international.

Deposed Governor's Allies Give Battle

BISMARCK, N.D., July 21.—(A P.)—Political allies of William Langer, deposed governor, were making a last ditch stand for power to-day in the face of heavy odds.

They tossed two political bombshells in the turbulent situation with announcements that Mrs. William Langer would assume her husband's place on the fall ballot, in event of his final disqualification, and that investigation of the conviction of the ousted governor would start in the House of Representatives to-day. Langer was convicted of soliciting funds from relief workers.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK — By R. J. Scott

CO-OPERATION, LESS CRITICISM IS PRESENT NEED IN DOMINION

Association of Mayors in Every Province Suggested to Union by Municipalities.

RALLY IN QUEBEC

QUEBEC, July 21. (C.P.) — More co-operation and less carping criticism is what is needed by the people of Canada, ex-Mayor H. E. Lavigueur, of Quebec, president of the Union of Canadian Municipalities, told members at the opening session of the 34th annual convention here yesterday.

"In these days of worry," said Mr. Lavigueur, "the executives are anxious to make the Union of Municipalities of service. Some of the provinces have found it desirable to call conferences of mayors to discuss their many problems. The Union of Canadian Municipalities offer an opportunity for united action in federal matters and has set aside sessions as an open forum for the study of all questions of a federal nature, and it is to be hoped much beneficial thought will be derived therefrom."

Delegates were welcomed by Mayor J. E. Gregoire, K.C., who has just returned to Quebec after attending Jacques Cartier celebrations in France.

Favors Public Works

A scheme of public works rather than direct relief as a remedy for present conditions, was advocated by Mayor T. Lambert of Hull, Que. He suggested a resolution prepared by the convention urging that the provincial premiers when they meet at Ottawa on July 30, endeavor to get from the government a more substantial program of public works than those already planned.

Mayor Bullbrook of North Bay expressed himself in accord with the views entertained by Mayor Lambert and thought the convention's secretary should draw up a resolution along these lines for action by the delegates.

Mr. Bullbrook also thought that every province should have an association of mayors. His province, he said, some time ago, also formed the Ontario Association of Mayors, whose officers consisted of a president, secretary and executive board, and using the Union of Canadian Municipalities as a parent body the association was successful in many of its endeavors. He urged that similar associations be formed in other provinces.

GENERAL STRIKE

moval of Chief of Police Michael Johannes and Mayor A. G. Bainbridge, were blamed by Gov. Floyd B. Olson upon a broken truce.

The governor then appeared at a meeting of the employers' committee and repeated the charge, but when informed they knew nothing of a truce agreement, withdrew it with an apology, a committee representative said.

Yesterday's violence occurred over movement of truck merchandise. The strikers steering committee announced there would be no deliveries to-day of milk, ice, or beer.

Miles Dunne, chief leader of the strikers, asked for a general strike. He appeared to all men engaged in the transportation industry here to refuse to 'turn a wheel.'

Bayonets On Streets

National Guardsmen, 3,400 strong equipped with machine guns and boyonetted rifles, were stationed at strategic points in the city.

Governor Olson said: "I am all prepared to take over the military control of the city any time. If it is necessary to assume military control, I will make the city of Minneapolis as quiet as a Sunday School. The convoying of trucks represents the breaking of promises to Father Haas and me that there would be a truce until Saturday night.

"The blood of those wounded and dying is upon the heads of the men who brought about the breaking of that promise."

Aid of the Guardsmen, if requested, has been promised him, Chief Johannes said in announcing he would convoy any trucks whose owners wanted to move goods today.

"If the pickets try to stop us — well, you know what we did yesterday," added the chief.

Yesteray police convoyed a truck of merchandise to its destination after a sharpbattle with strikers who sought to stop it, a few blocks from where the Maystrike riots cost the lives to two men.

Streets Run Blood.

Blasts from police shotguns drove off the attackers who fled over blood reddened pavements. Leaden pellets drilled holes in bodies and at least three strikers were critically wounded. They were being given oxygen at the city hospital to-day in an effort to save their lives. Ambulances screeched to the scene to cart off the wounded.

Strikers and their sympathizers rallied at a huge open air mass meeting last night to hear Congressman Shoemaker, among others, denounce the "brutal massacre."

The crowd caled for banishment from office of Chief Johannes, branded by strikers as the "stool pigeon" of Mayor Bainbridge, whose removal also was demanded.

Police were urged to resign and Robert Cramer, labor leader, announced 55 patrolmen had turned in their badges in protest.

Chief Johannes' reply was: "Not a single man has resigned. I have not got that kind of weak sisters on my police force."

Nineteen of the strikers who suffered minor wounds were up and about after yesterday's shooting. Many others were released from hospitals .

BIG NEWS SOON SAYS HEPBURN

ways and the new Hydro building.

The new liquor law permitting sale of beer and wine for consumption in public was proclaimed by one of the first orders-in-council passed by the cabinet. Edmond G. Odette was made a one-man liquor commission replacing the former two-man board. Since then he has dismissed the general manager of the old board and will do the work of the former three officials himself.

New Liquor Law.

Mr. Odette's first task was to draw up new regulations to make the new law effective. The Act, passed under the former government, left ample discretion to the Governor - in - Council discretion that was exercised to the full. Sale at first will be confined to the beverage and dining-rooms of standard hotels, trains, boats and clubs. Restaurant licenses will not be issued.

Another early act was the installation of the new Hydro-Electric Power Commission, with T. Stewart Lyon as chairman. He is the only salaried member, the other two being Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General, and Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways.

The first act of the commission was to discharge F. A. Gaby, veteran chief engineer, whose salary was $29,000 a year, and I. B. Lucas, general solicitor and counsel. At the same time the commission served notice on all engineers and officials of Hydro drawing salaries in excess of $5,000 a year, 46 in number. They were given the option of remaining at their tasks pending a possible revision downward of their salaries, and most of them have taken advantage of it.

Tap Niagara Resources.

Mr. Lyon revealed the condition of Hydro finances was causing concern and advanced this as a reason for ordering the stoppage of work on the new building then under construction. A little later he proclaimed a policy of tapping the resources of Niagara Falls to fill Ontario's future power needs. This will entail diplomatic exchanges with New York State. Hydro has now a surplus of power, but as negotiations for this character take time, Mr. Lyon decided to get them started so that the commission would be ready when demands for additional power should come in view.

An inquiry into the relation of Hydro, its former commissioners and former members of the government to the "Abitibi deal" was launched just after the Federal Government had named Sir Lyman Duff, Chief Justice of Canada, to inquire into Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen's connection with the deal.

Because charges had been made against Mr. Meighen, he demanded a probe, but before Sir Lyman Duff had set a date for the inquiry the Ontario Government named Chief Justice F. R. Latchford and Hon. Robert Smith a commission to probe the acquisition of the Abitibi canyon power project by the Ontario Government. The commission started its probe at once and began questioning Mr. Meighen and former Premier Henry.

CAMPBELLFORD

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Green, with Miss Evelyn, Lloyd and Cleveland, who have been spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Beavis of Simpson avenue, have returned to their home in Streetsville.

Not to be outdone by her husband who caught a 20-lb. lunge last week, Mrs. Frank Schrank hooked and landed a 15-pounder on Friday, just below Mr. Potts' cottage at lock 8. This will make six good sized fish for the Schrank family since the season opened, all caught with a June Bug spinner. They are camping just below the lock, and come from Akron, Ohio.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY

Again we hark back to the subject of what to collect and what not to collect, which we believe a most important subject to all collectors.

From time to time we have mentioned that the age of a postage stamp does not necessarily concern its philatelic value; that it is the quantity of the stamps issued and the large or small demand for them which eventually determines whether or not they will turn out to be a good thing.

First, let me remind you that there are hundreds of nineteenth century issues, of most any country you care to mention, that today are worth from one hundred to several hundred times their original face value or cost. These do not comprise the majority by any means but only a very small percentage of the total of all different issues, and this same condition applies to all twentieth century issues right up to the present time.

Must Know Stamps

In view of the above it will be readily understood that the collector, if he is to buy stamps wisely and to the very best advantage, must know what he is about. In other words, he must know his stamps.

Few of us are in a position where we can afford to spend hundreds or thousands of dollars each year to buy up old and rare stamps, and as the future of the cheaper or more common ones is more doubtful from the investment end of it we must find something else to buy, which may in years to come compensate us for the balance of the stamps we buy which may not turn out to be such good investments.

To this end, we cannot imagine anything that will offer the collector of modest means such a fine opportunity as the recent commemorative issues of the various British colonies.

In 1932 Antigua and Falkland Islands celebrated important events of their past history by issuing beautiful sets of postage stamps. To-day both of these issues are in great demand, and are readily selling at prices as high and higher than three times their actual face value. When we consider that the Falkland Islands issue was still in use at the end of 1933, about seven months ago, it must be admitted that the future prospects of this issue certainly look very bright. The Antigua set was withdrawn early in 1933, and this also commands a very high premium over face, at the present time.

Brings High Price

Another 1932 issue, that of Montserrat, is also bringing high prices to-day, for such a youthful set. Cayman Islands commemoratives are now withdrawn ,and although it is a little too soon for them to have jumped quite so high they will undoubtedly reach the same heights, as the issues previously mentioned.

Working up to the current issues, we now have the Sierra Leone Wilberforce issue and the St. Helena Centenary issue. Both of these are still in current use, and may be obtained from most any dealer at a reasonable figure over their face value. There seems to be no reason why these two sets should not follow in the footsteps of these other recent commemoratives.

Perhaps you are wondering why, if such is the case, all stamp dealers do not stock up on such sets when they are actually in use. This is the intention of most dealers, but putting the idea into practice is another matter. Few dealers, whether large or small, can afford to tie up several thousands of dollars in each new issue of this type that comes out. It would soon run into the millions were they to attempt it on a large enough scale to make it really worth their while. A good many of the large dealers stock a few sets and hold them until the issue is obsolete, but what are a few sets when demands of collectors run into hundreds and thousands, and who, when they find they cannot get the sets they want, start to offer high prices for them.

Making Good Investment

Such is the situation to-day, and the collectors who realize this and take advantage of it, will most certainly reap their reward during the next few years. If such issues are selling at high prices within a few months after they are withdrawn from sale, try to imagine what they will be worth in say ten or twenty years' time.

If you can afford to do so, you cannot go wrong by putting away five or ten complete sets of this type and just forgetting all about them for a while. The present-day collector has just as good an opportunity for investment in current issues as the collector of the last century. Better, in fact, as we are better informed regarding the condition of stamps with respect to their philatelic value. Keep yourself up to date on new issues, and the possible prospects of their turning out to be good, and put aside a certain portion of your stamp funds for the purpose of investment.

GARDINER RULES SASKATCHEWAN

Forecasts Early Session of Legislature to Deal With Debt Situation.

NO DATE SET.

REGINA, July 21. — (C.P.) — A new hand held the reins of political power in Saskatchewan to-day, Premier James G. Gardiner guiding the destinies of the new Liberal administration with a cabinet of nine men.

Premier Gardiner took over the administration of Saskatchewan's affairs from Dr. J. T. M. Anderson on Thursday, and immediately announced his cabinet personnel and forecast an early calling of the Legislature to deal with the debt situation of the wheat province.

Legislation on debts and financial structure will be promulgated as soon as a comprehensive survey of the situation has been made, Premier Gardiner intimated.

Premier Gardiner headed Saskatchewan's Liberal government, which held power until 1929, when the co-operative administration of Dr. Anderson took office. The present house is composed of 49 Liberals and five Farmer-Labor members, affiliates of the co-operative commonwealth federation. Before many days, however, another member will be elected. The deferred election in Athabaska constituency takes place July 24.

Grandmothers' Day For Percy Institute

WARKWORTH July 21.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Percy Women's Institute held their July meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Peter Jones. It was Grandmothers' Day, but owing to other attractions the attendance was not as large as usual. After the opening exercises and usual routine of business the grandmothers had a hat parade. The prize was given to Mrs. Michael Gearin, who wore a bonnet over 100 years old.

Owing to the absence of the program committee an impromptu program was given which consisted of community singing, recitations, and several piano selections, which was enjoyed by all present.

At the close the hostess and her assistants served a dainty lunch and the singing of Auld Lang Syne brought the meeting to a close.

CO-OPERATION, LESS CRITICISM IS PRESENT NEED IN DOMINION

Association of Mayors in Every Province Suggested to Union by Municipalities.

RALLY IN QUEBEC

QUEBEC, July 21. (C.P.) — More co-operation and less carping criticism is what is needed by the people of Canada, ex-Mayor H. E. Lavigueur, of Quebec, president of the Union of Canadian Municipalities, told members at the opening session of the 34th annual convention here yesterday.

"In these days of worry," said Mr. Lavigueur, "the executives are anxious to make the Union of Municipalities of service. Some of the provinces have found it desirable to call conferences of mayors to discuss their many problems. The Union of Canadian Municipalities offer an opportunity for united action in federal matters and has set aside sessions as an open forum for the study of all questions of a federal nature, and it is to be hoped much beneficial thought will be derived therefrom."

Delegates were welcomed by Mayor J. E. Gregoire, K.C., who has just returned to Quebec after attending Jacques Cartier celebrations in France.

Favors Public Works

A scheme of public works rather than direct relief as a remedy for present conditions, was advocated by Mayor T. Lambert of Hull, Que. He suggested a resolution prepared by the convention urging that the provincial premiers when they meet at Ottawa on July 30, endeavor to get from the government a more substantial program of public works than those already planned.

Mayor Bullbrook of North Bay expressed himself in accord with the views entertained by Mayor Lambert and thought the convention's secretary should draw up a resolution along these lines for action by the delegates.

Mr. Bullbrook also thought that every province should have an association of mayors. His province, he said, some time ago, also formed the Ontario Association of Mayors, whose officers consisted of a president, secretary and executive board, and using the Union of Canadian Municipalities as a parent body the association was successful in many of its endeavors. He urged that similar associations be formed in other provinces.

moval of Chief of Police Michael Johannes and Mayor A. G. Bainbridge, were blamed by Gov. Floyd B. Olson upon a broken truce.

The governor then appeared at a meeting of the employers' committee and repeated the charge, but when informed they knew nothing of a truce agreement, withdrew it with an apology, a committee representative said.

Yesterday's violence occurred over movement of truck merchandise. The strikers steering committee announced there would be no deliveries to-day of milk, ice, or beer.

Miles Dunne, chief leader of the strikers, asked for a general strike. He appeared to all men engaged in the transportation industry here to refuse to 'turn a wheel.'

Bayonets On Streets

National Guardsmen, 3,400 strong equipped with machine guns and boyonetted rifles, were stationed at strategic points in the city.

Governor Olson said: "I am all prepared to take over the military control of the city any time. If it is necessary to assume military control, I will make the city of Minneapolis as quiet as a Sunday School. The convoying of trucks represents the breaking of promises to Father Haas and me that there would be a truce until Saturday night.

"The blood of those wounded and dying is upon the heads of the men who brought about the breaking of that promise."

Aid of the Guardsmen, if requested, has been promised him, Chief Johannes said in announcing he would convoy any trucks whose owners wanted to move goods today.

"If the pickets try to stop us — well, you know what we did yesterday," added the chief.

Yesteray police convoyed a truck of merchandise to its destination after a sharpbattle with strikers who sought to stop it, a few blocks from where the Maystrike riots cost the lives to two men.

Streets Run Blood.

Blasts from police shotguns drove off the attackers who fled over blood reddened pavements. Leaden pellets drilled holes in bodies and at least three strikers were critically wounded. They were being given oxygen at the city hospital to-day in an effort to save their lives. Ambulances screeched to the scene to cart off the wounded.

Strikers and their sympathizers rallied at a huge open air mass meeting last night to hear Congressman Shoemaker, among others, denounce the "brutal massacre."

The crowd caled for banishment from office of Chief Johannes, branded by strikers as the "stool pigeon" of Mayor Bainbridge, whose removal also was demanded.

Police were urged to resign and Robert Cramer, labor leader, announced 55 patrolmen had turned in their badges in protest.

Chief Johannes' reply was: "Not a single man has resigned. I have not got that kind of weak sisters on my police force."

Nineteen of the strikers who suffered minor wounds were up and about after yesterday's shooting. Many others were released from hospitals .

BIG NEWS SOON SAYS HEPBURN

ways and the new Hydro building.

The new liquor law permitting sale of beer and wine for consumption in public was proclaimed by one of the first orders-in-council passed by the cabinet. Edmond G. Odette was made a one-man liquor commission replacing the former two-man board. Since then he has dismissed the general manager of the old board and will do the work of the former three officials himself.

New Liquor Law.

Mr. Odette's first task was to draw up new regulations to make the new law effective. The Act, passed under the former government, left ample discretion to the Governor - in - Council discretion that was exercised to the full. Sale at first will be confined to the beverage and dining-rooms of standard hotels, trains, boats and clubs. Restaurant licenses will not be issued.

Another early act was the installation of the new Hydro-Electric Power Commission, with T. Stewart Lyon as chairman. He is the only salaried member, the other two being Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General, and Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways.

The first act of the commission was to discharge F. A. Gaby, veteran chief engineer, whose salary was $29,000 a year, and I. B. Lucas, general solicitor and counsel. At the same time the commission served notice on all engineers and officials of Hydro drawing salaries in excess of $5,000 a year, 46 in number. They were given the option of remaining at their tasks pending a possible revision downward of their salaries, and most of them have taken advantage of it.

Tap Niagara Resources.

Mr. Lyon revealed the condition of Hydro finances was causing concern and advanced this as a reason for ordering the stoppage of work on the new building then under construction. A little later he proclaimed a policy of tapping the resources of Niagara Falls to fill Ontario's future power needs. This will entail diplomatic exchanges with New York State. Hydro has now a surplus of power, but as negotiations for this character take time, Mr. Lyon decided to get them started so that the commission would be ready when demands for additional power should come in view.

An inquiry into the relation of Hydro, its former commissioners and former members of the government to the "Abitibi deal" was launched just after the Federal Government had named Sir Lyman Duff, Chief Justice of Canada, to inquire into Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen's connection with the deal.

Because charges had been made against Mr. Meighen, he demanded a probe, but before Sir Lyman Duff had set a date for the inquiry the Ontario Government named Chief Justice F. R. Latchford and Hon. Robert Smith a commission to probe the acquisition of the Abitibi canyon power project by the Ontario Government. The commission started its probe at once and began questioning Mr. Meighen and former Premier Henry.

Heads Dock Strikers

HARRY (IRON MAN) BRIDGES

Though he still is registered as an Australian, Harry (Iron Man) Bridges is the soft-spoken czar of the longshoremen and other marine unions striking along the Pacific coast. Several lives have been lost in battles between the strikers and police at San Francisco.

CAMPBELLFORD

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Green, with Miss Evelyn, Lloyd and Cleveland, who have been spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Beavis of Simpson avenue, have returned to their home in Streetsville.

Not to be outdone by her husband who caught a 20-lb. lunge last week, Mrs. Frank Schrank hooked and landed a 15-pounder on Friday, just below Mr. Potts' cottage at lock 6. This will make six good sized fish for the Schrank family since the season opened, all caught with a June Bug spinner. They are camping just below the lock, and come from Akron, Ohio.

DROWNING VICTIM IS LAID TO REST

Douglas Haig, 14 Year Old Campbellford Boy, Buried in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 21. (Examiner Correspondence). — The funeral of Douglas Haig, fourteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Haig whose death from drowning occurred on Wednesday, was held on Friday afternoon from the family residence, Ranney street, and which was largely attended, many school boy friends returning from camps to pay their last respects. Rev. H. N. Neal of St. John's United Church, assisted by the Rev. H. P. L. Seymour conducted the services at the home and graveside. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful, showing the esteem in which deceased was held.

The pall bearers—all school boy companions—were Dennis Buckton, Joe Kelly, Wilsey Phillips, Stephen Haig, Doug. Haig, Gerard Black, Joe O'Sullivan and James Robertson. Flower bearers: Ed. STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY

Again we hark back to the subject of what to collect and what not to collect, which we believe a most important subject to all collectors.

From time to time we have mentioned that the age of a postage stamp does not necessarily concern its philatelic value; that it is the quantity of the stamps issued and the large or small demand for them which eventually determines whether or not they will turn out to be a good thing.

First, let me remind you that there are hundreds of nineteenth century issues, of most any country you care to mention, that today are worth from one hundred to several hundred times their original face value or cost. These do not comprise the majority by any means but only a very small percentage of the total of all different issues, and this same condition applies to all twentieth century issues right up to the present time.

Must Know Stamps

In view of the above it will be readily understood that the collector, if he is to buy stamps wisely and to the very best advantage, must know what he is about. In other words, he must know his stamps.

Few of us are in a position where we can afford to spend hundreds or thousands of dollars each year to buy up old and rare stamps, and as the future of the cheaper or more common ones is more doubtful from the investment end of it we must find something else to buy, which may in years to come compensate us for the balance of the stamps we buy which may not turn out to be such good investments.

To this end, we cannot imagine anything that will offer the collector of modest means such a fine opportunity as the recent commemorative issues of the various British colonies.

In 1932 Antigua and Falkland Islands celebrated important events of their past history by issuing beautiful sets of postage stamps. To-day both of these issues are in great demand, and are readily selling at prices as high and higher than three times their actual face value. When we consider that the Falkland Islands issue was still in use at the end of 1933, about seven months ago, it must be admitted that the future prospects of this issue certainly look very bright. The Antigua set was withdrawn early in 1933, and this also commands a very high premium over face, at the present time.

Brings High Price

Another 1932 issue, that of Montserrat, is also bringing high prices to-day, for such a youthful set. Cayman Islands commemoratives are now withdrawn ,and although it is a little too soon for them to have jumped quite so high they will undoubtedly reach the same heights, as the issues previously mentioned.

Working up to the current issues, we now have the Sierra Leone Wilberforce issue and the St. Helena Centenary issue. Both of these are still in current use, and may be obtained from most any dealer at a reasonable figure over their face value. There seems to be no reason why these two sets should not follow in the footsteps of these other recent commemoratives.

Perhaps you are wondering why, if such is the case, all stamp dealers do not stock up on such sets when they are actually in use. This is the intention of most dealers, but putting the idea into practice is another matter. Few dealers, whether large or small, can afford to tie up several thousands of dollars in each new issue of this type that comes out. It would soon run into the millions were they to attempt it on a large enough scale to make it really worth their while. A good many of the large dealers stock a few sets and hold them until the issue is obsolete, but what are a few sets when demands of collectors run into hundreds and thousands, and who, when they find they cannot get the sets they want, start to offer high prices for them.

Making Good Investment

Such is the situation to-day, and the collectors who realize this and take advantage of it, will most certainly reap their reward during the next few years. If such issues are selling at high prices within a few months after they are withdrawn from sale, try to imagine what they will be worth in say ten or twenty years' time.

If you can afford to do so, you cannot go wrong by putting away five or ten complete sets of this type and just forgetting all about them for a while. The present-day collector has just as good an opportunity for investment in current issues as the collector of the last century. Better, in fact, as we are better informed regarding the condition of stamps with respect to their philatelic value. Keep yourself up to date on new issues, and the possible prospects of their turning out to be good, and put aside a certain portion of your stamp funds for the purpose of investment.

GARDINER RULES SASKATCHEWAN

Forecasts Early Session of Legislature to Deal With Debt Situation.

NO DATE SET.

REGINA, July 21. — (C.P.) — A new hand held the reins of political power in Saskatchewan to-day, Premier James G. Gardiner guiding the destinies of the new Liberal administration with a cabinet of nine men.

Premier Gardiner took over the administration of Saskatchewan's affairs from Dr. J. T. M. Anderson on Thursday, and immediately announced his cabinet personnel and forecast an early calling of the Legislature to deal with the debt situation of the wheat province.

Legislation on debts and financial structure will be promulgated as soon as a comprehensive survey of the situation has been made, Premier Gardiner intimated.

Premier Gardiner headed Saskatchewan's Liberal government, which held power until 1929, when the co-operative administration of Dr. Anderson took office. The present house is composed of 49 Liberals and five Farmer-Labor members, affiliates of the co-operative commonwealth federation. Before many days, however, another member will be elected. The deferred election in Athabaska constituency takes place July 24.

Grandmothers' Day For Percy Institute

WARKWORTH July 21.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Percy Women's Institute held their July meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Peter Jones. It was Grandmothers' Day, but owing to other attractions the attendance was not as lrage as usual. After the opening exercises and usual routine of business the grandmothers had a hat parade. The prize was given to Mrs. Michael Gearin, who wore a bonnet over 100 years old.

Owing to the absence of the program committee an impromptu program was given which consisted of community singing, recitations, and several piano selections, which was enjoyed by all present.

At the close the hostess and her assistants served a dainty lunch and the singing of Auld Lang Syne brought the meeting to a close.

DILLINGER DIES BY POLICE GUNS ON WOMAN'S TIP

Hundreds of Spectators Watch Thrilling Climax to Desperado's Career.

3 SHOTS TAKE EFFECT.

Two Women Bystanders Wounded as Gunman Goes Down Reaching for Pistol.

(By Wiliam Conway. Copyright, 1934, by Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 23 (A.P.). —Dillinger is dead!—trapped by a woman's tip.

He swaggered from a neighborhood theatre last night into the raking fire of government guns. Too late he saw the gleaming steel of the trap set for him.

His hand went for his gun too late. Three bullets tore in to his body—one in the neck, two in the body.

He staggered, fell.

It was the end of John Dillinger.

Today his remains lay on a cold slab in the Cook County morgue. Crowds of the curious milled through the gloomy building, seeking to view the body of the most notorious desperado of the year and to verify to their own satisfaction that federal agents had finally terminated the incredible crime career of the internationally known hoodlum.

Two women were held incommunicado as having been the thug's companions at the show.

The hour was 10.40 p.m., Central Daylight Saving Time. The place was just outside the Biograph Theatre, a neighborhood movie at Fullerton and Lincoln Avenues, on the north-west side, in territory where the blood of many a Chicago gangster has flowed before.

Had the climax of this bank robber-desperado-killer's career been pre-arranged it could have been no more sensational. There was even an audience, loitering about the vicinity of the theatre, drawn by the presence of so many Department of Justice agents that for a time some believed a hold-up was planned.

A Changed Dillinger.

Dillinger, his hair dyed a darker hue, tell-tale scars on his cheeks lifted by plastic surgery, gold-rimmed spectacles framing his shifty eyes, his nose straightened, a carefully groomed black moustache adorning his leering lip, and the whorls of his fingertips obliterated by acid, strode through the lobby and sauntered down the street.

He passed, apparently without recognition, Melvin H. Purvis, Chief of the Chicago Bureau of the Department of Justice. Purvis, seated in a parked car, moved his right arm in a casual signal. Several agents leaped forward, their pistols glistening in the garish light.

Suddenly the mask of insolence dropped from the phantom free-booter's countenance. He darted into an alley, reaching for a pistol for a duel to the death. As he did so, a five-shot fusillade cut him down. Three of the bullets struck him. Two missed their mark and whizzed into the terrified throngs gathered near the theatre, striking the legs of two gaping women spectators.

The infamous fugitive sprawled on the pavement in a crumpled heap. There was a tense silence, then the scores of horrified witnesses, the agents, two Chicago detectives, and five officers from East Chicago, Indiana, rushed forward.

A cordon was thrown about the body. The curious were herded away, despite their efforts to crowd closer for a glance at the broken gangster. Eerie rays of the blinking marquee lamps flickered over his grey visage. Dark splotches spread over the broad expanse of his silk shirt and natty tie, and soiled his flannel trousers and white sports shoes.

2 FIREMEN DEAD FOUR MISSING BOAT EXPLOSION

Oil Barge Explodes in Toronto Harbour—Chief Dixon Among Missing.

SEVERAL INJURED.

TORONTO, July 23 (C.P.) — With two city firemen already reported dead, it was believed four more were still trapped in the hold of the oil barge Enarco, blazing furiously on Ashbridge's Bay in the city's oil refinery district. District Fire Chief James Dixon and Lieut. James Henry of the local fire department were reported dead.

"Splinters and debris were scattered more than 150 feet in every direction," said Constable Adam McCullough who arrived in a police cruiser and pulled the Port Credit, another oil tanker full of oil, out of danger when the blast occurred. "I ducked down and nothing hit me," he said. "There seemed to be 15 or more men hurt."

Pinned Under Wreckage

"I saw five men pinned under a mass of blazing wreckage," said Fred Denator. "They were thrown up when the explosion occurred."

"The flames shot about a hundred feet into the air," declared another witness. "I saw two men blown into the water. John Russell (owner of the boat) came down to investigate the fire and just got on board when he was blown down on his hands and knees. He just managed to crawl ashore."

Accurate information was lacking, for the entire waterfront was confused but the latest check showed 12 injured. The nearness of the vessel to 10 or more large and small oil refineries in the area led to the calling out of practically the entire east end fire apparatus. Among other refineries in the area are those of Imperial Oil, Limited; McColl Frontenac Company, Shell Oil Company, British-American Oil Company. They were not regarded as being in any danger, but precautions were being taken.

The blazing oil-tanker sank at her moorings here late to-day and firefighters feared there was danger the oil on the surface of the water might ignite and endanger other craft in the bay.

J. A. Russell, described as the owner of the boat, was boarding the vessel when the blast hurled him and nine other men into the air. District Chief Dixon went in-

YOUNG SWIMMER IS SWEPT AWAY STRONG CURRENT

John Mackenzie, 18, of Columbus, Lost Life at Peterborough Lock.

STRONG SWIMMER.

Been Visiting for a Few Days With Friends in South Monaghan.

John Mackenzie, 18-year-old visitor to the city was the victim of a drowning fatality at Peterborough Lock late Saturday afternoon. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Mackenzie of Columbus near Oshawa. Said to have been a powerful swimmer Mackenzie a youth of splendid physical development was swept away on the strong current of water after entering the river from the canoe chute at the lock immediately below the dam.

Eye Witnesses

Randolph Fitchett, uncle of the victim and Joseph Shaw both of Centreville, South Monaghan Township with whom deceased had been holidaying were witnesses of the drowning. They were powerless to aid the stricken youth owing to the extreme suddenness with which Mackenzie was swept into the eddying waters.

Daniel Edwards, lockmaster attempted to throw a lifebelt to the drowning youth as he was being swirled around in the current. It fell short and the youth was swept to his death. The body was recovered less than a hour later at 4.30 p.m. one hundred feet below the canoe chute where Mackenzie had entered the river.

CAUSE UNKNOWN.

HAWKESBURY, Ont., July 23.—(C.P.)—. One man was dead and seven other Ottawa persons were in hospital here to-day suffering from serious injuries as a result of a head-on collision between a truck and an automobile. The injured are expected, however, to recover.

John Petzold, driver of the car, was instantly killed while his wife received a complicated fracture of the left leg, severe cuts and bruises, and their two children, a boy and a girl, aged 11 and six, respectively, were seriously cut and bruised.

The other injured were Paul Petzold, 27, brother of John, severe facial and body cuts and bruises; Peter Waltman, owner of the truck, lacerations and possible internal injuries; Joseph Cohen, driver of the truck, serious cuts and bruises and possible internal injuries, and Ruth Verch, severe cuts and bruises.

The cause of the accident, which occurred three miles west of here on the Montreal road late last night, is not known and provincial police are investigating. The Petzold car was travelling in the direction of Ottawa, while the truck was heading toward Montreal, presumably with that place as its destination.

DEATH AIDS LAW AS 3 BURGLARS DIE IN SMASH

Stolen Car Fleeing Police Piles Into Tree at 80 Miles an Hour.

NEAR THISTLETOWN.

One of Dead Unidentified — Fourth in Hospital Seriously Injured.

THISTLETOWN, Ont., July 23.—(CP)—Fate aided the law today and as a result three youths are dead and a fourth lies terribly injured in a Toronto hospital. The stolen car, which they were driving at an 80-mile-an-hour clip in an attempt to evade arrest, struck a knoll in the road, leaped high in the air and careened off the road to strike a large tree. One of the doors was picked up 60 feet from the body of the car.

The chase for the stolen car started in Toronto, where the machine was missed Saturday. From there police traced it through LambtonMills, where a cigar store was looted, to Hamilton, where a brick was hurled through a jewellery store window and a quantity of goods stolen. Several of the stolen articles were found in and near the wrecked machine, police said.

Two of the dead youths were identified as Dominic Hill and Thomas Sheppard, Weston. One was undentified. The injured man is Gordon Brennan of Toronto.

Hamilton authorities had notified Toronto police to be on the lookout for the stolen car. The information was relayed to all police along the highway. Constable Fred Major, on duty, sighted the car and gave chase. Instead of stopping, the

Ministers Reshaping Their Departments

TORONTO, July 23 (C.P.) — Cabinet ministers of the Ontario Government are at work to-day on the re-organization of their departments with a view to carrying out Premier Mitchell Hepburn's economy policy. Mr. Hepburn said to-day he did not expect any further developments along this line until to-morrow but declared his conviction the civil service was heavily over-staffed.

"We are going to eliminate those who are not necessary," he said, "and then we will look into the question of the efficiency of the others."

The auction sale of government motor cars will come as soon as possible. Cars are being turned into the government garage rapidly and being put in condition for sale. The seven district health officers dismissed last week had the use of cars which will go on the auction block now that their posts have been abolished.

MORRISBURG, Ont., July 22.—(C.P.).—Attempting to rescue three girl companions who had got into difficulties, Fred Dewan, 30, of Waddington, N.Y., was drowned in the St. Lawrence River yesterday. The girls, who had stepped off a ledge into deeper water, later managed to reach safety.

ONTARIO HALTS FURTHER LOANS TO SUPPLY DEPOT

Central Warehouse Trading on Govt's Name in Competition With Merchants.

DETAILS BY HEPBURN.

TORONTO, July 23.— (C.P.) — Money loaned by the Ontario Government to the Central Supply Warehouse will be immediately called for collection and municipalities to whose relief costs the government contributes have been ordered to buy no more goods from that organization, Hon. David Croll, Minister of Welfare, announced to-day.

The Central Supply Warehouse was operated by a partnership composed of P. R. Sparks of Ottawa, and Thomas W. Learie, of Toronto, he said. It sent out catalogues and sold clothing and other supplies for relief purposes to municipalities. It was formed in 1932 and early in 1933 secured a government loan of $10,000. In May of that year the loan was repaid, but in September the government advanced the partnership a sum of $20,000 which was still outstanding.

"This organization was trading on the government's name and borrowing funds to compete with local merchants, who paid taxes," said Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, commenting on Mr. Croll's announcement. He further charged the former government with "gross misrepresentation," because of a reply made to a question in the Legislature by the Minister of Public Works, T. K. Slack, (Prog.-Dufferin). Asked if the government was buying clothing and other relief supplies and if not to whom it had delegated this activity, the

The two, who returned from Paris yesterday, have not yet been served with notice of a supplemental petition fyled Friday by Lord Ashley charging them with continued misconduct.

CARS COLLIDE IN BAD CRASH ON HIGHWAY 28

Head-on Collision Takes Place One Mile South of Fraserville.

FIVE IN HOSPITAL.

John Albert Dunsmore, 60, of Franklin, Manitoba is Killed.

One dead, five injured was the toll following a head-on collision between two sedan automobiles on Highway 28 about a mile south of Fraserville shortly before 10 o'clock this morning.

John Albert Dunsmore, 60, of Franklin, Manitoba front seat passenger in the heavy-laden south bound car was killed outright. He sustained extensive head injury.

Four Men Injured

Five persons admitted to Nicholls Hospital include four men and a child all suffering from minor injuries and shock. They are as follows:

John Frank Dunsmore, 43, of Beamsville driver of the south bound car, fracture of left shoulder and facial injuries.

Doreen Dunsmore, 8, daughter of the above, concussion and possible fracture of the jaw.

Gideon Nantel of Port Hope, driver of the north bound car.

John Jordan of Fenelon Falls.

Thomas Graham of Toronto all three of whom are employees of the Department of Highways.

The three men in the north bound car sustained bruises and shock, Nantel being the worst hurt of the three. Drs. A. G. Howson and G. R. Scott are in attendance.

On a clear open stretch of road, the impact between the two cars occurred slightly east of the centre line of the highway according to indication of deep burns on the pavement. It led Highway Traffic Officer A. E. Hornick to the conclusion that the south bound car was not strictly on the correct side of the road.

Cars Totally Wrecked

Both cars almost totally wrecked and each piled-up facing opposite directions from those in which they had been travelling prior to the crash provided grim evidence of the extreme force of the impact.

Dillinger Goes To Appropriate Death In Criminals' Favorite Stamping Ground

CHICAGO, July 24 (A.P.). — Chicago's northside, where John Dillinger attained the penultimate in outlawry—death in the gutter—long has been a favorite stamping ground of the ace criminals in the United States.

Dotted with gaming establishments and other resorts, the district has exercises a fatal lure for scores of fugitives of the Indiana desperados' type.

Despite the fact that dozens of officers were detailed there to run him down, Dillinger braved the cordon a dozen times. Once he was surrounded in a physician's office but shot his way to freedom.

On another occasion, accompanied by a woman companion, he escaped from a northside hotel that had been surrounded by police.

John Hamilton, an aide of the gunman, likewise was traced to the area. He slew a policeman who attempted to arrest him, and escaped.

Capone hoodlums for years held forth in the district, their "territory" extending north of the Chicago River along Clark Street, Sheridan Road and contiguous arteries through the Lawrence Avenue "uptown section."

It was there that the bloody feud between Capone and satellites of Dion O'Banion, which cost several hundred lives, was waged.

Other kingpins of the badland stretch included George (Bugs) Moran, who did a fadeout when seven of his henchmen were machine gunned to death on St. Valentine's Day, 1929, in a garage not many blocks from the scene of Dillinger's demise.

Sixteen Trapped In Bus - Borden Fire Wipes Out Family

16 KNOWN DEAD AS BUS LEAPS 40-FOOT BANK

Half Dozen Others Missing—Many of 50 Aboard Injured, Likely to Die.

$275,000 BLAZE FOLLOWS.

OSSINING, N.Y., July 23 (A.P.)—At least 16 persons—men, women and children—rode to flaming death in a big motor bus yesterday, and the burned and twisted wreckage was searched to-day for more bodies.

The bus, carrying more than 50 persons from Brooklyn to a scheduled baseball game at Sing Sing prison, plunged wildly down a sharp hill in Ossining, dove off a 40-foot embankment and burst into flames as it landed in a lumber yard.

Sheets of blazing gasoline shot in all directions from the vehicle's exploding fuel tanks. The flames raged over two square blocks of lumber and coal yards and docks.

Twelve seared bodies were removed as soon as the fire could be checked. Four of those rescued alive died in hospitals.

Half a dozen passengers still are unaccounted for. They are feared dead. Many of the rescued are not expected to survive.

Six persons, their clothing ablaze, ran from the roaring furnace and jumped into the nearby Hudson river. They were rescued from the river by yachtsmen and prison keepers. All were burned seriously.

Eleven men and boys leaped to safety as the bus thundered down the winding hill.

Faulty brakes were blamed for the disaster. Survivors said the driver, Frank Imperatto, had complained about the brakes at North Tarrytown, six miles from Ossining. Imperatto was killed.

The bus was the last of six, carrying members and friends of the Young Mens' Democratic League of Brooklyn to a baseball game between its team and that of Sing Sing prison. The game was called off.

Property damage from the fire, which spread through the Washburn & Todd lumber yard, the Holden coal yard and the Jenks dock, was estimated at $275,000. Six yachts of the Ossington Boat Club were destroyed.

Pedestrian Hurt On Lindsay Road

LINDSAY, Ont., July 23 (Special to Examiner).—A serious accident occurred on the Oakwood highway, a short distance west of Lindsay, on Saturday night, about ten o'clock, Frank Garton, of town, being the victim. Garton was proceeding west on the highway, and stepped in front of a car driven by J. Hauerson of Oshawa. It was impossible for the driver of the car to avoid hitting the man, who was thrown some distance.

Traffic Officer Massingham was called to the scene, and the injured man was removed to the hospital. It was found that he had sustained a broken leg, several body bruises and serious internal injuries. No blame is attached to the driver of the car. Garton, who is unmarried, is a sergeant in the Victoria Haliburton Regiment. His condition last night was reported as grave.

U.S. HEAT WAVE TOLL HITS 275

Survey of Drought Damage Shows Thousands of Livestock Dead and Dying.

MILLIONS CROP LOSS.

CHCAIGO, July 23. (AP) — The heat wave extended its sway over the sun-scourged United States to-day, raising the total of lives lost to at least 275.

With even more severe temperatures predicted, all sections paid—the cities with lives, the country with livestock, ravaged crops and failing water supplies.

A survey of drought damage from the Mississippi to the Rocky Mountains showed thousands of cattle lost, thousands more given up at forced sales, and crop losses placed at hundreds of millions of dollars.

Millions of persons, who found relief at the lakes and seashores over the week-end, came back today to baked pavements and steaming sidewalks. In the Midwest, hardest hit of all, the mercury hovered about the 100 mark yesterday and official forecasts told of an indefinite continuance of the hot, dry spell.

The highest temperature reported yesterday was 107 in Aurora, Ill. Springfield, Ill., sweltered at 105, Minneapolis 104, St. Louis 102, Omaha and Chicago 101.

The heaviest loss of lives was in Missouri, where 76 have died from the heat. Illinois has forfeited 66 lives, Nebraska 41, Ohio 15, Kansas 12, Iowa and Minnesota 11 and Texas 10.

The east was favored with a cool breeze in the fourth day of its siege yesterday, holding the maximum temperature in New York to 89, but the weather bureau said warmer temperatures may be expected in the next few days.

Alliances made by Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, acting on the military advice of Gen. Maxine Weygand army commander, have allied France to Britain in "policing" Europe, and forged a "ring of steel" around Germany. Under a mutual defence plane, Britain agrees to patrol the Atlantic (1) and North Sea (2) with her naval forces and aid France in protecting Belgium and Netherland (3) and (4) while France undertakes to use her air fleet in her own country (5) to defend Britain and to police the Mediterranean with her fleet. MOTORISTS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

J. Collins Crashes Into Fence in Attempting to Avoid Collision With Another Car.

HASTINGS, July 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—Lady luck smiled on three residents of Percy Township on Sunday evening. J. Collins, accompanied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Collins, was returning home from evening devotions at Our Lady of Monte Carmel Roman Catholic Church at 8.45, when in front of the Post Office a car which was parked on the west side of the street pulled out without any warning sign whatever. Mr. Collins, who was only driving at a moderate rate of speed, swung his car to the left to avoid hitting the other car and went to put his foot on the brake and put it on the gas instead. The car seemed to fairly jump through the air, just skinning a large Hydro pole near the end of the bridge, crashed through an iron railing in front of L. E. Kelley's store, down over the ten-foot drop. The driver kept his head and was able to turn sharply to the left to avoid going into the locks. Mr. Collins' car, which is practically a new one, was considerably damaged.

The driver of the other car did not stop, and out of the large number who were walking along the street, no one obtained the number.

Constable J. H. Calberry is investigating.

NEWS ITEMS FOR THE TRENT TOWN DISTRICT

A large congregation attended St. John's United Church on Sunday morning when the Rev. Harold B. Neal held his first Communion service. The choir, under the direction of Mr. Albert Hazell, sang "If with all your hearts" (Mendelssohn), while Mrs. McLean Haig, guest soloist for the occasion, in splendid voice, rendered the solo, "Angels ever bright and fair" (Handel).

Burning a wasps' nest was responsible for a fire, which spread through the hay field on the farm of Blythe Nelson, Seymour West, about eleven o'clock Saturday morning, the nest dropping from the tree, ignited the dry hay and soon the field was a roaring mass of flame. Neighboring farmers responded quickly to the call for help, and by strenuous efforts soon had the blaze under control. Fire Chief Charles Davidson, with his volunteers, made a record run, as at one time it looked as if the house and barns were in danger, but fortunately the services of the brigade were not required.

AIRMAN BADLY SCORCHED.

Goes for Aid at Sign of Smoke, Finds Holocaust Upon Return.

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., July 23.—(CP)—A scattered heap of bricks, charred bedsteads and other blackened debris today dotted an isolated sand dune where once stood the trim little bungalow of Sergeant John R. Sherwood. It was a day of mourning in this Royal Canadian Air Force settlement; a mourning for the loss of one of its families and a friend who had come here for a restful holiday. A mother, her two children and a friend all were fatally burned yesterday morning, and the father was sent to hospital in a serious condition, unaware of his wife's death.

The dead:

Mrs. John R. Sherwood, a nurse with a great war record. Denys Ruth Sherwood, eight-year-old daughter.

John Gordon Sherwood, six-year-old son.

Evelyn Massey, 18, of Toronto, a holiday visitor.

A military commission under Flight-Squadron D.C.M. Hume, opened an investigation following the tragedy and learned details of the death of the trio in the flaming building, of the injuries that proved fatal to the mother shortly after, and of the father's heroic attempt to save his family.

Cause a Mystery.

Na one knows how the fire started in the Camp Borden tragedy. If Mrs. Sherwood knew it is not known whether she told her husband or nurses at the hospital. All that remains of the cottage are the foundation, two bed frames and a water boiler—charred and bent. Pale blue smoke still rises, insipidly significant.

Miss Massey had arrived at Camp Borden Friday night for a week's holiday with the Sherwood's. It was said at the camp she was the sweetheart of Corporal Tom Sherwood, brother of Sergeant Sherwood. They all had visited Wasaga Beach last night and had spent a happy but tiring day.

Horrible Suddenness.

The suddenness of the fire was horrible, according to eye-witnesses. Sgt. Sherwood was sleeping on the small verandah of the cottage. Mrs. Sherwood and her young son, John Gordon, were sleeping in one of the two bedrooms. In the other was Miss Massey and Denys Ruth.

From vague details conveyed to the commission, it was learned Sergeant Sherwood was awakened by his wife's cries. The house was filled with smoke but there was no trace of flames and the father ran to summon neighbors from another section of the military settlement. But he had gone only a few yards when his wife's terrified screams recalled him, and as he turned to go back, the one-story building was enveloped entirely in brilliant flames as though from an explosion.

Drags Wife Out

Sherwood raced to the building, tore loose a screen from the window, smashed the pane and dragged to the open, his wife, her clothing aflame and her body seared.

There was no chance of getting into the blazing building. Thick walls of flames barred the way. The father sought to make his way to the room where his little daughter had been sleeping with Miss Massey, or to the room where the boy had been sleeping with his mother. But he was turned back, his clothes smouldering and his flesh cut and burned.

Neighbors, attracted by the cries and reflection of the fire came on the run with chemicals but the intense heat would not permit them

On Few Days Holiday

Mr. Fitchett told The Examiner that his nephew who had been holidaying at his home in South Monaghan for the past few days had driven to Peterborough Saturday afternoon to see the lift lock.

"We went to see other other locks on the canal and John said he wanted to see this lock also. He drove here himself. There is his car parked just where he left it", said the uncle pointing to a car that stood outside the lockmaster's office.

He related how after expressing the desire for a swim his nephew had changed into his bathing suit in the lockmaster's office and had run straight from the building and into the lock.

Mr. Fitchett said he and Mr. Shaw sat on the steps watching the youth swimming in the lock when after a short while Mackenzie walked down the canoe chute and plunged into the river under the dam. "Almost at once", Mr. Fitchett stated, "my nephew shouted "come and get me." He disappeared then as he bobbed up in the water for a moment he shouted 'I can't make it.' That was the last I heard him say".

Besides his mother Jessie I. Mackenzie the youth is survived by a step-father and one sister Mamie, all at home.

The remains were conveyed to Columbus on Sunday and the funeral is to take place from the family residence on Tuesday at 2 p.m. with interment at Union Cemetery Oshawa.

CONDITIONS IN WEST.

Crop Conditions Are Found to be Extreme and Very Diversified.

By E. H. LEWIS
(Examiner Staff Writer)

With but a few weeks before the garnering of the Western harvest the Prairie farmer is looking forward with uncertain optimism to what the future will hold in store for him, and a survey of conditions in the West, especially in that settled area of Southern Manitoba, shows a condition that has not existed in the West for many years.

To say that crops are a failure is not true. But the condition is so extreme and diversified that living in some areas this impression would be gained, while a look into othere districts would reveal conditions that are better than they have been for the past seven or eight years. And the lines of demarkation between these two extremes are very fine.

But without exception the great need for the ripening and maturing of the grain at present is that of moisture, for although showers have been prevalent over the West during the past few weeks the rain has not been sufficient to moisten the drought-parched soil. And added to this lack of rain, grasshoppers are still playing their part to defeat Mr Farmer and his hope of prosperity, although this scourge seems to be dying out slowly, and is at present confined to certain sections of the Province, mainly that section of the City of Brandon, stretching from Wawanesa in the East through Souris and Melita, to the Manitoba-Saskatchewan boundary.

In the Melita area desert conditions prevail, with many farm homes boarded up and the land a sandy waste. Many farmers in this

MISPLAYING A NO TRUMP SMALL SLAM.

The declarer of the following hand inquired how West could be squeezed for a small slam. I confess I do not know how to squeeze an opponent who has the benefit of discarding after I do.

	♠ K Q J 10 9 3 ♥ Q 9 6 ♦ J 7 2 ♣ 5
♠ 8 2 ♥ K J 8 ♦ K 10 6 ♣ J 10 9 8 2	W. N. E. S.	♠ 7 5 4 ♥ 10 5 4 3 ♦ 9 8 5 4 ♣ 6 4
	♠ A 6 ♥ A 7 2 ♦ A Q 3 ♣ A K Q 7 3

Bidding went: South, 2-no trumps; North, 4-spades; South, 4-no trumps; North, 6-no trumps, figuring that 150 honors at no trumps would be worth more than 100 honors at spades, to say nothing of the greater value of the no trump trick score.

The opening lead was the J of clubs, which South won with his K, thinking to throw West off guard, as if East held the missing Q. Of course the simplest way to insure a small slam was to lead the ace and Q of diamonds, giving opponents a single diamond trick. Regardless of what was led back, South then could spread his cards, claiming the following tricks, without further play: 6 spades, 1 heart, 2 diamonds and 3 clubs, a total of 12 safe tricks.

As actually played, the hand went as follows: The ace of spades was led, then dummy's 5 spade tricks were taken. South had to make 4 discards, and West each time discarded just what the declarer did. South first let go his lowest club and so did West. The declarer let go his lowest heart, and so did West. For the third and fourth discards both South and West let go another heart and the lowest diamond. Having won his first 7 tricks, dummy's lowest diamond was led. The Q was finessed and lost to West's K. Back came West's 10 of clubs. The Q won the trick. The ace of clubs won the next trick. The ace of hearts and the ace of diamonds won the next 2 tricks, then South had to give the last trick to West, by leading a losing club. The contract which should have been fulfilled was lost. Simple play of the hand could not have failed to win 12 tricks.

South might have tried for a grand slam. It would not have succeeded, but at least he might have attempted it. He could have won his first club trick, then taken 6 spade tricks. His 4 discards on dummy's spades should have been his 2 lowest clubs, and his 2 worthless hearts. Leading low from dummy, he might have taken a diamond finesse. It would have lost, as cards were, but no return lead could have then robbed him of a small slam.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

A few years ago there began to be reported cases of a peculiar new disease, which nobody understood and which nobody had ever seen before. It was called "agranulocytic angina".

The most remarkable feature of the disease was that the white cells of the blood were reduced almost to the vanishing point. Normally, the white cells of the blood number about five thousand per microscopic cubit of measurement. They can easily be counted by delicately ruled instruments, which are familiar to all physicians.

In these cases, the white cells, instead of being five thousand, often were less than one thousand. The loss was due to the disappearance of a particular kind of white cell, which is known as a "granulocyte", and which it is believed has its origin in the bone marrow.

Along with this diminution of the white blood cells, patches of ulceration would appear in the mouth or throat, and other mucous membrane surfaces. In most cases treatment has been unavailing, and the patients progressed steadily to death.

Many speculations have been put out as to the cause of the condition. None of them have proved entirely satisfactory. Now, however, it is quite possible, even probable, that the cause of the condition is a poisoning with drugs of the benzine ring series. These drugs are known to depress the activity of the bone marrow. The one which is particularly implicated in these cases is amidopyrine. Its action is somewhat similar to phenacetin and aspirin in that it diminishes pain, particularly headaches and rheumatic pains.

In a series of 13 cases of agranulocytic angina studied in Los Angeles, it was found that 12 of them had been taking amidropyrine over some period of time, either alone or in combination with other drugs. Investigators gave the drug to rabbits, and were able to show that it did depress the white cell count, although the actual disease was reproduced only once in the rabbit.

Treatment of the disease has recently become more hopeful through the use of substances containing nucleic acid, which appears to stimulate the bone marrow.

While it cannot be definitely proved that amidopyrine is responsible for all of these cases, yet the disease is so serious that it is worthwhile to send out a warning. One should make sure that this drug is not contained in any remedy used for self-medication.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The history of tablecloths is a subject to interest every homemaker who delights in knowing about her household furnishings as well as in using them. Today there is a pronounced trend toward the return of dinner tablecloths of pure white linen as well as those of lace and colored linens. This makes the subject of tablecloths especially timely. The cloths with the napkins are termed napery. While in bygone years this word was more comprehensive it has come to signify table linen.

* * * * * * *

Literally napery is linen of any kind, but long years ago it was used chiefly to indicate table linen, and this is the use of the word today. The word comes from the French napperie which comes from the Latin naps a cloth. It is very easy to see that napkin is but another form of these words. Literally napkin means a little cloth. The largest dinner napkin of today deserves to be called the little cloth, because of its size. It equals that of some of the smaller luncheon or breakfast cloths. The napkins to match these small tablecloths certainly are diminutive and well warrant the term little.

* * * * * * *

One of the striking features of white table linen was always the beauty of its many patterns. As the lights flicker and shift on the pristine surface the designs are brought out in several aspects suggesting the changing lights of jasper. The plain satin weave of tablecloths of later years is relieved by wide and handsome borders and centerpieces of rare patterned weaving.

* * * * * * *

White tabecloths of wide plain linen without the satin finish sometimes today have beautiful embroidery, worked for borders, and centre pieces. A late whim is to have cross stitch borders. The floral border is suggested. Work it in white on heavy round thread linen counting the threads as in cross stitch canvas. For a small luncheon cloth one border is sufficient, although three lend more distinction.

BE BEAUTIFUL

Back in the ancient days of roman history, when a gal made up her face, the make-up was never applied just for a day. In those times, making up the face was a rite that entailed the assistance of numerous slaves. No powder base of any sort was used, but the face was thickly coated with kaolin, a white sort of clay. Pomegranate juice was used to redden the cheeks, and kohol to darken and accent the eyes. And once the entire make-up was completed, it was expected to last for at least a week.

Modern girls, of course, don't expect their make-up to last very long. In the first place, they realize that make-up is bound to lose its fresh appearance quickly, especially during hot weather. And in the second place, they realize that frequent cleansings are essential for the preservation of the clear smoothness and transparency of the complexion.

However, despite frequent skin cleansings and reapplications of make-up, faces often lose their fresh, flawless appearance quickly during the hot weather. Make-ups becomes blotchy and pasty looking. And I believe that frequently this results merely because girls employ powder bases that are not appropriate for summer use.

As you well know, the heat of the average summer day tends to increase the activities of the perspiratory and sebaceous glands. And when an oily powder base is used on torrid days, the oil seeps through the powder and ruins the cool freshness of the make-up. I recently learned of a new powder base, however, that a good many chorines and showgirls use during the summertime. And they really swear by its effectiveness in keeping make-up fresh looking.

This new powder base comes in cake form, and is guaranteed to be waterproof. You simply rub the cake over your skin, and then blend it smoothly. Then you apply your powder, rouge, lipstick and eye make-up in your usual manner. An added advantage of this powder base is that it not only helps to make powder adhere to the skin, but also protects it from sunburning and freckling. And in addition, it possesses antiseptic properties, and is very soothing and healing to any blemishes on the face.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEMBERS ENJOY ANNUAL PICNIC

St. George's S. S. Students and Staff Hold Outing at Rice Lake.

BANDSMEN ASSIST.

The annual picnic of St. George's Sunday School, which was held on Saturday afternoon last was in every way a decided success. Leaving George St. wharf per steamer Stoney Lake at 12.45, and picking up a good crowd at Lock street, a delightful sail down the river Otonabee was made.

Members of the Ranger's Band as in former years kindly supplied suitable music, this being much appreciated by those on board. With Lieut. Peryer in command, the bandsmen were as follows: Sergt. E. Gibson, J. Smith, A. Brisco, J. Sage, A. Morocco, S. Peryer, J. Murphy, A. Hempstead, D. Bates, Sergt. McLarn.

The booth which always does a brisk business in the sale of ice cream, candies and soft drinks, fell nothing short of its usual standard; large slices of juicy watermelon also being purchased for "a nickel apiece." Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dorrell who had charge of the booth were ably assisted by Sunday School teachers and members of the A.Y.P.A. as follows: Misses M. Sims, B. Curtis, H. Houghton, E. Millard and Messrs. G. Houghton, Ken Gibson, A. Busby and J. Adamson.

After cruising on Rice Lake, the steamer returned to Wallace's Point, where a stop was made for tea and sports. The beautiful shady grounds of Mr. and Mrs. Cardwell proved very appropriate for the "alfresco" tea, many lingering as long as possible in the shade, while younger members made full use of the swings and other sports.

A program of races with Rev. J. L. Hughes as general supervisor was run off. Mr. A. Sims was starter, and Messrs. C. E. Styles, A. Knott and R. King were at the winning post. Mrs. Hughes distributed the prizes to the winners, who were as follows:

On the return journey from Wallace's Point, the Rev. J. L. Hughes on behalf of St. George's Sunday School and friends extended sincere thanks to the members of the Ranger's Band, for their kind contribution of music which had added greatly to the day's enjoyment. George street was reached about 9 p.m., and one of the most enjoyable and successful picnics ever held ended happily without accident or mishap.

Today's Recipes

Canapes.—You may use either tiny squares of toast or crisp crackers for the foundation. Spread some with sardines mashed, to which a little creamed butter and lemon juice has been added. Deviled or ground ham is nice for others, and cream cheese, either with or without pimento, may be used for still others. Slipping the finished canapes under the broiler, which has been turned low, for just a moment before serving, gives them a delicious flavor.

Fresh Fruit Cake—Make or buy a sponge or other plain loaf cake. Cut off the top and scoop out the center. The crumbs removed may be used for cabinet pudding, so no waste is involved. Fill the cavity with the following fruit filling, fit on the top of the cake, and cover with lightly sweetened whipped cream. Garnish with fresh fruit if desired. Cut into slices to serve.

Fresh Fruit Filling— Three-fourths cup sweetened condensed milk, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoon salt, few drops almond extract, two cups fresh peaches, crushed or two cups red raspberries, one sponge cake. To sweetened condensed milk add lemon juice, salt and almond extract and stir until mixture thickens. Fold in the fruit. If raspberries are used the almond extract may be omitted.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATION RECORDS.

A study of the record of High School entrance examinations in Ontario during the last two decades or so shows that the percentage of the successful candidates has been climbing steadily, but, as the Ottawa Journal puts it, whether because the exams were easier, the students brighter or the teachers better, we shall not venture an opinion.

Back in 1912 some 22,679 candidates throughout the province tried the entrance tests and only 13,977 were successful: a percentage of 61.63.

By 1917 the percentage had jumped to 71.67; five years later, in 1922, 76.31 per cent. of the pupils who tried were successful, and in 1927 this percentage had increased to 84.86 per cent.; 1932 showed a slight slump, for the figures dropped down to 80.96, only to shoot back against last year to 84.57.

More surprising perhaps than the increase in the percentage of successful students is the rapid growth noted in the number of entrance candidates, for while in 1912 there were, as we have mentioned, 22,679 pupils writing; twenty-one years later the number of students seeking to enter High School had more than doubled, the 1933 total showing 51,593 entrance candidates.

The introduction of the recommendation system has, of course, been a factor in recent years, and the figures show that out of the 43,634 successful candidates last year almost half were passed on their year's work, without having to pass a final examination. Of the remaining 29,941, 73 per cent. or 21,982 succeeded in weathering the written examinations.

A SAD WARNING.

The Examiner has endeavored in a number of editorial articles recently to stress the advisability of safety first principles in connection with swimming and other aquatic sports, and among other things we have sought to drive home the danger of swimming in unfamiliar waters or at places where the conditions are unknown.

The unfortunate young visitor who lost his life in the Otonabee River, below the Peterborough lock, on Saturday afternoon was a drowning victim because he violated this simple safety rule: he took a chance upon swimming at a place he knew nothing about, and the strong current below the dam proved too much for him.

It was a most lamentable tragedy, inasmuch as the boy was a good swimmer and there were many spots along the river where he could have bathed in safety; his impulse to test his ability to swim against the unknown power of the swift-moving water at that particular point proved his undoing and tragedy resulted.

The warning of this sad affair is too plain to be ignored.

This is a season when many of our people are holidaying around the country.

Naturally there is a temptation to swim whenever a river or lake is reached, and too often instead of making inquiries as to the conditions we run the risk of bathing at places perhaps that are a menace to safety.

Non-swimmers wade out into unknown waters, divers carelessly plunge in without checking as to the depth of the river or lake, along the great lake beaches visitors ignore the dangerous under-tow, and in a score of ways we carelessly risk our lives, which is the explanation of hundreds of drownings every summer.

FEEDING THE HUNGER MARCHERS.

There is one angle of this hunger march controversy that is being lost sight of, and yet The Examiner submits that this question of how the trekers are to be fed en route to and while in Toronto is important enough to deserve consideration.

The Ontario Government, while insistent that the hunger marchers must be allowed to wait upon the Premier and his associates, so much so indeed that it has dismissed two of the three members of the Toronto Police Commission, has flatly refused to grant the marchers the $1,500 they requested to feed them while in the Queen City.

The Government will receive them on getting to Toronto, but supplying them with food is something else again.

Municipalities along the route who have been asked for grants for the same purpose have unanimously rejected the proposal.

If the trek attains any considerable proportions as regards numbers therefore the hunger marchers are likely to be genuinely hungry before their expedition is completed, unless the hospitality of individual citizens along the line of march is sought—and that is about what will happen.

Everywhere people will be appealed to for food, and finally the citizens of Toronto will be called upon to feed an army of visitors whom the city government attempted to keep out, but who are coming along as guests of the Ontario administration, with the latter refusing to pay a cent toward their entertainment.

The whole situation would have made a capital Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera, if back of it all were not the real victims, those among the unemployed who are being beguiled into this silly expedition by Red leaders.

THE NEW REGULATIONS.

The arrival of looser beer and wine regulations, permitting sale by the glass in hotel dining-rooms with meals and of beer in hotel beverage-rooms without meals, is being awaited with nothing more than mild excitement on the part of some of our people and with none at all among the rest of the population.

How this relaxation in liquor laws will work out remains to be seen; much, of course, depends upon the enforcement of the regulations and upon the licenseholders themselves.

If from the outset it is made clear that the Government expects the law to be obeyed rigidly and that any holder of an authority who does not choose to play the game, who tries to mix the sale of hard liquors with his beer business, who sells to minors, attempts to keep open after hours or permits drunkenness and disorder on his premises, will be punished with the loss of the privilege to sell, the changes that come into force to-morrow should not be alarming.

The most disturbing factor is the obvious danger that the opening of legal facilities for beer by the glass may lead to an increase of drunken drivers, for it must be remembered that there has been a vast growth in the number of automobiles in commission since the days of the open bar, and a new situation has thereby been created.

The record across the border since the end of prohibition cannot be dismissed lightly, for the figures all show that there has been a significant increase in the number of cases of drunken drivers since repeal became effective.

We believe this is a condition the authorities must be prepared to deal with and to deal with promptly and effectively; we cannot afford to temporize with a problem that involves the safety of the public, and now that we as a province are giving our people the right to buy beer and wine by the glass in hundreds of places throughout Ontario, we must also be prepared to say to those who abuse the privilege and attempt to mix beer and gasoline that they will have to take their choice between drinking and driving: that they cannot do both on the same occasion.

FARMER MUST BE PROSPEROUS.

Economists realize that unless the primary producers get reasonable returns for their labors and investments prosperity will linger. The farmer, for example, has nothing to do with fixing the prices for his own products. When he goes into a store he is told that a suit of clothes costs so much or a pound of bacon so many cents; but when he tries to sell any of his own produce, he discovers that he must take what is offered for the wool for the suit or the hogs from which the bacon is taken.

Te Niagara Falls Review the other day pointed to the case of a farmer who sent seven hundred pounds of hogs to market and got enough out of the transaction to purchase one pound of bacon. Obviously the farmer cannt continue doing that sort of thing. All of which is brought to mind by a paragraph in the annual report of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association. It is pointed out that: "Seventy per cent. of the world's population is agricultural. Seventy per cent. of the customers of the world's industry are agriculturists. Broadly speaking, all the farmers of the world are in the same box. Whence will come this much-announced trade revival; from an impoverished agriculture Apparently, the thirty per cent. of the world's population that is industrial—and incidentally a large percentage of these are at present unemployed and on relief—are going to have a real revival amongst themselves? We extend our best wishes, but are of the opinion that the party will only be of short duration. The revival will come when the seventy per cent., the agricultural part of the world, cease producing at a loss and have a surplus with which to buy from the industrial thirty per cent."

Surely this is not an illogical position.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

MORE MENTAL PATIENTS.

From time to time attention is drawn to the alarming increase in the number of patients admitted to the mental institutions of the province. During the past century, it is pointed out, commitments have roughly doubled every ten years, and if this rate of increase continues to bear the same proportion to the rate of population increase, then in another 200 years or so everybody will be a mental patient. This is not exactly a bright outlook!

But the other side of the picture is overlooked by those who present such alarmist views. During recent years about 80 per cent. of the patients admitted to mental hospitals have later been discharged as cured, and although statistics regarding the proportion so discharged in the earlier years of the century are not available, there is no doubt that it was very much smaller. The science of psychiatry did not exist 30 years ago. Though still sadly under-developed as compared with physical medicine, it has already achieved much and may be expected to achieve a great deal more in the future. Since its greatest value lies in the preventive field, it is not surprising to find admissions to mental hospitals ncreasing as psychi- admissions to mental hospitals increasing as psychiatric technique advances. The number of admissions will probably continue to rise steadily as the technique approaches perfection and is enabled to benefit an increasing number of people. But the proportion of patients detained indefinitely as beyond cure will fall with equal steadiness.

If, for the treatment of the physically ill, there were no general hospitals, but only hospitals for incurables, then the number of admissions would be substantially lower than it is at present. But the lives of many, and the health of many, that are saved to-day would be sacrificed if curative and preventive measures had not been taken. The situation with regard to the mentally ill is perfectly analogous.

The fact that the normal increase in admissions to mental hospitals has been greatly accelerated during the recent period of depression seems to demolish some old fallacies. "The pace of modern life" and "fast living" at one time took much of the blame for mental disorders. Yet depressed economic conditions have forced most people to moderate their "pace" and curtail their scale of living; nevertheless more of them find their way to mental institutions. Likewise, alcohol is commonly connected with insanity, but the diminishing consumption of liquor in recent years has coincided with increasing mental cases.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"How to Get a Government Job" reads a current advertisement. Advice on how to hold one would seem to be the need of the hour, however.

According to Toronto advices, the reduction in provincial administration costs has only just begun. The summer of 1934 will long be remembered by a great many people.

Canada did not win the King's Prize, but nearly every other important competition was captured by the Maple Leaf marksmen, one of the best balanced rifle teams that has ever represented the Dominion.

While Australian tennis players were handing the Americans a decisive beating in the Davis Cup semi-finals on Saturday, Don Bradman was leading the Australian cricketers in a terrific assault upon the British bowling in the fourth test match. Saturday was truly Australia's day.

An English girl motorist who had three accidents in one night has had her driving license cancelled for life. That is the surest way of riding the highways of incompetent and careless drivers.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

GUELPH, ONTARIO.

One hundred and seven years ago last April the townsite on which the city of Guelph now stands was founded by John Galt, one of the first citizens of the district.

He decided to name it for the family of the ruling sovereign, to use his own words: "The name was chosen in compliment to the Royal family, both because I thought it auspicious in itself and because I could not recollect that it had ever before been used in all the King's dominions."

And Guelph retains that distinction to this day.

THE BROWSER

As the Browser read George G. Simpson's "Attending Marvels" (which is a journal of Patagonia) he thought of Dr. Johnson's remarks about there being many things in this world worth seeing but very few worth going to see. . . . Patagonia must be one of those places, but this book, by a man who went down there primarily as an explorer in vertebrate paleontology, wiped out the Browser's ancient grudge against (and pity for) anybody who tried to write about a land which belongs exclusively to W. H. Hudson. . . . Once and for all in "Far Away and Long Ago" and "Idle Days in Patagonia", that long, lean, tender-hearted, cantankerous Hudson did all, it seemed to the Browser, that needed to be done in books for Patagonia. . . . But Simpson saw and felt a Patagonia that did not exist in the boyhood memories of that great Englishman.

"Patagonia (for Simpson) seems sometimes to be a personified force, an evil and malignant spirit, delighting in the torture of souls, seeking with unfair weapons a crushing victory over mankind. Yet there is more than this. As in listening to a symphony, as before a great painting, or as in the words of a poem, there is often in the midst of this misery a glimpse of the grandeur of life". . . . Simpson tells you how the Patagonians live, how they act, what they think, how they drink that scalding-hot mate that blisters your lips but relieves your fatigue, and when to say "gracias" and when to say "adios"—and he observes that no Patagonian ever asks your pardon for anything—and never, if you are a stranger, asks your business (and you shouldn't ask his, either). . . . A book that satisfied the Browser.

So did Leonard Bacon's "Dream and Action", even though he had almost decided to read no more narratives in verse. . . . Leonard is the most skillful satirist in the nation today, and his poem is about that strange young Rimbaud who was a friend of Paul Verlaine until Verlaine punctured him with a gun and went to jail for it and Rimbaud went to Africa. . . . (If the Browser were a salesman he'd pick up this little book between thumb and forefinger, smile and say, "This is very special little number, sir, very special indeed!") . . . The Browser used to know Leonard Bacon when he was a gangling bespectacled teacher of verse-writing at the university. . . . He was one of the judges of an extravaganaza contest and he and the judges decided that one written by the Browser and a friend was the winner. . . . But he explained privately that ours wasn't the BEST; it was merely the least bad; and if we could take any comfort out of that we were welcome to it. . . . Also, on one occasion, he called on some friends of the Browser, and talked so loudly that the landlady complained and they had to move out at the end of the month.

Newark, N.J., has purchased Stephen Crane's old home to use as a recreational center for children. . . . Crane was the first American writer to write realistically about children. . . . Caroline Miller, whose first novel, "Lamb in His Bosom", won the Pulitzer prize, never went to college. She married her high school English teacher and he taught her all she knows about composition. She doesn't know where she got the time to write that novel.

. . . The Browser scratches his head with vim and vigor but he can't find that resemblance.

CAR OF BARLEY NETS FARMER ONLY 80 CENTS

section of the Province have packed their machinery into their barns, and herding their stock have treked into other districts, mainly East of the province, where there are chances of renting swamps for pastures or pasturing their herds at the rate of fifty cents a head, which seems to be the prevailing charge.

In this section of the country grain has reached a height of about six inches, and where mature, is being cut with mowers, although generally speaking very little seeding was done. Severe sand storms swept this area early in the year and real estate changed hands very quickly. At times this plague was so severe that lights were burned in the homes all day, and the provincial highways blocked, the government using ploughs to clear them. Vast ridges of soil, eight and ten feet high on the side of many of the roads, still bear mute testimony to suffering of the West in this regard.

And in other sections of Manitoba this condition was even more emphasized. Crystle City and that country south of the Pembina Valley is a bleak and barren land with no farming and no water. Four years of drought and intense heat has baked the soil and today it is a brown and grey desert with no hope of being reclaimed until months of moisture has fallen and soaked the soil. Farmers and their stock have moved, mostly north, to more prosperous areas, leaving behind them a country that but a few years ago produced some of the finest wheat in the West.

And then a few miles north and east of this section of country one travels through the Swan Lake and Somerset districts, and one forgets that drought conditions ever existed, for crops here are a record, even for a good year. Wheat, barley, and oats, all stand up well and shown signs of heading out into one of the finest yields in years, and here Mr. Farmer is beginning to talk of the new car and paying off the mortgage on his holdings.

But of course price is the main factor, and at present all eyes are turned toward the market quotations in the hope that a rise in grain will put the harassed farmer, not on easy street, but on the road to the realm of minor prosperity he held before drought and plagues, weather conditions and the fall of prices, piled upon him seemingly unsurmountable burdens of debt.

Typical of what the Westerner has had to face was shown recently in the Swan Lake area when one farmer, a new Canadian, who shipped this spring a fourteen thousand bushel car of barley grown last year, offered his cheque for it for auction in the local hotel, and took the highest bid, which was one dollar. The cheque was for eighty cents, storage, freight rates and handling charges having eaten up the profits.

Throughout this section of the province, and as far East as Winnipeg, barley seems to be the most prevalent crop, farmers being of the opinion that with the more open sale of beer in Ontario, and the repeal of prohibition in the United States, a great demand for this grain will be shown. And the machinery on the majority of the farms has gone out of date, with the true and tried horse coming again into its own. Wherever one goes, tractors and other machine implements can be seen stored away in the barns or yards with several idleness behind them, and even autos have gone out of date in many cases, farmers being unable to afford the expenses of operating them, and going back to the old horse and buggy.

Many public services in the West have suffered during the past few years of hard times, especially the Manitoba Telephone System, which has been greatly reduced. This applies both to the urban and rural areas. In the country districts, however, the company has met the farmer in a very fair way. A charge of fifty cents a month for phone service is made, enabling the patron to use all phones on his own line free, with a charge of five cents for all calls made through the exchange to other party lines. On an average there are about five to seven phones on the one line.

And yet with all the setbacks and troubles experienced over the past five or six years, the Western farmer is still carrying on with that same optimistic trust in the future that has been the keynote of the success of the West. Sure that sometime he will get a "break" he is still looking ahead and preparing for the day when times will swing back to normal and the future offer some security for him and his family. It is this spirit of the West that has carried him along and will continue to buoy him up until that day comes and prosperity returns.

"A WONDER OF THE WORLD"

On this date, in 1853, the corner stone was laid of the famous Victoria tubular bridge over the St. Lawrence at Montreal. Its designer was Robert Stephenson, the eminent English engineer, the contractors were Peto and Brassey, the latter afterwards the famous Lord Brassey. The construction of the bridge occupied five full years at a cost of $6,300,000. The formal inauguration was made by the Prince of Wales (afterwards Edward VII.), on August 25, 1860 on his tour of Canada with a ceremony which was one of the most picturesque in our railway history. The bridge revolutionized railway travel, was most profitable to the Grand Trunk, and was regarded by engineers as one of the wonders of the world.

When the Canadian Pacific came into existence it had to use its rival's bridge for its trains to the south until its own Lachine Bridge was built. This latter was, in its way, much more wonderful than the older bridge because of the currents encountered, but engineering science had developed and what was a marvel in the 50's was a matter of fact in the 90's.

In 1897 the tubes were removed from the Victoria Bridge! It was opened to the wind and weather and enlarged so as to permit vehicular traffic. This new Victoria Jubilee Bridge was formally inaugurated by the present king when he visited Canada as Duke of Cornwall and York in 1901.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point— Wheat, 88c to 90c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 45c to 50c; corn, 74c to 77c; rye, 48c to 50c; buckwheat, 58c to 60c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Stimulated by an official weather forecast indicating that next year would give no substantial relief from drought, grain prices ruled increasingly stronger late Saturday.

A good portion of new purchasing orders for wheat came from sources northwest, a circumstance deemed significant of more and more unpromising prospects in the spring crop belt. Highest prices of the day were reached just before the final bell.

Wheat closed firm, 1c to 1¾c above Friday's finish. September new $1.00½ to $1.00¾; corn, 1c to 1¾c up; oats, ½c to ¾c advanced, and provisions varying from 10c lower to 55c gain.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Prices were easier on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market last week. Changes, however, were of a minor nature, while receipts were smaller.

Butter was quoted at 18¾c a pound for fresh No. 1 in carlots or less, off ¼c. Small lots to the retail trade brought 19½c to 20c a pound for solids and 20¼c to 21c for prints. Exports for the week totalled 13 boxes, compared with 42 boxes the previous week and none in the corresponding week last year. Receipts were 28,530 boxes, against 30,426 boxes the week previous.

On the cheese market, Ontario colored sold for 10c to 10¼c a pound, representing a decline of ¼c, while Quebec cheese brought 9½c to 9¾c a pound, down ¼c from the previous week. Exports for the week amounted to 15,032 boxes, as compared with 29,911 boxes the previous week and 25,211 boxes during the corresponding week last year. Arrivals totalled 34,519 boxes, in comparison with 36,205 boxes the week before.

Eggs were generally lower in price, graded shipments in carlots or less being 19c to 21c a dozen for A large, 18½c to 19c for A medium, off a cent; 18c to 18½c for B, down 1½c, and 17½c to 18c for C, a drop of 1c. Receipts for the week totalled 6,248 cases, against 11,689 cases the previous week.

Potatoes suffered the widest loss of the week, new Quebecs being quoted at 50c per 80-pound bag, 95c less than they were a week ago. Old New Brunswick Mountains closed the week at 40c to 50c per 80-pound bag, down 20c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 23. — A late upsurge at Chicago aided wheat futures on the short Saturday session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, and values rallied, to close ½c to ¾c higher, July at 85¼c, October 85¼c to 85⅝c, and December 87⅜c to 87¾c.

Sensational crop news from Middle-West States, where terrific heat was reported sent Chicago wheat up nearly 2c, resulting in a swift reversal of the earlier trend in the closing dealings of the local mart and offsetting effect of lower prices at Liverpool.

For most of the session trading had been draggy, as operators stood on the sidelines awaiting fresh weather developments, and had been the quietest of the week. Only a small export business was done.

Drought damage reports from China also were received, and it was said China would be forced to import wheat this fall. Apparently affected by this news, Liverpool prices recovered earlier 1¾d losses, to close only ¾d lower. Continued heat was reported from Western Canada.

Demand for Durum wheat was the sole feature to cash grain, spreads on the other grades closing unchanged. Coarse grains futures were also featureless, closely following the action of wheat.

Second Bradley Trial Date Being Studied

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., July 23 —(CP) — Crown Counsel Francois Caron stated today that he will communicate immediately with the attorney general for Quebec with a view to having a date set for the second trial of Michael Bradley charged with the slaying of five relatives at Allumette Island. The jury in the first trial disagreed on Saturday evening

He did not expect, said Mr. Caron, that change of venue would be asked. Consequently the second trial will probably take place at Campbell's Bay.

Bradley left Campbell's Bay today in charge of detective and police officer. He was taken to the Bordeaux jail, montreal.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

MINING LIST ALSO SOFTENS

Medium-priced Gold Shares Bear Brunt of Toronto Sell-off.

SILVERS SAG.

TORONTO, July 23 (CP).—The mining share price level was shaded somewhat today in sympathy with the sell-off on the industrial boards, medium-priced gold shares taking the paring mainly. The big golds were quiet with losses limited to 50 cents except in McIntyre, which was off 1.50. Silvers sagged, Eldorado losing 20 cents and the base metals showed little change in prices.

The general tone was fair until early afternoon, when selling pressure on the New York List became so pronounced that the firm trend in the mines was checked. San Antonio fell back to 5.50, down 15 cents. Little Long Lac lost 20 cents, Gunnar Gold 9, God's Lake 30, Central Patricia 4 and Bobjo 2. B.R.X., Buffalo-Ankerite, Bradian and Read Authier weakened a little.

SHARP SETBACKS IN TORONTO TRADE

TORONTO, July 23 (CP)—Prices broke severely on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange today, as the trend responded to a decided shake-out on the New York Market. Distillery issues dropped fractions to four points, Nickel touched 24, off 3-4, Consolidated Smelters hit 118 for a loss of 20 points in the last half hour. It rebounded a little before the close. Only a mild come-back appeared in the closing few minutes.

Walkers Common, next to smelters, took the worst drubbing, hitting 24, off 4 during the severe selling. It recovered half the loss, closing at 25 7-8. Distillers Seagrams touched 10 1-8 and closed at 10 7-8 for a net loss of 6 1-4. Canadian Industrial Alcohol showed a loss for a time of 1-2 at 6 and recovered to stand 1-4 down at the close at 6 1-4.

In the last few minutes Nickel picked up the bulk of its loss, closing at 24 1-4. C.P.R. lost 1-2, Ford "A" about a point and Brazilian 1-8.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, July 23 (AP)—Heavy selling sharply depressed the stock market today. U.S. Steel and numerous other leaders dropped to new lows for the year. National Lead lost six points, while shares of U.S. Smelting, Santa Fe, Chrysler, Western Union, Howe Sound and New York Central were off 2 to 5. Transfers which approximated 2,000,000 shares, were the largest in a number of weeks.

DEATH AIDS LAW

driver speeded up and the chase was on.

Doing Over 80.

The constable estimated the speed of his motorcycle at 80 miles an hour, but instead of his gaining on the car it was gradually pulling away from him. The car turned up a back concession, and it was here the crash occurred. Before the constable could come to a stop he had passed the spot where the twisted wreckage of the car was lying in the ditch. Two of the three men were still breathing, but died before they reached the hospital. A loaded revolver was found beside Hill's body.

When the car struck the tree it practically flew apart, pieces of the wreckage flying 80 feet through the air and lodging 30 feet up in the branches of trees.

Major was the only eye-witness. "I was going west," he said, "when I noticed a large car with four men slowly coming east. They looked suspicious to me, so I turned around and chased them. When they saw me turning they speeded up, turning north on Islington Avenue towards Thistletown. At times I was within 50 yards of them, but it was a gravel road, and I couldn't actually see the car. All I was doing was following a dust cloud. A few miles south of Thistletown there are several bumps in the road. As the car struck these bumps the dust-cloud stopped. We were hitting close to 80 miles an hour.

"I ran on another couple of hundred yards before I could stop. Then I dashed back, but saw they were all lying around and weren't making any attempt to get away. Police Constables Shaw and Kerr of the Toronto Force arrived soon afterwards, and the injured were removed."

elling towards Peterborough came to rest in the east ditch facing south east. The four wheels were facing skyward and extensive damage was apparent to the axle and rear end. In addition the front of the car bore signs of the terrific impact. The fact that the all-steel body of the car withstood the strain despite the fact that practically all the glass in the car was broken and doors wrenched off is a factor to which the three occupants of the car probably owe their lives.

The Dunsmore car which had been proceeding in the direction of Port Hope, came to a standstill on the west side of the highway facing Peterborough. The left front side of the car was driven completely in; both front wheels were torn from their axles, while the broken right front window and windshield were extensively blood spattered, indicating that the aged victim of the fatality had been virtually hurled through the window.

Mrs. John F. Dunsmore obviously dazed by her alarming experience was seated on the running board of her husband's wrecked car answering questions of Traffic Officer Hornick when The Examiner arrived at the scene of the accident.

"I was looking at the speedometer a moment before the accident happened, then all went a blank" she stated. Asked by The Examiner as to the speed at which her husband was driving immediately prior to the crash, Mrs. Dunsmore replied. "I don't know. He never drives above 35 miles an hour."

Mrs. Dunsmore related that she and her husband along with their two children, Doreen 8 and Edward 2 months, and the deceased John Albert Dunsmore and his daughter Helen, both of Franklin, Manitoba, had been spending the week-end at Bridgenorth. They were returning this morning to their home at Beamsville and were also accompanied by Miss Eunice Hammond of R.R. 4, Peterborough.

"I don't remember a thing after the crash, just that I groped around on the floor of the car to find the baby," Mrs. Dunsmore stated.

The baby, with the exception of minor scratches, was uninjured, and lay innocently sleeping in the arms of a kindly woman on the verandah at the residence of Mrs. Byron Wood nearby the scene of the crash. Miss Helen Dunsmore, who had recently come from the West on a visit with her father, was being tended within the house. She lay on a couch in a hysterical condition. Later Mrs. Dunsmore, Miss Dunsmore, the baby and Miss Hammond, who all came through the ordeal practically unscathed, returned to Bridgenorth.

New York, N.Y., July 23, 9:30 a.m.:

During the past several days the action of the market has given several unfavorable indications. While these have been of only minor importance, they are of significance from the day to day view-point. It is noteworthy that the volume of trading had tended to increase on the downside and that several important stocks have broken their trend lines, also on the downside.

Moreover, the rails have been soft with several issues in that group down close to the lows for the year.

While we don't think that reactionary tendencies will go far or last long, it is still probable that the market may drift downward another few points. There are still too many uncertainties ahead which will have to be removed before any sustained progress can be made on the up side.

Among the better stocks preference should be given to such issues as American Smelting, Mont. Ward, Howe Sound, Sears, Kennecott, U.S. Smelting, American, Contl. Can., Allied Chemical and Dupont.

Weakness in Simmons was due to selling of stock to obtain cash to pay taxes in settlement of an estate.

BROKERS' OPINIONS.

C. D. Barney: "We would take advantage of any minor technical rallies to lighten short term and intermediate speculative committments."

J. Muir: "Rails, since the passage of the pension law, have apparently been relegated to a position analagous to that of the utilities, lacking in speculative incentive and we believe may be profitably liquidated during the periods of strength."

TORONTO CHEESE

TORONTO, July 23 (C.P.) — The Toronto wholesale cheese market was quiet to-day with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 10½c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices: New large, 11¾c; twins, 12c; triplets, 12¼c; old large, 17½c; twins 17¾c; triplets, 18c; medium large, 15½c; twins 15¾c; triplets 16c.

ONTARIO HOG PRICES.

TORONTO, July 23 (CP)—Bacon hog prices at market points were weak today with Stratford showing a loss of 40 cents, while other levels were barely steady. Today's prices: Stratford, $8.60; Peterborough, $8.50; Hull, Que., $9.00; London, $8.60; Kitchener, $8.60; Brantford, $8.65.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, July 23 (CP).—After an unsettled opening, lamb prices slumped badly on the Toronto Livestock Market this afternoon and sales were down from 50 cents to $1.00 from last week's close. Calves showed the only gain of the day, advancing 50 cents on top grades. Hogs continued unsettled while sheep held steady.

Cattle trading slowed up considerably and it looked like last week's 800-head holdover would be increased greatly unless trading picked up in the late afternoon. Prices on morning and early afternoon sales were steady with last Thursday's close.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 3,160; calves, 630; hogs, 1,090; sheep and lambs, 1,880.

Good and choice weighty steers ranged from $5.00 to $5.75 while common sold down to $3.50. Butcher cattle sold from $3.00 to $4.60 with a few at $4.75. Good cows went up to $2.75 while fed calves ranged from $4.75 to $6.25 with two at $6.50. No store cattle were sold.

Good veal calves sold 50 cents higher at $4.50 to $4.75, but common barley held steady at $2.50. Lambs evened the day's loss and gain count by losing 50 cents to $1.00 at $7.00 for choice. Culls and bucks sold from $5.00 to $6.00. Sheep held steady at $2.50 for good, light ewes.

Though packers' bids were 10 cents higher than their morning levels, the hog division remained unsettled. This afternoon's bids were at $8.60 f.o.b. for bacons, $8.95 off truck and $9.35 off car.

ONTARIO HALTS FURTHER LOANS

answer was the government was not buying supplies and the government had not delegated the activity to anyone.

Municipalities Mislead

Notwithstanding this, said Mr. Croll, the central supply warehouse in its letters and price lists to municipalities said it was operating under the approval of the Ontario Government and municipalities were led to believe the government expected them to deal through this agency. Mr. Croll said as mayor of Windsor he had refused to buy relief supplies in this way but other municipalities had been under the impression they would receive better treatment from the government if they did.

"We have been accused of making false charges on the platform," said Mr. Hepburn. "Here is one we have substantiated as soon as we got on the inside. We have shown the government has been in collusion with this man Sparks, of customs probe fame, an offensive Tory, aiding him to have this business to himself and carry on mass buying in competition with local merchants at a time when the Stevens committee at Ottawa has been showing the evils of that practice."

"There was no justification for the warehouse at all except to supply a sinecure for these two men," (Sparks and Learie) said Mr. Croll.

The first loan of $10,000 was made under the guise of unemployment relief act on Feb. 17, 1933, said Mr. Croll but investigation showed this act had not received Royal assent until April of that year. He declared the government in any case had no right to loan money to an agency to compete with taxpayers.

Chain Store Practises.

The warehouse, he added, had connections with certain industries and obtained goods at low prices at times which it offered as "loss leaders" follow the practice used by some department and chain stores.

On other lines its prices were high and on the whole he had found the prices were no lower than municipal officials could have secured by dealing with local merchants.

An objectionable feature of the business, said Mr. Croll, was that municipalities were induced to buy whole lines of clothing of the same type. This branded the people who received it as recipients of relief because they were required to wear the same clothes.

The government would secure repayment of the $20,000 loan if it were necessary to seize the goods on hands, said Mr. Croll. While the former government had obtained no collateral for the loan he had already obtained possession of warehouse receipts. The partnership would be permitted to dispose of the goods on hand but would get no more business from relief orders.

A TRADE?

COLUMBUS, O., July 23.—(A.P.)—Gang Leader John Dillinger's former "Trigger Man," Harry Pierpont, said to-day:

"I might be glad to trade places with him," when informed of the slaying by Federal agents of the notorious desperado.

Awaiting in Ohio penitentiary the outcome of an appeal to the State Supreme Court of his sentence of death for the killing of Sheriff Jess Sarber, Pierpont also expressed some doubt that Dillinger had been killed.

"That might be so and it might not," he said. "I heard Johnny was killed several weeks ago."

Pierpont and Charles Makley drew death sentences for the killing of Sarber at the Allen county jail in Lima, O., last October 12. They slew the sheriff in freeing Dillinger, then held as a bank robbery suspect. Russell Clark, another member of the gang that invaded the jail and freed its chief, is serving life sentence.

GOOD GOLD PRODUCTION

BARKERVILLE, B.C., July 23.—(Special) — Monthly reports from the Cariboo Gold Quartz property gives a gold production for the month of May amounting to seven hundred and thirty ounces of the yellow metal. This recovery was all made from development ore as the management has not yet started to stope and is looked upon as a very satisfactory showing under the circumstances.

Ore values are not changed in any appreciable extent from former months and considerable developed ore has been added to the blocked out reserves.

PACIFIC COAST STRIKERS VOTING ON ARBITRATION

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—(AP)—Striking Pacific Coast Longshoremen, whose 76-day-old dispute flared to a climax with the sympathetic mass walkout of union labor here, voted today on whether to accept arbitration of all issues.

Representatives of President Roosevelt's National Longshore Board sped by aeroplane all along the coast to deliver ballots at the various ports and supervise the voting.

Louis Boch, secretary of the president's board, said the result of the election should be known by tomorrow night at the latest. If the arbitration proposal carries, as predicted by even extremist leaders of the strikes, it is expected the Longshoremen will return to work.

"There is nothing left to do but submit", said Harry Bridges, militant strike leader here, who had previously insisted the demand for union control of hiring agencies should be granted outright.

BIGGER U. S. AIR FLEET APPROVED

War Department Committee Urges 1,000 New Planes Immediately.

NEXT WAR IN CLOUDS.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (A.P.).—The United States read with eagerness to-day a report of the War Department's special committee urging an army air corps second to none.

Secretary of War George Dern placed his stamp of approval on the report, which asked quick addition of 1,000 new planes to bring the corps' strength to 2,320. The report was made by a committee headed by Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War.

"The next great war," it warned, "is likely to begin with engagements between opposing aircraft, either sea-based or land-based, and early aerial supremacy is quite likely to be an important factor."

The board opposed a unified air force as a "serious error" and uneconomical; blamed Congress for not supplying more funds to the army air corps; praised "the young officers who carried the air mail," but implied criticism of their equipment and training.

James Doolittle, famous flyer, fyled a minority report urging a unified air force.

"Another Whitewash."

MIDDLESBURG, Va., July 23. — (A.P.).—Brigadier-General William Mitchell, retired, commander of the United States air force during the Great War, denounced the Baker board's report on aviation to-day as "just another whitewash."

"This report is about what you could expect of a board packed with army men, who know nothing of, and want to know nothing of, aviation," Mitchell said.

"The United States is about 15 years behind the world now in aviation, and as long as the air force is saddled with army generals who do not want to understand what aeroplanes can do in war, and aviation speculators hungry for profits, little can be done to improve our position."

Lilac Bush Murder Inquest Set Tuesday

TORONTO, July 23.—(OP)— Inquest into the death of Mrs. Viola Thompson, whose scratched and apparently assaulted body was found hidden in a lilac bush in North Toronto, will start tomorrow it was known here today.

Chief Coroner Dr. M. M. Crawford said last night he planned to follow "what is considered old fashioned procedure."

"After the evidence has been adduced which officially establishes the identity, the hearing will be adjourned for a week or longer if necessary to allow the police to complete their investigation."

AUSSIES HOLD 383 ADVANTAGE OVER ENGLAND

Home Team Compiles 188 for Four Wickets at Close of To-day's Play.

A'S FAVORED TO WIN.

LEEDS, Engand, July 3. — (C. P. Cable)—Facing a first innings' deficit of 384 runs, England had painstakingly compiled 188 runs for loss of four wickets at the close of play today in the fourth test cricket match of the season.

Australia earlier had been dismissed for 584 runs in reply to Englands first innings total of 200. The Australians were in the driver's seat as the three-quarter mark was reached in the match which may be decisive, the teams having been on even terms in the first three games.

With a very fast wicket, England had little trouble ending the Australian innings today but the damage had been done. Don Bradman carried his score to 304 runs, only 30 below his own test match record, and England had a staggering handicap when they went in to bat just before lunch.

The Englishmen batted most cautiously for the remainder of the day, runs coming at a funeral rate for the most part. Captain R. E. S. Wyatt posted 44 before he lost his wicket and C. F. Walter was good for 45.

Don Bradman hurt his leg in the field and was out of the game. it was not known how long the injury would keep him out of play.

Where Hindenburg Is Reported Ailing

President von Hindenburg's villa at Neudeck, East Prussia, shown above, where the aged field-marshal has been recuperating from a long illness, virtually has become Germany's unofficial "capitol", to which even Chancellor Adolf Hitler must come to obtain approval for his actions. Recently the sky has swarmed with aeroplanes carrying government officials desiring to lay their cases before the Reich's chief executive, Hitler journeyed fruitlessly to the Von Hindenburg villa, when he sought to obtain Hindenburg's consent to oust Von Papen as vice-chancellor.

Threaten General Strike As Result of Rioting.

Threat of a general strike in at least two Pacific coast cities, San Francisco, Calif., and Portland, Oregon, is the outcome of serious rioting along the docks and piers of San Francisco where longshoremen have been on strike for nearly two months. Violent rioting broke out a few days ago and police were inadequate to cope with the rioters. A hurry call was put in and the militia was called out with orders to shoot into the crowd, if necessary. As a result, at least three were killed and scores wounded. The above shows, TOP, helmeted policemen, wearing gas masks, running through clouds of their own tear gas, chasing pickets; BELOW—Two strikers that were shot. Even the firemen were called out to fight fires set by strikers.

Ice-Breaker Leaves To Open Summer Navigation In Hudson Straits

In a few days the ice-breaker C.G.S. N.B. McLean will set out from Quebec for Hudson Straits to open navigation through to Churchill for the summer. She will remain there until the freeze-up this fall. All along the straits lights and short-wave radio stations have been established to protect shipping on this route from Europe to middle Canada. The N. B. McLean, under the command of Capt. W. J. Balcom, carries full radio equipment. Only one serious casualty has occurred since the opening of navigation along the Hudson Straits route. That was in 1932 when the S.S. Brightfan struck an iceberg. The crew was rescued by the N.B. McLean, shown above at LEFT. At RIGHT is seen a radio operator at work in one of the outpost station along the straits.

TRAIL TO BYRD'S ISOLATED CAMP IS LOST IN SNOW

Tractor Party Out to Bring Chief Back, Find Flags Gone 50 Miles Out.

CONCERN GROWS.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, July 23.—(AP)—Grave concern for the safety of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd was felt today. The trail leading to his lonely weather observation outpost was lost.

A tractor party which set out Friday to bring him back to the main base reported it could not pick up the trail.

The group was 50 miles out on the 123-mile run. Orange flags with which the route had been marked could not be found past that point, the relief party reported yesterday. Byrd followed the trail four months ago to take up his lonely sentinel duty.

Dr. Thomas C. Poultry, in charge of the group, said the party had battled in bitter weather to reach the 50-mile station. Temperatures ranged from 50 to 71 degrees below zero.

The expedition travelled 130 nautical miles to attain the 50 nautical miles, Dr. Poultry reported, zigzagging back and forth over the ice barriers.

A nest of deep crevasses lies ahead. Members of the group had been sleepless since 5.30 a.m., Friday.

U. S. Officials Highly Elated at Dillinger's Death—Rest of Gang Next.

NO OFFICER GETS REWARD.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—(A.P.)—The United States' government to-day hailed John Dillinger's end as one of the most smashing blows ever delivered at crime in the United States.

It vowed that the man-hunt would never cease until it punishes all members of the Dillinger mob and anyone who ever gave them any aid, comfort or assistance."

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, told of the killing of the deperado, said: "The news is exceedingly gratifying as well as reassuring."

It appeared likely that no one would receive the $10,000 reward that the Federal government, striving to wipe out organized crime, had offered for Dillinger's capture.

Department of Justice agents, who predominated in the law force that waited outside a Chicago movie theatre and shot the desperado down as he emerged, are not permitted to accept rewards.

The government, however, offered $5,000 for information leading to the apprehension of Dillinger. It remained to be seen whether the tip that Dillinger was to attend the movies came from a private citizen eligible for this reward.

The flash that Dillinger's career was over came to the Department of Justice last night even as he breathed his last.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation, who had directed the hunt from Washington, received over the long distance telephone the terse message:

"Dillinger is mortally wounded and will be dead in four or five minutes."

Not Telling

Lights blazed in the Department of Justice building, which had been darkened. Hoover, jubilant, hurried to his office and received newspapermen.

Asked who fired the fatal shot: "We can't say," he said, "that's a trade secret. We don't want to put our man on the spot."

"Simply a rat," was Hoover's summary of Dillinger. "He was man of the worst imaginable type. His courage was of the type that required a brace of guns to keep it up.

"This does not mean the end of the Dillinger case. Anyone who ever gave any of the Dillinger mob any aid ,comfort or assistance will be vigorously prosecuted."

Uppermost in his mind, newsmen believed, was George "Baby Face" Nelson, whom the Department has named as the murderer of Special Agent W. Carter Baum in a brush with the Dillinger gang in a Wisconsin woods last April.

TRUCK HITS CAR TWO ARE INJURED

Campbellford Couple Narrowly Escape Serious Injury Near Trent River.

NO SERIOUS DAMAGE.

(Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 3.—Hurled from their roadster when it was struck by a motor truck on the Trent River Road near Woodlands cheese factory at 10 o'clock this morning, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ramsden of Campbellford narrowly escaped serious injury, emerging from the crash with a few bruises and a severe shock.

They were returning from a week end visit to their son, Roy Ramsden at Kawartha Lake, when a truck of the Holdcroft Construction Company, who have the contract of the new provincial highway between here and Havelock, is reported to have swung out of a side road, hitting the roadster, and turning it around in the opposite direction to which it was going.

The truck approached the new highway from the west on the second concession north of Woodland cheese factory, and according to information received here the driver was watching for traffic coming from the south. It was said that he did not notice the Ramsden roadster, going south, until it was almost in front of the truck at the intersection.

A local doctor returning from the lakes rendered first aid. Mrs. Ramsden had difficulty in breathing for a short time after the accident, and with her husband suffered nothing more than bruises from their painful experience. Mr. Ramsden was one of the citizens who attempted the rescue of Dougas Haig, the Campbellford boy who was drowned here last Wednesday morning.

DREAD TYPHOID FEVER FOLLOWS POLISH FLOODS

Fourth Wall of Water Expected Spreads Terror Over Country—240 Dead.

200,000 DESTITUTE.

By MARYLLA CHRZANOWSKA
Associated Press Foreign Staff

WARSAW, July 23 (A.P.)—Outbreaks of typheid fever in some sections of Poland were reported to-day as drinking water was polluted and 200,000 were estimated nearly destitute because of the floods.

Th threats of a typhoid epidemic throughout the flood area caused apprehension while Warsaw awaited with a fear a fourth flood crest moving from Cracow down the Vistula river.

The known dead already numbered 240 and the lack of drinking water is pressing because the rivers have been polluted by corpses.

The flood waters increased in Warsaw this morning with the passing of the Vistula's third crest toward the Baltic Sea, but, in anticipation of the fourth crest Tuesday evening, the dikes are being strengthend by all th male inhabitants of Warsaw, called by the municipal council to fight for the city.

Levees May Break

Fears were expressed that the levees will not hold if the rains resume. It had rained 12 hours steadily up till 11 a.m.

The Hydrographic Institute of Warsaw announced that the Vistula had reached the highest level in its history.

Food conditions cause worry, although in many places supplies have been cached in the upper stories of houses.

The government is organizing a relief program in the provinces where the sufferers are to be employed rebuilding the bridges and the railroads. The government is also taking steps to rehabilitate the homeless by furnishing house materials at low prices and lowering or remitting taxes.

The government further is organizing an anti-epidemic drive with the aid of the red cross.

POLICE GET CLUE IN COPP DEATH

Seek Woman Who Saw Acquaintance Run From Lane Night of Shooting.

TOLD CLERGYMAN STORY.

TORONTO, July 23 (C.P.).—Toronto police swept into a wide search to-day for a woman who, they learned, had seen a man acquaintance hurry from a lane leading to the rear of the home of Johnnie Copp, shot eight months ago by a cat burglar he attempted to capture.

Copp, former Toronto University football star, died after a long struggle for life. A $5,000 reward has been posted for capture of his slayer.

According to a prominent Toronto clergyman, he was called to the home of a resident and there told by a man of the information which in turn had reached him through a woman acquaintance.

According to the woman's story, "I was passing the lane which leads on to Church Street, near the Copp home. As near as I can judge, it was just the time when Johnnie Copp was shot. As I passed, I heard a bang that sounded like a wooden box falling. Then a man, whom I knew slightly, came running out of the lane, out of breath. He came up to me and spoke, and walked down the street with me. He did not explain where he had been nor what he had been doing, but it was some time afterward before I remarked on the peculiarity of his behavior."

Police are now scouring the city in an effort to find the woman to question her at further length.

500 GUARDS GO TO MINNEAPOLIS

All Police Armed as Convoys Prepare to Protect Truck Drivers.

MARTIAL LAW LOOMS.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 23 (A.P.).—Five hundred guardsmen moved in from the outskirts of the city today, armed to check violence, as police convoys were drawn up to move trucks through the ranks of striking drivers.

The showdown came on the day of the deadline set for the strikers to return to work and be assured permanent employment. The drivers were warned by truck owners that unless they return to-day, other drivers will replace them immediately.

Mayor A. G. Bainbridge said in a public statement armed police were ready to convoy any "necessary trucks" and are "not going to permit themselves to be beaten up if efforts are made to interfere with their demands to do their duty."

One man was dead and 67 others, all but a few suffering police buckshot wounds, were recovering from injuries as the guardsmen swung from their fair grounds to the downtown armory, ready to take steps against any outbreak such as that of last Friday.

Threats of martial law still hung over the city as the employers' advisory Committee assembled for another conference with Federal mediators, while police investigators turned over to the county attorney findings which Captain H. A. Paradeau, captain of detectives, said might prove the basis for criminal syndicalism prosecution against some of those involved in the Friday clash.

GOLD RUSH DAYS ARE RECALLED BY G. A. JORDAN

Lindsay Magistrate Tells Rotary Club of Heroism of Pioneer Prospectors on Coast.

WERE REAL MEN.

Speaker Draws From Rich Store of Personal Experience to Tell of Caribou and Klondyke.

An eloquent tribute to the heroism of the pioneer prospectors and miners of British Columbia was paid by Police Magistrate George A. Jordan of Lindsay to-day in addressing the Peterborough Rotary Club on the subject "The Trail of '98."

Magistrate Jordan spent some time in British Columbia in the days of the Klondyke rush and has a fund of personal experiences from which he was able to draw some most entertaining anecdotes for the benefit of his Rotary audience.

Introduced by Rotarian T. J. Carley, Mr. Jordan began by sketching the career of Sir James Douglas, one of British Columbia's pioneers. He passed on to tell of the California gold rush, the Caribou discoveries and finally the discovery of gold in the Klondyke. He had come intimately into touch with many of the old-timers in the Caribou district and in the Klondyke and declared that these prospectors and miners were real men, who faced suffering and the perils of the wilds unflinchingly and were true to their partners and considerate of women and children. Cabins were always left open, he said, and the travelling prospector was at liberty to make use of their facilities at all times. "This condition continued" said Magistrate Jordan "until some of the civilized people from the East came along to spoil things."

President J. Fred Reed thanked the speaker on behalf of the club. He also expressed Rotary's sympathy to Past President Dr. A. Moir in his bereavement in the death of his brother.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

STAMFORD PARK got away to a flying start on Saturday. The weather was just as if it was made to order and the crowd was of large proportions. Live One accounted for the feature event of the afternoon when he managed to stick it out long enough to defeat Spey Crest, Shady Well and several others. By the way, this Spey Crest will win a race right smartly, so don't be afraid to take him. He is the ace of the Wright Stable of Barrie, Ont.

Badame has shipped several head to Rockingham Park and expects to do business in a large way. The headliner of the party is Khorasan and he was never in better shape. He will also pay a good price down there as the Americans do not know his worth like we do up here in Canada. A couple of years ago at Baltimore after winning consistently here all summer he paid over thirty dollars on his first start so history may repeat itself. In the same shipment is Muckle Do whom Badame paid a huge price for in Florida last winter but who was unable to win a race at our tracks. This one will find himself before long and the dividend will be awfully sweet.

UP AT Stamford we hear that Fort Dearborn is just burning up the track and it won't be long now until he just walks his beat. George Alexandria has Dunlin's Lad back in the same shape as two years ago and that means it will take a mighty shifty sprinter to take his measure. The clever George also has Bushman back under his wing and he can make him do tricks that no other trainer is capable of. One of those races fashioned for Canuck breds at a mile or over should be duck soup for Syndic. This grey flash is as fit as a fiddle right now.

George E. Miller who won his last in handy fashion will keep right on winning for a while, so climb on the band waggon, while the band is still playing. The Whitney Stables earnings are away down this year as compared to a year ago. This is due to the foot trouble experienced by the famous Equipoise. It is reported that if Equipoise is unable to return to active training that C. V. Whitney will dispose of his entire turf holdings and retire from the racing game. This would be a calamity as men of his calibre are too scarce already.

COLONEL BRADLEY is another owner of a large and powerful stable that is not meeting with nearly the same success as a year ago, but he will get his share before the season closes. It is nearly time for Powder Monkey to wake the boys up again. Stamford will likely be the spot. Norman Charlton has Sweeptrap all primed for a winning effort and no mistakes will be made this time. Old George De Mar who is now twelve years old is acting like a juvenile and do not be surprised if he pops down in front to the tune of about forty dollars. This old fellow is in smart hands and never seems to bow to advancing years.

A veteran tennis star says no one can play tennis and work at the same time. Just wait until that remark is read by all those who tried to lick Fred Perry this year.

Petes Lose Central Loop Lead To Nationals

BELLEVILLE SCORES 3 RUNS IN NINTH INNING SPLURGE TO HUMBLE LOCAL CLAN 8-4

Deyell and Williams Fail to Hurl Best Ball in Starting Mound Roles.

WEIR HOMERS IN 7TH.

Burton Leads Homesters at Bat, Whatley and Murray Rank Next in Order.

Belleville	14	8	5	1
Petes	14	8	6	0
Kingston	13	5	7	1
Oshawa	13	5	8	0

The Petes were shoved back into second place by an 8-4 licking at the hands of Belleville before more than a thousand excited fans at Riverside Park Saturday. It was another thrilling Belleville-Petes' battle wit'h the score 5-4 going into the ninth. Arangements waxed hot and the umpires took a real riding as the teams fought bitterly for every point, with the breaks going against the locals.

Archie Deyell and Jack Williams were starting twirlers, but neither one pitched his best ball. Deyell went good for five of the first six frames, but alloyed five hits and four runs in the fourth. The Nats got to him for two more hits in the seventh, one a homer by Weir, and a walk and a hit in the eighth. Bill Calladine twirled the last frame but failed to show anything, and Belleville got three more runs off him. Deyell allowed eight hits and one walk, while fanning two. Calladine walked one, gave two hits and struck out one.

Williams was nicked for a total of ten hits, but only in the second and eighth could the Petes get more than a hit an inning. He bore down effectively in the pinches to fan four. The Chief issued two walks and a hit batter, besides having two errors. His teammates booted four more, while the locals only had two misplays but both figured in the scoring.

Burton led the homesters at bat with two singles in three trips. Whatley was next with a triple and single in four, while Murray got two in five. Weir was the big hitter for the winners, smacking out a homer into the bushes in deep centre—the first homer here this year—and a single in four times up. Mills had a double and single in five, and Green conked out a two-bagger.

Murray had eight perfect chances in the field and Konopka seven out of eight. Sig and Batten both made nice catches, and Ash again turned in a grand game at first; Weir, Ford and Green went best for the Nats.

Belleville went out in order the first three innings ,but the Petes to three in the second. Murray singled and moved up on a passed ball. Ash was safe and Murray advanced on Smith's error and both took another sack on Williams' bad throw to first. Burton singled to advance Ash and stole second. Both raced in on Konopka's hit, after Whatley scratched one to third. The Nats got four in the fourth. Utronki singled and took third on Kerr's safe rap, the latter stealing. Both advanced on a fly to centre and Kerr raced in on Mills' double. Mills took third on Weir's hit. The latter stole and Whatley threw high to third to let both runners take another base. Weir got the last run on Scarlett's hit.

Weir Homers in 7th

Foley singled in the third and Whatley tripled in the fourth but both were left stranded. They threatened again in the fifth and sixth but could not score. Weir homered for Belleville in the seventh and the Petes got one in the eighth. Murray beat out a hit and took second on an error. He stole third but was out at the plate, Ash going to first. He took second when Burton was hit, and home on an error. A walk, single by Williams and an error, with Green's double gave the Nats three in the ninth. The Petes got runners to first and third in their half but it was no use. The box score:

Somerville Breaks Quebec Golf String

MURRAY BAY Que., July 23.—(C.P.)—To Ross "Sandy" Somerville, it was just another championship but to Quebec's golf enthusiasts it was something else. For when Silent Sandy, only Canadian ever to hold the United States' amateur golf championship, walked off the golf course here Saturday with the Manoir Richelieu Shield in his possession, he ended a string of Quebec victories that has not been broken in the history of the shield play.

For the first time in its seven-year history the shield leaves the province following the silent Scot's victory. Sandy emerged winner over a field of outstanding amateurs in Quebec province and a number of fine Ontario players in 36 holes of medal play with a score of 148, three strokes better than the previous record of 151 set by Gordie Taylor, Montreal, in 1932.

BISONS SWAMP BOONE LEAFS IN FIRST GAME OF TWIN 25-3

But Toronto Outfit Stages Comeback to Win Second Tilt at Buffalo 4-1.

WINGS LOSE SIXTH.

(By The Associated Press)

When wilder baseball is made, the International League offers Buffalo Bisons of their circuit as the outfit with the best chance of establishing the new record.

Bisons set the season mark for scoring in the league yesterday by winning the first half a double-header from Toronto 25-3, beating all pitchers who faced them unmercifully for 28 hits. They subsided then and meekly dropped the second game 4-1 as Gene Schott shut them out with five hits.

To complete the Buffalo claim, the season's record for scoring up to yesterday was a 23-0 shut-out scored by Baltimore May 6. On the receiving end was this same Buffalo team. Baltimore's record actually was a trifle more noteworthy inasmuch as it was accomplished in even innings.

Three of the four double headers on the day's schedule were divided but Rochester ran its losing streak to six straight by dropping two to Montreal, 7-6 and 3-2. Ira Smith held the Royals to four hits in the second game, but still it wasn't enough.

Montreal's double victory imperrilled Albany's fourth place position as the Senators divided two games with the league leading Newark Bears, winning the first 5-2 behind Bill Harris' fine pitching, losing the second 8-5 when Fred Muller and Roy Schalk came through with ninth inning homers in a three run rally. Albany now holds Montreal out of fourth place by a single point.

Baltimore and Syracuse trailing the rest of the league, also divided a doubleheader. Johnny Watwood's home run in the ninth gave Syracuse a 4-3 margin in the second game after the Orioles pounded the veteran Fred Fussell out in the first inning of the opener with a four run rally and went on to win 6-1. Woodley Abernathy's homer with two on featured the rally and sewed up the victory for Baltimore.

Ruth Returns by Smacking 16th Homer and Starting Yanks Off to Twin Win.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The criticisms of Walter Johnson's managerial actions which poured forth from the baseball writers and fans when Cleveland was in a losing streak a couple of weeks ago, seem to have been just the stimulus that was needed to send the Indians flying back into the midst of the American League pennant race.

In the past week the Indians rallied from the attacks, won four games in a row, dropped one tough one, then smashed their way back into third place yesterday with a double triumph over Boston Red Sox. With Mel Harder taking care of things on the Hill, giving six hits for his 10th victor, the Tribe won the opener 4-2. The second game was tougher but Cleveland rallied for four runs in the third and after the Sox had tied it up in the eighth Sam Rice smacked a pinch hit to drive in the odd run in a 6-5 triumph.

The double victory still left the big train's team far behind the pace setters as the second-place Yankees celebrated Babe Ruth's return to action by walloping the White Sox twice, 8-2 and 15-2 while Detroit's pace setters split a twin bill with the Athletics.

Ruth, who was supposed to have been laid up for two weeks when struck by a batted ball, came back after three days and acted as if one leg was all he needed. Playing 5⅓ innings of the first game, he smacked his 16th homer and a single to knock in four runs and started the Yanks off on an assault that netted 32 hits for 47 bases.

The Tigers bowed 1-0 in their first game when Bill Dietrich hurled a six-hit game, but they made up for that in the plate innings of the second clash, scoring 11 times in three frames in response to Jimmie Foxx's 30th homer of the year, and won 17-8.

Breaks Losing Streak

Washington, down in sixth place, broke a five game losing streak and the Browns' string of seven triumphs by winning 6-4 behind Ed Linke.

DELORO ADDS LOOP STANDING

Smelters Take 1-0 Decision From Packers in Hard Fought Struggle.

ON HOME GROUNDS.

MARMORA, July 23 (Examiner Correspondence) — Deloro football team advanced two more points in the Peterborough and District League standing on Saturday by virtue of their home win over Canadian Packers by the score of 1-0.

Both teams were well represented owing to the late arrival of the Peterborough eleven, the teams agreed to playing only thirty-five minutes each way and with the sultry weather conditions prevailing this length of a game was quite sufficient.

After the Packers had kicked off, both ends were visited in turn without anything materializing. The Packers indulged in their usual long combination play which forced the opposition to also play a faster game, with only the goalie to get by made a good bid for a goal but Chamberlain on the alert was able to clear when neither had actual possession of the ball. Retaliating G. Downer had hard lines in not scoring. Deloro staging a rush, came leisurely towards their opponents' goal. Brooks penetrated the Packers' defence to outwit Chamberlain with a low shot. Half time arrived with the Packers pressing and no further score having resulted.

Packers attacked hotly on the resumption of play and O'Neill made two brilliant saves in quick succession, having to jump high to clear the second shot. As play changed to the other end Chamberlain showed agility in repelling two hot shots. For a while, Deloro seemed to have the better of the play. Then the visitors again took up the offensive. Todd sent in an excellent drive for goal which proved cleverly charged down. A slight delay in the game occurred as O'Neill and McCracken accidentally collided and a few minutes later, a peculiar mishap occurred as J. Hart in heading the ball to clear, winded his teammate Cousins. Each of these players remained in the game after the necessary attention. Packers pressed until the end but were unable to score. In the last moments, Bradley sustained an injured leg, this also being purely accidental. Deloro emerged victors of a hard fought game by 1 goal to nil. Alex McKinley handled the whistle satisfactorily to both teams and though keenly fought, it was a game devoid of any rough tactics.

Canada Packers — Goal, Chamberlain; backs, N. Downer, A. Downer; half backs, O. Downer, Buchan, Bromley; forwards, Todd, McCracken, Howell, Foster, G. Downer; sub, Gahagan.

West Seymour	5	3
Menie	4	4
Pethericks	3	5

West Seymour and Menie start the play-off series on Wednesday evening with the second game Saturday and a third if necessary the following week.

This series stacks up as one of the interesting features of a season of close and exciting games. The loop leaders after a slow start have improved wonderfully in their play. Menie started strong, went into a bad slump, but are right back into stride again and are always great money players, so a real series can be looked for.

NELSON VICTOR IN MEN'S RACE

Fort Dodge Youth Scores Second Successive Victory—Janet Sheather Heads Women.

CHICAGO, July 23 (A.P.)—Marvin Nelson, 19-year-old giant from Fort Dodge, Ia., swam to a second straight triumph yesterday in the second annual $10,000 William Randolph Hearst-Herald and Examiner fifteen-mile swim in Lake Michigan. Nelson was out of the water, dressed and eating a belated meal before the second man finished.

Nelson, richer by $5,000 for his feat, covered the distance in 7 hours 54 minutes and 5 seconds. His time was almost 22 minutes slower than his mark in the inaugural last year. He took the lead at the five-mile stage, after trailing Cy Nelson of Chicago and George Young of Toronto and once in front steadily improved his advantage.

Frank Pritchard of Buffalo finished strong in second place, but was 14 minutes 36 seconds behind Nelson, Pritchard won $1,500.

Janet Sheather of Port Credit, Ont., shared honors with Nelson by winning the $1,000 first prize in the women's five-mile event. The former Canadian Olympic swimmer swam the course in 2 hours and 10 seconds.

Behind Miss Shether by 150 yards was Miss Mary Loony of Warren, Ohio, who won the $500 second-place money. Her time was 2.33.33. Third was Lucy Spencer of Toronto with 2.33.03 and $300 prize money.

The visitors took the men's singles and both parts of the men's doubles, while the locals won the ladies' doubles and mixed doubles.

CALEYS FALL TO ELECTRICS FOR 4-1 LOSS

Inexperienced Caledonian Players Lack Necessary Finish Near Goal.

FAIR NET-MINDING.

Youth had to submit to defeat on Saturday afternoon when the local Caledonians trotted many young players against the Canadian General in a soccer league engagement. The Electrics gaining four counters against the losers' one before a fair attendance of spectators. The Scots deserve credit for the manner in which they have introduced the younger generation into their team and they only lacked the necessary experience. V. Post, King Edward school boy turned out for the C.G.E. at outside left.

Two Goals in 2 Minutes

In the opening stages, both teams broke into the scoring column when a miskick by Denisen, full back, allowed McMaster an opening which he took advantage of. The Caledonians repulsed many dangerous rushes until Webb, at centre half, carried the ball towards his opponents' goal A. Heal drew out the defense and while on the run his outside man connected with a first timer that the custodian—Curtis—couldn't hold. A break away by Electrics's right winger ended in McPhate meeting the ball on the drop to put the C.G.E. ahead. Just before the interval, the Heal brothers alsong with Doug Mowry were brilliant on the attack and were always dangerous when around the goal. Half time—Canadian General 2, Caledonians 1.

Lack Experience

The second thirty-five minutes, opened up at a fast pace. The Electrics endeavoring to tally from far out, with Melrose being the master of the situation. The winners introduced perfect combination against the inexperienced youth of the Caledonians to gain their third counter when the pivot drove hard into goal, Melrose, Scot's goalie, accidentally hitting the ball into his own goal. A little later, Denisen playing in an unaccustomed position miskicked the ball in front of goal and McMaster trapped the sphere to bulge the rigging behind the Scot's custodian. In the closing minutes, the Caleys attacked repeatedly to give Curtis a busy session between the sticks. On one occasion, Dyer picked the far corner of the uprights when the goalie was out of goal but Clark arrived from nowhere to save his goal. Fruitless flag kicks were the only reward as the C.G.E. held on to their lead. Canadian General 4, Caledonians 1.

Canadian General — W. Curtis, goal; S. Clark and A. Mitchell, full backs; J. Cooper, E. Jones and A. Burgess, halves; H. McIntosh, F. Earle, B. McMaster, V. Post and T. McPhate, forwards; subs, W. Bolam and W. Robb.

Caledonians — L. Melrose, goal; W. Denisen and E. Adkinson, full backs; C. Heal, A. Webb and F. Dyer, halves; D. Mowry, A. Heal, W. Rankin, J. Warde and G. Lovatt, forwards; subs, D. Green and S. Leggitt.

Dukes Beat Ponies In Double At Home

OSHAWA, July 23.—After losing five straight games, the Oshawa Dukes snapped out of their losing streak by taking both ends of a double header from Kingston Ponies 7-0 and 7-1 at Motor City Stadium Saturday. The double win leaves the Dukes and Kingston in a tie for third place, a game away from the playoff berth.

In the afternoon game the Dukes made life miserable for "Speedy" St. Louis, the Ponies speed artist, who found Mathews a big obstacle as the latter pounded out a homer, a triple and a double to drive in five of the Dukes' seven runs. While his mates were hammering away at St. Louis, 'Lefty' Wills was holding the Ponies handcuffed with his portsided slants and was never in trouble at any time during the game.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

By C.J.P.

Somewhere in this favored land the sun is shining bright; somewhere bands are playing and somewhere hearts are light; somewhere men are singing and somewhere children shout; but there's no joy in Peterborough for again the Petes lost out! Yeah, Belleville Nats came to town Saturday and for the second straight time here marred a swell afternoon by licking the locals. It was 8-4 and showed the Petes back into second place half a game behind the Mills' crew. It was another nifty number, packed with excitement and arguments, with the rival players up in arms and battling like demons for every point. Inability to hit with runners on cost the Petes the game, regardless of alibis over umpires' decisions. We didn't think so much of the base-umping but that didn't lose us the tilt.

• • • • • • •

We only scored in two innings, yet we had runners on the paths in every frame but the first. Ten died on the runways while only five visitors succumbed in this unnatural manner. No wonder there are so many undertakers in this town! It's true that the Petes didn't get the breaks, but of the two big arguments with the umpires we couldn't see where the officials were wrong. Ash almost made a circus catch of Mills' double in right in the fourth, holding the ball momentarily but losing it when he fell. You've got to hold it "securely" to be an out and if a fall during the same play jolts the ball loose, it couldn't have been held securely. Just imagine if it had happened the other way and, say, Utronki almost caught a Petes' hit like that but didn't hold it, and the umpire had ruled an out—what a swell squawk the home fans would have raised!

• • • • • • •

The other argument came in the eighth when the Petes needed a run to tie it up. Burton was on third and Calladine, pinch-hitting, drove a hard one down the third-base line. It hit Burton and the umps called an out. The Petes contended that the ball was foul, but at any rate it was mighty close either way and up to the umpire's judgment. None of us in the press-box—at a better slant along the third-base line than most of the fans—would swear as to whether it was fair or foul. The two umps were rode hard throughout and Shiner Johnston took a bad verbal beating from the Petes in the dressing-room afterward. We don't like to see a team alibi-ing, but we do like to see a fighting squad. Anyway, it was certainly a lively ball game.

• • • • • • •

Neither Deyell nor Williams pitched great ball, but both got by pretty fair except for one bad innings. The Petes got three in the second and the Nats four in the fourth. Then Weir slapped out a lovely homer near the score-board in the seventh. The Petes got one back and nearly tied it up in the eighth. But in the ninth, Belleville jumped on Calladine to grab three more. The locals had a chance to do something in the ninth but failed to come through. The fielding was spotty, the Petes going good as a rule except for two costly errors, while both Smith and Williams booted a bunch between them on the other side. Murray, Konopka and Ash went best defensively for us. Burton was hurt when hit high on the back by that hard drive in the eighth and did not finish the game. He'll have a sore spot there for a few days.

• • • • • • •

Peeney Mills told us after the game that this was his last year as a player. "It's getting tougher all the time," he said, "bending and straightening behind the bat, chasing fouls and running the bases. I guess I'm about through." We pointed out that he had two hits that day and still caught a good game in there, but the veteran just grinned and said: "No, the years are catching up with me."

• • • • • • •

Oshawa Dukes returned to form with a bang that sounded like a firecracker shop exploding on Saturday to knock Kingston off twice in Oshawa, 7-0 and 7-1. Wills beat St. Louis in the first one while Knox outpitched Jamieson in the second fixture, with Moose Mathews' big bat having a lot to say in the argument. The win practically puts Oshawa in a third-place tie with Kingston and a lot of folks in Peterborough, Belleville and Oshawa will get a large-sized kick out of the result of that doubleheader. It makes it a better race again and may save the situation down in the Motor City where things were going from wobbly to worse. But there's no joy in Kingston.

• • • • • • •

The E.P.L. playoffs start tomorrow (Tuesday) night at six in the Exhibition Grounds, C.G.E. playing Cogs in the first game. It is best four games out of seven—another wolid series no less—and should see a lot of fun before the scraps are all gathered up. C.G.E. will be at full strength and battling hard to knock off last year's champs. We look for some swell tussles in this series, and no doubt the fans will be out in force. Dunno who the starting pitchers will be yet.

• • • • • • •

Dave Leether, back from the O.A.S.A. meeting, told us today that they agreed to combine Zones 4 and 5 for intermediate "A" play, with Lindsay, Oshawa and Peterborough in one section and Belleville, Trenton and Kingston in the other. Oshawa and Kingston get a first-round bye, which means the local winner plays in Lindsay, Aug. 17th, with return game here the 21st. Third game, which will be tossed up for before the series starts, will be Aug. 23rd. Belleville will play in Trenton. The Peterborough-Lndsay winner tackles Oshawa immediately after. As for the junior O.A.S.A. team here, it will play Trenton in Peterborough, Aug. 17th, second game in Trenton the 22nd, and third game, if necessary, the 27th.

LOCALS GAIN CRICKET WIN, POOR OPENING

Petes Give Clever Display at Bat to Pile Up Total of 71 Runs.

PLAY AT TORONTO.

The local team travelled to Toronto on Saturday to play Toronto Beaches Cricket Club at the Woodbine, and though they made a bad start, won handily, the final score being Peterboro C. C. 71, Beaches C. C. 50. It was a pleasant outing, with a good ground to play on and a fine bunch of opponents. Peterborough opened with A. Hamilton (0) and D. Mitchell (2), but the former left at one, Mitchell at 3, Gore (3) at 9, and Dyer (0) at 13, but Binks (13) and Lawrence (10) took the score to 31, at which point 3 more wickets fell, and it was seven for 31. F. Grimshaw (15) a newcomer, and a decided acquisition, was joined by Lorne (11), and these two carried the total to 52, and the score finally reached 71. H. Grimson was the most successful bowler with five wickets for 21 runs.

Beaches too made a bad start, and they never recovered, C. Farmer carried out his bat for 20, but none of the rest made any stand against Dyer's fine bowling. He took eight wickets for 18, and also did the "hat-trick," the total reaching 50, leaving Peterborough winners by 21 runs, and their winning sequence unbroken.

In the matter of the semi-finals and final of the county championship, the locals feel they have had rather a raw deal. After the 2nd round on July 2, in which Peterborough made a 400-mile road trip to beat Lanark County, it was stated in the Toronto press in an apparently official statement that they had a bye and were to meet the winners of Essex-Waterloo match in the final in Toronto on Labor Day. Geographically and in every sense that seemed the best arrangements, the two western teams could play off on a neutral ground at London, and the Petes would meet the winners in Toronto. However, the local officials have now received word that they are to play Waterloo in Toronto on Civic Holiday, August 6, and Essex County takes the bye.

The following is the score:

Cogs and C.G.E. to Tangle in Firs tof Four Out of Seven Game Series.

The East Peterborough Baseball League playoffs will commence tomorrow (Tuesday) evening at six o'clock in the Exhibition Grounds between C.G.E. and Cogs. It will be best four out of seven games, the winner taking the E.P.L. title for 1934, the Tip Top Tailors' trophy for a year, and the right to represent Peterborough as an intermediate 'A' winner in the O.B.A.A. playdowns. Second game will probably be played down there Friday night. These teams are the same two that met in the finals last year with Cogs winning out.

Cogs have the better record for play on the season, not having suffered a reverse all season. However, C.G.E. will build up considerably for these playoffs, and the teams will enter on even terms, past performances having no place in this titular series. Manager Davis had Casey Masterson, Percy Vannest and Lefty Billingsley all available for hurling duties, while Manager Hatton may start Armour, Hetherington or McGillen. Both squads will be at full strength and looking to get the jump in the playoffs by taking the first game. It should be a fine ball game and ought to attract a large crowd of fans.

You will find many things in the Classified Ads of The Examiner.

GIANTS ADD LEAGUE LEAD

Fred Fitzsimmons Beats Bennie Frey 2-1 in 11-Inning Struggle.

PHILLIES BEAT CUBS.

(By Canadian Press.)

The Giants, who saw a game and a half clipped from their National League lead Saturday, increased their margin to three games again as a pair of overtime struggles broke just right for them. After a narrow escape from a second defeat at Cincinnati's hands, they came through to beat the Reds 2-1 in an 11 inning battle between Fred Fitzsimmons and Bennie Frey while the Phillies came through in the 12th to beat the second-place Cubs 6-5.

Frey limited the leaders to seven hits while the Reds got 10, but four double plays helped New York over the tight spots. Gabby Hartnett almost broke up the Cub-Philly battle with a homer in the 12th, but it just stirred the Phils up enough to score three runs off Charley Root in the same inning.

The third-place Cardinals made a slight gain by drubbing the Braves twice, 5-4 and 4-2 as Bill Walker and Dazzy Vance turned in a pair of steady pitching jobs to prolong the St. Louis wining streak to six games. Vance brought his major league strike-out record up to 2,000 by whiffing five Braves. Wally Berger hit a homer for Boston in each game.

The inimitable Brooklyn Dodgers put together their longest winning streak of the year when they beat Pittsburgh twice, 3-2 and 13-10 to sweep the four-age series. Four hits off Larry French were enough to win the opener, but a 10-run outburst in the second inning barely carried them through the after piece.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 55

Pointer felt Naylor start, but the barrister did not speak. "Anyway," Pointer went on, "he went to her studio next morning—must have"—Pointer was speaking slowly now, groping, half to himself—"and learned from her, or found for himself, something for knowing which, or for having which, he was poisoned. I think she told him she could not help herself. And he believed her. I think that was why he asked you if you believed in the devil. . . . I take it Mr. Tait referred to the person behind the blackmailing of Lord Mills, and of himself, behind Miss Dundas. You see, Mr. Naylor, we know most of the facts, but among those we don't know may be something that will help—just now—in this moment of real emergency."

Naylor drew a deep breath.

"You're quite right," he said, speaking clearly and coldly, in his most impersonal tone. "As far as I can check it, all you've said is absolutely true. Mills sent my cousin a telephone message asking him to come and see him at once. He got it while at his own house, looking over it with my sisters and Lady Tait. He hurried to Mills' flat and found him alone. He told my cousin that he was being bled by blackmail on account of a visit to a gambling den with Miss Dundas. That he had just learned, by chance, that he, Tait, had been seen talking to her in a corner of the links at Vichy. He warned John to have nothing to do with her, and said that he himself had been bled so white that he had decided to cut it all and leave England. When he shot himself, not an hour later, John understood what he meant by 'leaving England.' Full of the tragic story and of alarm at his own position, John found, on his arrival at his aunt's house that night, that Miss Dundas was there. Ran into her in the dining room and arranged for an interview when the the house should be quiet at night. He taxed her with being the blackmailer of Mills and himself. I interrupted the talk. Next morning he went to her studio and had it out with her. She seemed beside herself with anxiety and horror over Mills' death and with something more, John thought it sheer terror. At any rate, she broke down after that, and confessed that she was a party to the blackmailing, but said she acted under compulsion. She drew a touching picture of herself as a slave with a father and mother who would be turned out if she disobeyed orders." Naylor's lip curled. "She refused to say where they lived, but my cousin was tremendously sorry for her. He was an awfully good chap. . . . At lunch he spoke to me afterwards with a sort of fury of the man or people behind Miss Dundas. I've never seen him so wrought up. But he didn't go into details. —It—it was a blow in a way. I stopped him later to ask for particulars when he was hurrying out. He told me that on his return he would want to consult me most urgently as to what steps to take about an action he wanted to bring. Those were his words. Some idea of preventing scandal spreading was in his mind evidently, but he rushed away, telling me he wouldn't be long—to wait for him. . . . That was the last I saw of him."

There was a short silence.

"I was afraid that Miss Dundas would be suspected of havingpoisoned John. The motive might seem so obvious. To escape being found out." He went on heavily.

"You don't think so yourself?"

"No. But then, I saw no terror. It was more than fear of punishment. It was"—his voice fell a note—"fear of death. Nothing less."

"You don't believe Signora Ricci murdered your cousin, do you?" Pointer asked.

"No. I do not. But I wanted time—and a chance for Miss Dundas to pull herself together. She knows the truth. She must. I hoped she would yet speak out to you."

After that there was a long silence.

"About Mr. Tait and his friend Mr. Westmacott, can you give me any notion of why your cousin came to take less interest in Lady Ida? It's not curiosity that prompts the question, needless to say."

Naylor replied that he could give no explanation. "I suppose you know that Westmacott wanted to marry my sister Etta," he went on. "I've sometimes wondered if there lay the reason. Though exactly what it would be is beyond me. For it was Tait who strongly supported Westmacott in his sudden idea of leaving England and going first to Honduras, and then to China. That certainly ought to've made Lady Ida his for life!"

"Mr. Tait supported Mr. Westmacott?" Pointer repeated.

Naylor nodded. He was glad to deaden thought by chatter.

"Etta wouldn't look at him for a couple of months. But she got over her indignation, or seems to have. She grew to be quite fond of John lately."

Another silence fell. The car rushed on and on. The sky was black. They seemed to be in the heart of a storm.

Pointer was busy writing in his corner, filling a couple of pages with his neat, copperplate writing. Part of the time he was making a carbon copy. Naylor automatically noticed. It could not be what he, Naylor, had just told him, for Pointer had known that already. The young barrister closed his eyes. Suddenly the chief inspector leaned forward and spoke in the other's ear. The wind was howling as in a gale at sea.

"Mr. Naylor, will you be kind enough to take this envelope"—he held out one—"and keep it very carefully. You see that it's addressed to the Yard. Should anything happen to me today, I want it posted."

Naylor nodded and slipped the envelope, addressed as Pointer had just said, into an inner pocket, which he buttoned shut. An extra strong burst of wind crashed a tree down behind them. It was a terrific storm which slowed down even the Bentley, and they seemed to be in the midst of it.

"Where are we?" he shouted to Pointer, finding that with all his might he could barely get the words across the few inches to the other.

"Not far from Tor Cottage."

"Mr. Tait was having a hard tennis court made there," Pointer roared in reply. "I had a man posted down there as soon as I heard of it." He spoke as though hard tennis courts were outside the pale.

Naylor made some reply, or ejaculation, which was drowned in a yet more terrific crash. A tree was down in front of them. The ground quivered where it struck, and a cloud of earth rose from the ground to be whirled away by the howling wind. The rain lashed at the car, ponuding on the roof and the glass as though it were hail. Something in the tumult, something in the noise around him, in what he had just heard, seemed to daze Naylor. His usually swift wits were numbed. That terrible reply about the hard tennis court was running in his brain. There was another road across the common on which they now were. Pointer ran for it. Out of the storm a car roared forward along it. The chief inspector had a fog lamp in his hand and waved it. The car did not slacken; like an express train it kept to the center of the road, and Pointer had just time to leap aside as it rushed past him.

At the wheel sat a big-shouldered man. It was Strange. Just a glimpse of him, and the car was blotted out. To hear was impossible when standing in the open. Pointer ran back to the other two crouched in the shelter of the car. He seized Naylor's arm and drew him close.

"We ought to strike a road in a few minutes that leads to Tor Cottage—to the right."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, July 24

Judging by the very interesting chain of lunar and mutual aspects this should be a day of outstanding and memorable events, with all departments of life under the excitement and exhilaration of much commotion, stirring about and radical change. The particular incitement may be in connection with the personal, the domestic, social, or affectional relations, but in any case the outcome is in changed environment, new associations and contacts and probably high romantic adventure. All will not be plain sailing or happiness, however. Beware jealousy, strife and trivialities.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of high adventure, particularly in the domain of the affections, domestic or social circle. These may be recast in new surrounding, among strangers or strange interests, and amidst some petty jealousies and trouble calling for circumspect handling. With good judgment and precaution there is much to be expected in the way of success.

A child born on this day may have its social, domestic and affectional nature acutely to the fore, with possibly high adventure or sensational experiences in this direction.

ARMSTRONG FAMILY REUNION IS HELD ON EIGHTH LINE CAVAN

Occasion is Also Marked as 11th Wedding Day of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Armstrong.

GAMES, PICNIC, LUNCH.

MILLBROOK, July 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Armstrong family reunion was a delightful occasion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Armstrong, Eighth Line, Cavan, on Wednesday evening, the enjoyable event marking a double celebration since the date was also the eleventh wedding anniversary of the host and hostess.

From pioneer days the Armstrong family, with its wide and ever-growing connection, has had an intimate place in the history and progress of the village and township, and approximately seventy guests were included in the reunion gathering this year. Games for the younger folk, together with music and dancing, and social converse for those somewhat older in years, filled the hours happily, the service of a dainty lunch shortly before midnight, completing the enjoyable occasion.

Among those present were: Mrs. George Rorke and daughter, Anne, of Detroit; Mr. Tom Armstrong of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. William Armstrong and daughter, Betty, of St. Catharines; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Woods and family, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong and family, of Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brock and daughter Myrtle, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Scott, Mrs. Fred Cann, Mr. Stanley Cann, Miss May King, and Mr. and Mrs. A. WHITTY COPS HONORS

MADOC, July 23 (Examiner Correspondence). — Madoc lawn bowling tournament was an unqualified success. Teams were entered from Kingston, Tweed, Stirling, Campbellford, and Madoc, and filled the bowling green to capacity, necessitating a second draw for each of the three games played.

From Stirling were Whitey's team and Morton's team, with Cutcliffe from Norwood, and Madoc bowlers supplied four teams, skipped by Messrs. Wyper, Watson, Gunn, and Jack.

1, Whitey of Stirling; 2 Wiggins, Campbellford; 3, Cutcliffe, Norwood; 4, Watson, Madoc, and 5, hard luck prize, Topping, Kingston.

The prizes were both beautiful and useful, being end tables and magazine racks for first, sweaters and radio lamps for second, thermos jugs and comports for third, sweaters and silver spoons for fourth, and mirrors and belts as hard luck prizes. Real July weather favored the players.

Southenders Hold Minor League Lead

King Edward nosed out an 8-7 win at the Exhibition Grounds Saturday with St. Peter's to keep their grip on the leadership of the Bantam Baseball League. Some seventy-five fans saw an interesting struggle with the winners having to rally for six runs the last two frames to cop the victory. Castle pitched nice ball for the K.E. crew with both Lucano and Condon going good for the other side though the southenders got to the latter for hits and walks the final two stanzas. Jay let a bunch of passed balls by him the early part of the contest.

GOERING EMERGES AS THE CULPRIT IN GREAT GERMAN "BLOOD-PURGE"

Hitler Now Believed Virtually Prisoner of Junders Headed by Prussian.

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

ALTSTETTEN, July 23.—There was no plot against Hitler

Those terrible words are now admitted to be a true interpretation of the recent bloody events in Germany by impartial international observers who are in the know. If the Fuehrer nevertheless acted with ghastly swiftness in wiping out scores of his most loyal lieutenants, this was because in a terrible quandary as to what to begin with the million storm-troopers for whose upkeep there was no longer any money, and whose dissolution was demanded not only by the Junkers but by Britain and France as well, he first deprived those storm-troopers of their leaders who might have refused to let the troops go home. A preventive measure thus.

There is no parallel in history for such a betrayal. interviewed half a dozen high Nazi officials, in widely different parts of Europe. They all agreed in the main that the Hitler regime was not menaced by any plot whatsoever, but that the Fuehrer himself had openly allied himself with the conservative reaction as against the mass of his followers who believed in him as in a Messiah to bring about a transformation for the better in German life.

Things that seemed incredible in March and April, 1934, are now surpassed by the new events. Capt. Ernst, well-known Nazi leader, one of Hitler's bosom-friends, thought so little of plotting against his chief that he was aboard a steamer bound for the Balearic Islands—on a honeymoon trip. The boat was lying in Hamburg harbor ready to lift anchor. At ten in the morning Capt Ernst and his bride received a congratulatory telegram from the Fuehrer. Five minutes before eleven, just as visitors were warned to go ashore, and the gangplank was about to be pulled in, six men in civilian clothes came on board, took Ernst off, raced him per automobile to the airport, where a plane was waiting. From Tempelhof flying field he was rushed to Berlin-Lichterfelde, to the cadets 'training school. Without a word of explanation he was taken to the courtyard, where a firing squad of Black Hussars stood drawn up.

Bride Suicided

Suddenly realizing that he was in a trap, Ernst screamed denunciations at his captors. He thought they were Communists or Socialists and that a revolution was in progress. When finally an official explained to him that he was to be executed by orders of Goering, he paled and yelled: "The traitor is Goering. I am innocent. Heil Hitler!" They bound him to the stake. He died with the words Heil Hitler on his lips. The next day his bride committed suicide.

Ernst had won Hitler's friendship way back in 1923 when he was a member of the Black Reichswehr, the secret organization which murdered labor leaders. The same story almost could be told of Heines, also of the earliest supporters of Hitler. He was shot while asleep. Major von Burcht, Goering's personal friend, fired a revolver into his mouth. Capt. Heines was a big shot in the Nazi party. He had boasted that he had personally assassinated Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, the two leaders of the Spartacus movement.

Knew About Fire

Both men, Heines and Ernst also knew, it should not be overlooked, the full truth about Herr Goering's connection with the Reichstag fire. They are now out of the way—like that pathetic creature Martinus van der Lubbe—but there are still some others who know the details. A prominent German lawyer, I learn, has placed a complete file of the circumstances of the firing of the parliament in a foreign country. The file is to be opened and its contents published if anything happens to him, he has specified.

From Otto Strasser I heard how his brother Gregor Strasser was killed. "Three days before my brother's murder," said Otto, "he had a letter from Hitler, proposing a close collaboration." I saw that letter. In that letter Hitler told Gregor Strasser that he wanted him as prime minister of Prussia to replace Goering. "Hitler was willing to have my brother institute a number of the reforms envisaged by the left-wing of the Nazi party. Goering got wind of the plan through his private police and he had my brother shot. Goering was always the representative of the Junkers in the cabinet," said Otto Strasser. "By his bloody action he has deprived Hitler of all his friends and the Fuehrer stands in the void to-day, a prisoner of the Reichswehr and the Junkers."

Goering the Strong Man

Long ago Goering realized that some day the storm-troops would demand that the promised reforms be carried out. He prepared for that day by building up a second body, the so-called Black Police or Schutz-Staffeln. This body was composed of Junkers and ex-army officers, men who could be relied upon to head off the half-radical demands of the masses of storm-troopers. As far back as January, 1934, Goering began a systematic disarming of the storm-troops, while advising the Fuehrer to get rid of that lumbering and eventually uncontrollable mass of followers, who some day might force him to carry through reforms.

It was no secret any longer that the storm-troops were growing restless as a result of the constant postponements in the carrying into effect of the Nazi political program. They were not in revolt against Hitler, but they feared that Hitler was being influenced by Goering and was following Goering's advice. The chiefs who were in immediate touch with the troops, informed Hitler of the growing restlessness. And the Fuehrer knew that the hour had come to choose between his followers and the Junkers. In Venice, the Fuehrer consulted Mussolini. The Duce advised to act when two tendencies became manifest in the Fascist party.

In the meantime some of the Nazi chiefs had decided to ask the Fuehrer to get rid of Goering and form a new cabinet. Hitler had in principle agreed to this, as the letter to Gregor Strasser shows. Strasser was to take Goering's place upon Hitler's invitation. But there was no plot. There was simply a fast growing conviction on the part of the storm-troopers against Goering that he was on the side of the reaction.

Hitler's Bravery a Fairy-Tale

Returned to Germany from taly, Hitler gave Goering carte-blanche. The batch of murders of the first week of July was the result. "So little was Capt Roehm engaged in plotting that he was in bed," Strasser told me. "Roehm was not a politician. He was a soldier. He merely wrote the Fuehrer a letter a week before his death, saying: "The troops are loyal to you, as we all are, don't listen to Goering. Without your troops you will be at his mercy." This prediction has come true."

From a Munich official, escaped to Zurich, I heard the circumstances of the arrest and execution of Roehm. Hitler, accompanied by 40 members of Goering's police, entered the villa at Wiesse, where the Bavarian chiefs were stopping over the week-end. Roehm was aroused from sleep, but he never saw Hitler. The Fuehrer had left immediately after he had ascertained the identity of the persons present. The story of Hitler's personal bravery in facing the plotters in their own den, is a fairy-tale, invented after the events. Roehm, as a matter of fact, demanded to be brought face to face with Hitler. He refused to believe that Hitler had been in the house a fw minutes previously. "I have no accounts to give to Goering's men," he said. "I am responsible to the Fuehrer alone." So Goering's men shot him quickly. Doctor Goebbels remained close to Hitler all through that day and the next few days. For Doctor Goebbels knew that Goering was also gunning for him."

At the cadet school in Berlin the Black Hussars executed till they broke down in tears. They were only boys. To have refused would have meant court-martial. One of the cadets told on Austrian newspaper correspondent: "We knew we were killing innocent men." The day after he spoke these words, the little cadet was found dead in a ditch near Wilhelmsdorf, a suburb of Berlin; five bullet wounds in his head.

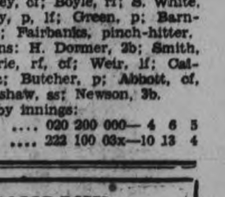
Chemong Sailing Club Notes



Ralph Clark and Doug. Kelly scored a victory over Lynn Scott and F. C. Ferrier in one of the closest finishes of the season as the Peterborough Sailing and Aquatic Club continued its dinghy racing series at Chemong Lake yesterday. The winners enjoyed only a two-second advantage.

Five craft covered the six-mile course. A good breeze prevailed and the sailing was brisk. The Clark and Scott dinghies opened up their lead only after a four-mile battle with the rest of the field.

Jim Weddell piloted a dinghy over the finish line to win handily a junior race staged also yesterday. He nosed out Doug McPherson in securing the win. Five boats competed in the event.

Belleville Team Falls To Brintons

With Charlie Butcher doing the hurling, Brintons easily polished off Belleville Alemites to the tune of 10-4 on Saturday night at Central. They jumped into an early lead in the first frame and after that were never headed, winning very handily. The winners went to work on Rigby, starting pitcher for the Alemites, and drove him out in the third, and continuing their assault on Sonny Green of baseball fame till they succeeded in driving him to the showers in the seventh. Barnhardt, who replaced him, finished the contest.

The Brintons hit well as a team led by Ross Currie who had a perfect night at bat, having four out of four, three singles and a triple, followed closely by Pat Calladine with a triple and a single out of three tries. For the losers, Flagler with two out of three, and Halsey with two out of four were the only one who could fathom Butcher's delivery successfully.

Many errors crept into the contest, the fielding of both sides being rather loose, accounting for several unearned runs by each of the teams.

Brintons: H. Dormer, 2b; Smith, 1b; Currie, rf, cf; Weir, lf; Calladine, c; Butcher, p; Abbott, cf, rf; Bradshaw, ss; Newson, 3b.

Score by innings:

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK . . . By R. J. Scott

American Tourist Is Drowned In Whetstone Lake

FIRST 'PHONE WAS CONCEIVED 60 YEARS AGO

1934 Marks Diamond Jubilee of Great Canadian Invention.

VITAL NECESSITY

Brantford is Birthplace of the Instrument Designed by Dr. Bell.

(By Central Press Canadian).

BRANTFORD, Ont., July 23—The year 1934, with its wealth of anniversaries and jubilees, numbers among its many, the diamond jubilee of one of the greatest inventions the world has ever known the telephone.

To a Canadian, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, goes the honor of this tremendous achievement. And to Canada, to Brantford, Ontario, goes the honor of being the birthplace of an instrument destined to play a major role in the advancement of man's civilization.

To estimate the value of Dr. Bell's contribution to mankind, one has only to imagine a world withcut a telephone; it is almost as vital in our daily lives as electricity and steam.

Many times the claim has been made that the telephone was invented by Dr. Bell in the United States. To refute this, there is no less authority than the inventor himself, who declared that "the telephone was invented at Tutela Heights, Brantford, in the summer of 1874." At the same time, Dr. Bell gives due credit to Boston, where some of his early work was done.

It was on Aug. 10, 1876, that the first transmission of speech over a real line was ever made. That was between Brantford and Paris, Ont. The invention, however, was conceived in 1874, on the 26th of July. It was then that Dr. Bell perfected the undulating electrical current which is the basis of the whole telephone system.

Thus this month marks the sixtieth anniversary, the diamond jubilee of the birth of the telephone. Its inventor died just 12 years ago, on August 2, 1922, at his residence, "Bienn Breagh," near Baddeck, Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia.

Since that first "long-distance" call from Brantford to Paris, when Dr. Bell heard the words, "To be or not to be," and a cough, telephone communication can be made from private residences to any part of the world—indeed, these distant communications have been written into the history of nations.

Brantford can be rightfully proud that one of her citizens, through his genius, contributed to the world an instrument of tremendous magnitude—an invention that diverted the course of history.

1934 Marks Diamond Jubilee Of Great Invention

The first telephone was invented in Brantford, Ontario, by Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, just sixty years ago. Thus, among its many anniversaries, the year 1934 also marks the Diamond Jubilee of one of the greatest forces for the advancement of man's civilization. To Canada goes the honor of having produced the genius and the instrument. The layout shows Dr. Alexander Graham Bell as he appeared in 1874 when the first telephone was conceived. At LEFT is shown one of the earliest telephones and one of the most modern.

OUTLAW FALLS TO POLICE GUNS

clanged as a patrol wagon, an ambulance and a number of police squad cars raced up. Mrs. Etta Natalsky and Miss Theresa Paulus, both wounded in the leg, were carried to the ambulance. Dillinger, still breathing, was placed in the patrol car.

Automobilists and pedestrians, attracted by the furore, swarmed up by hundreds. Burly policemen opened narrow avenues through the throngs and the snarled traffic to get the injured to the nearest infirmaries.

The vehicle transporting the wounded Dillinger made for the Alexian Brothers' Hospital. He died without word or motion, before medical aid could be administered, at a street crossing en route to the hospital.

The body was rested on the green lawn of the hospital. Four government operatives stood guard. A deputy coroner arrived, and the dead outlaw was borne to the county morgue. Stripped, cold and colorless as marble, the body was put on a slab. A small group gathered. A surgeon spoke. The slug which ended an amazing crime career had struck in the neck and coursed up to emerge beneath the right eye. The others had pierced the left breast, one cleaving the tip of the heart, the third striking two inches further down.

One federal man, Purvis said, had fired the five shots. He declined to reveal his identity.

Officials searched through the clothing. In one of Dillinger's pockets—into which the lion's share of the thousands of loot he and his brigands had gathered in daring raids was reputed to have gone—was found just $7.80. The back of his watch contained the picture of alluring Evelyn Frechette an Indian girl who obviously ranked first among the desperado's many women friends.

The coup which brought about Dillinger's end was executed without a flaw. Commendation poured in even during the post-midnight hours. "Gratifying as well as reassuring," Attorney General Homer S. Cummings declared at Washington.

Department of Justice agents had known for several days that Dillinger was on the north side. Purvis learned he planned to attend the Biograph Theatre. He selected 15 crack shots—by a grim coincidence one for each victim of murders attributed to the Dillinger marauders. The source of the information was unrevealed.

His Last Show

They arrived in time to watch him purchase a ticket and go in to see "Manhattan Melodrama." It was a gunman's holiday for number one gunman. The film concerned a mythical "Blackie Gallagher" a New York gangster who carried his murder missions even into Madison Square Garden.

Captain Tim O'Neall of the East Chicago, Indiana, police department who participated in a gun battle against Dillinger and John Hamilton during an attempted bank robbery there last January, also brought four of his men to the showhouse. The slaying of Sergean William O'Malley in that East Chicago skirmish furnished the only swelled force. The federal men were assigned to stations and assumed the nonchalant airs of so many idlers.

Official Report

Purvis gave this official version:

"I made arrangements to surround the theatre with picked men from among my investigators. They were armed only with pistols. No shotguns or machine guns were issued for I wished no general firing that might endanger passers-by.

"I stationed myself in my own automobile, parked two doors south of the theatre. My men were stationed in doorways. It was shortly before 9 o'clock when I first noticed Dillinger. He was coatless, but wore a hat and gold-rimmed spectacles. He had passed my car before I saw him but I have studied every available photograph of him so carefully that I recognized the back of his head immediately.

"As he bought a ticket, I got a profile and front view of him and I knew I was not mistaken. I went into the theatre twice in an attempt to spot Dillinger but it was so dark I couldn't pick him out. Those two hours and four minutes that he spent in the theatre were the longest I ever spent.

"By the time he left the show, my men were covering the neighborhood so thoroughly that a cat couldn't have gotten through.

"When Dillinger left the show, he started south and again passed my car. I thrust my right arm out and dropped my hand and closed it, the preparranged signal for closing in. Instantly my men appeared from all sides.

The Outlaw's Last Move.

"Dillinger gave one hunted look about him and attempted to run up an alley, where several of my men were waiting. As he ran, he drew an automatic pistol. As his hand came up with the gun, several shots were fired by my men before he could fire. He dropped, fatally wounded. I had hoped to take him alive, but I was afraid that he would resist to the last.

"I'm glad it's over."

Dangerous John swasbuckled out, the real shots still ringing in his ears, to be met with a hail of real bullets.

The $10,000 placed on Dillinger's head by the Government and the $5,000 offered by the State of Indiana cannot be accepted by the Federal men, Purvis said. He added that he doubted any of the Indiana patrolmen would share in the rewards either.

John Dillinger was 32. For 21 of those years, passed uneventfully in boyhood pursuits and in prison, he was a virtual nonentity. In the 14 blazing months since his parole from the Indiana penitentiary, he became one of the most widely known of all the world's outlaws.

For the past several years rumors have gained currency that the Canadian National Exhibition is to be extended to three weeks. The matter has not been discussed by the directors who are content to carry on for fourteen days and nights as usual from August 24th to Sept. 8th exclusive of Sundays.

FOUR DIE IN FIRE

to get within fighting distance of the flames. Sherwood and his wife were carried to base hospital and after being given first aid were rushed to Royal Victoria Hospital at Barrie.

The mother was dazed but still conscious when admitted. But she sank rapidly and died early in the afternoon. In another ward the father was suffering intensely and physicians attempted to sooth him with opiates. He was unaware of his wife's death.

Absence of the fire in the bungalow stove made origin of the blaze all the more puzzling. Corporal TomSherwood, brother of the sergeant, said he had been to the bungalow for a visit but said he could not recall smoking there. There was nothing found to indicate cause of the flames.

SKIFF UPSETS CLEVELAND MAN LOST HIS LIFE

Albinus C. Myers, 52, Drowned in Whetstone Lake, Hastings County.

HAD LOST LUNCH.

Three Companions Are Able to Swim to Shore—Body Recovered.

HAVELOCK, July 23 (Examiner Correspondence). — Albinus C. Myers, 52-year-old traffic manager of the American Fork and Hoe Company of Cleveland, Ohio, was the victim of a drowning fatality when a skiff upset on Whetstone Lake on Saturday morning as Myers was attempting to recover a package of lunch which had fallen overboard.

Together with Frank C. Miller, Carl M. Patch, and Alfred W. Mahany the unfortunate man set out in a light skiff from Dan Wood's camp at Tongamond Lake early on Saturday morning. The party had only arrived in the district the day previously. Shortly before eleven o'clock in the forenoon the skiff was out on Whetstone Lake in Lake Township. In some manner the parcel containing the combined lunches of the party fell into the water. Myers, in attempting to recover the package, overbalanced. Miller, a brother-in-law of the victim, attempted to steady his companion, but the boat upset.

With some difficulty, Miller, Patch and Mahany made their way to shore, and it was not until then that they noticed Myers was missing. Dragging operations were commenced and the body of Myers was recovered in 8 feet of water almost four hours later.

Dr. J. Holdcroft of Havelock referred investigation of the fatality to Coroner Dr. Alger, due to the fact that the drowning occurred in Hastings County. A verdict of accidental death was recorded.

The body of Myers was removed to Curtis Undertaking Parlor at Havelock, prior to forwarding to Cleveland, where interment is to be made.

Hamilton Jewelry Shop Window Looted

HAMILTON, July 23. (CP). — Three men in a dark blue car drew up in front of Wodehouse's jewelry store, early to-day, leaped out and hurled a brick through the big plate glass window. Grabbing several rings, they sped away into the darkness of the early morning.

The theft was witnessed by two children, Johnny and May Wheeler, who live in an apartment over the building across the road and peered out when they heard the crash of breaking glass. The car sped away without the number being taken. An immediate alarm was turned in to police, but they were unable to trace the motor bandits.

French visitors in England have doubled in number in the last 12 months.

WET, DRY AREAS DOT PROVINCE UPON FIRST DAY

"Authorities" to Sell Fail to Reach Hotels or Other Purveyors in Some Cities.

10 CENTS A GLASS.

First Woman Shows Up at Hotel Victoria, Toronto—Blushes, Refuses Name.

Wet and dry areas dotted Ontario today when legal sale of beer and wine by the glass was begun. "Authorities" to sell had not reached hotels or other legal purveyors in some cities. In general, sale was under way in the afternoon or there were prospects of opening by evening.

There was no concerted rush or lineup to greet the opening. In some places when sale started beverage rooms soon filled, but the advent of beer and wine by the glass provoked little excitement.

The only difference to the average citizen was he could drop into a hotel dining or beverage room or into his club and order by the glass, instead of drinking in his home. Regulations dealing with hard liquors were not changed and purchases of these continued through government stores.

In Toronto the Hotel Victoria, in the downtown business area, opened promptly at 10 o'clock, the official opening hour. The beverage room was soon filled and seats at all tables were taken. The novelty of buying openly was the main topic of conversation.

As the first orders at the Victoria were carried by waiters to the tables no one knew who held the distinction of having the first glass. Shortly before noon the first woman customer entered, accompanied by a

4 Machine Gunners Loot Kansas Bank

OXFORD, Kas., July 24.—(AP)—Four machine gunners robbed the Oxford Bank here today of an estimated $5,000 cash and fled with five hostages after shooting up the town.

Marion Carson, manager of a lumber company and patron of the bank, and one of the bandits were wounded by vigilantes' shotgun fire.

Carson, shot in the shoulder, was not believed to be seriously wounded. The bandit was shot in the cheek and was bleeding profusely, witnesses said, as the bandit car sped out of town.

Harold Littrell, 18, was shot in the abdomen by the bandits as they raked the street with machine gun fire in their flight.

All the hostages were released a short time after the robbery. Ted Donley, assistant cashier, was the last to be released. He was thrown out unharmed 12 miles west of Arkansas City.

HIS EXCUSE

The class had been dismissed, but young Freddie, who had neglected to do his homework, had been told to remain behind.

"Well, Smith," said teacher sternly, "what excuse have you to offer for not doing your French lessons last night?"

Freddie looked very thoughtful. Suddenly his face lit up.

"To tell you the truth sir," he said confidingly, "my throat was so sore that I could hardly speak English."

Three Alleged Burglars Killed In Wild Chase

Speeding along a gravel road near Weston, Ontario, near Toronto, at more than 80 miles an hour, closely followed by two police cars, four alleged burglars struck a bump in their huge car, literally flew off the road into a telephone pole, splitting it like matchwood and ended up in a jumbled mass of wreckage in the ditch, three of their number dead, the other terribly injured. The layout shows the road down which the car travelled, with the wreckage strewn along the side of the road. Inset is the front of the car. Three of the four men were: Dominic Hill, Thos. Sheppard and Gordon Brennan, all of Weston. The fourth man is unidentified. Brennan alone escaped with his life.

HEPBURN, CROLL WILL NOT MEET HUNGER PARADE

Both Billed to Attend Inter-Provincial Conference at Ottawa Same Day.

ROEBUCK TO ACT.

Important Cabinet Meet on To-day Regarding Economy Drive.

TORONTO, July 24 — (CP) — When the hunger marching unemployed from various Ontario centers reach Toronto July 30 they will not see Premier Mitchell Hepburn. Neither will they meet Hon. David Croll, Minister of Welfare, who has charge of relief activities.

By a coincidence the hunger march is billed for the same day as the inter-provincial conference at Ottawa and both Mr. Hepburn andMr. Croll will be at the Federal capital along with Hon. Paul Leduc, Minister of Mines. The premier said it was unfortunate the two events fell on the same day but the rest of the cabinet would have to receive any representations the hunger marchers have to make. It is likely Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General and Minister of Labor, will be the senior minister present.

Pending the conference at Ottawa the Ontario government is making no definite plans with regard to unemployment relief. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett has called the meeting to discuss the continuance of joint federal and provincial relief activities but has made known the federal government's intention of withdrawing its contributions.

The new Ontario government will likely have some suggestions to lay before the conference but as yet they have not been agreed upon. Some members of the government are of the opinion some sore of permanent workable scheme should be adopted for handling relief.

An important cabinet meeting is being held today and further announcements in connection with the government's economy drive and the re-organization of the pubic service are expected.

CHECKING WAGES.

SANDWICH, Ont., July 24.—(C. P.)—While Sandwich town council is agreeable to increased prices being charged by cleaners and dyers and has passed a by-law setting higher rates, the council also wants to be sure employees reap some of the benefit.

The Mayor has been authorized to name officials who would have authority to inspect payrolls and books and if wages were considered unfair a report would be made to proper officials to have minimum wage laws strictly enforced.

Air Raids

LONDON, July 24 (A.P.)—"Enemy" air raiders who swooped over London last night claimed to-day to have broken through the city's aerial defences to win a smashing victory.

The attackers reported they successfully bombed parts of the city, wrecked the air ministry and wrought havoc at docks and other key points.

Defenders, on the other hand, claimed to have taken a big toll of the invaders but the full result of the night's combats will not be known until an official report is made.

The mock raids, opposition parties charged, served as good propaganda for the government's bigger air force plans.

Noticed Desperado Saw Each New Film at Same Theatre —Always Wary.

CHICAGO, July 24. (AP).—The Chicago Herald and Examiner in a copyrighted story to-day said, quoting Capt. Timothy A. O'Neil of the East Chicago, Ind., police, who was at the scene of the shooting, was a Croatian informer, a former gambling acquaintance of Dillinger.

Capt. O'Neil's story was set out as follows:

"Six weeks ago this man, who has been living in Chicago for months, came to me and told me he had seen Dillinger. I informed him that if this were true he had an excellent chance of collecting the $20,000 reward money.

"This informant then told his story—that he had seen Dillinger in front of the Biograph Theatre.

"A few days later, the informant told me of seeing Dillinger at the Theatre again.

"Two days later I told Sergt. Martin Zarkovich of the Indiana Harbor police, comrade of the policeman Dillinger shot down in an Indiana Harbor bank robbery more than six months ago.

"On July 16, Zarkovich sat in front of the theatre in a car and saw Dillinger go into the theatre. Next day, when the program changed again, he came back once more.

Saw Each New Film.

"Zarkovich had observed that Dillinger was a regular attendant at that particular theatre, making

Slaght, Royal Commission counsel in the investigation into the Ontario Hydro Commission's acquisition of Ontario Power Service Corporation assets sought today to ascertain from J. R. Cooke, former Hydro chairman, whether the deal between the company and the Hydro Commission "was swallowed whole because the premier asked for it."

Mr. Slaght took this line in his examination of Mr. Cooke after the latter had said he did not know if the government had sought to obtain in a bond exchange by which the deal was effected a ratio better than $100 worth of O.P.S.C. bonds for $90 worth of Hydro debentures.

The former Hydro chairman, however, was unable to say if any lower figure had said the ratio fixed was the lowest figure to which the O.P.S.C. bondholders would consent.

Mr. Slaght also sought to learn what steps members of the Hydro Commission had taken to decide on the desirability of the deal as finally concluded. Mr. Cooke told him that he, personally, had advised himself in the matter and that he had reached the conclusion "it was certainly in the interests of the province to purchase" the $20,000,000 worth of O.P.S.C. bonds it obtained in exchange for $18,020,000 worth of its own debentures.

Seeks More Room.

W. N. Tilley, K.C., appeared today as counsel for members of the late government and asked for a little elbow room at the counsel table which he said was not being "willingly conceded."

"I have a seat," he said, "but no room to make notes. I don't see why I should have to mention this."

"Could not room be made for Mr. Tilley?" asked Chief Justice F. H. Latchford, Commissioner. Mr. Slaght and other lawyers shuffled along the bench and Mr. Tilley was satisfied.

Mr. Cooke said he had been a

'PEG POLICEMAN SHOT BY BANDIT

Officer Mowed Down on Cornering Thug's Car Following Chase.

GUNMAN IS CAPTURED.

WINNIPEG, July 24. (CP)—Police Sergeant J. Verne was shot three times and critically wounded and a man giving his name as George Casey, of Vancouver, is under arrest, following an automobile chase through the business district of Winnipeg to-day.

Sergeant John Verne, a veteran member of St. Boniface police force, is now in St. Boniface Hospital, which reported his condition was critical. The full extent of his wounds has not yet been determined.

Police say that Casey confessed to the robbing of five drug stores in Winnipeg during the past few weeks. This morning a bandit entered the Norrbridge drug store, in Borwood suburb, held up the proprietor and two clerks, tied them to chairs and took what money and narcotics he could find.

As the robber left the store a passerby became suspicious and pointed him out to Sergeant Verne. By this time the man had entered an automobile, and Sergeant Verne leaped into a car and took up the case which led down Main street in Winnipeg, to the Canadian National yards. Both cars stopped and as Verne was stepping out, the robber fired three times at the officer, all shots lodging in his abdomen.

Spectators quickly notified police headquarters and heavy forces were sent to the area. Finally Casey was picked up in the yards.

Strong Suspicion Of Foul Play Is Held By Officials

Lifeless Body Of Robert Meharry, Middle-Aged Widower, Found On Gordon Avenue, At Westerly Limits Of The City, By Milkman.

Trail Of Blood Leading In Southerly Direction From Point Where The Body Was Found Down The Elm Street Extension.

While a motive for murder would appear to be lacking there is strong suspicion that Robert Meharry, middle-aged widower whose lifeless body was discovered on Gordon avenue at the westerly limits of the city early this morning met death through foul play.

He had a fracture at the base of the skull, a deep incision on the left upper lip and a light bruise over the right temple. The body still warm was found lying diagonally across the cement sidewalk on the west side of the lonely avenue weltering in a large pool of blood.

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall in charge of investigations into the mystery declined to make any definite statement on the affair. He was believed by The Examiner to be working on the theory that Meharry was struck down by some unknown assailant having uncovered what he suspected to be a trail of blood leading in a south westerly direction from the point where the body of the dead man was found down the Elm street extension.

Crowds of curious onlookers gathered in the vicinity where the body was found including a number of school boys whose aid was enlisted by police in seeking to trace the trail believed left by the unknown assailant.

Found the Body

Jack Stewart, milk delivery man for Sunshine Dairy completing his rounds at 6.30 o'clock this morning was one of the first to discover the dead body of Meharry as it lay sprawled across the cement sidewalk.

"I was driving my rig south on Gordon avenue and was about to turn east on Elm street", Stewart told The Examiner, "when my horse snorted in alarm. I saw a body on the sidewalk a few yards distant

BEER ON SALE EMPRESS HOTEL

Five Other Hotels Are Still Waiting for Their Licenses.

NO EXCITEMENT.

While five other hotels awaited the afternoon delivery of mail in hopes that licenses would be received in time to get operations under way to-day, the Empress Hotel sold the first beer and wine in the city under the new relaxed regulations shortly before 12.30 noon. Only a handful of unexcited customers, more curious than thirsty, were on hand for the occasion.

The Empress was the only hotel which received the expected licenses in the morning mail. Each of the other hotels with the exception of the White House filed applications promptly last Friday but, up until noon, had received no authorities. Gus White, proprietor of the White House states that he may seek a beverage room license for beer in the near future but, for the present, will observe how the arrangements work out in other hotels.

Apparently the three licenses received by the Empress were among the first issued by the Liquor Commission. The serial number of the beverage room license for beer was "17" while the dining room, tea room and guest room licenses for beer and wine were numbered "23" and "27."

Although there was no suggestion of excitement or any concerted rush on the hote's this morning, considerable numbers of men commenced trouping into the various hotel beverage rooms as soon as 10 o'clock sounded. At that time they were to be disappointed not only in the hotels which had no licenses but also at the Empress. The management of the Empress found it necessary to await the arrival of a formal order book before securing their first load of beer and wine from the brewery warehouse and the Liquor Control store. The book arrived at the Post Office shortly before 12 o'clock noon and within a few minutes beer was made available.

For the first couple of hours, beer was sold only by the bottle at the Empress. Draught facilities for sale by the glass was put into operation later in the afternoon. Prices charged were 10 cents for an eight-ounce glass, 20 for a pint bottle and 35 cents for the quart bottle. Unofficially, it was learned that the brewery warehouse is charging the hotels $2.35 for a 12-quart case, with provision for a 35-cent bottle refund. Keg prices have not yet been revealed.

TOO INQUISITIVE.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 24. —(C.P.)— Because City Constable Harry Foster was a "doubting Thomas," Max Minajlovit, St. Catharines, paid $10 in court on a consuming charge. "What's in that parcel?" he asked Max, as the latter strolled along the street. "Cakes," answered Max, hugging it. The oficer opened the parcel. Out fell a bottle of alcohol and some meat skewers.

Object To Cancelling Second Year Normal

WINDSOR, Ont., July 23 (CP)—A resolution protesting against the cancellation of the second year Normal School course for Ontario teachers was being forwarded today to Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn and Hon. Dr. J. L. Simpson, Ontario Minister of Education, from the Public School boards of East Windsor, Riverside and Sandwich East.

The resolution, adopted last night at a meeting of representatives of the three boards, was:

"The East Windsor, Sandwich East and Riverside Public School boards protest against the proposal to disregard the second year Normal School course, believing it essential to the welfare of the children of Ontario. We also believe the contemplated action on the part of the government would be grossly unfair to teachers who have already taken the second year course."

Relief Distribution Changes Are Coming in Ontario

140 EMPLOYEES ONTARIO BRANCH WILL BE LET GO

Only Man Who Handled Dionne Quintuplets Case to be Retained.

OTHERS DAY-DAY BASIS.

Croll Claims Majority Were Political Appointments—Did Little Inspecting.

TORONTO, July 24.— (C P) —Letters have been sent to 140 employes of the Ontario Relief Department advising them their appointments to the service will not be renewed next week, Hon. David Croll, Minister of Welfare, announced last night. The only person in the branch who was not so advised was James McCluskey, who handled the case of the Dionne quintuplets for the Department and in the Minister's opinion "did a wonderfully good job."

The main body of those removed from the permanent employees list it was intimated, will be subjected to close departmental scrutiny and inefficient ones weeded out. Meanwhile the 140 employes will be retained on a day-to-day basis.

Mr. Croll said the 140 were "mostly political appointments, filling jobs that need never have been created. There were inspectors who didn't inspect but instead spread Conservative political propaganda throughout the province."

The minister said there was "going to be a drastic change in the method of distributing relief in Ontario." He would be able to speak with more authority after returning from the Dominion-Provincial conference in Ottawa but changes made would be to the advantage of the municipalities and the unemployed of the province.

1200 SOCIALISTS HELD IN VIENNA

Believed United With Reds, Nazis in Plot Against Government.

WAVE TERROR PLANNED.

VIENNA, July 24 (A.P.).—Twelve hundred Socialists were arrested today in connection with an alleged plot to overthrow the Dollfuss Government. It was the biggest roundup of political prisoners since the bloody February civil war.

Political police were picking up threads of evidence which they said indicated Socialists, Communists and Nazis had verged into a common front for a huge campaign of terror against the Fascist Government.

Prisoners were herded into a former coach building plant.

Police were uncommunicative, but a Government spokesman explained most of the arrests were merely "preventative," pending a search of suspects' homes for explosives and incriminating documents.

Those against whom connection with the plot cannot be established "will be released within a few days," he said.

LINER REFLOATED.

THORSHAVN, Faroe Islands, July 24 (A.P.). — The German liner Monte Rosa grounded overnight on a submerged rock off Stroemoe Island with 1,300 passengers aboard, was refloated to-day after an earlier attempt had failed.

Divers began an examination of the extent of the damage to the vessel before it proceeded to Iceland on an excursion tour.

Woman Aged 101 Dies In Sebringville

MARMORA, July 24.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— Mrs. Valentine Litt passed away on Sunday at Sebringville in the 101st year of her age. On the occasion of her hundredth birthday last September she was wonderfully bright and well. She was only taken ill two weeks ago.

She is survived by two sons and two daughters, Frank, Sebringville; William, Marmora; Mrs. (Rev.) W. J. Yaeger, St. Jacobs; and Mrs. C. W. Kruspe, Stratford. The funeral took place on Tuesday.

SWEEPING WIND DELAYS FLIGHT

Reid and Ayling Forced to Delay Bagdad Hop Another Day.

"Trail of Caribou" Ready.

WASAGA BEACH, Ont., July 23. (CP).—Held up by sweeping cross-winds, Leonard Reid and J. R. Ayling to-day postponed their projected flight to Bagdad until tomorrow morning.

The cross-wind sweeping along the sandy takeoff stretch of the shores of Nottawasaga Bay, swept their ship, "The Trail of The Caribou" grounded with its heavy load of 600 gallons of gasoline.

With a bright sun rising high in the sky and air temperatures increasing, it was believed useless to wait until later in the day because increasing heat would cause expansion of the gasoline.

The fliers said they would be ready to hop off on the 6,300 mile non-stop flight at dawn to-morrow.

The plane was flown here last night from Toronto. Ayling and Reid retired to a quiet cottage.

The takeoff was scheduled from a mile stretch of the beach at the same place Jimmy Mollison and his wife Amy Johnson, failed in a takeoff for a trans-Atlantic crossing last year in the same plane, then named Seafarer II.

Weather conditions early to-day, said Lee Murray, general manager of the De Havilland Aircraft Company, showed poor visibility over a section of the Atlantic route, but the fliers were prepared to hop off until the cross-wind forced a change in their plans.

The fliers have planned to follow the great circle route in an attempt to break the long distance, non-stop record. Both are expert at blind flying.

Reid was born in Newfoundland and lived in Montreal for some years before coming to Toronto. Ayling is a former Royal Air Force flier and has seen service at Straits settlements.

Changes have been made in the ship since it was used by the Mollisons in an effort to derive greater power from the twin motors.

BEER AND WINE ARE PUT ON SALE IN HOTELS TODAY

Appear on Tables in Public First Time Since Advent of Prohibition in 1917.

LICENSES SENT OUT.

Price of Beer Given Second 10 Cent Cut—Less for "Empties."

TORONTO, July 24. (CP)—Beers and wines made their appearance on tables in public throughout Ontario today for the first time since advent of prohibition law in 1917. The new law providing for freer sale of the milder intoxicants came into effect and hotels generally were prepared for sale in their beverage and dining rooms. In certain clubs, trains and boats the beverages also will be served.

Any hotel, able to obtain its "authority" by today, was permitted to serve beer and wine with meals, or beer in the rooms designated for that purpose only.

Preparation of sale has been underway for nearly two weeks, since proclamation of the new regulations Hundreds of applications for permits to sell were received by the government, and licenses are being granted as fast as the applications can be considered.

Restaurants will not be permitted to sell, nor will tourist camps, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn decided after consideration of the matter with his cabinet. The government has indicated every precaution will be taken to prevent abuse of the privilege, provided for by amendment to the Liquor Control Act brought into force in 1927.

Illegal In Public

Under the L.C.A. regulations hard liquors, beer and wine could be purchased from government stores and brewers' warehouses. Open drinking was not permitted. The regulations still make it illegal to consume hard liquor in public, but it was intimated the license to purchase might be reduced from $2.00 to $1.00 the price now charged for permits that allow only purchase of beer and wines.

For the second time since the new regulations were proclaimed price of beer was cut, effective today, in an announcement yesterday. The second 10-cent reduction puts the price of most beers for one dozen quarts at $2.70, with some brands a little higher. A half dozen quarts will cost $1.35, and pints by the dozen are reduced in proportion. A slight reduction in the value of returned "empties" will be made at the end of this month, officials said.

The new law was passed during the last session of the legislature under the Conservative government of former Premier George S. Henry, and was proclaimed by Premier Hepburn after his first cabinet meeting.

DILLINGER DIED WAY HE WISHED

So Desperado's Aged Father Believes—Says Son Not Bad All Through.

READY TO CLAIM BODY

MOORESVILLE, Ind., July 24. — (A.P.).—John Dillinger, Sr., believes that his son died the way he wanted to die.

"I suspect John would rather it had been that way," said the 70-year-old father of the slain desperado.

"He never told me so, but they laid so many things on him that I guess he rather would have been shot down than arrested again.

"The last time I saw Johnnie was on April 8. I haven't heard from him for weeks but I have been worrying about him a good deal lately. I thought this had to come and I have been expecting it any time.

"You know, I can't think John was bad all the way through. There were lots of things they said he did that I don't think he could have done.

"John was here and I talked to him two days after that East Chicago robbery. He came here in the night and we talked for about 20 minutes or a half hour. John said he had just got back from Florida then, and I believed him. It's strange, isn't it, but I can't believe that he was in that robbery and you know the killing of that policeman was the only charge of murder anyone ever made against John.

"I hope that John had enough money on him to pay his funeral expenses and, that it can be used for that purpose. If he didn't it will be an awful burden, but I'll do the best I can for him.

"I'll go to Chicago after his body when the coroner will release it and we'll try to bury him quietly."

Three Firemen Die When Oil Barge Burns

Three men dead, and twelve injured was the toll taken as an oil tanker exploded in Toronto harbor. DOUMERGUE HURRIES HOME.

PARIS, July 24 (C.P.). — Political storm clouds, threatening to plunge France again into factional gloom, brought Premier Gaston Doumergue hurriedly back to-day from a vacation to try to steady the keel of the "Peace Cabinet."

WOMAN IN RED SAID BETRAYER OF DILLINGER

Believed After $15,000 Reward After Killer's Hush Money Ran Out.

CROWDS JAM MORGUE.

CHICAGO, July 24 (A.P.).—Gold lured John Dillinger on his career of crime and gold lured him to his death.

Officers found $7.70 in his pockets, after his body, punctured with bullets, had been picked up in an alley near a north side theatre on Sunday night. Dillinger, private investigators concluded, was broke, or unable to reach any hidden bank robbery loot, and therefore could no longer pay to keep closed the lines of communication to the authorities.

Alive, Dillinger wasn't worth much in dollars. Dead, there was a price tag of $15,000 on his head. And that, the investigators concluded, is why someone "put him on the spot." Who it was, is a secret.

There were reports that a woman, dressed in red, was beside the desperado when the Federal agents pumped their deadly bullets into his body, and that it was she who lured him to his end. The same reports said the woman now is hidden away in a hotel, closely guarded by Federal agents.

"I won't discuss it," said Melvin Purvis, chief of the Federal agents who laid in wait for Dillinger at the theatre.

"Probably," said Purvis, "the persons who gave the tip will never be known."

Informant Known.

There was every indication, however, that Federal officials knew who supplied the information that ended the Indiana outlaw. Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings, who stopped in Chicago last night briefly while en route to Hawaii, said he knew who furnished the tip, but that he would not direct pay-

COMEDY DRAMA

YOUNG'S POINT, July 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Young People of the Selwyn United Church presented their play, "The Colonel's Maid," on Thursday evening, July 19, at the Lakeview House in aid of St. Aidan's Anglican Church. This play is a comedy in four acts and all members of the cast enacted their parts exceedingly well. The time was the present, and costumes were modern. The cast of characters is as follows:

Colonel Robert Rudd, a widower of North Carolina; very hot-headed and antagonistic, taken by Jack Burnell; Colonel Richard Byrd, a widower of South Carolina, and very strong enemy of Colonel Rudd, Roy Tully; Marjorie Byrd, daughter of Colonel Richard Byrd, Gladys McIlmoyle; Bob Rudd, son of Colonel Robert Rudd, Harold McIlmoyle; Mrs. J. John Carroll, a widow and Colonel Rudd's sister-in-law, Mae Elliott, Julia Carroll, her daughter, Elda Sanderson; Ned Graydon, a young gentleman of exceedingly faulty memory, George McIlmoyle; Mr. James Baskom, Colonel Robert Rudd's lawyer, Clayton Fitzgerald; Ching-ah-Ling, the Chinese cook, a bit impertinent, but by far the most important individual in the cast, played by Morley Nixon.

Rev. C. C. Miller directed the cast, assisted by Miss Edith McIlmoyle.

Invention Prevents Gasoline Explosions

WINNIPEG, July 24. —(CP)— A small wire cylinder attached to a gasoline container that will prevent an explosion when the gasoline catches fire was demonstrated here today by Henry Horn, young inventor of this city. The attachment consists of a core of fine wire mesh placed inside the container. A soft solder plug acts as an emergency valve on the same principle as that employed in a fire sprinkler system.

Mr. Horn tested his invention on a corner lot before a group of curious newspapermen. After thoroughly soaking the ground with gasoline he applied a match to it and then placed a gallon tank of gasoline in the centre of the flames.

The gas vapor outside the tank burned and the gasoline inside boiled but no explosion occurred. The test was repeated several times with the same result. The attachment can be installed on any size container and fitted to any type of vehicle. Aviators, members of the local Fire Commission and officials of the military district were interested spectators.

4-NO TRUMPS.

The following pertinent question is asked by a reader of the Minneapolis Daily Star: "Please advise me what the opening bid should be with the following hand? We had a part score of 80, not vulnerable. The other side was not vulnerable."

S—A K D—A Q
H—A K 9 C—A K Q J 8 7

The above hand is so powerful that score does not matter. There are about three chances in four that the holder will win six club tricks. He is certain of four tricks in spades and hearts and one positive trick in diamonds. With each suit stopped twice against an opening lead the hand must be counted as worth a minimum of ten definite tricks, or 4-odd at no trumps, which is more desirable than clubs, on account of the 150 honor points and the higher game value of tricks.

In 1927, Milton Leonard Coleman, one of our finest players, suggested to me that such hands be utilized for opening bids of 4-no trumps, allowing partner to raise once for each king he held. Suppose the hand to be as shown below:

S—A Q J D—A K Q J
H—A Q J C—A Q J

The hand is worth ten tricks. There are three kings missing. Partner may bid 7-no trumps in case he holds the three kings, 6-no trumps with two kings, 5-no trumps with one king, or pass if he lacks all three kings.

The Minneapolis hand lacks only one king, but its possession by partner will enable him to bid 5-no trumps. The original bidder will then bid 6-no trumps with assurance. A more reckless bidder would bid 7-no trumps under such circumstances, but my idea would be to stop at the small slam. While the odds are in favor of winning a grand slam, in case partner holds the missing king of diamonds, I see nosense in risking an almost certain small slam for a problematical grand slam.

Without a conventional 4-no trumps to insure safety, partner has the following chances to hold the king of diamonds and the queen of hearts: six in 57 to hold both, thus insuring a grand slam (provided clubs break); 26 chances in 57 to hold one or the other of those two missing honors; thus there are 32 chances in 57 for a small slam. As the small slam premium is the chief object sought, I would take a gamble on 6-clubs for an opening bid, rather than a 6-no trumps, as safer. But the best of all opening bids is the conventional 4-no trumps.

BE BEAUTIFUL

While paging through a book of folklore the other day, I happened upon a chapter regarding the amazing number of superstitions about fingernails. A good many European peasants, for instance, still cling to the belief that a child's nails should not be cut until the tot is a year old. They believe that if the nails are cut before that age, the child may become a thief. And some of the peasant mothers even cut their children's nails over the family Bible, to make sure that they'll grow up honest!

Today, of course, the average American lass bases her nail care on scientific facts, rather than on superstitions. She gleans advice on proper nail care from reliable newspapers and magazines. And she tries her best to keep her nails always perfectly groomed.

However, despite the good sense the average lass employs in regard to her nails, few girls seem to realize that the nails require extra care during the summertime. The nails need protection from the summer elements as well as the skin, eyes and hair. And while it may seem odd that those horny finger decorations should need protection, when women have used them as a means of self-protection for centuries, it's true just the same.

In the first place, hands usually are washed very frequently in hot, sticky weather. Such numerous ablutions extract oil from the fingertips. Frequent bathings in ocean or lake water extract more. And the hot rays of the sun remove their quota of oil, too. As a result, the nails become dry and brittle. They break, split and peel. And the hands become most unattractive in appearance.

The thing to do is to give the nails plenty of lubrication during the hot weather. Always, before going in swimming or after cleansing the hands, apply a bit of cold cream or olive oil to your fingertips. A good, heavy polish will also protect the nails somewhat. In addition, nightly applications of some good grease should be made. It's excellent to soak the fingertips in a warmed mixture of equal parts of lanolin and sweet almond oil for a bit each night. Then massage a little of the mixture into the base of each nail and permit it to remain on over night. This will prevent any drying or brittleness and will keep the nails soft and flexible.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Epsom Salts

Barbara: A mild solution of Epsom salts will indeed help to close enlarged pores. It may prove too drying for some skins, however, so you'll have to experiment a bit.

Legs.

Lenora: It is indeed possible to reduce ankles and calves. The method is too long to print here, but is fully described in my article on "Care of the Feet and Legs."

Measurements.

Shirley: If you let me know what your height and age are, I'll be glad to advise you about measurements. There are indeed liquid depilatories, and your physician should be able to recommend a good one.

Moles

Rosalie: It would be dangerous for you to attempt to remove moles yourself. Such work should only be done by a competent skin specialist.

ON A VISIT.

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 24.—(C.P.)—A doe, "Peggy," which escaped last January from Idlewild Park, couldn't resist the temptation to visit "home."

Park attaches saw "Peggy" near the cages, hobnobbing with the confined deer, but when they called her, she scampered off into the woods.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Picnic lunches without sandwiches are a change from the usual sort. The woman who dislikes making sandwiches can provide an equally delicious luncheon or supper without making any. The people who have bread stricken from their diet or partly eliminated will delight in these meals without the two-layer bread edibles. So often bread is too thick and filling too scanty in sandwiches and too much of the bread has to be eaten before the appetite can be satisfied. For all these persons the picnic meal minus sandwiches is recommended.

* * * * * * *

Into the luncheon basket goes a loaf of bread, a package of ice cold butter, slices of meat of one or more kinds, some stuffed eggs, potato salad or potato chips, pickles or olives, or both, some sort of dessert, fruit and a vacuum bottle of tea, coffee, lemonade or some ice water. After all there is nothing which quite takes the place of ice water on a hot day.

* * * * * * *

This is but a sample meal which can be varied to suit preferences, or to use up what the homemaker has in the house. Lobster salad or some other hearty salad can be substituted for the meat, and the potato salad be omitted. Or a tin or two of sardines, and some cans of deviled ham or other tinned meat may be sufficient. Or sometimes I have put in a roast chicken cut in pieces ready to serve when I wanted an especially good luncheon meal. The quantity of food must be sufficient for the hungry appetites, but it is a mistake to take much over what should satisfy, as left-over picnic food is not especially appetizing.

* * * * * * *

Take along a paper or linen tablecloth to spread on the ground, and some paper or enamel plates, or some old crockery ones, which should they be chipped, would not be a serious matter. Glasses or cups will be needed, and some plated silver, so that knives, forks, and spoons will be ready for each person. Someone cuts the bread if it is an unsliced loaf, and each person spreads his own with the butter. Food can be passed in picnic style, or each person's plate can be supplied before handing it out.

* * * * * * *

There is a delightful informality about such a meal and when it is over, there is the sense of having actually had a luncheon or supper or dinner whichever it may be, and not a makeshift picnic meal in the ordinary sense. It is easier to make use of the left-over of such a meal than a sandwich luncheon.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Two doctors got twelve people to volunteer to handle poison ivy or poison oak plants. Only two of the twelve developed any eruption. This appears to be the general proportion (1-6) of the population who are susceptible to poison ivy. It is almost the same proportion as this of the population who are susceptible to hay fever.

The people who are susceptible to poison ivy or poison oak usually learn the fact early in life, and they should take precautions on the principle that prevention is far more easy than cure.

We know a great deal about the characteristics of the poison of these plants. It is an oil, and extremely tenacious and sticky. It exerts its effects only after direct contact with the skin. The spread of the disease over the body, for instance, from hands to face, is accomplished only by touch. In other words, the film of oil is conveyed from one part of the body to the other only by touch, and not by circulation of the blood.

The first lesson for the poison ivy victim to learn is to recognize the plant, to keep the eyes open and be sure that no contact is made. The second lesson is, that if contact is made on the hand, that hand should touch no other part of the body. The third lesson is, that the poisonous oil can be removed by soap and water, alcohol, ether, benzine, or any substance which will dissolve oil, but that especial pains must be taken on account of the tenacious character of the poisin ivy resin.

Perhaps the best lesson is for the sensitive person to wear gloves on a vacation in the woods, and not to convey the hands to the face or any other part of the body until the gloves have been removed.

For treatment when the eruption has actually taken place, many remedies have been suggested, but probably 95 per cent. of them are worthless. The ones that get credit have been used in the last stage of the eruption, when it was about to stop spontaneously. Calomine lotion or zinc oxide lotion will allay the irritation, as will a 3 to 4 per cent. solution of phenol.

Knowledge of the enemy and its ways, and means to prevent its invasion, are, as in everything else in medicine, of paramount importance.

BATHERS NOW TAN WITHOUT BURNING

Noxzema Suntan Oil Screens Out Burning Ray of Sun.

Here's real sunburn protection for Canada. The Noxema Chemical Company, makers of Noxzema Cream, are now introducing Noxzema Suntan Oil to Canada.

This new Noxzema Suntan Oil contains a special ingredient that scientifically screens out the burning rays of the sun. It permits bathers to toast comfortably to a golden, healthy tan without painful burn.

It is possible to control the degree of tan. For a light tan, the Noxzema Suntan Oil is applied generously and frequently. For a rich, deeper tan, less Suntan Oil is used.

The Noxema Suntan Oil formula was tested at Atlantic City and other States Beaches. It was so successful that the Noxzema Chemical Company of Canada decided to manufacture and market it in the Dominion.

NEW STUDEBAKER PLACED ON MARKET

Cars Are Now Equipped With Power Brakes Heralding New Era.

Studebaker has greeted the midsummer automobile market with a new series of "year-ahead" models.

The new Studebakers, which may be inspected at the showrooms of Chas. H. Elliott, 253 Hunter street, bring two interesting factors into the automobile industry. The first is the introduction of vacuum power brakes to the low price field. The second is the development of tear-drop design and making this ultra-modern styling available to purchasers of cars selling for less than $1,500.

"Studebaker is pleased to carry on in the same fighting manner that has won this old corporation so much approval since the start of the climb out of the depression," said Mr. Elliott, chief executive of the local Studebaker organization. "Studebaker is going forward always. This spirit has prompted the introduction of new models in the middle of the summer and these new models have been so carefully planned and built that we feel positive they will win widespread approval.

"Every motorist has heard about power brakes. All of the highest priced cars have them. They have been proved the most efficient type of brakes. But never before has a car selling for less than $1,500 been equipped with this safety device. Now Studebaker offers power brakes on The Dictator line of cars —which have a base factory price of $925—as well as on Commander and President models. We believe the adoption of power brakes on the new Dictator models heralds a new era of safety in motoring.

In this manner Studebaker brings two remarkable advancements to motorists who buy inexpensive automobiles. It is typical of this old fighting company that it should lead in this development. We believe that this spirit will win widespread applause. We feel sure that the features of the new 'year-ahead' models will make the name of Studebaker very popular in this community."

The importance of the power unit for the brakes of all Studebaker models will be grasped immediately by the motorist. Power brakes mean "more power to the right foot." They are automatic to a degree that will please every driver who has had to "bear down hard" on his brake pedal. Only a slight toe pressure starts the power cylinder working, and applies the brakes. Moreover it stops it gradually as well as quickly. Sudden stops that pitch passengers forward are practically impossible due to the gradual deceleration. Feminine drivers are particularly pleased with power brakes because of the light pressure required.

With the new streamlined Dictators Studebaker body engineers have scored heavily. The styling of this car follows closely the lines of the DeLuxe Dictator "Land Cruiser." From the front of the graceful sloping radiator to the rear of the car, the contours flow with true aerodynamic manner. The windshield is sloped, the shoulder moulding runs from front fender to tail light, the rear tires are concealed beneath fender aprons and the rear of the body is streamlined after the manner of airplane fuselages. Horizontal hood louvres add to the "speed" of the styling.

HEAT WAVE TOLL MOUNTING IN U.S.

353 Are Dead as Records for Intensity, Duration Are Smashed.

STOCK BEING SOLD.

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP)— The death toll mounted to 353 today, as intense heat blazed down on the United States, smashing records for intensity and duration.

The blanket of heat, as tenacious and oppressive as a mustard plaster, showed signs of lessening at the edges, but in the midwest, where its devastating effects are greatest, no relief was sighted.

An unofficial 120 degree temperature was recorded at Muscatine, Ia., and above 100-degree readings were general throughout the central western states.

The Atlantic Seaboard was cooling, hope for relief was held out for the southern coastal states, and a high pressure area, now over Western Canada, promised relief for the Great Lakes territory.

In Chicago, packers and officials, deluged with record shipments of cattle because of the drought, appealed to government officials to stay the flood of starving animals being bought with federal funds from destitute farmers and shipped there for processing.

Each day added to the hundreds of thousands of dollars of damage to crops and livestock and aggrevated human suffering.

The heat toll for the present wave follows: Missouri, 166; Illinois, 129; Nebraska, 54; Ohio, 45; Iowa, 40; Minnesota, 25; Indiana, 19; Pennsylvania, 13; Michigan, 13; Texas, 11; Kentucky, 12; Oklahoma, 7; Tennessee 6; Wisconsin, 4, and Georgia 1. The total in the 15 states is 536.

Byrd Left Dependent Upon His Own Skill

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, July 24.— (A.P.)— Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's skill and sagacity were all that he could count on to-day in some of the Antarctic's most bitter weather.

An attempt to push a tractor party through to his solitary weather observation outpost was a failure, and he was without wireless facilities.

After battling near-blizzard conditions since Friday, the tractor party turned back yesterday. It had reached only half-way to Byrd's camp, 123 miles to the south.

Another expedition presumably will be sent Byrd when the weather conditions improve.

No word has been heard from the expedition leader for several days. His main wireless set has been out of order and in his most recent message, relayed on a set which he cranked by hands, he reported he had a "bad arm." He did not indicate his condition otherwise.

ANOTHER SERPENT

PLYMOUTH, England, July 24. (AP).—Bathers here during the week-end reported seeing a sea monster which they described as about 10 feet long, with a snake-like body and a dog-like head. The monster, they said, was thin, brown in color and devoid of fins. Holding its head high and swaying from side to side, spectators reported, it disappeared out to sea.

A HOLIDAY OPPORTUNITY.

Parents of the city and district who have boys who would be benefitted physically and every other way by a rational summer holiday under ideal conditions should not lose sight of the opportunity that is afforded by the Kawartha Boys' Camp at Clear Lake, conducted by the Peterborough Rotary Club.

Here is one of the best organized and best equipped boys' camps in the province, ideally located and offering every facility for healthful recreation under sane supervision, and available to boys at a fee that is probably the lowest in Ontario.

There is ample accommodation for scores of boys, and a full program of activities that will send the young campers home aided in body and spirit and with the satisfaction of having enjoyed the greatest holiday in their lives.

For the balance of the summer there should be an attendance equivalent to the available accommodation at Rotary Camp, for no better vacation is available than several weeks at this splendidly conducted recreation centre.

Any member of the Rotary Club will be glad to furnish any information that may be required.

THE PREMIER WAS RIGHT.

Two frank statements made by Premier Hepburn to a deputation from the Ontario Temperance Federation the other day will be endorsed by the majority of people in the province, The Examiner is confident.

In the first place, the new Premier told the members of the Federation that prohibition was a lost cause, and for the present at least there is not the slightest doubt of the correctness of Mr. Hepburn's remark; public opinion, not only here, but in practically every other country where prohibition has been tried, is convinced that prohibitory laws fail to prohibit and lead to other abuses.

Then, too, The Examiner thoroughly agrees with the Premier in his statement that the cause of temperance would be better served by a campaign of education than by legislation.

That has been our view ever since the days of open sale in Ontario; and the result of our experiment with prohibition only served to strengthen our belief that no people could be made sober by process of law.

The only hope for real temperance reform is to teach the folly of intemperance so effectively that despite increased facilities for obtaining intoxicants the consumption will fall off rather than increase.

Certainly the foolishness of trying to curb drinking by prohibitory legislation has been demonstrated so clearly that our temperance leaders should cease wasting their efforts on unavailing attempts to maintain a system that the people have rejected, and concentrate instead upon educating the youth of the land in temperance principles.

THE DISTRICT HEALTH OFFICERS.

It is not surprising to find that municipal health officers in Ontario have been protesting against the dismissal of the eight district medical officers of health as an economy measure by the new Government.

The work of these district officers, while more or less unknown to the public, is well known to the municipal health officers, many of whom have shown their appreciation of this service by a steadily greater use of it.

The district men have been at the beck and call of any M.O.H. who needed help in diagnosing unusual cases of communicable diseases and in organizing the fight against such outbreaks of these diseases as were difficult to trace or to stamp out.

For instance, in our own district in 1930 there were 200 cases of infantile paralysis, and for nearly four months the district officer of health was driving from 50 to 250 miles a day consulting and advising throughout five counties with the medical officers of health and physicians of the municipalities which were involved, warning those of other municipalities toward which the disease was spreading, organizing and controlling the issue of serum, organizing the collection of serum from victims of former years when the supply grew dangerously low, and coming home at night to be ready for the nightly long distance phone consultations with physicians within a radius of 70 miles.

It is difficult to estimate the cash value of the lives and limbs that were saved during those months alone, but certainly the cost of the district office was a low price to pay for the results secured.

It has been in work such as this that the district health officers, who, of course, are all physicians who have prepared themselves for the service by taking the public health degree, have been engaged.

That there is need for economy in public administration cannot be gainsaid; it may be that the protection that has been given by these district officers can be provided in some other way at much less cost, but at the same time it is only fair to the district officers that something should be said of the services they have rendered.

THOSE BY-ELECTIONS.

With the announcement of four federal by-elections in Ontario on September 24, newspaper commentators are already speaking of the contests as a miniature general election.

In our view these by-elections are principally important for what they signify, and not because of their probable outcome.

The thing that really matters is that they are to be held because that sets at rest any rumors of a general federal election this year.

Certainly if an 1934 appeal to the electorate were contemplated even remotely the Government would not have caused the expense and inconvenience of four unnecessary by-election campaigns, so that the mere fact that these September battles have been arranged is first-hand evidence that there will be no federal election until at least next mid-summer or early autumn.

Three of these by-elections—North York, Frontenac-Addington and East Toronto—are to be held in ridings that were held by Conservative members, while the fourth will take place on the home diamond of Premier Mitchell Hepburn, in East Elgin, a seat made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Hepburn to enter the provincial race.

Two of these constituencies would at one time been placed in the category of safe Conservative seats, i.e., East Toronto and Frontenac-Addington, while East Elgin could be accurately described as safely Liberal.

North York, on the contrary, is surely good fighting ground, for while Col. T. H. Lennox won the last three elections there, it is admitted that this record was a personal triumph for the late member rather than an accurate expression of the riding's political conviction

THOSE WEDDING BELLS STILL RING.

A newspaper paragraph tells that Ottawa marriages are on the increase. At the same time figures by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company tell of huge marriage gains in Canada and the United States respectively.

What is the answer?

One obvious answer is that times are better, that, after two or three years of hesitancy, young people are taking a chance.

But there's another answer—which goes a little deeper. It is that notwithstanding all the talk we've heard about "this age," despite the jeremiads of sociologists, pathologists, theologists, and a whole lot of other ologists marriage is still going strong. We've had dinned into our ears all about divorce, and about the unpopularity of marriage, about girls preferring "careers." Yet the facts and all the figures show that young women of to-day want to marry just as much as their mothers did, and just as early, and sometimes a lot oftener.

Our modern young miss may prefer a speedster to a spinning wheel, or a mashie or tennis racquet to an afternoon in the kitchen, but the notion that she'd rather be a banker or a business woman than a wife and a mother, is merely a notion of the novelists. Our young ultra-modern writers have been so busy concerning themselves with the exits of marriage they haven't had time to tell about its entrances. They have failed to note that while divorces have been increasing marriages have been increasing, too. Not so spectacularly, perhaps; but more persistently; with the increase greatest during the years they called the "mad decade." The years of so-called "Flaming Youth."

* * * *

Between 1920 and 1930, those peak years of human adventure, we heard a tremendous lot about the "new woman"—about her "career," her independence, her "reluctance to marry." The sociologists and sexologists assured us that marriage was out of date; the preachers lamented its decline. Yet in 1929, the most hectic year of all, more Canadian girls promised to "love, honor and obey" than in any single year in our whole history. Not merely were there more marriages; there were more marriages per one thousand of population. Here are the official figures:

Year	No. Marriages	Per 1,000 Pop.
1922	64,420	7.2
1923	66,463	7.4
1924	64,129	7.1
1925	64,664	7.
1926	66,570	7.1
1927	69,516	7.3
1929	77,286	7.9

Incidentally, this record of 7.9 per 1,000 of population is an exceptionally good one. It isn't up to what they do in countries like Austria, Belgium and, curiously enough, France, but it's as good as is done in any English-speaking country, better than they do in Germany, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and the Netherlands.

After 1929, marriages fell off. That, however, had nothing to do with the popularity of marriage as an institution, or as a habit; it was a matter of economics. Now, when things are looking up, when jobs are going again, with more prospects of support for a family, wedding bells ring out once more. In the first five months of this year—our authority is the Dominion Bureau of Statistics—marriages gained 6½ per cent. over the same months last year.

There's something else. It is that since 1871 every census taken in Canada has shown a larger percentage of Canadian women married. Here are the figures:

Census	P.C. Women Single	P.C. Women Married
1871	63.85	41.51
1881	62.59	32.26
1891	61.18	33.38
1901	59.71	34.51
1911	57.37	36.97
1921	55.86	38.32
1931	56.41	38.74

So what? Merely that despite the fact that wedded life among a certain class of people has less durability than before, marriage as an institution still comes first with the vast majority of women. Indeed, in view of the speed with which most divorced people marry again, it might be argued that marriage not only comes first, but comes second and sometimes third and fourth. People simply can't stay away from it.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Came the beer.

Ontario's week-end accident record was one of the blackest in the history of the province. The death toll is an appalling indictment of the lack of safety consciousness.

It has been discovered that Premier Ramsay MacDonald does not speak the Gaelic—a rude disappointment indeed to many of his faithful admirers in this country.

With the Hepburn Cabinet in session to-day several more startling developments in public administration are anticipated. Life under the new administration is at least not dull.

Ontario has a fine property in London to lease, following the decision to close Ontario House. Let us hope Australia or New Zealand does not grab this opportunity, for they are already outdoing us in publicity work in the heart of the Empire.

"DRY HUMOR"

To the Editor of The Examiner.
Sir:

Mr. J. C. Smith says that the "vast majority" of the people of Ontario are "dry." Exactly. That is why they voted "wet" at the referendum. Mr. Smith is jokin', of course. He knows that tea-drinkers often go on a bust drinking 15 to 20 cups of tea a day "because it makes them feel so good." Yeah, that's it. Nature's demands for help and satisfaction are too strong. Still so long as agitators are paid they will keep it up.

THE HUNGER MARCH

Editor of The Examiner.
Sir:

Your editorial, "Much Ado About Nothing", is not in the least encouraging to those who are in desperate need. If you can term an army of Canadian citizens, even though they be of the radical element, in a demonstration showing to the public their sad and deplorable state of circumstances as nothing then we have as yet to read an Examiner editorial on something. You take exception to the demonstration. This is nothing new; it has been a method employed for placing existing facts before the public for generations. Rather than rip and tear the actions of those unfortunates up the back they should be commended for the orderly and peaceful way they conducted their hunger march. I have no doubt but all true and loyal Canadians, whose attention has been attracted by their effort, will wish them luck. They are humans with all the feelings and responsibilities of human beings.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

ROOSEVELT ADMINISTRATION

THE Roosevelt Administration has lost leadership and prestige. A great campaign to restore what has been lost is in the preparation stage. Not by revising the N.R.A. and the Codes, but by speeches. Congressional elections are to be held in November. Time speeds. Great governmental undertakings require long time. Elections wait for no man in the United States of America. Prestige once lost is difficult to regain. To regain lost political confidence is a teaser. The N.R.A. and the Codes are in disfavour.

Not more than fifty-eight per cent of the people are supporters of the Roosevelt policies. Three months ago the Democrats claimed eighty-five percent of the American voters. To discriminate between President Roosevelt and the policies he has advocated will save neither the policies nor the President.

Why has this change of sentiment and of support come to pass? The reasons are increasing in number. Some of them are noted here. First, the government failed to give constructive support to labor union organization. Second, while experimenting with the Codes and the N.R.A. prices of goods have risen faster than wages. The strong, the people on easy street, have been made more independent than ever. The profits of Standard Oil have increased 9 thousand per cent. Men who have are the most ardent supporters of the Administration. Purchasing power of the masses of the people must be increased before recovery will be strong enough to take one step in the right direction. How to spend wages requires more sense and integrity than to earn wages. Third, the Air Mail, faux pas, is a millstone about the neck of the Administration. Fourth, slow has been any observable recovery. In many lines of business recovery has been completely stopped.

THE UNITED STATES

IN Chicago the slum area is on the spread. Every middle class street and neighborhood is being penetrated by the slum sewer. Here it was that Ruth Jameson was born and where her girlhood days were spent. Here she lived while attending Chicago University. Never once did she display shame when telling where she lived. She had an ambition and a vision. If she had lived miles away from the University, and been environed by the slum, she might never have been intellectually awakened. To her the University was a voice. She listened. Then one day this little girl made a decision. She would never rest until a University education became hers. On another day while listening to a lecture on Sociology a vision rose within her heart. In her own person she would bring to her own slum community all that the University meant to her. To thousands of her own kind who did not have the gumption to rise in the world Ruth Jameson brought the University she had come to love.

Commencement day has dawned. The Chancellor of the University had some kind and great words to say to Miss Ruth Jameson. He hesitated a moment. His voice softened. He was moved. The great auditorium was silent. Then it was evident that a proud moment had come to him. Graciously he handed Miss Ruth Jameson her diploma. No pen could describe her feelings when at last a University degree was placed in her hand. Nor could pen of mine portray her exaltation of spirit as she turned her thought to her chosen life work.

After a brief rest, and time to make some tentative plans the way opened as if some one anticipated for her. The family next door was starving. Miss Ruth had been writing when the news came. No time was lost. She is on her way to the relief station for information. I can see her. So can you.

AN INDIAN MILLIONAIRE

JACKSON Barnett, who died early in June, was worth four million dollars. However he did not die worth that amount. He was dubbed a nit-wit. Not by investments, nor by business sagacity did he become so rich. Barren land as a reservation was allotted to his tribe. Oklahoma is a big state. It has big stretches of barren land. Assisted by the government a large percentage of the barrenness has been turned into productive acres. Where wild sheep, and wild cattle, and buffalo, and wilder horses roamed in the halcyon days before paths were turned into roads by the white man the Indian hunted and lived.

When the white man came he too hunted. But it was not for wild game that he cared. He came with trained mind and an eye quick for hidden treasure. Him the barren land stretches did not disconcert. Instead of bow and arrow he brought with him pick and shovel and civil engineer equipment. Underneath the sand stretches and the barrens the white man found coal, and oil. And where mountains lifted themselves were discovered gold and silver.

Beneath some of the reservations of the Indians there were rich deposits of mineral wealth. But the Indian did not know. Through an accidental discovery made by himself oil was found on his allotted share of the reservation. Gold is sometimes found on the surface, but more frequently it is discovered deep down. Jackson Barnett had but little boring before up came the oil flowing like a little river.

Fellow Indians counted him imbecile. But he was not as silly as they thought. He took counsel and sold his find for four million dollars. Wisely the wealth was invested. All went well, until a woman entered the scene. She wooed him. Then abducted him—married him. The marriage was set aside. Litigation followed. His last years were a continuous lawsuit.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 88c to 90c; oats 33c to 38c; barley 45c to 48c; corn 74c to 77c; rye 48c to 50c; buckwheat 58c to 60c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Sizzling temperatures and rainless skies took the corn market aloft yesterday beyond any peak quotations heretofore touched this season.

Eastward extension of sensational damage to the corn crop was an outstanding feature, reports indicating spread of severe injury through big sections of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio—States that previously had in large degree a good prospect. Wheat and other grains rose with corn, but afterward sagged, on account of profit-taking and as a result of likelihood of somewhat cooler weather west and north-west, with possible scattered showers.

Corn closed firm, ⅞c to 1⅝c above Saturday's finish. Wheat easy, ⅝c to ⅞c down; oats unchanged to ¼c higher, and provisions unchanged to 10c off.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Cheese, butter and eggs advanced in price on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

On the cheese market, Ontario colored brought 10¼c to 10½c a pound, up ¼c, while Quebec cheese advanced ⅝c at 9⅝c to 10c a pound. Receipts were 836 boxes.

Eggs were generally 1c to 1½c higher. Graded shipments in carlots or less sold for 21c to 21½c a dozen for A large, 20c to 20½c for A medium, 19c to 19½c for B and 18½c to 19c for C. Arrivals totalled 702 cases.

Butter gained ¼ of a cent a pound, fresh No. 1 being quoted at 18¾c to 19c a pound in carlots or less. Small lots to retailers were 19½c to 20c a pound for solids, and 20¼c to 21c for prints. Receipts totalled 495 boxes.

The potato market remained steady, new Quebecs being 50c per 90-pound bag, and old New Brunswick Mountains brought 40c to 50c per 90-pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 24. — Wheat futures started off briskly on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday won and nearly lost all of an early advance, to fluctuate sluggishly for the balance of the season, and finished with a net gain of ¼c to ⅝c, July at 85⅝c, October 86⅞c, and December 88⅛c.

Strength at Liverpool, where the prices advanced 1⅜d to 1⅝d, accounted for the early upturn on the local mart, but thereafter traders lost interest in the market. A 2c increase in Argentine wheat prices was the source of the strength in the English market.

Operations yesterday were of a small volume, one of the quietest days in some time. Easiness at Chicago and lack of a good export business were depressing factors. Sales of Canadian wheat for overseas shipment totalled only 250,000 bushels.

World wheat shipments last week totalled 10,892,000 bushels, of which 3,659,000 bushels came from North America.

Little interest was shown in cash grains and coarse grains futures were dull.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

HAILEYBURY, ONTARIO.

This Northern Ontario town, situated in a rich mining area, which was once the centre of one of the worst fires in Canadian history, is of comparatively recent birth, since it was incorporated in 1903.

The site of the town was originally a homestead, the deed for which was registered in the name of C. C. Farr, one of the pioneers of the district. He watched the little community grow to the status of a town and himself was largely instrumental in having it incorporated. To him fell the honor of naming the place, and he called it after a college by that name which he had attended in the vicinity of London, England.

Cavan

CAVAN, July 23 (Examiner Correspondence).— On Thursday afternoon Cavan Women's Institute held their monthly meeting at Mrs. J. H. Snider's home.

There was a splendid attendance of members and the president, Mrs. A. B. Kennedy, was in the chair.

During the business there was discussion of relief work, especially concerning local need. A program committee was appointed to plan for the District Annual Picnic to be held at Millbrook. Dr. Wright, Millbrook, had been expected to address the meeting but on account of an unexpected call was unable to be present.

The District President, Mrs. Garnet Shields, was a guest at this meeting and gave a short interesting talk. Her daughter, Miss Juan Shields, was much enjoyed in two solos, sweetly sung, with her mother as accompanist. The Misses Doris Tinney, Dorothy Cobley, Audrey Mill and Verda Braithwaite, gave an interesting demonstration on table setting. It was announced that the coaching classes now being conducted by Miss Hopkins at Millbrook, Mount Pleasant and Bethany, are open to all young girls.

A profitable feature of the meeting was an open discussion on canning and other home problems. The social period at the conclusion of the meeting was much enjoyed.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

HUDSON'S COMPANIONS ACQUITTED.

On this date, in 1618, an historical trial before the High Court of Admiralty at Southwark a verdict of acquittal was rendered in the case of the survivors of the fourth Hudson expedition to the north, who had been charted with the murder of Henry Hudson and eight companions in James Bay in 1611. There was little doubt that the man had abandoned their chief in a mutiny, but it was impossible to bring their guilt home, since there was no evidence as to what happened to Hudson, one of the darkest mysteries of the merciless ocean. Moreover, the accused told how the ringleaders of the mutiny, the men who had forced Captain Hudson, into the small boat which was to be their floating coffin, had been killed and tortured by savages, "big boned, broad faced, flat nosed and small footed", and cited this as proof that "everywhere can divine justice find executioners".

The manner in which the remnants of the crew got back to England is romantic indeed. After the ringleaders had been killed by the Eskimos, "the boat, by God's blessing, with some hurt men, escaped in this manner. One Abacucks Pricket, a servant of Sir Dudley Digges, whom the mutineers had saved in hope to procure his master to worke their pardon, was left to keepe the shallop, where he sate in a gowne, sicke and lame, at the sterne, upon whom the leader of all the savages leapt from a rocke and with a strange kinde of weapon, indented, broade and sharpe, of bright steele, riveted into a handle of morse-teeth, gave him divers cruel wounds before he culd from under his gowne draw a small Scottish dagger, wherewith at one thrust into his side he killed this savage and brought him off with the boat, and some of the hurt company that got by swimming. Being got aboord with a small, weake and wounded company they made from this island onto the northern continent, where they saw a large opening of the sea Northwestward and had a great floud, with such a large billow, as they say, is nowhere but on the ocean. From hence they made all possible hayste homewards, passing the whole straits, and so home, without ever striking sayle or any other let, which might easily have made it impossible. For their best sustenance left them was sea-weeds fryed with candle's ends and the skins of the fowls they had eaten. Some of their men were starved, the rest all so weake that onely one could lye along upon the helme and steere. By God's great goodnesse, the sixth of September, 1611, they met with a fisherman of Foy, by whose means they came into England."

Had their little craft not survived the buffeting of the Atlantic the story of how Hudson was cast aside in James Bay would never have been known.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

THE LADY WHO WAS A KILL-JOY.

Cassandra was the lady who always saw the dark side of things.

She lived in Troy or perhaps she didn't live at all, and the Greeks invented her because they wanted someone in a myth who would be representative of that particular sort of human being.

Cassandra's misfortunes, as she looked at it, was that she could see in the future all the dreadful things that were certain to happen. But nobody ever believed her prophecies.

That was supposed to be the god Apollo's fault. He had loved the young woman but she hadn't loved him. So, out of spite, he gave her the gift of prophecy but doomed her never to be believed.

This made Cassandra unhappy. It gave her a long face it drew the corners of her mouth down, it made her eyes dry and crinkled from the floods of tears she was always shedding . . . It made a screaming pest out of her . . . She saw you walking down the streets of Troy and she saw that when you passed the next corner a stone would crop from a cornice and kill you. So she warned you to walk around the block. You laughed at her and when she howled and dragged at your tunic, you knocked her frantic hands away and went about your business . . . So the cornice dropped and you died and she moaned, I told you so . . . And everybody agreed, yes, she told him so, she told him so. . . . But that didn't make the lady anything but a wallflower.

After the Trojan war Agamemnon took her back to Greece as a slave. On the way she told him that his wife, Clytemnestra, had taken a lover and that she planned to kill him in his bath. . . . He didn't believe her, and he WAS killed in his bath. . . . I forgot what happened to Cassandra. And I don't care very much.

I think she was just naturally a disagreeable type, though, more to be pitied than scorned, and she couldn't help being what she was, but she added little to the gayety of life and I think she enjoyed being a kill-joy. . . . I never have been able to swallow that Apollo's curse story about her. I think she made it up to make herself more interesting. She didn't really have a gift of evil prophecy. She liked to believe that the worst was about to happen, and had a knack for guessing at misfortune.

She had many descendants. I know some of them.

Highway Workman Has Foot Injured

Stanley Johnston of Chandos Suffers Loss of One Toe.

APSLEY, July 24.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Stanley Johnston of Chandos, a worker in the settlers' camp on the Apsley Road was severely hurt on Friday while engaged in driving a team drawing a heavy rock, it rolled over up on his foot crushing it badly. He was taken to the Red Cross Hospital, where Dr. H. E. Manning found it necessary to amputate one toe and part of another, and to put 26 stitches in the lacerations. Until X-rays have been applied it will not be known how extensive the injuries are.

Henry Washburn of Purdyville, working on a cottage at Loon Lake, on Saturday fell and fractured four ribs. Dr. H. E. Manning was called to Washburn's home late Saturday night and set the broken bones.

Albert Wilson, who was lately appointed foreman of the settlers' gang, north of Apsley, in the place of Reeve Russell Hales, deposed during the late shake up on the Apsley-Bancroft highway, was taken ill on Friday, his place being filled by Melville Tucker.

MONTREAL.—Emile Fisher, 26-year-old driver of the ill-fated truck which crashed into a street car on St. Lawrence Boulevard last week, killing five men and a woman, and Abraham Lifshits, owner of the auto and head of the Lifshits Laurentian Transportation Company, were to-day held criminally responsible, by a jury in the coroner's court. The decision came more than an hour after they filed out of the court-room.

MILD EARLY SELLING.

TORONTO, July 24 (CP)—Enough short covering and new buying came into the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange today to steady the market, and after a mild further exhibition of weakness in the morning session the tone improved and held till the close. Distillery, brewery, oil, steel and bank issues harbored a margin of gains over losses at the finish.

Traders Cautious In Mining Section

TORONTO, July 24 (CP).—The mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange was treated with a good deal of caution by traders today and while there was enough selling in spots to give prices a substantial slide downward, the main body of holders appeared to feel that the slump had run its course for the time being at least, and these were not selling. There was also considerable buying in the cheaper dividend payers such as Sylvanite, Siscoe and Teck Hughes, and these held their ground. The tendency was towards firmness in the afternoon.

STRONG SUSPICION OF FOUL PLAY HELD

and believing it was someone sleeping I whistled. Getting no response I went over to get a closer look and was horrified to find that the man was dead. He was bleeding extensively from the ears, nose and mouth and the body was still warm".

Stewart said he was on his way to notify the police when he saw the police car approaching and he knew that someone else had made the discovery first".

Acting Coroner Dr. Herbert N. Young saw the body at seven o'clock and was of the opinion that death had supervened probably an hour and a half before the finding of the body. He stated he had found no signs of alcohol and indeed the dead man was described by neighbours as an industrious, sober man who minded his own business.

Robbery Not Motive

Assuming that Meharry did meet death through foul play it is apparent robbery was not the motive for his slaying. His wallet containing a twenty dollar American bill and two two-dollar bills were found intact.

Like Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C. and other officials connected with the investigation the medical man declined to commit himself to any positive statement. Both were of the general opinion that the circumstances surrounding the finding of the body were open to strong suspicion of foul play. Mr. Kerr remarked, "I am impressed with the seriousness of the affair."

Lying on its right side the body of the unfortunate man was found on the west side of Gordon avenue about 200 yards south of the new chapel at Mount St. Joseph. There are no houses in the immediate vicinity.

Clump of Bushes

The sidewalk at the spot where the gruesome find was made is skirted by a stubble field. Meharry's head pointed in a southeasterly direction while the feet pointed towards a nearby clump of bushes behind which the dead man's hat was recovered by police. No weapon such as one that might have been used to make the deep incision in the left upper lip of the dead man had been recovered. Clues were meagre with exception of the possible trail of blood leading from the scene, and two handkerchiefs that were recovered on Gordon avenue. One of the handkerchiefs, a colored one, was found by Inspector James Reid a few feet south of the body, and the other, a soiled white one, was found by an Examiner reporter in the dusty roadway hard by.

But for the deep incision in Meharry's upper lip which could be unaccounted for by a mere fall on the sidewalk, it might have been reasonably concluded from a superficial examination of the scene that Meharry had succumbed to a hemorrhage. The combined skull fracture, incision of the lip and bruised temple coupled with other circumstances revealed by police put a serious complexion on the mysterious affair and strongly lead to the conclusion that a second party was involved.

A possible motive for the supposed attack was mooted in various quarters this morning. The suggestion being made that Meharry may have stumbled across one of the many young couples of courters who use the deserted road as a parking place. It is a strong possibility that Meharry became involved in a fight as a result, and it is believed that police investigation is moving in that direction, although The Examiner could not receive any definite assurance that this was so from the Chief Constable, when he was seen at the scene of the tragedy.

Industrious Citizen

Meharry's residence at 505 Cross street was locked and deserted at ten o'clock this morning. Neighbours who last saw him alive when he left the house at nine o'clock last evening described him as being a sober industrious man who minded his own business.

Since his retirement from the old William Hamilton company by whom he was employed for a number of years, it was stated that Meharry had been in the habit of spending the winter months either with his daughters in the United States or with his son in Windsor. He spent last winter away from the city and since returning in the Spring of this year had occupied himself with the large garden at the rear of his house. He spent the greater part of yesterday, according to neighbours, at work in the garden.

Predeceased by his wife, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) Cecil Taylor and Mrs. (Dr.) A. J. Pardee both of Ashtabula, Ohio, and one son, Archie of Windsor, Ontario. Mrs. Pardee received word of her father's death this morning at Thurstonia summer resort near here where she has been holidaying for the past week or so.

He also leaves one brother, John Meharry, of 110 Monaghan Road, whom he is said to have visited last evening, and a number of cousins residing on Victoria Avenue.

The remains are resting at Belleghem's Funeral Undertaking Parlors, where an autopsy was performed late this afternoon. Funeral arrangements had not been completed by press time.

Chief Newhall, interviewed by The Examiner by telephone early this afternoon, admitted that investigations had not yet led him to any definite conclusions. Asked if a certain remark which he made relative to the case might be quoted, he emphatically replied, "No. Quote me as knowing nothing."

HARRY B. POPE DEAD, MONTREAL

Old Peterborough Boy Dies After Week's Illness in Montreal Hospital.

BORN NOVEMBER, 1879.

Harry Bondfield Pope, general superintendent of the electrical departments of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated, died this morning in the Montreal General Hospital after a week's illness resulting from an affected heart. Mr. Pope was also general superintendent of the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company, and it is believed that the work and responsibility of these two offices induced the condition which eventuated in his death.

Graduate from C. G. E.

Born in Peterborough on November 2, 1879, the deceased was a son of the late Robert Pope, who was Peterborough's street commissioner preceding Harry Evans' appointment to that position. In the early days of the Canadian General Electric Company in this city Harry B. Pope joined its staff as an apprentice and graduated from its old electrical school, a thorough and practical training course that is remembered by the older employees. From Peterborough he went to the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company thirty-six years ago, and has been continuously in the company's service during all those years.

Mr. Pope is survived by his widow, formerly Constance Winnifred Dobbin of Peterborough, and two sons, Francis R. Pope and George B. Pope, undergraduates of McGill University. Mrs. Earl Clarke of Waterford Street is a cousin. He was a member of St. Mathias' Anglican Church, at which a funeral service will be held on Wednesday evening prior to the removal of the body to Peterborough for burial on Thursday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock from Comstock's Funeral Home to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. E. R. James will conduct the commitment service in the absence of Ven. Archdeacon Blagrave.

McLEAN HAIG TELLS OF WEST AT LUNCH MEET

Campbellford Rotary Club Speaker Outlines Farming in Western Provinces.

HOPE FOR GOOD CROP.

North Not Good for Wheat Growing He States—Cattle Markets Discussed.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 24 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent) — The West and conditions there, especially relative to the crops and farming generally, was the theme of an address delivered to the Campbellford Rotary Club at the noon luncheon yesterday, when an old Campbellford boy, McLean Haig, featured as the guest speaker.

Speaking of the West generally he said that the three prairie provinces, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba were a unit in themselves and vastly different to the East. Not like Ontario, with its hills, valleys, streams and trees, it was a land of large farms where anything in the vicinity of a hundred acres of land was considered a struggling proposition. Settled properly only about fifty-one years, the year when the C.P.R. was completed, it is a comparatively new country, although there were settlements of old Ontario pioneers from Bruce, Lanark and other western Ontario counties, although the Polish, Russian, Galacion and German settlers are still the older generation. The Germans being considered good farmers.

It was also understood that the Doukobors were good farmers, the strange thing about this race being that they were often confused in people's minds with the "Sons of Freedom," who were really responsible for the unfavorable comment passed on this particular race. The Doukobors are thrifty and make money for themselves, and although they do not use the banks they always have money of their own, all their purchases being paid by cash, having no faith in banking institutions.

The ranching section of the West is south-east of Alberta, south-west of Manitoba, and south of the C.P.R. and north to Saskatchewan, is known as the wheat belt, the speaker said, and one can see for miles, elevators, which to the naked eye appear only about two miles away, but which in reality are from twelve to fiftteen miles distant. The north is a bluffy country, rolling hills and small streams, with a variety of small trees like our lilac bushes. In this section no tractors are used, the hills being too steep and there is no large expanse of land such as is featured in the wheat belt.

Much of the ranching land is being broken for wheat growing, Mr. Haig said, but this was a mistake, as grain can be grown only under the most favorable climatic conditions. Prairie grass, harvested in these areas, was good for stock, although present tariffs have closed the American markets to the Western cattlemen, and the class of stock required by East and Great Britain, their present outlets, calls for a much higher grade, which necessitates the changing of breeds and the raising of a better type of beef cattle.

No Optimistic Outlook

He was not too optimistic about wheat, and answering the question as to why farmers did not go into mixed farming to a greater extent he stated that in the majority of cases the lack of water was the reason. Nothing can be done with mixed farming in the northern areas with satisfactory results as the country was only good for stock he said.

Farmers in the West treat farming as a business, taking a large area of land and hoping that nature would help them out, which in a way was gambling with their prospectors. They sow every inch of land they can find, and if everything goes well, they are in luck.

In the south portion of Saskatchewan there have been no crops for the past five years but the tenacity of these Western farmers is marvelous, for they never give up hoping for this period of drought to give place to good times and bring back their former prosperity. Farmers in the Yorkton and Melford districts were living unto themselves, dairying and cheese-making being done, with others growing stock, others raising grain, all having plenty to eat and being in a better position, wheat showing No. 1 hard wheat at forty-five bushels to the acre, while twenty bushels to the acre was the outside figure in the Regina district.

With the working of the land over the past twenty years and the putting back of none of the nutriments of the soils through fertilization, combined with the shifting of the soil through the terrific wind storms, it was a question as to what would become of the West the speaker said, the condition being more serious than one in the East could imagine. The West, he declared, had brought more wealth to Canada than any other province, and going back to horses, as they have now, has considerably improved things, especially in the harness business.

Held Over Own Grain

Universities as well as Departments of Agriculture have made a great study of Western conditions through experts sent out to all pars of the provinces, who advise farmers what lands are conducive to the growing of grains and which would be more suitable for mixed farming and to give to agriculture a stability that in the past has been lacking. Not all wheat to-day is stored in the large elevators, for many farmers have held over their own grain in the hope of a rise in prices and it is impossible for the East to estimate the amount of wheat on hand in the West. The Dominion Government entered into the wheat business last year and did much to stabilize the wheat market selling all this wheat, the sales to-day telling the story. The failure of the wheat crop in the United States will necessitate them for the first time to import, which will react favorably on the Canadian market. France, Italy and Spain, individually, are growing more wheat than Canada he stated, and the East should also remember that it took fifteen cents to take wheat to Fort William last fall, when it sold for eighty-six cents, leaving the farmer approximately seventy-one cents but most farmers could make a good profit at this figure.

As to why the West was not more fully populated the speaker pointed out that at presens there was little land left for more people to settle on, eighty percent. of the land being owned and operated at the present time, the average acreage per farmer being 320 acres. It was no industrial centre he said, and although there were clay deposits in the south and mines in the north the cost of this operation would eat up the profit. Taxation in the West was out of all proportion he stated, the tax of the average farmer there being twice as much as Ontario farmers, being assessed as they are by province, municipality and school section. "If the wheat crop is good we can carry on, he declared, but the government will have to realize that taxes must be lowered."

With taxes and debts piling up Mr. Haig questioned what would become of the West, although he saw that the new government in Saskatchewan would make some change regarding the Debtors' and Creditors' Act, so that these men can work out solutions to their difficulties.

President Stanley Neale handled the gavel and introduced the speaker, a vote of thanks on behalf of the club being extended by Rotarian Harold Carr, M.L.A.

THE NEXT FOUR HUNDRED STARTS with our 1934 EXHIBITION

Canadian commerce was born when, 400 years ago, Atlantic Coast aborigines proffered their furs to Cartier and his strange company of white men in barter for knives and other metal goods "and the two parties traded together."

Now at the beginning of our next four hundred years manufacturers and others from Canada and distant lands bring their modern merchandise to the magnificent display palaces of the "Show Window of the Nations" where they are attractively arrayed for buyers from home and abroad who flock to purchase the latest in man's creations. Here we see again Cartier and his gallant followers in brilliant spectacular pageantry on the world's largest stage, a most enthralling and inspiring spectacle depicting Canada's evolution from 1534 until today.

Your Exhibition is "the people's holiday" where people of all ages and both sexes may learn what's new and modern in an ever-changing civilization, where universal progress in art, science, industry, agriculture, music, sports, fashion, engineering and education is on review. This is the big year.

12 YET IN HOSPITAL.

TORONTO, July 24. (CP)—Civic tribute was planned to-day for three firemen who died in the blazing hold of a decommissioned oil barge Enarco, wrecked by an explosion in Ashbridge's Bay section of Toronto harbor. Full public tribute will be paid at the funeral of District Fire Chief James Dixon. Lieut. James Henry and Firemen W. Swyre who died in the hold of the vessel as the explosion rocked the barge and tossed a score of men into the hold.

Twelve other men, 10 firefighters, the owner of the barge, and a workman all were taken to hospital, some of them in a critical condition from burns and other injuries.

The explosion occurred after firemen had been called to subdue a small blaze that broke out suddenly from an open hatch as a workman, Jack Watt, was kicking chips and shavings into the water. The workers started for shore, but the blue-red flame died as quickly as it appeared. Watt, however, put in a fire alarm that summoned Chief Dixon and his men.

Chemicals were poured into the hull and the flames were believed extinguished. The workers went back to the job and part of the fire brigade had returned to headquarters, when a sheet of flames hurled through the air with a loud roar.

Men Hurled in Air

Men were thrown over the deck and the district fire chief was believed blown into the flaming hold. It was only after the charred vessel had been pumped dry bodies of the three victims were recovered.

Crowds of workers, out to lunch from neighboring factories and other industrial plants, ran to the scene and helped gather together the scattered injured. Ambulances and cars carried hem to hospital where a check of the missing was started.

For three hours firemen and volunteers from surrounding oil refinery plants, battled the flames until the craft gradually filled with water and sank.

ANNUAL STREET FAIR ON WEDNESDAY, JULY 25

CAMPBELLFORD, July 24 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Big times will be held in Campbellford on Wednesday of this week when the local Rotary Club will stage their annual street fair. In connection with this event, Rotarian Abram Rappaport, manager of the Hollywood Theatre, is sponsoring a marathon swim, for which he is donating in all ten prizes. This will feature a three-mile drive through the Trent for boys, while the distance for girl entrants will be one and a half miles. The course will be from the fair grounds down toward the bridge and return.

The Rotary Fair will be held at the fair grounds, near the banks of the river, and is expected to draw large crowds from the town and surrounding district. Committees appointed are: Ice cream and soft drinks, C. H. Davidson; horse games, Charles Calver; bingo, T. H. Hall, Elie Brunelle, H. N. Carr, M.L.A.; supplies, C. B. Williams, S. H. Neale; transport, Chas. Davidson; grounds, C. J. Windrim, C. Calve, Dr. H. B. Longmore, T. E. Hall.

TROUBLES AHEAD.

STRATFORD, Ont., July 24.—(C. P.)—Because City Assessor W. G. Dixon's name is like that of W. A. Dickson, member-elect for Perth, and because his office is in the City Hall, he is already beginning to hear problems of a member of the Legislature. An old gentleman called to tell him his troubles, before Mr. Dixon realized his caller thought he was the member for Perth.

NO HEAT WORRIES

NEWCASTLE, Pa., July 24 (CP) The heat wave doesn't mean much to workmen moving a pile of limestone from a local quarry. The stone at the bottom of the pile is cemented to the ground by ice which formed during the winter and was insulated against the heat by the limestone.

Hastings Outlaws Hold Winning Ways

HASTINGS, July 24 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Outlaws under their new manager, Frank Gilbert, kept up their winning streak on Monday when they defeated Elgin 19 to 18 in a free hitting, loosely played tilt that kept the big crowd in an uproar the entire nine innings.

The rural boys kept right in the fight and tied the young leaders in their half of the ninth only to let the winners away in the last half. With a litle improvement in their base running the losers might have taken a fall out of the leaders.

Obituary

JOHN BRYANT SCRIVER.

HASTINGS, July 24 (Examiner Correspondence). — John Bryant Scriver, eighty-five-year-old veteran resident of this district, died on Sunday at his home on the Norwood Road.

The late Mr. Scriver was born at Trent River on September 9, 1849, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Roland Scriver, early settlers in that district. Like his father the deceased took up farming at an early age, at a time when much of the land now being worked was covered with woods. Binders being an unheard of thing in those early days, Mr. Scriver soon became an expert cradler, his services being much sought after by the farmers. Even up till the present day his remarkable work with a cradle is often referred to by the older generation.

On October 27, 1874, he married Miss Mary Jane Tyler, who has constantly been at his side during his long illness.

After their marriage the young couple took up farming for themselves, first near Trent River, then Percy Township, and finally Asphodel. After years of very hard work and long hours of clearing lands and removing stones, Mr. Scriver built his home on the Norwood Road, one of the first to be built in this now well-populated section on the edge of the village. After giving up farming the late Mr. Scriver entered the carpenter trade, where he was an expert, many buildings in the village remaining as a monument to his ability wth a saw. He was also at one time a valued employee of the Hastings Tanning Company.

There are left to mourn his loss his sorrowig widow, four sons and two daughters, David, Sherman, William, and Lewis, all of Hastings, Mrs. J. Franks of Acton, and Mrs. R. Thompson of Trenton.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon, with services at the family residence at two o'clock.

Interment will be made in Trent Valley Cemetery.

Premier MacDonald Will Not Visit B.C.

DIGBY, N.S., July 24 (C.P.). — Officials arranging the itinerary of Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald today intimated the Prime Minister would regretfully decline the formal invitation extended to him and his daughter Ishbel to spend part of their vacation in British Columbia.

The distinguished British political leader, enjoying rest and quietude in this Nova Scotia tourist resort, spent yesterday at his favorite pastime, walking. Later this week he plans to motor through the Annapolis Valley. Next week he will visit Pictou and Antigonish Counties, homes of Scots.

His Nova Scotian tour will end on Cape Breton Island, where inhabitants still "hae the gaelic." But these plans are only made tentatively and the Prime Minister comes and goes as he pleases.

AUSTRALIANS LOSE CHANCE IN FOURTH

Rain Washes Victory Out of Hands of Aussies When Match Ends in Draw.

LEEDS, July 24 (C.P. Cable). — Rain washed victory out of the grasp of the Australians to-day and the fourth Test cricket match of the season ended in a draw. The rubber will be decided by the last match of the series next month, to be played to a finish.

Rain halted play before luncheon time, and although it stopped in mid-afternoon, repeated inspections of the wicket showed it was unplayable. Shortly before the time limit arrived, it was decided to abandon the play.

When play stopped, England had added 229 runs for six wickets to her first innings score of 200, leading a deficit of 155 runs in view of Australia's fine score of 564. The Australians needed only the four wickets to win by a full innings and wanted to resume play a couple of hours before the close, but were overruled by the umpires.

LOVE OF SHOWS

it apoint to see each new film. Believing that the time was coming to spring the trap, Zarkovich called me to join him last Saturday night.

"From a parked car, we saw Dillinger come to the theatre. He walked as he had done on each other occasion, but when he left, he went in a taxicab. We trailed him, but we found that he changed to another cab about a mile away, as he had done on each previous time he was observed.

"By using two taxicabs, he shook us off Saturday night, but when we drove back past the theatre we saw that a new film would be shown on Sunday, and we guessed that Dillinger would come again. We therefore got in touch with the Federal agents of Melvin Purvis' staff and the trap was laid.

"As expected, Dillinger strolled up to the theatre with a woman. A second woman entered about the same time, but we could not be sure whether or not she was with Dillinger.

"When he left the theatre, two women were again near him. One of the women, seeing the officers, seized Dillinger by the shirt and cried:

"Oh, John—those men."

"Caught off his guard this last time, Dillinger leaped back, reaching for his gun. At that moment the woman, or women, disappeared. And a moment later Dillinger fell dying.

"And at any time in the past 10 days we could have taken John Hamilton and George (Baby Face) Nelson. But we realized that if we arrested these men, Dillinger would escape."

One Glass, Please! But Only Buttermilk

Harold Scott, of the Scott Coal and Lumber Company, better known among his friends as "Scotty," is basking in honours as purchaser of the first drink in local beverage rooms after the sale of beer and wine was legalized at 10 o'clock this morning.

Seating himself at a table in the newly prepared beverage room at the Empress Hotel just as the clock chimed the hour of 10 a.m., he called to the chief bartender:

"One glass, please!"

A half dozen curious who had been loitering about to witness the event, craned their necks eagerly. The bartender acted smartly, placing the glass before Scotty without fuss or ceremony.

Beer? No, just buttermilk. Scotty drops in for a glass of buttermilk every morning about 10 o'clock.

ONTARIO'S LAW BLOW TO HULL

Taverns, Night Clubs Echo Empty as Former Visitors Drink at Home.

MANY MAY CLOSE.

By GARY MOORE

HULL, Que., July 24 (C.P.)—Ontario's modified beer and wine regulations may be pleasing to a majority in that province, but for the city of Hull it's a sad, sad story.

The blow had been expected for months, but this did not lessen the impact with which it fell to-day on monsieur, madame and Mademoiselle, host and hostess for these many years past to citizens and visitors of the Dominion's capital, Ottawa.

Every visitor to Parliament Hill looking down on the Ottawa river, churning in rapids below Chaudiere Falls and then broadening out to sweep majestically under the interprovincial bridge, also looked out on the city of hull, directly across the river.

Drinking laws on the Quebec side were freer until to-day. More than 25 taverns of Hull and environs provided entertainment for Ottawa's visitors who preferred to drink in the congenial atmosphere of a tavern. A cafe or a night club, instead of in their own hotel room.

During the long dry era in the United States, Americans on sight-seeing trips to the capital always included Hull in their itinerary. Repeal came in the United States, and still Hull's 25 taverns continued to thrive. Ninety per cent of the customers were Ontarians.

Law Meant Little

The 11 o'clock closing law operated but night clubs ran several hours later.

Ontarians sipping their beer and wine in Quebec talked of that day when Ontario would modify the Liquor Control Act enough to allow wine with meals or or a stein in public. Monsieur only shrugged. That was talk. It would not come, never, never. Quebec had the tradition for hospitality. All this would never change.

But to-day the blow fell. While in Ontario hotels the carpenter's hammer pounded merrily in making alterations for tap rooms, Hull tavern keepers and their employees mourned.

"It's the swan song of our taverns, to-night," said one ast Saturday. "To-night is Hull's last Saturday night. Nine out of 10 of our former customers now have wine and beer on their doorsteps. Some of us will have to close. Unless, that is, Quebec modifies her laws still more."

But so far there is no hint this suggestion is being considered by the Quebec provincial authorities.

E. A. OUTRAM WINS 1ST PRIZE OF $50

Harold Robson, Also of Examiner Staff, Specially Mentioned in Contest.

Two Examiner reporters have won cash prizes in a "bicycle story contest" recently conducted by The Canada Cycle and Motor Company Limited of Weston, Ontario, open to all newspapermen in Canada who desired to take part.

Edward A. Outram with his story appearing in The Examiner on June 1 last under the caption "Police Problem is Removed When Boys Receive Bicycles" merited first prize of fifty dollars, while Harold Robson was awarded an honorarium of five dollars.

Contest judges were J. H. Pritchard, day editor Toronto Globe, Allan Nobiston, feature writer Evening Telegram, and Ross Keane formerly managing editor of Stratford Herald.

Informing Outram of his success the general manager of the C.C.M. Company stated the contest judges were unanimous in deciding upon his story as meriting first prize.

"Your story had exceptionally strong news value, was admirably written and excelled in typographical set-up," the letter stated.

Robson was told that while his story which appeared in The Examiner on May 14 last under the heading "Two Bicycles Give 45 Years Road Service"—did not finish in the first three, "it was of such high calibre that we decided to enlarge the previously announced prize list and to award you an honorarium."

"With so many meritorious stories entered by newspapermen from various parts of the Dominion the judges had a harder task than anyone anticipated in selecting the prize entries. It was found necessary to weigh relatively minor features of news treatment and arrangement of matter in order to break virtual tie scores among the leading half dozen stories," the sponsors of the contest pointed out.

TENNIS POSTPONED.

WIMBLEDON, July 24 (A.P.).—With Sidney B. Wood, Jr., leading Jack Crawford, Australian ace, two sets to none and 15-love in the first game of the third set, the interzone final series of Davis Cup play between the United States and Australia to-day was postponed until to-morrow because of rain.

TWO DRUNKS AND A VAG

Police court this morning had an old time flavor to it, two drunks and a 'vag'. One of the inebriates was a woman from the west end whose noisy accompaniment to her jag reached the police ears by some neighborhood relay. All three were remanded, including the vagrant who was arrested for begging. Magistrate Langley's jurisdiction received scant attention from the police who, under Chief Constable Newhall, were investigating the death of Robert Meharry.

COOKE ON STAND IN HYDRO PROBE

member of the Commission since 1923, and chairman since 1931. In answer to Mr. Slaght he said the general policies of the Ontario government down to 1925 were those of public ownership and operation of electric power plants.

"In 1926," said Mr. Slaght, "we find the Department of Lands and Forests issued a lease of a power right to the Hudson Bay Power Company."

"I always understood," said Mr. Cooke, "it was the policy of the government to grant leases of power sites in unorganized territory in Northern Ontario."

Mr. Cooke said he did not recall being consulted about the first lease of the Abitibi in 1926, nor were any officials of the Hydro, and he did not believe it was the practice to consult Hydro in regard to sites in Northern Ontario.

Mr. Slaght wanted to know why the Government did not use the experience of Hydro in such matters.

Developing the Country.

Mr. Cooke explained it was the policy to make grants of power rights in Northern Ontario to companies developing the natural resources of the north. Hydro was paid for and its staff maintained by the municipalities of Southern Ontario and not for the purpose of investigating Northern Ontario projects.

In 1930, Mr. Slaght said, Hydro made contract with Hudson Bay power to take 100,000 horsepower and pay $13 a year per horsepower for it, and the Government guaranteed it.

"Will you tell the commission of any business reason for Hydro doing this when the Government already had power to pre-empt more than 100,000 horsepower?"

Mr. Cooke said he wanted to know if there was a clause in the lease which required Hudson Bay power to deliver the contracted power at any time demanded.

He could not say offhand but he understood a demand for power had opened up and the government did not have sufficient power under the lease to secure the power at its will.

"Why did you put Hydro under a yearly obligation of $1,300,000 for 40 years when you had power to compel the company to deliver power at any price the buyer would agree to or that might be fixed by the minister?" asked Mr. Slaght.

No matter who developed the power Hydro could not get it for less than $13 a horsepower, which included a 64-mile delivery, said Mr. Cooke. The only person he had seen in connection with the transaction was Alex Smith, president of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company.

"Did you have any political discussion with him?" asked Mr. Slaght.

"None whatever," said Mr. Cooke.

Explaining the idea behind the arrangement further, Mr. Cooke said Abitibi Power could be supplied in the area north of Sudbury at a lower cost than power from any other site available.

"Had there, up to that time (July 1930) been any actual development of the power site?" asked Commissioner Latchford.

"Not so far as I know," said Mr. Cooke. This was the time Hydro agreed to take 100,000 horsepower from Hudson Bay Power Company, later Ontario Power Service Corporation.

Mr. Slaght said the O.P.S. had used this contract in advertising its bonds and asked if there was any other real reason for the government entering the deal other than to assist private speculators in selling their bonds.

Hydro and the government was seeking to provide power at the lowest possible cost and they got it, said Mr. Cooke.

"This contract made it possible for the first time for the company to sell its bonds," said Commissioner Latchford.

"Why did you go and ease this company down $100,000 a year on its rentals a few days before the Federal election?" asked Mr. Slaght.

"The Federal election had nothing to do with it," said Mr. Cooke.

"Did Mr. Smith ask you for the $100,000 rebate?" asked counsel.

"He did not ask me personally," replied the former chairman.

Mr. Cooke said he had no O.P.S. bonds during his regime on the Hydro Commission. He believes he first heard the company was in financial trouble from Alexander Smith earlier in 1932. Smith, he believed, was seeking assistance and he told him any assistance he might get would have to be through the Government and not Hydro. He had seen Smith alone twice, he said.

He explained his reason for his statement to Smith was that the Hydro Commission had not the authority to help without the approval of the Ontario Government.

Mr. Slaght held Commission aided the company by issuing $18,000,000 worth of bonds which resulted in the Government acquiring assets of the company. Mr. Cooke said the Hydro Commission recommended at the request of the Government that the assets be bought. He added the Premier had written a letter asking approval of the scheme and that the recommendation was necessary to enable the government to take the step.

In the deal the Commission acted as the agent of the Government. "I would not say we were bound to do it," he said, "but he believed in view of the requests and a guarantee from the Government that the Commission would suffer no loss it was the duty of the Commission to accede to the request if it believed such a step was in the interest of the province and the Commission. "It was certainly in the interests of the province to purchase these bonds," he said, in reply to a question if he took steps to satisfy himself the deal was desirable. He insisted he had informed himself on the question.

He had met C. A. Maguire and Mr. Meighen during the time the deal was pending during meetings of the Commission he continued. He could not, however, recall discussing the bond deal with either of the Commissioners.

Mr. Meighen objected vigorously that Mr. Slaght was trying to "trap" Mr. Cooke in a layman's interpretation of legal questions. The objection arose out of Mr. Slaght's question of what Mr. Cooke considered his duty under the circumstances. The objection was over-ruled.

The examination continued and Mr. Cooke said he believed he had not discussed with Mr. Meighen or Mr. Maguire the progress of negotiations looking toward the deal.

Aware of Bankruptcy.

Mr. Slaght asked Mr. Cooke if by Aug. 2, 1932, when the Commission considered the request of the Premier that the ratio of $90 to $100 be set for the bond exchange, he was aware the Abitibi Power and Paper Company and the O.P.S.C. were near bankruptcy. Mr. Cooke agreed he had been aware. He believed, however, the O.P.S.C. needed only $50,000 to complete one unit and deliver power under a contract with the Hydro Commission. Each unit would produce 65,000 horse power.

Mr. Slaght asked if the former Hydro Commissioner had ever thought of offering any other figure than 90 for the bonds. He did not know, Mr. Cooke said, if any lesser figure had been offered, but he recalled the Premier saying it was the lowest figure acceptable to the bondholders.

Mr. Meighen interjected that the Hydro Commission "never investigated" the deal.

"I want to see," Mr. Slaght said, "whether this thing was swallowed whole because the Premier asked for it."

Mr. Cooke said he was unable to recall if the other Commissioners expressed to him their views of the deal.

Mr. Cooke said he could not recall after a press announcement June 26, 1932, which said the O.P.S.C. was in stringent circumstances whether he and the other commissioners discussed the deal, nor could he recall if then or after Aug. 2, when the resolution recommending the scheme was passed by the Hydro Commission, Mr. Meighen revealed his own or his companies' ownership of O.P.S.C. bonds.

DEATH MAY END SPURNED LOVE

Dejected Farmer Loses $3,600, Gets Badly Burned in Barn Fire.

BOUND FOR NEW LANDS.

RAMSEY, N.J., July 24 (A.P.).—Unrequited love has done this fantastic, this tragic thing to William Storms.

Sunday night was 'courtin' night,' for a bachelor of 52 may love as ardently as youth. Storms went to Miss Jennie Quackenbush, five years his junior, and asked her hand in marriage. She refused him.

Storms, up early yesterday, returned and pressed his plea. Perhaps Miss Quackenbush would reconsider. He had money—$3,600—and he felt he was well able to afford marriage. Again she said no.

"Very well," said Storms. "I shall leave town. Without you, there is nothing for me here. I shall take my money and become a wanderer."

He went home, after first getting his money from the bank, and took down from the wall a shotgun. His thoughts were of his three horses. He could not take them, nor would he leave them behind, perhaps to be abused by a new master. So with the shotgun he would kill them.

Carrying His Fortune.

The money—$3,600 in bills—was in his sweater pocket as he entered the barn.

He killed one horse. Flames from the gun barrel shot into a pile of hay, igniting it. Fire flashed up toward the rafters.

In that moment William Storms forgot the sorrows of unrequited love, forgot his determination to be a wanderer on the face of the earth; forgot all except that he was a farmer, that his two remaining horses were in danger of burning to death, that the barn itself was threatened.

Off came the sweater, to become a flail with which to beat out the fire, now leaping madly through the barn. Repeatedly he swung it until the sweater itself was ablaze. In the pocket crisp bills—$3,600 in crisp bills—burned and were destroyed.

Storms himself was severely burned and lies to-day near death.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

TWILIGHT RACING got under way yesterday at King's Park, Montreal. Maybe some of the mavericks will run better in the cool of the evening than on a hot summer afternoon. There is some talk of Leo Dandurand running another fourteen day meeting at Blue Bonnets, and using the Dorval charter to operate, as he owns both tracks. We do not see why this would not be feasible as Dorval did not function at all this year. Besides the above mentioned tracks Dandurand and his partner Joe Cattarinach also own or operate Syracuse, Fairmont at St. Louis, Bainbridge at Cleveland, Aurora at Chicago, Jefferson Park at New Orleans and one at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Tommy Gorman who is interested with them also controls Connaught Park at Ottawa. In their spare time they run the Canadiens and Marcons in the National Hockey League, and Cattarinach also owns a large breeding farm and campaigns an extensive string of running horses. They can be rightfully named the three horsemen of Montreal. Rockingham Park are sure doing a wonderful business these days, and as a result are attracting the best horses in training. Saratoga opens next week and the R. J. McLaughlin string should make their presence felt. Horometer is back in training again and we will see how good he really is when he meets some of the good American ones. Of course Giddings has a few more besides him that should also earn brackets. Frankie Mann the stable rider will go along and look after the saddle work. While Joe Thomas who was recently reinstated will do the riding on the ones that are being left in Canada.

THIS HORSE Lotta Airs is a very consistent sort and always pays a nice price. He won again at Detroit on Saturday and paid over six to one. We hope you took our advice and had Below Cost the other day at twenty - eight smackers. He was second on closing day at the recent Long Branch meeting. Art Halliwell expects big things from Tarnish who has been coming along in leaps and bounds. It is just about time for Kieva to turn in another winning performance, his race of last Saturday, when he finished a fast going third, indicates he is ready to go places.

They have shipped Lucky Racket from Montreal up to Stamford and it looks like this is the spot where he will do his stuff. He is a lot better than his recent form would indicate so be on the lookout. Taboon has been unable to win a race this year but of late his races have been getting better and any day now should see him grabbing off a purse. Did you notice the price our old friend Visionary Heur paid the other day at King's Park. Judge Primrose is stated to be a winner at the same place before many moons. Esperanto is also down there just waiting for the proper spot. This one is a real good thing.

GUNN AND SINGER DEFEATED IN FIRST DAY'S COURT PLAY

Marcel Rainville Continues as Favorite to Win Canadian Tennis Honors.

MRS. GIL. NUNNS ON TOP.

(By Elmer Dulmage, C.P. Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, July 24 (C.P.). — Because last week's Ontario championships were only a dress rehearsal after all, tennis observers wondered to-day if Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, had the concentration to shoot winning ball for five more days, capping three weeks of unbeaten tournament play with victory in the Canadian singles. For 13 days Rainville has won at least a match a day.

The black-haired little Frenchman, who will go back to his law practice next week and try to forget the outdoor court wars, started yesterday as favorite in the national event. He was seeded second behind Walter Martin of Toronto whom he trounced in straight sets last week.

Through the Eastern Canadian and the Ontario tournaments, Rainville escaped undefeated. He toppled all the powers in the East—Martin, Gilbert Nunns of Toronto, Don Leahong of Jamaica, and the conquerors of his chief Quebec rivals, Laird Watt and Bobby Murray. Now he must do it all over again.

An Easy Victory.

Rainville started yesterday with an easy victory over an unseeded Toronto player, J. Leibel, 6-0, 6-1. His game was as keen as ever, the most perfect mechanically of any in the tournament. If he keeps on winning Marcel was likely to meet Nunns in one semi-final with Martin, facing Watt or Leahong or the other.

There were no upsets yesterday. Martin defeated Donald Gunn of Toronto, 6-1, 6-4. Nunns downed B. M. Singer, Toronto, by Duff in a second-round match. The scores were 6-3, 9-7. Watt dropped only five games, while turning back two Toronto men, G. R. Wadden and W. C. Powell.

Upsets Service.

Manitoba's new challenger, Eddie McKush, upset C. W. M. Service of Toronto, 6-2, 6-0. Harry Dayes of Jamaica had as hard a time as any seeded player, beating Hartley Hopper of Winnipeg 6-4, 9-7. Henri Paul Emard of Montreal won two close matches, beating L. Wilson, Toronto, 10-8, 6-4, and Art Anderson, Toronto, 6-1, 1-6, 6-2.

Favored women players also paraded forward. Mrs. Gilbert Nunns, Ontario title-holder, won by 6-2, 6-4 over June Merrill, Toronto, in the first round, and both Far-West entrants, Caroline Deacon and Eleanor Young, scored easy wins. Miss Deacon defeated Mrs. A. Griffin, Toronto, 6-1, 6-2, and Miss Young won by 6-0, 6-1, over Margaret Boultbee, Toronto.

WINGS START ON WIN STREAK DEFEAT ROYALS

Effective Hurling by "Steamer" Lucas Enables Leafs to Win From Bisons 7-3.

SENATORS BLANK BEARS.

(By the Associated Press.)

Rochester Redwings were back on the uphill climb in the International League race to-day after losing six straight games and skidding to third place below the pace-setting Newark Bears and Toronto Maple Leafs.

From a position on July 17, where they trailed to the Bears by only one-half game, the Wings dropped back to where 3½ games now separated them from the league leaders. They trail the Leafs by one game.

The Wings did their right-about-face yesterday against Montreal Royals, pounding out a 4-3 decision behind the seven-hit pitching of Pete Appleton. It took the eighth and ninth inning rallies, however, to put over the victory.

Toronto also gained a game on the leaders by trimming Buffalo Bisons 7-3. The Bisons connected with 13 hits and received eight free tickets to first base from Walt Hilcher, Jimmy Pattison and Charley Lucas, but fine pitching with men on bases left 16 Buffalo players stranded on the sacks. Joe Morrissey and George McQuinn led the Leafs' 12 hit attack, the former connecting wth four singles and the latter with a home run, a double and a single.

The best pitching performance of the day was turned in by Cliff Melton of Baltimore. He pitched no-hit, no-run ball for seven innings and then allowed only two safe blows in the last two frames as the Orioles beat Syracuse Chiefs 4-3. A double by Johnny Watwood, after Melton had walked the first two men in the eighth, spoiled the Baltimore hurler's shut-out.

First place Newark Bears saw their lead shrink to one and a half games when Art Herring, Albany hurler, shut them out with four hits and fanned eight as the Senators scored four to win a fast night game.

Elmwoods knocked off Indian River, 24-14, in the second East Peterborough Softball League playoff game held at Centre Douro. It was a real slugfest throughout. J. HAWKS EASY VICTIMS FOR ST. PETER'S CLAN

St. Peter's slapped a 13-2 defeat on Hawks in a bantam ball game last evening, walks, errors and timely hitting all aiding in the Saints' big score. Creighton pitched two-hit ball for the winners and had fine support throughout, though he issued a number ow walks that kept him in the hole most of the battle. Pammett also hurled a nice game, despite his wildness, to give but four bingles and fan seven. The teams:

St. Peter's: Girard, c; Conroy, cf; Lynch, 3b; Brown, 1b; Thomas, ss; Condon, ss; Thornton, 2b; Creighton, p; Scollard, lf; Lucano, rf.

HEAVY HITTING WINS FOR KEENE

Rurals Count 8 Times in Sixth Inning to Take 24-15 Win From Leafs.

Keene snapped back into the win column last night when they met the Maple Leafs on the rural diamond, and won 24 to 15, in a heavy-hitting duel that saw the Leafs take an early lead and hold it until the 6th when homesters counted eight times and from that time on were never headed.

Jean Munroe, port-side hurler from Warsaw, twirled the whole game for the winners, and only the batting power of her team-mates saved her from defeat as the Leafs got to her early, and led by the Sturgeon sisters, Eileen and Agnes, hammered the horsehide with a will. The latter player came through with a homer, triple and double in four trips. D. Cocks, Helen and Mary McCarthy gave the winners the batting punch necessary to take the verdict. Agnes Sturgeon pitched the first five innings for the Leafs and was replaced by Genevieve Mann, who finished in top style only to see her teammates chalk up a flock of costly error in the last two frames.

The teams:

Maple Leafs: M. Ballantyne, ss; E. Sturgeon, 1b; P. Rome, 2b; H. Mann, lf; E. Foster, rf; E. White, c; G. Mann, 3b, p; L. Trollop, cf; A. Sturgeon, p, 3b.

BILL SIMMONS EASY MEAT FOR SLUGGING WAIFS

Orphans Keep Right on Heels of Brintons by Winning From Fashion-Craft 10-4.

O'TOOLE TOPS HITTERS

Orphans kept right on the heels of the league leading Brintons by taking the Fashion-Craft outfit over the jumps last night at Central to the tune of 10-4. The Waifs took kindly to the offerings of old Bill Simmons and as a result the Fashion men were tagged with another defeat which pushed them still further down into the cellar.

Frankie Shine notched himself another victory with some swell pitching keeping his opponents hits and runs well scattered being very stingy with both, allowing but four runs on eight hits while striking out six and issuing but two free tickets to first. Simmons went along all right till the fourth when the Orphans fell on him and from then on it was just a parade.

O'Toole, Board and Shine were the heavy sluggers for the winners, O'Toole having three hits out of four times at bat while the latter pair connected for two out of four, one by Board being a circuit clout. For the Tailor offsprings Ab Delahaye was the only one to do much heavy stick work, collecting three singles out of four appearances at bat.

There were a number of fine fielding features including three snappy double plays, one a Gainey-to-Clarke play in the third for the Beckerman gang while the Scates-Harrison crew had two, Weese-to-Fleming-to-Board in the fifth and Fleming-to-Wilshaw-to-Board in the eighth being the order of the twin killings. Jones, in centre field for the winners, supplied the fielding highlight with a running catch of a hard hit fly from the bat of Gillespie in the seventh inning.

Fashion-Craft: Russell, 2b; Clarke, 1b; Gray, c; Gillespie, rf; Delahaye, 3b; Naish, rf; Gainey, ss; Butcher, lf; Simmons, p.

Orphans: Wilshaw, 3b; Weese, ss; Jones, cf; Heffernan, lf; Hope, c; Fleming, as; Board, 1b; O'Toole, rf; Shine, p.

Score by innings:

Fashion-Craft	101	200	000	—	4	8	3
Orphans	000	404	20x	—	10	16	2

Lawn Bowling

BY Herb Martin

One of the finest and best played game of bowls to be seen on any man's greens, was played last night between John Penrose and R. Hendry.

o o o

It was the final in group No. 3 and of course that made the game more interesting. End after end each bowl played changed the situation—nobody knew who was shot—nobody even could guess the outcome

EVERY MAN FOR HIMSELF.

Penrose and Hendry provided the bowling fans with something more than the usual thrill last night in their nip and tuck struggle for the supremacy of Group 3. "Grandpa" John won out over "Gaelic" Bob with a two point advantage.

of one single end. First one side would be up and then the other, and then, as if it wasn't exciting enough, John drew in on the last end just to tie up the game and give the audience another thrill.

o o o

On the extra end Hendry's rink had all the better of the play until "Grandpa John" played a little heavy, clipping out Bob's shot and laying two himself. Bob tried hard with his last bowl but played just a little narrow, it was a glorious finish to a well played game.

o o o

The other group play-off between W. Zeihr and N. Nesbitt was also a nip and tuck affair until Billy pulled away on the last few ends, finishing up 17-13 and by so doing wins the honors in group No. 4.

o o o

Over on the tennis courts there seemed to be a little more activity than usual Every court was in use.

o o o

We understand that it was the beginning of a tournament and it is open to all tennis players in the city. Championships of all kinds will be determined and those who enjoy tennis would be well advised to visit the courts of the Peterborough Tennis Club any afternoon or evening for the next two weeks.

DEAN STOPS LEADING GIANTS WITH HIS 10TH STRAIGHT WIN

"Kiki" Cuyler Leads Attack as Chicago Cubs Halt Dodgers 8-3—Braves Suffer Sixth Straight Defeat, While Moore Hurls Pirates to Win Over Pirates.

JIMMY FOXX POLES OUT A PAIR OF HOMERS AS ATHLETICS DEFEAT CLEVELAND INDIANS

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

J. (Dizzy) Dean, a young man who can see so far ahead he's already asking $18,500 for next season's work, is strutting around the Metropolis to-day looking for an argument on the subject. He won't get it from any of the Cardinals who play baseball with him.

The young right hander, who never got his nickname on the ball field, did a lot of highly important things for St. Louis Red Birds yesterday. He pitched the Cards to a 6-5 decision over the world champion Giants, for one thing, his 10th straight, his 18th of the National League, and the 7th straight for Frankie Frisch's outfit that suddenly has decided to go places.

He made it possible for the Cards to cut the lead of the world champions to three full games with three more to go in the series, a simple problem in addition and subtraction whereby it can be proven that the Cardinals can share a place with the Giants by the time they leave town. He proved that if there were enough of him, the Cards would do it very easily, for it was his fourth victory over the champions this season.

It seems as though he rates a hearing on this salary situation.

With the Cubs holding grimly to second place, two games back, but looking none to good in general, the Cards all of a sudden have become the team the Giants must beat back immediately, if the orderly procession of the past couple of months is to be maintained.

The boys from the big muddy look as good on a ball field now as they have all along on paper, what with Dazzy Vance going the route to win in Boston a couple of days ago, Bill Hallahan's left arm in shape again, and Paul Dean just a shade back of his big brother. The club is hitting, too. Rip Collins led a 10-hit attack on Hal Schumacher and three relief pitchers with a five-hit outburst, one of his 21st homers of the campaign.

The Cubs, beaten off recently in hand to hand conflict with the Giants, held on grimly by beating down the Dodgers 8-3 as Charley Grimm and Gabby Hartnett hit homers and Kiki Cuyler bagged four hits, two of them doubles.

Euel Moore, Indian right hander, shaded Bill Swift in a pitching duel as the Phillies continued to bid for sixth place with a 3-2 victory over the Pirates. The losing trail whad no turn for Boston Braves, who dropped their sixth straight to Cincinnati Reds 4-2.

The Yankees continued the bitter stern chase of Mickey Cochrane's astonishing Tigers as "Red" Ruffing won his 10th victory of the season, 5-2 from the Browns, with the aid of Lou Gehrig's 24th homer and another by Frank Crosetti. But it gained the New Yorkers nothing as the Tigers clung to a one game lead by hammering down the Red Sox 7-2. Tommy Bridges kept things under control as Detroit RDetroit pounded Lefty Ostermueller for 14 hits.

Sluggers had a field day in Cleveland and Chicago. Jimmie Foxx's pair of homers, for a total of 32, helped the Athletics nose out the Indians, 11-9, and Joe Cronin's homer, double and single bulked large in Washington's 11-5 trouncing of the lowly White Sox.

Yesterday's Stars

Dizzy Dean, Cardinals: Scored his 18th pitching triumph of the year and his fourth straight over the Giants as he defeated the league leaders 6-5.

Charles (Red) Ruffing, Yankees: Kept the New Yorkers close on the heels of the high-flying Detroit Tigers as he turned back the Browns 5-2.

Jimmy Foxx, Athletics: His 31st and 32nd home runs of the year the deciding blows in a 11 to 9 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Tommy Bridges, Detroit: Held the Boston Red Sox to seven hits as his mates pounded out a 7 to 2 victory.

Joe Cronin, Senators: Hit homer, double and single to lead his team to an 11-5 victory over Chicago.

Euel Moore, Phillies: Pitched the Phillies to a 3-2 victory over the Pirates.

CANADIANS LOSE RACING LICENSE

Dandurand's Syracuse Track Closed for Violation of New York State Rules.

FOR "OPTION BETTING."

NEW YORK, July 24 (A.P.)—The use of any system of wagering on horse races in New York State other than oral bookmaking received a setback yesterday when the state racing commission revoked the license of the Onondaga Racing Association as a result of the use of "option betting" at the recent Syracuse meeting.

The action followed a public hearing last Friday at which Leo Dandurand, who with Joe Cattarinich of Montreal, owns 90 per cent of the stock, appeared before the commission and admitted the use of the "option" but declared the association had no intention of violating state laws. The system has been declared illegal by State's Attorney-General John J. Bennett, Jr.

The revocation of the license will prevent the association from holding its scheduled Fall meeting at the Fair Grounds, Sept. 15-29. Dandurand had declared his intention of holding the meeting, despite a loss of $30,000 at the last session, which closed July 14.

ENGLISH SAILORS DEFEAT AMERICANS

Take First Four Places in Monday Morning Race to Clinch Series.

TORONTO, July 24.—It was the old story when English and American dinghy teams met yesterday morning in a lump of sea accompanied by a dying easterly breeze. The Cambridge men made a clean sweep by taking the first four places. At no time under the conditions prevailing did the Rochester representatives look dangerous.

Two hours before race-time the boys from across the lake could only muster two boats. Dwight Hill who, because of business, could stay no longer had packed Silver Slipper, and Cherri Jane II was still sitting in Bill Ogle's workshop with the stove-in plank received in Saturday's collision. However, they managed to borrow two boats from the R.C.Y.C., numbers 3 and 15. In the former Gill Barber with a local crew pinch-hit for Webster, whilst the Farnham brothers took Hill's place on the line-up in the latter. In order to row this they left Rochester Sunday night on the eight metre Cayuga and sailed all night, arriving just in time to rig their boats for the race. Despite this handicap and the fact that they were sailing a strange boat, they managed to be the first Rochester boat to finish.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By C.J.P.

The main event of the evening in the local sports' world, weather permitting, is the first game of the E.P.I. playoffs at six chimes of the clock tonight down at the Exhibition Grounds. 'Tis between Cogs and C.G.E., and should be a honey—or do you prefer jam? The latter, as a rule is our preference and if we can get it on nice fresh homemade bread—boyoboyoboy! Oh, yes, we were discussing baseball. Well, this tussle ought to be a nifty as both squads will try hard to get the jump in the first of this little would serious, as the late Ring Lardner used to call it. And both crews will be at full strength, so come prepared to see a scrap. It rates a flock of fans.

• • • • • •

The E.P.I. batting averages for the season, published this e'en, make interesting reading. The Cogs have been doing some terrific hitting, and we don't mean just hefty clouting. Not a hitter has conked the old apple under the .350 mark, while four of the eleven players have batted over .400. Art Padgett leads the regulars' with the Ripley figure of .481. Maybe we'd better say it again, .481! Admitted that the pitching they faced was just like sitting down to a roast turkey when you're hungry, still when you slash the spalding around for 13 hits in 27 times at bat—well that's pretty lovely in any league.

• • • • • •

Cadd is 'way up there, too, and—this one will surprise some of the lads—Mein is clouting at a .400 clip! We can expect the old reliables like Billingsley, Rooke and Moore to sock the pill hard, but the whole team did it this year. C.G.E. had several good wallopers in there this year with H. Mowry topping the regulars with a .353 lulu. The Electrics started slowly and seldom had a full team out, but should be at full strength and tough onions in this four-out-of-seven playoff. Fosters were just this side of being terrible with the old wagon-tongue, only four boys hitting anything the size of their hats. And, we imagine, their hats aren't overly large any more. Still, they had grief from the start and had to face the best twirling.

• • • • • •

St. Peter's took a 13-3 bantam tussle from Hawks last eve. Three of the Saints' players hiked twenty miles to be in town for this game, and that is certainly the old baseball spirit we like to see in the kids. There'll be bantam contests every night this week, as follows: Tuesday—Leafs vs Hawks at the Oval; Wednesday—Leafs vs St. Peter's at Exhibition Grounds; Thursday—Hawks vs King Edward at Oval; Friday—St. Peter's vs Leafs at Oval; and Saturday—King Edward vs St. Peter's at two in the Exhibition Grounds. All twilight scraps start at 5.45, and players should be on deck in time for them.

• • • • • •

Orphans put the skids to Fashion-Craft 10-4, in a fair softball melee last p.m. up around Central. Quite a gathering watched the boys ripping it off, with catches by Gillespie and Jones being features. Shine and Simmons did the flinging, with the old veteran going pretty good till the late stages. The Waifs seem determined to get a crack at the playoffs, but the Clothiers appear to be going no place rather rapidly. They started off strong but something went screwy somewhere along the road.

• • • • • •

Keene cuties took Leafs into camp, 24-15 yester p.m. right in their own little softball orchard. A strong finish for the Keenesters plus some loose playing by the Maples gave the home team tre somewhat emphatic nod. Jean Munroe twirled for Keene with A. Sturgeon and G. Mann trying hard for the luckless Leafs. Incidentally, A. Sturgeon massaged the big ball rather roughly with a chunk of ash at the plate, riding the pellet for a homer, triple and double in four corners. One thing about the local lasses' loop, they certainly can hit, even if their pitching, fielding and base-running is still a bit amateurish. Tonight, it's C.G.E. vs. Westclox at the Bowl.

• • • • • •

A local sportsman, in Cobourg over the week-end, chatted to President Andy Leiper of the Cobourg Lacrosse Club. Andy has this and that to say about Cobourg not living up to its schedule, stating he had made it a point to have no Cobourg lacrosse games when some of his players were in ball contests. He also said he notified the locals the day before the game there that his team wouldn't be able to make it. In the meantime, Andy offers to bring his team here any week night for a game, whether exhibition or league, to give Kiwanis a chance for a home gate. The O.A.L.A. has sent word here that Cobourg was out of lacrosse unless this club wanted to give them another chance. The Kiwanis crew should decide on this shortly and either finish their schedule or go into the playoffs with Belleville.

• • • • • •

And from Belleville comes this bunk: "Information tells us that only the Maroons and the Aajmas players were duly and properly signed, so the Maroons would be eligible to get a transfer and play locally as only their two games with the locals would count. At least four Maroon players have signified their intentions of turning out with Belleville, Hendy, Bush, D. Runions and one other—maybe either Whitton or Fred Ingram." Kiwanis have all been signed all along and with their entrance fee paid to the O.L.A.A., and the Peterborough bunch will have something to say about any of the regular Campbellford players turning out with Belleville.

• • • • • •

Grab-bag: Albions went to Warsaw yesterday and took a 17-2 softball decision, Cavanaugh again hurling winning ball on the road . . . . Les Burton may be out of the game all week with a mighty sore arm and shoulder from that line drive he stopped in the Petes' game Sat'day . . . . Spook Scriver is feeling okay since his appendicitis operation but is still some twelve pounds underweight . . . . Lefty Sturgeon is on the road to recovery, too . . . . Bram White of Lindsay has received a transfer to play softball in Galt . . . . The O.A.A.A. has granted permission for these tourneys: Bridgenorth, Aug. 6th, and Peterborough, Sept. 3rd . . . . We'd like to see a junior baseball team organized here for the O.B.A.A. playdowns.

Suspensions Are Lifted On Players

Two soccer players were dealt with at the meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association last night, when Harry Mann made application in writing that he be permitted to play the game, and after careful consideration by the executive, his suspension was lifted. He was immediately registered as a Caledonian player for season 1934.

A. Downer, Canada Packers, was reported by the referee for misconduct on the field of play and ordered off. The official report declared the offence only of minor importance, and the board informed the player that the repetition of such offence will not be tolerated. The next appearance will be severly dealt with by the executive.

A. Frick Resigns.

After handling the soccer games for the last two years, Albert Frick sent in his resignation, to take effect immediately. The reason given was that he was not able to handle the game owing to ill health. His request was accepted with regret.

Frood Mines Tie With Toronto Team

TORONTO, July 24. — Frood Mines, the northern threat for Dominion Cup honors, again held the smooth-working Verdun Park Club, the eastern finalists, to a tie in the semi-final round of the competition at Ulster stadium last night. It was the second game of the present series, both elevens having previously tied after a thrilling encounter on Saturday.

Last night's tilt ended in a one-all deadlock and was stubbornly contested throughout as two well balanced teams tried hard for an opening right from the starting whistle.

Tennis Results

The first round of the men's singles in the City Tenis Championships was run off last evening, with J. Donaldson, G. Kirkwood, H. A. Wilson and J. H. Bell surviving. The latter was something of an upset, the veteran playing a steadier game to nose out a victory over last year's junior champion in three hard sets. J. Donaldson defeated A. Lord, 6-0 and 6-1. Mr. Bell won from J. Cowling, 4-6, 6-3 and 7-5. G. M. Kirkwod defeated A. Ward, 6-3 and 6-3, some smart play being shown in this match. H. A. Wilson turned back R. Maybee, 6-0 and 6-1.

Matches for Wednesday: 5.30 p.m.—J. Donaldson vs. J. H. Bell at Kawartha; Miss B Cutting vs. Miss M. Cowan at Peterborough; the winners of the M. Clarke and J. M. Kirkwood match and the W. Jackson and J. E. T. Langley match tonight at the Peterborough Club; and H. Hammell vs. M. Swartz at Peterborough; 6.30—H. A. Wilson vs. G M Kirkwood at Peterborough; Miss M Donaldson vs. Miss A. Macdonald at Peterborough; R. Friend vs. G. C. Scott.

If rain interferes this evening, to-night's matches will be run off Wednesday, and Wednesday's will take place the following evening.

As more entries have signified their intention of entering the doubles, believing they did not have sufficient notice of the closing date, an extension has been granted for all doubles, entry date closing this coming Saturday.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Number 360

It seems that so many players have the idea about separating the various parts of the swing. You might just as well try to separate the different parts of the body and still make sense of your movements.

For example:

I had one player tell me the other day that he was sure his hip action was all right, it was just his knees that wouldn't bend properly during the swing. Now, it so happens that unless the hips move correctly the knees won't bend properly and vice versa.

The man was literally contradicting himself in his assertion about hip action.

I had him keep his heels on the ground and roll his feet from side to side, thereby bringing about the proper hip action, and much to his surprise his knees gave him no trouble at all. They kept bending correctly as long as his hips moved properly.

Demonstrate this to yourself by following the line about rolling the feet.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 56

Naylor stumbled on blindly. He lost Pointer, he lost the road, and the common, but some crashed into a wooden mon, but how he crashed into a wooden fence, knew that Tor Cottage had one just like it, and groped his way by it to a swing gate. A car stood beside it. It was the cottage. Bent double, he forced his way up the drive. Another car, Etta's car, stood in front of the door. Into the portico he stumbled, and rang. No one answered. He rang again. No reply. He broke the pane of the bow window beside him, and, opening it, jumped in. It was the drawing room. Empty.

What followed was a nightmare. Amid the din of the storm he heard voices calling, Etta's voice, or Mrs. Burnham's, he could not tell which. The electric light was useless owing to a breakdown in the cable: he sturck matches in vain, each time the wind blew them out. Then he was outside, calling Gillian Dundas' name as these other voices seemed to be calling it. The storm seemed to be abating its violence. He could now see the rhododendrons, behind which the hard court was being made. That ghastly word of the chief inspector as to its being the reason for his having come to Tor Cottage. . . . Naylor jumped a bed of flowers and ran. As he fairly flung himself around the end, he saw Mrs. Burnham and the chief inspector struggling together to get something out of a large barrel filled with cement bags. Even as he reached them, they lifted something long . . . difficult to handle. . . . Another moment and Gillian Dundas' body was laid on the ground. There had been a tarpaulin over the barrel, and the cement was dry. It rose in the air, it fell in heaps at the feet of the men, it dropped from Gillian Dundas' white face and fair hair, and fell from her crumpled frock, except where it clung like a big bouquet of crimson flowers at her breast and her back. She had been shot through the heart from the back; the bullet they found afterwards had lodged in an arm which she must have had pressed against her heart to still some transport of fear.

"Dead!" Naylor said hoarsely, his own face nearly as white as that at his feet. "But she's still warm. Still flexible. She's ——"

Pointer had seized Mrs. Burnham. "Did you see any one? Any one? He must have gone round these buildings," She only shook her head. For the moment, she was past speech, but she rushed with him in the direction of his finger. There was no one to be seen. The wind was falling. Behind the shelter of the pavilion he paused.

"Quick, Mrs. Burnham, think quick! Didn't you see any one? At any time in the garden?"

"I saw some one—I think a man—but it was only an outline—no face ——"

Pointer put a hand swiftly into his pocket. He drew out a bulky envelope. His name was on it, in Miss Dundas' smart, small writing—or in his best imitation of her writing.

"Then I must open this. Evidently from its thickness, it contains a full confession from Miss Dundas."

He ran a finger under the flap. She fumbled in her handbag.

Another moment and she was lifted off her feet, her two wrists caught together in Pointer's one hand. Something fell to the ground with a clatter of metal. This was what Naylor saw as he rushed to join in the hunt for the murderer of the girl now growing cold behind him. He was aware of a big-shouldered, tall young man plunging in the same direction. One of Pointer's men evidently. He had a revolver in his hand. As he flung himself round the litsle garden shelter, Pointer fairly tossed Mrs. Burnham to the barrister. "Hold her fast," he called. And Naylor did. The chief inspector leapt past him at the newcomer, the man with the revolver, the man of the studio, the mouthing horror of Westmacott's house. Something clicked. The two went down in a heap. A shot rang out, but the man now twisted and tore at bracelets of steel on his wrists.

"You fool!" There was foam on his lips as he got to his feet and advanced, manacled as he was. "Let we get at her! At the devil who's done this." He was advancing at a rush. Pointer flung him back. "Stand where you are!" he thundered.

"I tried to get at a revolver to threaten him with. I saw him coming. He was aiming straight at you," Mrs. Burnham said. She was holding Naylor's protecting arm, quite as much as he was holding her. 'I brought it to give Gillian—oh, poor, poor Gillian!"

"Why didn't you let me shoot her?" the man who had shot and missed, thanks to Pointer, said savagely.

"Because there's evidently some mistake," Pointer said to that. "Perhaps a mistake all round. This lady befriended Miss Dundas."

"Befriended her! Good God!" The man gnashed his teeth, a thing that Naylor had thought was only a figure of speech. As for Mrs. Burnham, her usually gentle timid eyes were alight with indignation.

"Pray, who are you?" she asked turning to Strange and eyeing him from head to foot.

"One of your creatures"—the man took still another step forward—"just as she was."

"He's mad," Mrs. Burnham said in a tone of pity. "He's raving. I never saw him before. Oh, yes, I have, though." A look of recognition for the first time crossed her face which was very pale, but otherwise looked un troubled. "I know who he is. He's Mr. Jack Westmacott, Mr. Westmacott's mad son who has intervals of sanity, and is mad all the rest of the time. His keeper could identify him. Lady Ida Westmacott can identify him. Miss Dundas pointed him out to me in the park one morning and said he was madly in love with her. Evidently he murdered her because she would have nothing to do with him."

"He certainly sounds mad," Pointer said shortly. "Come, sir, what have you to say against my arresting you on the spot for the murder of Miss Gillian Dundas?"

The man gave a laugh that certainly sounded the maddest thing that Naylor had ever heard.

"You think I murdered my Gilly! Gilly who never had a chance; who couldn't help herself once she got into her hands." He rocked a second on his feet.

"If you didn't murder her, can you give us information as to who did?" Pointer demanded. "Information, Mr. Strange, not rantings. Information that you can swear to, that can be proved?"

"I want to tell you now—everything—I don't want to be able to draw back," Strange said to that, his breath coming in gasps. "I know what I'm saying and the consequences. I only make one bargain with you—get her! Don't let her slip through! They talk against hanging, it's too good for her. And what I say I can prove up to the hilt."

Pointer looked at him keenly. The man's eyes met his firmly. Yes, Strange would tell everything, though he was well aware that it meant penal servitude for himself possibly. Certain of that, Pointer turned to the woman.

"Mrs. Burnham, I arrest you for the murder of John Tait by poison, and of Gillian Dundas by shooting." Followed the usual warning.

"Arrested on that creature's information?" Lucy Burnham asked scornfully. "He's mad. Look at his eyes. Certainly no sane person would believe such a statement."

Naylor felt as though the ground under him rocked. But he noticed that Etta, who seemed to have joined the group, stood behind Mrs. Burnham with a hand out ready to grasp her, if need be.

For Wednesday, July 25

The astrological map for this day holds augury of a sudden precipitation of most unexpected events, involving a change of environment, interests and assocaitions, all of which may be expected to wield a far-reaching effect on the future life. This commotion may be in connection with large corporations, mergers, or secret organizations, or by means of diplomacy, shrewdness or strategy.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of sudden change, with disruption and rearrangement of current interest, contacts and environs.

A child born on this day should have many talents, ambitions and business acumen, but may have a restless, nervous and unsettled temperament.

THEY crackle IN CREAM

THERE'S no other cereal like Kellogg's Rice Krispies. Bubbles of rice so crisp they crackle and pop in milk or cream.

Children, especially, like this fascinating cereal. Wholesome, too—let them eat all they want. Fine for breakfast, lunch, or the kiddies' supper. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

GERMANY IS GOING ON RATIONS AS FOOD SUPPLY IS DIMINISHING

Has No Money—Even Storm Troopers Ravage Country for Food.

UPRISING UNLIKELY.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
[Central Press Canadian Writer]

ALTSTETTEN, July 24. — Food supplies are being seized everywhere by the government in Germany. Production in factories turning out artificial coffee tea, butter and eggs is being speeded up. Coal-tar products such as oil, fats, gruel, etc., are being shipped by the trainloads to the big cities. Importation has come to a standstill. Tickets for bread, for meat, for milk are being printed in the government printing shops. Germany is going on rations, as in war time. Within a few weeks the population will have to line up for its food supply.

The gruesome spectre of hunger menaces the German fatherland. Even the most optimistic predict a catastrophic winter, if no ameliorasion sets, in the meantime. No foreign armies stand at Germany's doors this time. No criminal blockade is about to begin a systematic starvation of German children. No disaster has wiped out the German crops. The Fascist dictatorship, still headed by Herr Adolf Hitler, after knocking down the standard of living to a minimum, after closing thousands of modern kindergartens, popular libraries, evening schools, clinics, social centres, community houses because they were "filthy breeding places of Marxist liberalism," now takes a step ahead and reduces the mass of the people to a starvation level.

There are $3,000,000 marks left in the state bank at his moment of writing, some $2,000,000. Two vessels came into the port of Hamburg this week, the one loaded with lumber from Finland, the other with rubber from the Dutch Indies, both had to leave without unloading. There were not sufficient valuta in all the Hamburg banks combined to pay the bill. Sixteen thousand stevedores and dockworkers stood on the quays waiting for a chance to work, and saw the steamers lift anchor.

Troopers Go Hungry

Bands of discharged and demobilized SA-men are roaming the highways and byways, begging, stealing their way from one town to another. They are not in rebellion. They are hungry. The German press has been ordered to guard silence, silence on the deprivations of these gangs—for the sake of the fatherland's prestige—just as they were not allowed to say a word on the attempted assassination of Hitler and Goering a few weeks ago and only now revealed by the Manchester Guardian's secret correspondent in the reich. When the fuehrer and his lieutenant returned from the cemetery of Schorsheide, bullets whizzed through the windshield of the car preceding them. Four persons were wounded, one killed. The German people know nothing about this incident till this day. All foreign newspapers have been seized the last few weeks upon arrival in the reich. The British ambassador in Berlin must get his London Times and the other English journals through the diplomatic pouch. If papers come by mail they are seized. The consuls and the diplomatic representatives of other countries have the same experience.

Farmers Hard Hit

Meat is 60 per cent. dearer than a year ago. Butter has gone up from 32 cents to 48 cents a pound. Margarine has risen from 12 cents a pound to 26. Danish butter is almost unobtainable. Fruit is 50 per cent. up over last year. Bananas, oranges are hard to get, as well as all other imported fruits. Eggs are 60 per cent. higher. So is milk. Large stores have been laid up by people with money who are in fear of the so-called ersatz-products (artificial substitutes) such as they had to eat during the war. There is great anxiety about the mark. In the rural districts, among the small farmers mute despair reigns.

But there is a mighty upswing in the chemical business and in the armament industry. Krupp in Essen took on 20,000 new hands in June alone. That firm declared a 21 per cent. dividend for the first quartter of 1934. All liquid funds in Germany are spent on the acquisition of raw materials abroad. For the rest business is almost at a standstill. Department stores are deserted. Yet their owners are not allowed to close. Twenty million Germans are indigent, says the Konjunktur Forschung bulletin for June. That's one-third of the population of the reich.

Actresses Get Cars

But Herr Gering's new residence of 30 rooms is nearly completed. The furniture has been ordered in Sweden—rustic, old Scandinavian style. Fourteen actresses were surprised with a handsome Mercedes limousine by the generous general during the last few months. Hitler has issued a decree saying that the drinking orgies of his staff officers, which cost 20,000 marks a week in Berlin alone, must stop—after 17 months. "I want men in charge, not ridiculous monkeys" he says.

The great German people are a martyred people. They are also a long-suffering people. Respect for authority and civic discipline is deeply rooted in the population.

Such is, in the rough, the situation after 17 months of he Nazi regime. As to the political situation, it is more uncertain than ever. Combined, the two make life extremely difficult in Germany. People dare not talk openly of public affairs. Even at home a man is not safe. There are shoppers and spies everywhere. Punishment for listening in to a foreign news broadcast—any foreign broadcast—has been doubled, two years's imprisonment. Since the German newspapers do not comment on home affairs, confining themselves to Doctor Goebbels' bulletins and manifestoes, in which millions have no confidence whatever, the German people know far less about events in their own country than a man in some distant nook of North America who reads a newspaper and listens to the radio.

No Uprising Likely

Yet there is little likelihood of an uprising. The repressional apparatus is so perfect that any demonstration would turn into a massacre. At this more than 900 of the demobilized storm troop districts have refused to give up their arms. Or rather they have not refused, they have cached them. Systematic searches for hidden arms depots are going on in many cities. They are carried out by Herr Goering's black police. So far, I am reliably informed, only 20 machine guns have been found. Five hundred and fifty are still missing and many thousands of rifles, plus 3,000,000 revolvers.

Of course, the tourist notices very little. To him everything appears normal, a few patrols here and there in the streets, a sentinel before this door, before that door, he sees very little. But no tourists go into the popular quarters, nor are the Germans so foolish as to talk to you unless they know you. With the masses conversation in any language but German is out of the question. Germans speaking English usually belong to the upper classes. They and hotel keepers, restaurateurs, editors who are afraid that any criticism of the government may become known, repeat the official assurances that everything "wird bald recht kommen" (will soon be all right). Their testimony is positively worthless in so far the serious inquirer is concerned.

Journalists Murdered

When you see two black police sentinels standing in front of a villa in the suburbs of Munich and you are told: "This is the house of a high official of the reichswehr" you know that it is a lie if you are acquainted in Munich and that the house is in fact occupied by the mother and sister of Captain Roehm and that nobody is allowed to approach. When you haven't known Dr. Carl Beck, the director of foreign students' hostels in Munich, personally you may believe the official communique that he was executed for being in league with subversive elements abroad, but you know that those subversive elements abroad were the Y.M.C.A. and the Federation of Churches of Christ in America. When they say to you Dr. Erich Klausener, the leader of the Catholic Action, committed suicide and the vatican denies this bitterly, you know the vatican is right. For when the relatives of this quiet, distinguished man whom I interviewed in 1932, came to claim his body they were told it had been cremated. Heaping insult on injury! But now there is no more chance to determine how he died.

"How are your friends in Munich" I asked a Swiss newspaperman.

"Karstner has disappeared. Ossiebaum was found in a ditch, his body riddled with bullets. Krause was fished up from the Wiesse with his hands tied around his neck. Muentzer has not been seen for two weeks."

"And the others?"

"The others dare not speak to each other. They pass one another in the streets without greeting!" he said.

ADJOURN INQUIRY TO CALL EXPERT ON DYNAMITING

feet apart, had been drilled to a depth of four feet, and were about an inch and a half in diameter. "Springing" meant the enlarging of these holes by light explosions of dynamite to enable the drillers to extend their work to a further depth. Mr. Tait was assisted by F. T. Flynn, a youth who in the camp phraseology was acting "powder monkey." He was seriously injured and is still in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mr. Tait's practice from the time he had started as a powder man on May 11 was to attach a fuse and percussion cap to half a piece of dynamite, drop it in the hole which was to be "sprung", then tamp sand around the dynamite to give it weight or purchase in the resulting explosion.

Leo McAuliffe of Peterborough, who was "mucking" on the afternoon of the accident, amplified Mr. Stewart's evidence, and the composite story indicated what had occurred. The pieces of fuse used in "springing" were about a foot and a half long, and would burn probably three minutes before reaching the percussion cap.

Mr. Tait apparently lighted the fuse on the first charge, dropped the dynamite and fuse into the hole, quickly tamped it, then lighted the second charge, gave the signal to the other men nearby warning them that an explosion was about to take place. He dropped the second charge into the hole that had been drilled for it, and then started to tamp in some sand this charge exploded in his face as he bent over the hole. He managed to get up, and staggered about fifteen or twenty feet away, when he collapsed unconcious and mortally hurt. Nearly a minute later the first charge went off.

Short Fuse Saved Time.

Mr. Kerr asked Mr. Stewart why a longer fuse was not used in this work.

Mr. Stewart replied that he understood the powder men preferred the short fuse because it saved time.

Mr. Kerr—If a fuse five and a half feet had been used, the accident might have been avoided?

Mr. Stewart—It might have.

Witness said he didn't think there was any consideration of economy in using a fuse only eighteen inches long.

Mr. Stewart explained that when a powder man was required for the road work application was made to the Provincial Department of Northern Development who sent men experienced in the handling of explosives.

"The method of handling the dynamite was left to the powder man. He had more experience in that than I had. I had seen Mr. Tait preparing for other explosions, and his method was the general practice I had seen. He was hired as an experienced man, and he told me that he had been handling dynamite for several years.

To Mr. Kerr's question as to whether a different practice might be recommended in the interest of safety, Mr. Stewart said he might suggest longer fuse and the discharging of the caps by electricity.

Witness said he could not explain what had caused the premature explosion.

"My theory is, and it may be entirely wrong, that when Mr. Tait dropped the second charge into its hole the burning end of the fuse might have set off the dynamite when he started to tamp in the sand."

Mr. Stewart added that there was also the possibility of a defect in the fuse. He had heard powder men say that sometimes there were spaces in the fuse where there was no powder, that the fire jumped such a gap, causing an explosion sooner than would be anticipated according to the length of fuse. A defect of that kind could not be detected from the exterior of the fuse, Mr. Stewarts said.

J. R. Hill, juryman, asked whether there was any system of inspecting the fuse at the camp.

Mr. Stewart said he did not know of any, and could not suggest how inspection might be made.

Mr. Kerr—Could the powder man determine whether there was a gap in the powder in the fuse?

Mr. Stewart—I don't think so.

Witness said there was an electric battery in the camp which was used when five or six holes were to be blasted. The fuse was resorted to for blowing individual holes.

C. S. Tanner, juryman—Is a dynamite man required to have any certificate or papers from the Department?

Mr. Stewart—I don't think so.

Rendered First Aid.

H. T. Armstrong, Lakefield, clerk of the camp, said his duties included the rendering of first aid. He reached the place of the accident with his medicine kit in about five to seven minutes. He found Mr. Tait to be critically injured. Both hands were badly shattered, the face burned by the flaming powder, and the tamping stick which Tait had been using was imbedded five or six inches in his body about an inch above the collar bone.

"I dressed his hands, packed the chest wound, and did all I could to relieve him until the ambulance came. He did not speak, but was still breathing heavily when he was removed in the ambulance."

Mr. Armstrong said that Tait had begun work at the camp on May 11.

Dr. E. H. Moore of Lakefield described Tait's injuries, stating that the deceased was about fifty years old, and died at the hospital a few minutes after being received there without recovering consciousness.

Other witnesses were Mr. McCarthy; Arthur Jolley of Peterborough, driller; Earl Nicholls, Campbellford, driller; G. W. Clark, Havelock; Archie Keith, Oshawa; Leo McAuliffe; Howard McMaster Havelock, driller; Wm. Donald, Campbellford; Robert Rickard, Hastings, driller.

Most of the camp workmen did not witness the accident. They had started to run toward the "clear." They all said that the explosion occurred sooner than they had expected on hearing the warning.

Provincial Constable Silvester was the last witness. He said he had experience in the use of dynamite in road building in the Yukon. He believed that it was safer to tamp in the dynamite before the fuse was lighted, and also that a longer fuse than 18 inches seemed advisable.

Mr. Kerr in concluding the evening session told the jury he would ask the Department of Northern Development to send an expert in the use of dynamite to give evidence next Monday night, and also that if Pat Flynn was sufficiently recovered he would be called as an eye-witness of the fatality.

WOMAN IN RED SAID BETRAYER

ment of the reward until after his return from the mid-Pacific.

The "girl in red" and a woman companion were reported by the Chicago police to be held, but the Federal agents denied this.

Other reports mentioned the names of two convicts who might have given the authorities the "tip of death." From them, the reports said, Sergeant Martin Zarkovich of the East Chicago, Ind., police might have received the information that Dillinger could be found at the theatre. In this connection it was regarded as significant that the sergeant and several other East Chicago policemen were on the scene of Dillinger's death.

New Drive On.

The end of Dillinger, Federal authorities said, is but the beginning of a new and highly organized drive to capture other members of the Dillinger mob, especially George (Baby Face) Nelson, also known as Lester Gillis.

Detroit police were reported looking for Nelson on the theory that a motor car that figured in a Detroit holdup was used by him in escaping from Sandusky, O.

While the speculation over the "tip off" was at its height, the morbidly curious had their chance to satisfy their longing for a look at Dillinger's body. From early Sunday night on they turned the Cook County morgue into a lively spot, jamming in to see the man who brought terror to the Middle West.

What they saw was a body, tilted on an angle of 45 degrees in a glass cage. On each big toe was a tab, labelled "Dillinger."

There was so much pushing and shoving among the crowds that Deputy Coroner Jacob M. Schewel had to shout a warning that no more spectators would be permitted to view the body until they behaved.

"We'll behave," they shouted, and another throng marched forward to see JoJhn Dillinger in death.

SAFETY SPEED COMFORT SERVICE

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

Increased use of Railways Means Greater Prosperity for all.

During 1933, the Canadian National Railway System, with its 23,750 miles of track and 4,954 stations or depots (386 of which are in the United States), carried 31,000,000 tons of freight and 9,434,000 passengers. Of the freight, 5,000,000 tons consisted of grain. It paid 76,000 employees $95,000,000 in wages.

These figures clearly demonstrate the important public service rendered by this system—service which continues all the year round under all conditions. In many cases the C.N.R. was the only agency available for its performance, and of course much of the service was of an indispensable nature.

The fidelity of the service provided and its importance are sufficient reasons for Canadians giving the C.N.R. all the patronage possible. There are, however, other inducements, not the least of which is the fact that the welfare of railways is so indissolubly bound up with the prosperity of the country that in using them the whole community is being helped to better times.

The C.N.R. is equipped to provide the maximum in comfort, safety and efficiency. You should use it for all transportation purposes. The present season of the year provides many tempting opportunities for using C.N.R. facilities.

Railways provide special summer fares and excursions. You should enquire about them.

DOLLFUSS SLAIN IN NAZI PUTSCH

Relief Problem Discussed by Mayors

Whole Cabinet Held Prisoners In Chancellory

Death Threatened Captive Ministers If Attack Made, As Regular Austrian Army And Home Guard Surround Chancellory—10 Slain In Street Fighting And Retaking Of Government Radio Station.

ANTON RINTELN HAILED NEW CHANCELLOR DETAILS CEASE, WIRES TO LONDON, PARIS CUT

LONDON, July 25.—(AP)—An Exchange Telegraph agency dispatch from Praha today said it was officially announced at 7:45 p.m. at the Austrian legation that Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria was dead.

At the end of four hours of mad excitement, Vienna civilians at the chancellery cried

"Dollfuss is dead!"

They had just left the building into which a group of Nazis had smashed and from which a police commissioner had been shot and seriously wounded in a struggle. There was no way of getting into the Chancellor to confirm or disprove the report.

(Telephone communication between Vienna and the outside world was broken off shortly after the ultimatum deadline calling for release of Dollfuss).

At least six men (reports received in London said 10) were reported killed in the street fighting which immediately flared up in Vienna and at other points in Austria.

At Klagenfurst, early reports said that President Miklas had been taken into custody by federal soldiers, but subsequent developments made it appear likely that the soldiers had been acting as a guard.

Serious Outlook

The reaction in other European capitals was a definite shock.

In Paris, official circles said that France had looked upon Dollfuss as the best possible government leader to preserve peace in Eastern Europe. Since France has allied herself with Austria under the Dollfuss government, fear was expressed that his overthrow, if true might create international complications.

Chancellor Captured.

(By Wade Werner—A.P. Foreign Staff).

VIENNA, July 25 (A.P.).—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, the little dictator, who ruled Austria for two years, was reported by a police commissioner to-day to have been shot and seriously wounded in the course of a Nazi "putsch" to capture the government of Austria. The police officer said Dollfuss has resigned.

Dollfuss was imprisoned in the Federal Chancellery by the Nazis. The Police Commissioner said he was wounded in fighting which went on inside the building.

The loyal Fascist Heimwehr and Federal troops poured into the Ballhausplatz—the great square in front of the Chancellery—as conflicting reports circulated throughout the city.

The battling Prince Ernest Von Starhemberg, head of the Heimwehr and Vice-Chancellor of Austria, escaped from the Nazi captors and immediately organized his own counteraction. A diplomat in touch with him declared the Prince had sent an ultimatum to the Nazi leaders of the troops, declaring that Dollfuss and the other Cabinet Ministers held captive must be released at once or the army would attack the Chancellery.

In the four hours from the time the "putsch" was launched, Vienna had experienced one half-hour of machine-gun fighting and several pistol affrays.

Dollfuss' Capture

One of the most widely accepted stories of how the Nazis captured Dollfuss was as follows: He, with Emil Fey, Minister of Public Security and Minister Karwinsky, were captured by the Nazis disguised as Heimwehr and army officers who forced their way into the chancellor's office.

Previously, 300 similarly disguis-

POLICE SEEKING YOUNG COUPLES FOR QUESTIONING

Robert Meharry Case Proving Most Baffling to Police Authorities.

POST MORTEM HELD.

Believe Man Was Mortally Injured Before Midnight on Monday.

Solution of the mystery connected with the violent death of Robert Meharry, 66-year-old widower whose lifeless body was found on a deserted avenue at the western limits of the city early Tuesday morning is still being sought by city police.

The case which has all the earmarksof murder is providing a baffling problem for the authorities. Chief Newhall, in charge of investigations is understood to be working on the theory that Meharry became involved in a fight with someone who thought he was being watched. The locality is a favorite spot with courting couples.

Two Couples Sought

Such theory is supported in view of information which has been volunteered to police by an observer who is reported on reliable authority to have furnished a good description of two couples who were seen walking in the vicinity of the spot at which the dead body of Meharry was subsequently found at nine thirty o'clock on Monday evening.

While the Chief would neither deny nor confirm the report, it is learned by The Examiner that P. McFadden, former Peterborough resident, now residing at Toronto, who is here on a visit, noticed a man lying back of the clump of bushes adjacent to the spot where Monday, August 6 was designated as Civic Holiday by the council last night. Ald. Macdonald's motion, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, carried the further decision that hereafter the August holiday shall be the first Monday in the month.

In dispensing with the District Officers of Health, the Hepburn government has relieved the city of the cost of maintaining the office, including the salary of a stenographer whose duties terminated here last week. The council gave the stenographer a month's salary to August 31. Her remuneration by the year was $702.

City Engineer Parsons and Alderman Stocker, as chairman of the Board of Health were authorized to attend the convention of the Sanitary Engineers' Association in Toronto.

OUTLAW'S LAST HOURS RELATED BY "GIRL IN RED"

Admits Dillinger Played Cards at Her House With Divorcee on Fatal Night

VICTIM SUGGESTED SHOW.

Knew Desperado as Jimmy Lawrence, Chicago Board Trade Employee.

CHICAGO, July 25 (A.P.).—From the "girl in red" police learned today more about how John Dillinger walked into the trap that ended with death his career of crime.

The "girl in red," one of the two women who were with the Indiana outlaw just before he was killed by Federal bullets, was Mrs. Anna Sage, 42, brown-haired and brown-eyed.

Police arrested her last night at her home just around the corner from the Biograph Theatre, out of which Dillinger walked unsuspectingly Sunday night to his death.

Mrs. Sage told police she knew John Dillinger as "Jim Lawrence," and that he posed as an employee of the Chicago Board of Trade.

From the "girl in red," after long questioning by th police came the story of the last woman Dillinger associated with, named by Mrs. Sage as Mrs. Roy Keele, 26-year-old divorced wife of a Gary, Ind., policeman—of how Dillinger spent his time just prior to the fatal shooting, and of how he said he went to New York recently "on a business trip."

He was also reported to have witnessed a Chicago baseball game.

A Secret.

But it was not learned whether Mrs. Sage or Mrs. Keele furnished the information with which Dillinger was trapped.

Secrecy the government agents threw around the affair still persisted, and it could not be learned whether either woman will make any claim to the $15,000 rewards that hung over the public enemy's head.

Mrs. Sage admitted, the police said, that Dillinger had been in her apartment "three or four evenings," but denied reports, previously circulated, that he had roomed there. She said she was well acquainted with Sergeant Martin Zarkovich of the East Chicago force, who has been credited in some reports as the man who trailed Dillinger down.

The "girl in red" told Captain John Stege that Dillinger came to

REEVES, MAYORS MEET MINISTER IN CONFERENCE

Suggestions Galore Are Given Minister of Public Welfare.

MUNICIPALITY VIEWS.

Western Section of Province Supports System Cash Payments.

TORONTO, July, 25, (CP). — Suggestions galore with regard to the handling of unemployment relief showered on Hon. David Croll, Ontario Minister of Public Welfare to-day, when he met more than 200 mayors and reeves of municipalities in conference. As Mr. Croll is still mayor of Windsor, he was in familiar surroundings for he has taken a prominent part in previous gatherings of Ontario municipal heads.

The government's idea in calling a conference was to get the views of the municipalities before formulating its own relief policy on which it will stand at the Dominion-Provincial conference at Ottawa on July 30.

In setting the conference under way Mr. Croll said it would be no shock to municipal heads if he referred to the relief problem as a more or less permanent one. Most of the mayors who spoke joined in this view although some thought unemployment could be ended by various means. Some suggested work in exchange for relief. Some believed in providing work on public construction at fair wages, others talked of lower tariffs, minimum wage laws, elimination of unfair business methods and other things as way out of the economic dilemma.

The meeting will continue all day. It adjourned at noon for a two hour lunch interval.

Sharp difference of opinion over the deirability of providing relief in cash payments instead of the present voucher system appeared. Mayor P. J. Nolan of Ottawa was the chief opponent of the cash system which had somewhat general support from Western Ontario municipal heads.

A Chance Never Had Before

The gathering presented an opportunity never before given in Ontario for the mayors to get their views before the government said Mayor George Wenige of London. He presented a number of resolu-

Letha Martin, aged 9 years, of 277 Bethune street, sustained painful injuries when struck by an automobile at the George and Charlotte street intersection at noon to-day.

The car, driven by Howard Clegg, of 194 Stewart street, was stated to have been proceeding west on Charlotte street with the lights in favor of the driver, when the child darted from the sidewalk in the pathway of the vehicle. Clegg picked the child up and rushed her to the Standard Medical and Surgical Clinic, where her injuries were attended. The child received a cut on the right side of her head and abrasions on her legs. Her condition is not regarded as being at all serious.

Winona Man Stung Fatally By Hornets

WINONA, July 25. (CP).—Stung on the face and neck by hornets, Adam Miletich, Winona, died within a few minutes of being attacked by the insects. Miletich and his wife were working on the side of the mountain near here yesterday when he was attacked by the swarm of hornets as he was cutting up a fallen tree for firewood.

Miletich evidently had an extreme susceptibility to wasps' poison, as a year ago, he was stung on the finger and lay between life and death in hospital for several weeks. As soon as he was stung yesterday, he told his wife that it was going to kill him and to get him home as soon as possible. Before he had travelled more than a few paces, he fell unconscious. Medical aid was summned, but he died before a doctor reached his side.

GROCERY STORES CLOSED UP TIGHT

City Council Passes By-law Requested by Required Number of Grocerymen.

STRONG OPPOSITION.

Compulsory closing of all grocery and butcher shops in the city on Wednesday afternoons during the months of June, July and August becomes effective after August 8 in accordance with petitions from both groups of merchants which were implemented by by-law at last night's special meeting of the council.

Mayor Denne explained to a deputation of twelve protesting grocers from the outlying wards that the petitions were properly signed, and as a result of that fact the council had no option but to pass the by-law which carries permanent force unless the statute is changed by the Legislature of the province.

The enabling law required that the petitions be signed by not less than three-quarters of the merchants affected. The signatures of the petitions had been carefully examined, and all the legal conditions had been fulfilled. Of sixty-five grocers fifty-two had signed, and the other petition bore the names of twenty-one out of twenty-eight butchers.

Most of the grocers who objected to the by-law have licenses to sell tobacco, ice cream and soft drinks. They pointed out that in closing their grocery departments they have to forego this additional business because it is carried on in the same stores. The law demands that the grocery shops shall be closed from 12.30 p.m. on the summer Wednesdays until 5.30 a.m. on the following Thursdays.

Ald. Fitzpatrick remarked that ice cream and soft drinks could still be sold by these grocers if they provided a separate accommodation for this business. He also stated that the grocers in the outlying Five Match Series for Historic Court Trophy Will Start on Saturday.

WIMBLEDON, July 25. — (AP)—Sidney B. Wood, Jr., and Frank X. Shields, playing magnificient tennis, today won the final two singles matches from Australia in the inter zone final of Davis Cup play to advance to the challenge round against England.

Wood first defeated Jack Crawford, ace of the Aussies, 6-3, 9-7, 4-6, 6-2 in a match postponed from yesterday by rain and Shields then put over the clincher against Young Vivian McGrath, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

They meet England for the historic cup in a five match series starting Saturday and continuing next Monday and Tuesday.

The slender New Yorker made a magnificent rally after dropping the third and fourth sets to blast the big Annac off the court and leave the decision to the encounter between Frank X. Shields and Vivian McGrath.

Leading 3-0 in sets when rain interrupted the play yesterday Sidney started out unsteadily to drop the first two sets today, losing four straight games in each before rallying, but he attacked with a ferocity in the final set that Crawford could not match.

HOTELS AWAIT BEER LICENSES

Commission's Tardiness In Issuing Permts is Criticized.

SELL OUT AT EMPRESS.

The five other local hotels which have applied to the Liquor Commission for authority to sell beer and wine by the glass were still waiting for licenses at noon today while the Empress Hotel continued its rushing trade. Occasional criticism of the Commission's tardiness was to be heard.

Confident that it is merely a matter of time until the licenses arrive, however, the work of renovating the beverage rooms in the several hotels was carried on by the managements with undiminished optimism. With the exception of the Empress, none of the hotels began seriously the work of refitting the old beverage room until Monday.

A crowd which packed the Empress beer room to the doors last night drank the hotel dry by 11.15 o'clock. The management had put in a supply calculated to last three days but sold the last available drink of the foamy beverage three-quarters of an hour before the legal closing time. While the number of 'repeal night" drinkers was large, they acted in an orderly manner at all times. Few evidences of intoxication in any degree were to be seen.

A number of women patrons were served with beer in the grill room facilities of the hotel last night. Although the Empress has the necessary licenses for selling both beer and wine in the dining room, it has not yet stocked wine. The demand for beer from dining room patrons has been light.

With the permit requirement abolished, the Brewery Warehouse did a heavy business all day yesterday. The rush compared with some of the heavier pre-holiday demands.

One-fifth the children recently examined in Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, were found to be suffering from malnutrition.

SHOWERS FORECAST.

Rain Urgently Needed as Drought Conditions Prevail in Many Areas.

(By Canadian Press.)

Ontario sweltered again to-day as thermometers reached the 90-or-better mark and seemed headed for record heights. The Border Cities area seemed to hold the unofficial championship, for yesterday's mark of 104 degrees appeared doomed for failure before noon as the mercury steadily climbed.

At Toronto, it was 75 early in the day, and the weathermen said it would be hotter before nightfall. It was 87 at Kitchener and getting worse. Brantford reported 92 in the shade and St. Catharines was "getting warmer."

Prospects of showers over lower Ontario to-night brought a promise of relief. Drought conditions prevail in many areas, and rain is urgently needed.

In the district surrounding Sault Ste Marie, anxious fire-fighters are watching the skies, for 47 forest fires have been reported in the last week.

Sitting Here for Years if Evidence Permitted Commissioner Declares.

BEAUHARNOIS BONDS.

TORONTO, July 25 (C.P.). — The Royal Commission inquiring into the purchase by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission of assets of the Ontario Power Service Corporation decided to-day not to include in its probe question of dealings by firms with which Hydro Commissioners were associated in securities of other companies having contracts with Hydro for sale of power.

The issue was brought up when Arthur G. Slaght, Hydro Commission chairman, sought to introduce evidence regarding dealings in Beauharnois Power Corporation bonds by Mr. Meighen's companies. Chief Justice F. R. Latchford, charman, and Hon. Robert Smith, commissioner, agreed the question was too remote to the main inquiry to merit consideration.

If the Commission were to consider questions as remote as that, Mr. Justice Latchford said, "we shall be sitting here for years, and I have no intention of sitting here for that length of time."

Mr. Slaght started to introduce evidence regarding dealings in O.P. S.C. bonds by firms with which Senator Meigher was associated and will probably continue to do so during the afternoon session.

Drug-Crazed Bandit Suspect Arrested in Winnipeg

BANDIT FACING MURDER COUNT AFTER SHOOTING

Winnipeg Police Sergeant Succumbs to Wounds Late Yesterday.

GUNMAN, DRUG-CRAZED.

WINNIPEG, July 25:—(CP)— A drug-crazed bandit suspect who killed a police sergeant in a gun battle near the city's business district faced a charge of murder today. Victim of the gunman's bullets, Sergeant John Verne, of the St. Boniface police force, succumbed to wounds late yesterday.

The suspect was identified as George Jayham, alias Shea, 35-year-old gangster suspect from Vancouver. He will appear before Magistrate R. B. Graham for preliminary hearing later today.

The officer slain was shot down when he encountered the alleged bandit after an automobile chase of more than a mile through the industrial section as he forced his quarry to the curb to question him concerning a drug store holdup the suspect fired.

Two bullets found their mark. Ripped through the abdomen they caused grave internal injuries that resulted in fatal hemorrhages.

Verne was immediately rushed to hospital. Meanwhile the gunman continued his wild flight.

Constable G. W. Rockey came upon the slayer as he raced through the business section of the city, 10 blocks from the scene of the shooting. When the police closed in, Jayham dropped his revolver and surrendered.

According to police Jayham has a long police record having served time in Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Illinois and Iowa. He is alleged to have escaped from the Davenport penitentiary in 1932 by sawing through the bars. He was deported to Canada in 1933 and later arrested at Windsor and charged with theft.

Jayham is believed to be the drug-crazed bandit who victimized local druggists for more than a

HYDRO INQUIRY IS CONTINUING

Cooke Fails to Recall Details of Contract With Hudson Bay Company.

EXTRA WEEK OF SESSIONS.

TORONTO, July 25 (C.P.)—The Ontario Royal Commission probe of the Ontario Power Service Corporation bond exchange deal with the Hydro Electric Commission resumed to-day with prospect of further delving into an early contract involving a power-purchase by the Commission before the existence of the O.P.S.C. under that name.

When yesterday's session ended J. R. Cooke, former chairman of the Hydro Commission was answering questions of J. C. McRuer, K.C., Hydro Commission counsel, regarding a power-purchase contract with the former Hudson Bay Power Company which was not fulfilled.

Mr. McRuer asked why the Hydro Commission had consented to buy from the Hudson Bay Power Company 100,000 horsepower, including 35,000 which it was to have resold to the Abitibi Electric Development Company, sister concern of the power company and subsidiary of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company.

Mr. Cooke did not remember details of negotiations leading to the contract but recalled no power was delivered under it and that since the Hydro Commission had administered the O.P.S.C. which the Hudson Bay Power concern later became, it had sought unsuccessfully to collect money for power the Abitibi Electrical Company contracted to take but did not use.

It was indicated yesterday the sessions would be terminated at the end of next week.

HOTEL BEVERAGE ROOMS FILLED ON OPENING DAY

Many Sold Out — Numerous Towns Disappointed as Authority Held Up.

NO DISTURBANCES.

Rev. Ben Spence Renews Crusade—Says 40 p.c. Toronto Drinkers Women.

It was still opening day in many Ontario centres for hotels serving their first beer by the glass under the Government's new liquor legislation, but in the greater section of the Province, drinking of beers and wines in authorized places had become an accepted fact.

Guelph and Port Colborne were among the places inaugurating the new service after crowds waited in vain all yesterday. Even Ottawa received its authority to make the sale only last night, and residents, made all the more thirsty by their disappointment, waited until nearly midnight to get their first legal drink of beer or wine in an Ontario hotel room since 1917.

Generally, hotel keepers reported busy but uneventful times. No disturbances were revealed, and in some sections bartenders said little enthusiasm had been shown by the residents.

The greater rush came in the evening, and men and women crowded the beverage and dining rooms, drinking dry the supply of draught beer, and in many places that offered in bottles. Sale by the bottle at 20 cents a pint was the popular "set-up" in the cities, though some places served it as low as 15 cents.

Spence Reviews Crusade

Newspapers made little mention of any intoxication, but Ben H. Spence, the clergyman who devoted his time to fighting the "liquor evil" came back last night, prepared to re-open his crusade for prohibition.. After travelling around to the larger hotels in Toronto, he said:

"I saw conditions I had hoped would never be witnessed in my native city of Toronto. I remember the old bar-room wth its maudlin smells, but it was largely a masculine proposition. These new beverage rooms with their mixed crowds out-revel the old bar. Fully 40 per cent of the drinkers in the Royal York and King Edward Hotels were women, mostly indeed mere girls.

"I have renewed my vows of hostility to the whole damnable liquor traffic."

Government officials kept a close eye on the situation, and Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn expressed satisfaction the government's intention of starting the sale off quietly and cautiously had been met with the approval of both hotel men and the public.

Wide areas of the province remained dry under local option privilege, and sale was confined to areas which had not voted against liquor prior to the coming into effect of general prohibition through Ontario in 1917.

Myers Is Committed Negligence Charge

LINDSAY, July 25 (Special to The Examiner). — Robert Myres, a young man living on Francis Street, was yesterday arraigned before Police Magistrate Jordan, charged with negligence in connection with the death of Jack Fowler on June 30. Sufficient evidence was adduced to commit Myres to trial at the next Court of Competent Jurisdiction. Later on in the day bail of $5,000 was arranged before Judge McGibbon. Evidence at the preliminary trial was given by Traffic Officer Massingham and by the driver of a Peterborough car, who was the first at the scene of the accident. Fowler was riding a motorcycle at the time, while Myers was driving a gasoline truck.

CAMPBELLFORD "PIG" RAIDED

Local Man Charged With Town Resident Under Violations of L.C.A.

IN COURT THURSDAY.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 25.—As the result of a police raid on a Campbellford residence late Saturday night, two men will appear before Magistrate Davidson in Cobourg Police Court on Thursday morning, faced with charges under the Liquor Control Act. They are: Crawford Ibey of Campbellford, charged with selling liquor, and Walter Edgar of Peterborough who is charged with buying liquor from other than a government vendor. Provincial Police Constable Gordon Campbell of Cobourg laid the charges.

Watching the house of Ibey on Rear street Saturday evening, Chief Constable George Hardy of Campbellford, with Officer Campbell, County Constable Robert Kelly of Warkworth, Chief Constable Bain of Trenton, and Provincial Officer Irwin of Belleville, saw a car drive away from the house.

The officers immediately followed the car and at the English Church Hill stopped it and made a search, finding liquor. An attempt was made to destroy the evidence, one bottle being smashed before the officers could retrieve it. Edgar was the driver of the car. Immediately the police returned to the Ibey residence where they confiscated liquor, the charge laid against the two men following. The raid took place just before midnight.

HYDRO, LIQUOR DEPARTMENTS ARE SWITCHED

Roebuck Will Be Over Former, Hepburn as Treasurer Over Latter.

WORKS OFFICIAL OUSTED.

TORONTO July 25.—(C.P.)—Effecting a major shift in ministerial duties the Ontario Government has transferred the Hydro-Electric Commission from the Prime Minister's Department to the Attorney-General's Department and the Liquor Control Board from the Attorney-General's Department. The effect of the change is that Premier Mitchell Hepburn and Hon. Arthur Roebuck exchange responsibility for these two institutions which are separate from, though linked with, the government, as Mr. Hepburn is provincial treasurer.

Shortly after the government took office, Mr. Roebuck was made a member of the Hydro Commission. Hitherto the government member of the commission has been a minister without portfolio, who used the facilities and staff of the Prime Minister's Department. The change will simplify matters for Mr. Roebuck and as the Liquor Board is a big revenue producer for the government, felt it would not be out of place under the Treasury Department.

The "big parade" of dismissed civil servants continued yesterday with the Deputy Minister of Public Works, George Hogarth, being dismissed and replaced by Chester S. Walters of Ottawa, at a lower salary.

The government also dismissed an official they could not find, according to Premier Hepburn. He was Edwin C. Guillet, histrographer in the Department of Education. Mr Hepburn said he was appointed June 18 last, took his place in the department and then went on holidays. "We are going to give him a long holiday now," said the Premier.

COUNCIL FAILS TO PASS BY-LAW FOR HILL PARK

Aldermen McIntyre and Tuggey Oppose Purchase of McBain Acres.

$800 FOR EIGHT ACRES

Proposed Enlargement of Memorial Park on Armour Hill.

Opposition by Aldermen Tuggey and McIntrye, the absence of Alderman Ellis and Alderman Sloan's declining to vote, combined to cause the defeat at last night's special meeting of the Council of a by-law authorizing the City Trust Commission to purchase for $800 eight adjoining acres for the extension of the memorial park on Armour Hill, which has been established by the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic Association.

The by-law required the affirmation of two-thirds of the members of the Council, and failed by one vote to secure sufficient vote. It was supported by Mayor Denne, Aldermen Cotton, Stocker, Holland, Hamilton, Fitzpatrick and Macdonald. Eight votes were needed for the by-law's approval, but last night it mustered only seven.

In objecting to the purchase of the McBain acres, Ald. McIntyre said that the responsibility rested with the Council, although the money was provided from the funds of the City Trust Commission.

"This property adjoins a memorial park over which we have no control," he continued. "It can be bought any time cheaper than we would pay for it now. We have to watch our dollars at this time, for we don't know what is ahead."

Alderman Tuggey said the eight acres were useless for building purposes.

"When the people have a hard time," he added, "furnishing the money for the legitimate purposes of the city I think we should move cautiously in buying this or any other property. We should leave it alone at the present time It is no use to the parties who own it, and if they got $800 for useless property it would be well sold."

Mayor Denne's Support

"The ladies of the Ashburnham Association were patriotic enough to raise the money to buy the park as it now stands," said Mayor Denne. "They did this by teas, and socials and bridge parties. There is no one here who has not been up on that hill, and citizens who have visitors take them up to that park because of the splendid view of the city and country. I might say that the ladies are coming here to enter into an agreement to carry on as an advisory board. They have planted 12,000 trees, and it won't be long until they will be a great beauty to that part of the city. The $800 will not affect taxpayers. It is money the City Trust Commission has made on the purchase and reselling of bonds."

Ald. McIntyre—Still it is our money.

Mayor Denne—If we bought the eight acres and planted 10,000 more trees, level the top of the hill making room for the parking of fifty to one hundred cars, the park would be greatly improved, and some day would be a valuable asset to Peterborough. If the money were coming out of this year's estimates, it would be a different matter. We should remember that the ladies have established the park by their own efforts, and I think they are deserving of support. They plan a driveway from Hunter street down to MacFarlane avenue, as there is an outlet from the McBain property.

Ald McIntyre—A few years ago the Trust Commission handed the council $16,000 which kept a mill off the rate. If they spend money on a park, it does affect our taxes as any school boy can see.

Other Approval.

Ald. Fitzpatrick said he had every confidence in the City Trust Commission and its chairman. They had handled the city's affairs well, and if they were in favor of the purchase it was as a result of the council's request that they give it their consideration. Ald. Fitzpatrick said he remembered when the first price quoted was $3,000.

Ald. Holland emphasized the point that the memorial park was a place of beauty that had cost the city practically nothing. Until the ladies of Ashburnham had visualized the hill as a park it had long been neglected, but was now appreciated by people from all parts of the city.

"I am supporting the by-law because I consider $800 for the eight acres a reasonable price," Ald. Holland said. "The highest point on the hill is within the new property from which there is a view to Lakefield and for twenty miles. We have spent more money than this on advertising the city in different ways, but here is something right at home which has already been a good advertisement."

3 DIE FOR CHEAP JEWELRY.

HAMILTON, Ont., July 25 (C.P.). —That the loot, for which three alleged young robbers last their lives and a fourth lies seriously injured in Toronto hospital, consisted of cheaper pieces of jewelry which the merchant placed in his window over the week-end to guard against what actually happened, was revealed yesterday, when Detective S. Gayard and E. H. Wodehouse, the jeweller, left for Etobicoke to identify rings found in the death car.

HITLER HONORS HIS BODYGUARD

Elevates Crack Police, Schutz Staffel, from Brown Shirted Storm Troops.

INDEPENDENT BODY.

BERLIN, July 25 (A.P.)—Chancellor Hitler's black-shirted Schutz Staffel organization, a force of crack police created primarily to act as his bodyguards, was separated officially to-day from the brown-shirted Nazi storm troops and made an independent organization.

In an order issued at Munich Hitler declared:

"In recognition of the great SS (Schutz Staffel) service, especially in conjunction with the events of June 30, I raise the SS to an independent organization with the framework of the Nazi party."

"At the same time," said the announcement, "the federal SS leader, like the chief of staff (storm troop), is responsible to the supreme storm troop chief (Hitler).

"The storm troop chief of staff (Viktor Lutze) and the SS Reichsfuehrer (federal leader Himmler) both have party recognition of rank as Reichsleiters (federal executive heads)."

This not unexpected development indicated a new Hitler's growing reliance on the SS, hitherto considered the elite of the storm troops.

Since June 30 reorganization and reduction of the storm troops, in whose ranks disloyal leaders were found, have been freely predicted.

The order to-day was interpreted as one of the first steps toward that end.

Increase Shown In Tourist Traffic

CAMPBELLFORD, July 25 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — If the tourist trade is any indication of the return of prosperity, then as far as Campbellford and the district is concerned, prosperity is just around the corner, for general reports show that this year has been the best tourist season since 1927. American lovers of Ontario are swarming through the town and distributing themselves around the district tourist centres such as Healey Falls, Crow River, and Crow River Bridge, which points report excellent business. Many of these resorts are full, and over the week-ends, tourists have come in such numbers that in many cases tents and cars have provided their accommodation. This increase in tourists has also been noted in the large increase in the river traffic, all kinds of crafts, from palatial yachts to sailing boats, passing through the locks. Fishing generally this season has been excellent in the Trent.

PAYING ELECTION BILLS.

Several municipal councils, including those of Niagara Falls and Stratford, have flatly refused to pay the account for their share of the cost of revising the provincial voters' lists in the last provincial election.

While the reluctance of municipalities to assume responsibility for expenditures that they have every right to ask should be borne by the province is easily understood, it is difficult to see how any municipal government can hope to defy successfully the law which requires municipalities to pay this amount, unless the present Ontario Government comes to their rescue and declines to press for payment.

Logically there is no reason why part of the expense of preparing lists for provincial elections should be saddled upon Ontario municipalities, but under the existing law the municipalities are liable, and little can be gained in refusing to pay the account, unless, as we have said, there is some assurance that with a new administration at the head of affairs in the province a more lenient attitude will be displayed in this matter.

Probably the decision of the Niagara Falls and Stratford Councils was taken in the hope of favorable treatment from the Hepburn Government.

AN IMPORTANT CONFERENCE.

The conference that is being held by relief authorities of the province and Hon. David Croll, Minister of Public Welfare, will give consideration to a most pressing problem and, let us hope, will produce a workable solution.

Frankly the relief situation has been causing considerable concern with the return to the lists of heads of families who for some time received work in widening highway shoulders, and who while in receipt of pay for that work were struck off relief.

While industrial improvement has taken up some of the slack of unemployment, there still remain large numbers who are without work and who must continue to depend upon public assistance.

There are reports that the new Government has plans to meet this situation by providing work on public works projects for large numbers of unemployed, and there will be a general hope that this should prove to be the case.

Hon. Mr. Croll, who as mayor of Windsor has been brought closely into contact with the relief problem, and who understands the need of an effective solution, will undoubtedly have some policy to discuss with the municipal delegates, and to-day's conference promises therefore to be one of the most momentuous that have been held since the new Government came into power.

The happiness of a good many people may hinge upon what develops as a result of this discussion.

AN "UNSUNG HERO."

If you happen to be the individual who first proposed the use of a white safety line down the centre of the highways of this continent, fame awaits you, for a search is being conducted in Canada and the United States for the originator of this idea, which admittedly has made driving safer.

The Fresno (California) Chamber of Commerce launched this hunt, in the belief that the person responsible for such a valuable contribution to highway safety should have proper tribute paid to him. The assistance of the Goodrich Company, sponsors of the Silvertown Safety League, was sought, and accordingly the Goodrich organizations on both sides of the international line have been conducting a search for the proposer of the white line plan, who will be fittingly rewarded if he can be located and his claim adequately established.

Extensive investigations have already been carried on in many states of the Union, but so far without success. The name of the "unsung hero" is still in doubt.

If there is any reader of The Examiner who can qualify as the original proposer of a simple safeguard that has been adopted all over the continent, he should submit his claim to the Canadian Goodrich Company at Kitchener.

The contributor of such a valuable suggestion is a public benefactor and his name should be remembered.

EMPIRE TRADE GROWS.

The manner in which Canadian trade with countries of the British Empire is growing most assuredly offers proof that the frequently-attacked Empire trade pacts entered into at the Ottawa conference are serving the purpose for which they were designed.

Figures just released show that Canada's total exports during June were larger than in the same month a year ago by 26 per cent.

But they show something more significant than that, inasmuch as they reveal the fact that last month the Dominion sold more goods to Great Britain than it did to all the rest of the world.

Our exports to Britain in June amounted to $26,407,000, while to non-British countries the total was only $25,537,000, and in addition, Canada sold during the same period to other Empire dominions and colonies goods valued at $7,000,000.

In other words, countries of the British Empire brought from Canada in the one month some $8,000,000 more goods than all the other countries on the globe took from us.

These figures tell their own story; they are concrete evidence that the Empire trade pacts are indeed stimulating the trade of the Empire, and that for this country their effect has been all-important, for they have provided us with a growing market to replace the falling-off elsewhere.

With over two million dollars of goods leaving Canada every week day during June, the situation on the home front must have been improved materially.

A TREMENDOUS SCHEME.

The Halifax Chronicle says the American Government has under consideration a tremendous scheme for the salvation of the lands in the middle west, it is the planting of a belt of trees no less than a hundred miles wide and stretching from the Canadian boundary to the state of Texas. It has long been known how he presence of trees influence the fertility and climate of a country, increasing its rainfall and preserving the soil, preventing it from drifting and eventually turning into desert. In our own West, areas which were grass-covered and suited for grazing, against the protests of Sir Clifford Sifton, were given over to the cultivation of wheat, and the end which Sifton foresaw more than a quarter of a century ago has come to pass. There being nothing to hold the soil together, it was blown and drifted by the wind, turning the country into a miniature desert. The dried-out district so-called forms a great part of this area.

The same process has gone on south of the border with the result that it has become a national problem lest the fertility of the region should be permanently destroyed. The like has taken place in other parts of the world, notably in southern Turkestan and Palestinian countries.

The proposed national forest planting by the United States would construct the hundred-mile wide belt by planting a hundred separate strips of trees, each group of trees having between it and its next group a strip of land a mile wide, this land still being tilled. The project would cost $75 million and would not only prove of permanent benefit to the country but would provide employment for the farmers in the area who have been so hardly hit. Backing the project is cited similar experiment in Russia, dating as far back as 1836, where the planting of trees increased the rainfall, reduced the heat and slowed the winds.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

WHEAT PROSPECTS.

Wheat looms large in the world's news these days.

There are crop reports from here and there. Some of them are pessimistic; others report favorable prospects. Prices and possible future prices, restriction agreements, shortages and surpluses all figure in the discussion.

Out of all the talk one thing continues to stand out. It is the folly of governmental effort to force reduction of acreage. It is too great a gamble with Nature.

* * * *

A Washington despatch says Canada, the United States and Australia, all great wheat-producing countries and exporters, have asked that a meeting be held in London on August 4 to attempt to arrive at "a complete understanding" on an agreement for 1935 aimed to limit world wheat production and raise world prices. At such a session, it is intimated, the big three mentioned will seek a showdown with Argentina, fourth principal signatory to the existing wheat agreement. The latter country, by the way, is reported to have an excellent crop this year.

From Winnipeg—where Canadian wheat news always finds its centre—comes word that world forecasts as well as domestic prospects indicate "almost unanimously" that the principal bread grain will be selling for more than a dollar a bushel before the coming of winter. This will be very nice indeed, especially if Winnipeg forecasts of a 400 million bushel crop for Canada work out that way.

* * * *

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa reports telegraphic advices from the Prairie Provinces as being pessimistic almost without exception and that immediate rains are required to prevent further declines in crop prospects. This is the Bureau's summary based on word from no less than 52 correspondents residing in various parts of the three provinces—Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

London reports keen interest in American crop prospects. There was an exciting rise in quotations following the publication of Washington's latest crop report. Every indication of shortage, of course, is important because it has a bearing on supplies and prices.

"The United States as an exporter of wheat," a London despatch points out, "is not now of first-class importance in the world market." However, the prospect of a world shortage owing to the big reduction in the American crop is not considered to be very great. The Argentine, as we have mentioned, has produced excellent crops while the damage to the Canadian crop probably is not severe, despite the pessimistic tone of Westtrn reports.

The situation, at this time, is decidedly mixed and is giving growers and followers of the wheat market plenty of food for thought. The present condition, of course, is not unusual because ever since the growing of wheat became a matter of world concern each year has brought its worries. There are fewer businesses in which a greater element of uncertainty exists. Not only must the wheat men gamble with the ordinary ups-and-downs of business, but with a still greater puzzle—the elements. It is the latter factor, as has been repeatedly urged, that makes it difficult to accept the system so earnestly advocated in some quarters—that of deliberate and all-around restriction of production.

This theory, of course, is simplicity itself. It is based on nothing more than the old law of supply and demand. Make wheat scarce, restrictionists say, and you are bound to have high prices. But how is an individual farmer going to be sure that all his fellow farmers will co-operate in a restriction program? And how is he going to be assured that his own failure to grow to capacity may not be the greatest mistake he ever made—assuming a general shortage with the accompanying possibility that he, as an individual, might have grown a bumper crop?—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Certainly Ontario was not flooded with beer on the first day of sale.

Gangster methods were used to get Dillinger—and police forces outside of the United States will be unanimous in declaring that they would not have done it in that way.

The death of three Toronto firemen is tragic proof that these protectors of life and property are frequently called upon to face dire danger.

Neither Premier Hepburn or Minister of Public Welfare Croll will be in Toronto to meet the hunger marchers—due to a conference in Ottawa. Perhaps the march could be detoured to the national capital.

It cannot be said that the arrival of beer by the glass created any record amount of excitement here or throughout the province.

A talkative friend can do more harm sometimes than a silent enemy.—Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By STANLEY

What's in The NAME of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

KASLO, B.C.

This beautifully situated town, on the west shore of Kootenay Lake, has had but two names during its lifetime of 50 years. To be precise, it has had three, the last a corruption of the first.

The name of the town is derived from the river which runs through the town, and this was named for John Kasleau, who arrived in the Kootenay in the '80's with a Hudson's Bay party, to obtain lead for bullets from the outcrop of the present Bluebell mine. His name, spelled Kasleau, was later shortened to Kaslo. The site was staked as a pre-emption by George and David Kane, in 1890, and was known for some time as Kane's Landing, but the inhabitants eventually reverted to the old name, which has endured to this day.

parts of the city did a proportionally better business on Wednesday mornings, and that they would do as much business those mornings as if they had remained open all day. He based his assertions on the returns from some of his own "P. and G" stores.

"I am not speaking of the ice cream trade," he added. "No doubt they would lose a certain amount of that business."

Ald. Tuggey—What about the tourists?

Ald. Fitzpatrick replied that "all down the line" the grocery stores were closed and the tourists weren't starving.

Ald. Macdonald—If the signatures are all proper we have no alternative but to pass the by-law. The statute requires us to do so.

Mayor Denne—And that is why this special meeting was called. We had to take action within the specified time. The petitions were examined by our City Solicitor, and we also consulted Mr. Peck. The grocers brought this petition to the council. We don't want to impose hardship on anyone."

Among the grocers who addressed the council were Percy Harrison, Archie Breault, Frank Patterson, E. Benson, A. M. Ward and others.

Bridgenorth

Mrs. C. C Miller and two children Gwenyth and Duane are at their summer home at Ingoldsby near Haliburton.

Bridgenorth soft ball tournament is to be held as usual on Civic holiday, August 6. The games this year are to be on the farm of W. J. Robinson, Chemong Road. Several good teams have already signified their intention of attending. Many others will be coming. Mel McWilliams, the ice and milk man with Frank Moore of Jopling's Meats, Peterborough are looking after the games. All interested ought to register with one of these men above. Special prizes are being secured and a big afternoon of sport is being looked for Bridgenorth has the largest tournament of its kind in this district.

At the service on Sunday morning Major McElhiney of Quebec City and formerly of Peterborough and a summer resident of Chemong for eighteen years, preached the sermon and Miss McElhiney sang very beautifully, adding much to the service.

Fairmen Sunday School and community picnic was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Fowler picnic grounds, Chemong Lake. Races for the children and games for the young people with a most bountiful supper made the day one long to be remembered.

Next Sunday, July 29, Rev. R. D. Wright of Gilmour Memorial Baptist church will have charge of the services at Fairview and Bridgenorth, while Rev. C. C. Miller will preach at Gilmour.

Rev. R. D. and Mrs. Wright and son John are enjoying a couple of week's holidays

The Selwyn Young People will present their four-act comedy 'The Colonel's Maid' in Fairview Church on Thursday evening at 8.30.

Several girls are planning for a week's camping, going August 7. They are to be the guests of Rev. C. C. and Mrs. Miller at their summer home. Any girl interested would do well to get in touch with Miss Lauretta McDougall, Bridgenorth who has charge of the arrangements.

The farmers are busy with their hay. Rain is needed very badly in this particular section. Many gardens are rapidly drying up for the want of sufficient moisture.

Bricks four times the size of the regulation style are being introduced in England to cut the time and cost of building.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

ON A WASTING DAY.

It's a lovely day and should a man be sitting indoors on such a good day as this? Should he be sitting there working? I mean, should he be sitting there punching a typewriter?

Should a woman be indoors, doing the chores of a family, all those endless endeavours that are always being finished and always being repeated? Should she be doing such things on such a day?

I'm asking you, should they? And you know that they shouldn't.

Then what should they be doing on such a day—when a light breeze blows and the sunshine sparkles on the water and the distant hills are such a charming blue and a horse kicks up his heels in the field and small lambs play about their mothers and it's such a very nice day to be doing nothing at all?

I say that's what a man should be doing on such a day—doing nothing at all. There are times for vigorous action, and there are times for loafing. This day, you know as well as I do, is made for wasting. . . . I know the loafer is a deplorable fellow. And we are frequently reminded of the grasshopper that fiddled all the fine weather away and had to beg the diligent ant for food in the winter time. . . . And we can look in any book of quotations anywhere and pick up ten or a dozen wise sayings about the sinfulness of wasting the precious hours and how, once wasted, they are gone beyond recall.

Yes, I know, and many a man has a long, long face when he remembers the squandered hours of his youth and what he might have done with them. He might have been rich, he might have become famous, he might have accomplished something worth while, but he didn't. Instead, he wasted his youth and spoiled his life. . . . But we're not talking about such foolish fellows. We're talking about the occasional deliberate wasting of a glorious day, of shutting off your engine, of letting yourself lie fallow, of being for a few hours just a cheerful animal without thought of the past or the future or any problem or pain. And how sensible it is for a man or woman to rebel occasionally against the most solemn and time-tested principles of wise living.

But the silliest thing a man can do on so noble a day as this is to sit in an office and write about how sweet it would be to be somewhere else.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Red Williams

A PIONEER STEAMER'S CENTENARY.

On this date, in 1888, the Beaver, the pioneer steamer on the north Pacific, went to her death on the rocks at Prospect Point, in what is now Stanley Park, Vancouver. This year is the centenary of her launching by the Hudson's Bay Company. It was a great ceremony; it was honored by the personal presence of William IV., one of a crowd of 1,500 to witness the launching of the strange vessel which was to make marine history.

The Beaver was not large but she was strong and sturdy as was proven by her successful sailing across the oceans, around Cape Horn and up the Pacific to San Francisco where she was fitted with paddle wheels, and then on to Fort Vancouver, then the great Pacific coast depot of the H.B.C. It was late summer in 1835 when the steam from her funnels surprised and alarmed the Indians and began a new era for the Scots in charge of the post. From that time until 1888 the Beaver carried on doing her business in an unostentatious way, serving the coastal posts at all seasons, and even penetrating far up into ice-bound waters. She died on duty. Her end was worthy of her history, which has been preserved in her log which is in the British Columbia archives, a perpetual record of a day that is past but which laid the foundations for the present great shipping trade of our Pacific coast.

Not many years after she began to call at coastal points her skipper got a surprise probably unique in the history of navigation. The year before he had called at an Indian village on the coast of Vancouver Island. The natives were astounded at the strange visitor, but were not scared like their brothers down the coast. When the Beaver called at the Indian village the next summer the crew were astounded to see approaching them over the water what seemed to be a small replica of their own ship. Paddle wheels beat the water, a steersman stood at the wheel, even a thick cloud of smoke rolled out of a miniature smokestack. The son of the Indian chief had taken careful note of the Beaver on her first visit and had spent the winter making a model of her, which, when launched, proved seaworthy and capable of playing a trick on the white man. The smoke was produced by smoking leaves at the bottom of a bark tube like a smokestack. Indian feet drove the pedals which worked the paddles. It was a perfect camouflage, though the word was then unknown.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Miss Irene Wood,
R. R. No. 2, Stirling, Ont.

Your handwriting reveals a friendly and sympathetic disposition. Those tall, upper loops of yours show interest in beautiful things and love of music. I do not think that all types of music interest you, because you detest loud noises and prefer quiet tones to those of jazz. Soft tones of colors should appeal to one of your gentle nature. Kindheartedness and beneficent indulgence in seeking happiness for others, seems to dominate your life. You are artistic, but not very ambitious as regards personal success. Love and home life should interest you more than anything, and fortunate is the life partner whom you choose to share your future. Travel should interest you, and lend a soothing influence to your nervous system. If you were to engage in a business enterprise you would give it your very best, in fact I think you would give too much of your mental and physical energy, leaving no reserve upon which to call in an emergency, and so you would find yourself too bodily tired to engage in recreation even when you had the time at your disposal.

Mrs. J. G. Livingstone,
526 Water Street, City.

Your handwriting denotes genius. Yet there is a reticence in expression. You are susceptible to slights and your sensitive nature is very easily hurt. Therefore, you delicately hide your emotions, hopes and ambitions. You are proclaimed as essentially stylish in your mode of dress, but you carry yourself with a demure simplicity characteristic of your own retiring personality. Your capitals show a desire to become numbered among the artistic clientel. Your small letters represent a certain amount of will-power, though not quite sufficient to enable you to attain your desire. Your retentive brain should have the faculty of remembering details. You are kind and easy to deal with, and you will not enter into gossip or arguments. Anything of a psychological nature should interest you because you have psychic power and can divine the truth. You ask for your weak points, so I shall not feel that I am hurting you if I stress the chief of them here. You are far too conscientious in many ways and deeply sensitive to the so-called nature which is termed "different". But you ARE different. You are a type unto yourself, and at times very difficult to understand. You want to do so much for others, that you waste your strength, for very often your type of personality is not appreciated half enough, and, knowing this, you fret inwardly because you feel that you have been unable to help, or in other words 'Get your message across'. . . . The 't's' with their upward looping reveal a persistence which is "you". You will not give up, either in your mental work, or your physical endeavours if they are to help some one who is in need of your comforting influence. Your upward strokes in all capital letters reveal a heart condition, which you should exercise great care of from now on, in order to avoid any undue excitement or fatigue. Another weak point seems to be the fact that you do not regard yourself highly enough, and have a tendency to take a back seat often when the front is yours by birthright. That characteristic may not sound like a weak point, but as you stress it, it is. Your lucky number is nine. The name you have chosen for your work is excellent, in that it works out to the number nine and should vibrate prosperity. Saturday is your most fortunate day, but one with your ability should be able to make all days fortunate. Your birthsign is Pisces The Fishes, and you are ruled by Neptune. May and June seem to be your lucky months. The main body of your writing indicates wisdom and common sense. People should listen to your words of advice and not question the why and the wherefore of your statements, because you never offer your words of wisdom without a real honest reason.

Fully 600 years old, a picture has been accidentally discovered in the attic of the Besancon Museum in Doubs, France.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 88c to 90c; oats, 35c to 36c; barley, 45c to 46c; corn, 74c to 77c; rye, 48c to 50c; buckwheat, 58c to 60c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Butter and potatoes were higher in price on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday, while egg prices were irregular.

Butter was up ¼ of a cent., being quoted at 19¼c a pound for fresh No. 1 in cartons or less. Prices to the retail trade were firm at 20c a pound for solids and 21c for prints. Receipts totalled 111 boxes.

On the cheese market, price levels were steady, Ontario colored being 10⅝c to 10½c a pound, while Quebec cheese brought 10c a pound. Arrivals totalled 3,787 boxes.

Eggs in graded shipments of carlots or less were 20c to 22c a dozen for A-large, up ½c; 20c to 20½c for A-medium; 19½c for B, down ½c, and 18½c to 19c for C. Receipts were 1,668 cases.

On the potato market, old stocks of New Brunswick Mountains are practically off the market as the result of heavy arrivals of new Quebecs which were quoted at 45c to 55c per 90-pound bag, an advance of 5c.

At the weekly auction held at the Board of Trade, 1,155 boxes of butter were offered, mainly of No. 1 grade, and being sold for 19¼c a pound. No. 2 grade brought 18¾c a pound. Cheese offerings totalled 947 boxes of No. 1 colored and white at 10c a pound. Small lots of Nos. 2 and 3 commanded 9c and 8c a pound respectively. Everything was sold.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Prospects of a break in the heat wave led to about 2½c a bushel tumble of the wheat market yesterday.

Decided curtailment of speculative interest accompanied the fall of values, with corn and other grains as well as wheat showing a pronounced reactionary trend. Some moisture relief was reported northwest and west, and forecasts indicated lower temperatures there, supplemented by additional showers.

All deliveries of wheat went below $1 and the market closed heavy near the day's bottom level, 2c to 2⅛c under Monday's finish;; corn, 1¼c to 1⅝c down; oats, ½c to 1¼c off, and provisions showing 10c to 15c decline.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 25. — Apparently of the opinion the "bull" markets of the past few weeks are over, at least temporarily, profit-takers were active in yesterday's session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange as wheat futures prices closed 1¾c to 2c lower, July at 83¾c, October at 85¼c, and December at 86½c to 86¼c.

The market was devoid of feature offering steadily trickling into the pit with little support at hand to offer resistance. More than two cents lower near the close, only a minor rally enabled futures to react from the low points. Most of the selling came from Chicago houses.

Poor exprt demand and weakness in outside markets paved the way for the downward trend. Only scattered lots of Canada's wheat were sold for overseas shipment yesterday, and figures were not available. Two-cent setbacks were recorded at Chicago and wheat was weak at Liverpool, closing ¾d to 1¼d lower.

Extension of harvesting operations in Europe with a resulting increase in offerings of native wheats, it was said, has created a temporary lull in demand for foreign wheats. More favorable weather in Western Canada also was constructed as bullish and continued adverse conditions in the United States had little effect on sentiment.

throughout yesterday's session. Today he said he did not recall that the Hydro Commission had sought legal advice as to whether default had occurred in the contract between the Hudson Bay Power Company and the Hydro Commission before negotiation to acquire assets of the O.P.S.C., the subsequent name of the Hudson Bay firm. The contract committed the Commission to take 100,000 horsepower and to sell to the Abitibi Electrical Development Company, sister concern of the Power Company, 35,000 horsepower.

The former chairman reaffirmed he had not revealed to his fellow commissioners the shaky financial condition of the O.P.S.C. in March, 1932.

Questioned by Meighen

Senator Arthur Meighen, former Hydro Commissioner, rose to question Mr. Cooke, who agreed purchase of the O.P.S.C. bonds and development of its property had created a great liability, about as great as that incurred by the Hydro Commission in the previous acquisition of the Dominion Power and Transmission Company.

Mr. Meighen asked if Mr. Cooke considered it was the duty of the commission to consider in detail the contract under which the O.P.S.C. bonds were bought by exchange and Mr. Cooke replied he had considered the responsibility for the contract rested entirely with the Ontario government.

Secretary Called

Arthur G. Slaght, K.C., commission counsel, called Miss E. M. Strain, secretary of a number of companies, including the Canadian General Investment Trusts, Second Canadian General Investments until August, 1931, when an amalgamatio occurred under which Canadian General Investments Limited was created. Witness was also secretary of the Third and Fourth Canadian General Investments and other companies with which Mr. Meighen was associated. The late W. W. Evans was president of the companies at the time of his death.

Miss Strain said all the companies of which she was secretary were lodged in the same suite of offices at Toronto, and Mr. Meighen rose to explain Canadian General Securities had contacts to manage all the investment companies in the group.

Continuing, Miss Strain stated officers of the Securities Company bought and sold securities subject to approval of the boards of the investment concerns. She said Mr. Meighen knew more than anyone else of the routine of purchasing securities, and that she was unfamiliar with the routine.

INVESTMENT BUYING STEADIES MINING SECTION AT TORONTO

General List Firm at Close Outside of Dome, McIntyre and Noranda.

DOWN DRIVE PETERS OUT.

TORONTO, July 25 (CP).—The mining section of the Toronto Exchange held on with better success today and the downward drive all but petered out in the face of substantial investment buying that came along this afternoon. Periodic attempts to mark up several of the secondary issues met with poor results, but outside of Dome, McIntyre and Noranda the price level was on the whole, intact at the end of the session.

Distillery, Brewery, Utility and the interlisted leaders were on the up side at the gong.

PRISON VISIT REAL SURPRISE

Bennett Impressed With High Standard of Conditions at Portsmouth.

TALKS WITH INMATES.

OTTAWA, July 25. (CP)—After an unheralded visit to Portsmouth penitentiary at Kingston, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett declared to-day that he was agreeably surprised at the high standard of condition maintained there. It was his first visit to any penal institution and the officials of the penitentiary were taken completely by surprise when the Prime Minister, accompanied by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, sought admission at the gates yesterday noon.

No official statement has been made by either minister but it is possible one may be forthcoming later. It was learned that the Prime Minister visited every department of the penitentiary and talked to numerous prisoners, many of whom did not know at the time the identity of their caller.

Time did not permit visiting the workers in the fields and outlying penitentiary projects, and for that reason the ministers did not see Tim Buck or any of the Communists remaining at Kingston.

Mr. Bennett was impressed by the quality of the food served the prisoners, the exceptional cleanliness of the entire institution, and the sanitary arrangements. It is quite possible some reforms will be inaugurated as a result of the visit by the two ministers but apparently they found general satisfaction among those questioned.

Market Briefs
as Received Over Wire
LEEMING AND LEEMING
Phones 2786—2787

New York, N.Y., July 25:

It is still too early to say whether the market has had a selling climax. Whether the motive of fear will introduce further selling remains to be seen, but it is almost certain that the present reaction presents the last opportunity to acquire sound stocks in anticipation of a sharp fall advance.

The action of the rails has had an adverse effect on speculative sentiment that additional burdens which have been placed upon the carriers in the form of increased wages and mandatory pension payments have taken from them all of the advantages gained by the increase in freight traffic over the past year. The rails are a glaring example of what happens whenever bureaucratic government lays its heavy hand upon industry.

We think advantage should be taken of reactionary periods to accumulate sound industrial and mining shares, particularly those which offer a reasonable avenue of escape from the dangers of inflation.

BROKERS' OPINIONS

J. Muir: "Purchase of active leaders may be in order but would be inclined to use stop protection on trades."

Munds, Winslow and Potter:—"Probably a period of irregularity with periodic skining spells may be expected during which liquidation is absorbed but we doubt if there will be any further material decline in composing prices."

Theo. Prince and Co.: "Under present conditions it seems to us that the sound practice is to follow the course of this major fluctuation than to attempt to anticipate a turning point."

Waldo Young: "The holder of stocks should give the market another day or so to show either exhaustion or selling or buying sufficient strength to absorb the selling. If by tomorrow afternoon there does not develop evidence of a reasonably solid bottom and rallying power that can be boast more than hour or so it will be necessary to complete that the longer pull will be a very long pull indeed and that in the meantime stocks will be available at materially lower levels than are now being witnessed. The market must show support almost immediately. I have said that one may allow another day or so, as a matter of a fact there should be a verdict today. If prices open this morning at advances over yesterday's closing levels the probabilities are that the close will show net gains even though there should be a mid-session sinking spell. A lower opening this morning would mean an early spell of weakness followed by a rally.

WHOLE CABINET HELD PRISONERS

ed Nazis had forced their way into the Heimwehr barracks in the seventh district, seizing machine guns, rifles, and a large quantity of ammunition. Then the main group proceeded to the chancellery, overpowering two sentries who remained outside and barricading the doors.

This report further declared that the three prisoners were held by the Nazi and said that they would be killed if the Heimwehr attacked the building.

Several times the prisoner were exhibited to the troops below and it was following one of these appearances, the regular troops drawn up before the building, marched away.

Fey himself gave the express command for them to withdraw. His action was interpreted as perhaps being a part of the negotiation—ordered by the Nazis—to release the prisoners.

Street Fighting

Fighters swarmed through the streets of Vienna; men were killed, and the trouble was reported to have spread as far as Innsbruck and Klagenfurt.

In the latter city, President Wilhelm Miklas was said to have been captured by the Federal arm.

Machine guns were mounted on roof tops at strategic points throughout the city. Some of them poured smashing volleys into the government radio studio from which, as a spark to the political confagration an announcement had come that Dollfuss had resigned and a pro-Nazi politician, Anton Rintelen, had been made Chancellor.

At the height of the confusion, with rumors flying about, from the same studio came the announcement that peace reigned throughout Austria. The second announcement came after authorities had recaptured the station where, earlier, eight men had killed a police guard and taken over control of the broadcasting. They were supposed to have been Nazis.

President Under Guard

Later it was rather definitely established that President Miklas had not been arrested at Klagenfurt for an ultimatum came out bearing his name and that of other government officials not captured by the Nazis.

The ultimatum, issued at 5.28 p.m., gave the Nazi captors controlling the chancellery 20 minutes to release their prisoners, evacuate the building and flee over the border, declaring: "Otherwise we attack at 5.48 p.m.

In addition to the police guard, three others were reported slain fighting at the radio studio. They were a truck driver, an actor and one Nazi.

A report from Graz said the Gendarmrie Post at Stain was attacked by Nazis, its commander killed and another wounded. The report said 400 Nazis participated in the attack while Nazi householders hoisted Swastika flags to their roofs.

The leader of the Heimwehr in Styria was said to have ordered the mobilization of his followers.

Rintelen New Chancellor?

that Anton Rintelen, Austrian Minister to Rome, will take over the Chancellorship. A Neustaedter storm trooper, however, said he had come from President Miklas to announce that Dr. Kurt Schuschnegg, Minister of Justice and Education, would take over the government and that all other reports were without force. This threw the whole situation into confusion again.

It was certain only that the members of the Nazi putsch held government members prisoners in the chancellery.

Although, at Fey's command, soldiers withdrew from the Ballhausplatz, 30 army trucks carrying machine guns, trench mortars, and other equipment appeared on the square before the nearby Burgtheatre. Two armored cars and several ambulances also were held in readiness.

It was at this time that the government leaders not in the hands of the Nazis, gave the Putsch leaders 20 minutes to release their captives.

Fey Appears.

The ultimatum was delivered by a Neustadter stuermer (new State storm trooper), when Fey, for the first time, appeared on a balcony in a drizzling rain.

Fey started to speak. Without waiting to hear what Fey had to say, the storm trooper declared

"In the name of the government, we give you 20 minutes to evacuate the building!"

Fey, pale, remained silent and, under the escort of three uniformed Nazis, turned back into the building.

All the citizens around the square were tense and fearful as the hour of the ultimatum came. They expected firing to begin at any moment.

BILLIONS LOSS U. S. HEAT WAVE

Death Toll Nears 800 Mark, With Relief in Sight for Mid-west.

105 IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, July 25 (A.P.)—The sun siege attained its most severe proportions of the summer to-day driving the number of deaths in the United States far above the 700 mark and drought damage toward billions of dollars.

For the first time since the accourage started, however, early relief was predicted for the midwest, while the east and Pacific coast enjoyed comparative cool.

The government's efforts 'to bring relief to the drought sections by buying stricken herds and shipping them to slaughter or southern pastures struck a snag. The farm administration announced that the Chicago stock yards strike and congestion at other livestock centres has forced temporary suspension of purchases.

Heat deaths, piling up at times at the rate of 10 an hour, stood at 719 last night, and mounted today to 785. In Missouri alone 205 persons perished, Illinois 150, Ohio 81, Nebraska 55, Iowa 60, and Indiana, with 13 new deaths reported 38.

The highest official temperature recorded yesterday was 117 at Vinita, Okla. Noblesville, Ind., sweltered at 112, and Quincy, Ill., at 111—its seventh successive day above 100.

Chicago suffered under the most oppressive heat ever recorded there as the mercury soared to 105 yesterday—two degrees higher than the previous all-time record, set in 1903.

In New York city, where four persons have died from the heat, showers fell before dawn to-day and the weather bureau said the Atlantic seaboard would be favored with cooler temperatures.

POLICE SEEKING YOUNG COUPLES FOR QUESTIONING

the body was discovered by a milk delivery man the following morning. It is believed possible that Meharry may even at so early an hour have been lying mortally injured and that he later staggered to the sidewalk, where he collapsed and died.

Two couples walking south on the west side of Gordon Avenue just beyond the point of the slaying are being sought by police for questioning. From the description furnished the police, it is hoped that the four persons will be located in the next few hours if they do not come forward voluntarily in the meantime to give information which might have an important bearing on the crime.

Suspicions Confirmed.

The autopsy ordered by Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young and performed by Dr. C. B. Waite and Dr. Herbert N. Young at Belleghem's Funeral Home last night, merely confirmed earlier suspicion of foul play.

While the medical men are of the opinion that Meharry had not been dead for more than two hours when the body was first discovered at 6.30 o'clock in the morning, it does not exclude the possibility that he received the injuries which caused his death before midnight.

That Meharry was the victim of some unknown assailant is definitely established. The combined injuries, consisting of a fracture of the base of the skull, a deep laceration of the left upper lip, a bruise over the right eye and injuries to the knuckles of his left hand could not have been caused, in the opinion of the coroner, by a mere fall to the sidewalk.

May Have Been Knife.

While he was not prepared to state what caused the deep gash in the dead man's upper lip, the coroner said it could have been caused with a knife, or what was more improbable, by a ring on the hand of the person who may have delivered the blow.

The district in the vicinity of the scene of the slaying has been thoroughly combed for trace of any instrument with which the injuries received by the dead man may have been inflicted. Portion of an old plow share was found near the bushes where the body was found, but is not thought to be connected with the slaying.

Two handkerchiefs recovered on Gordon Avenue yesterday morning and a trail of what is supposed to be bloodstains leading from the point at which the body was discovered, across Gordon Avenue and down the Elm Street extension to Elm Street proper, where trace of them is lost, are important clues upon which police are working. No effort is being spared to reach an early solution of the mystery death.

Satisfactory Explanation.

Shortly after ten o'clock last night, a young resident of Downie Street was brought into the police station for questioning, but was allowed to go after he had provided a satisfactory explanation of injuries which necessitated the swathing of his right hand in bandages. It was explained that the young man received the injuries to his hand while engaged in a boxing tournament in one of the northern road camps.

Regarded by neighbors as a man of quiet, sober and industrious habits, Meharry had resided in Peterborough for twenty-five years, coming here from Cavan Township, where he was born sixty-six years ago.

Since his return last spring from a visit with his daughters in the United States, Meharry is said to have been in the habit of rising early each morning and taking long walks before commencing work on his garden. He was a keen gardener, and had been engaged in hoeing and weeding for the greater part of Monday.

Asked To Get Milk.

While one of Meharry's neighbors stated she last saw him alive when he left the house at nine o'clock on Monday evening, apparently to go for a walk, there is another neighbor who declares that Meharry came across to her house at ten o'clock to leave a milk bottle with the request that his neighbor take in the milk as he was going to bed. The neighbor, it is understood, had been in the habit of getting Meharry's milk supply for him as he had lived alone at 505 Cross Street.

According to earlier information given The Examiner by Chief Newhall, police had definitely established the fact that Meharry did not spend the night at his own home.

Investigations have so far led to a number of conflicting circumstances and rumors. The fact remains, however, that Meharry was struck down by an unknown assailant at some time between the hours of nine o'clock on Monday evening and six-thirty o'clock on Tuesday morning, when the gruesome discovery was made by Jack Stewart, employee of Sunshine Dairy.

Wallet Intact.

A possible motive for the attack is provided in the theory upon which police are at work, but while the man's pocket wallet was found intact, the further possibility of robbery is not being overlooked.

Predeceased by his wife some years ago, Meharry is survived by two daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) Cecil Taylor and Mrs. Dr. A. J. Pardee, both of Ashtabula, Ohio; one son, Archie Meharry, of Sandwich, Ontario; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Miller and Mrs. George Frost, both of Toronto; three brothers, John Meharry of this city, David and George Meharry, both of Montana.

A son predeceased him three years ago, while another brother, William H. Meharry, of Jamaica, N.Y., died a month ago.

The funeral, which is private, is to be held from Belleghem's Funeral Home, where now the remains rest, at 2.30 p.m. on Thursday, with Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church, officiating in the absence of the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard. Interment is to take place at Little Lake Cemetery.

REEVES, MAYORS MEET MINISTER

tions passed at a meeting of mayors at Galt. One favored cash relief instead of distribution of food or vouchers. This would make way for demanding work in exchange for relief and would preserve the morale of the recipient of relief.

A change in the old age pension law to make pensions payable at 65 instead of 70 years was also urged in a resolution. Mayor Wenige said he thought eventually people would have to be pensioned at 60 years of age in order to give the young people a chance.

Mayor P. J. Nolan of Ottawa said he thought the present system was satisfactory except that more work should be provided. He was opposed to cash relief and to dole in any form because he thought it demoralizing.

The great body of the people in Ottawa at any rate wanted work and he found no demand for cash relief. He agreed the pension act should be reduced to 65.

Mayor Nolan's views on cash relief met with protest from mayors from western Ontario but he insisted the cash system be more demoralizing than the dole. Mayor Ferrol of Walkerville said cash relief did not mean the dole. It was designed to preserve the independence of heads of families and to insist for work in return for cash.

Municipalities could not pay one third of the cost of giving work to every unemployed person, said Mayor Brody of Sudbury. He belied municipalities should be given the option of paying out relief moneys in cash and insisting each recipient doing work for the municipality at an hourly rate to be determined.

The whole of the village of Victoria Harbor was on direct relief, said Reeve Dutton of that place. They could not carry on and proposed to ask the government to take over the whole cost. He belied the government could end unemployment by subsidizing work on the farms.

The Niagara peninsula was heard from when Mayor Hunt of Thorold spoke. He complained of people drifting in from outside seeking work in Thorold factories and coming on relief.

Opposes Dole

Another opponent of the dole was Mayor Caldwell of Dundas. He believed work could be provided and could be financed properly by the issue of debentures. The incurring of debt for direct relief was absolutely wrong.

Municipalities should continue to pay their one third share, said Mr. Caldwell. It provided a check on mounting relief bills which would be lacking if the federal and provincial governments paid the whole cost.

Governments should take over full control of relief said Mayor Smith of Leamington.

James Dutton, chairman of the Central Relief Board of Peterborough said the question of the unemployable man as well as the unemployed would have to be considered. Men over the age of 45 found it practically impossible to get work and necessitated making provision for relief on a permanent basis. He was opposed to cash relief and saw nothing demoralizing in the voucher system. The time was overdue for compulsory contributory unemployment insurance.

Opposition to cash relief was expressed by Mayor William Stewart of Toronto, who said he spoke personally and not for the city council. He said it was necessary at all times to keep the interests of the taxpayers in mind as well as those of the unemployed. He thought an unfortunate tendency was developing to depend on the state. This was discouraging the many public-spirited citizens who had been giving largely of time and money to assist the unfortunate.

Mayor Stewart said he thought a civilian re-establishment commission might be established similar to the soldiers' civilian re-establishment commission which did good work after the war. No one policy could be applied to all classes of person out of work. Such a commission could classify people and work out ways of putting them back into private industry.

Governments should take over the whole cost of relief, said Mayor Herbert Wilton of Hamilton. The inability of rural municipalities to provide relief caused many to drift into the cities. If the government handled it this condition would not prevail. Mayor Wilton was opposed to cash relief and a believer in the present voucher system.

People would have to get rid of the idea the country owed them a living, said Mayor Tolmie of Southampton. All the country owed them was an opportunity to earn a living. He was an opponent of the dole and a believer in work.

The relief officer for Kitchener, L. E. Hagedorn, said that the two governments should take over relief costs, preferably the Federal government in whole because it was a national problem. Kitchener had kept up its one-third share, but other municipalities had not. He could see no reason why Kitchener should be penalized to aid other municipalities merely because it had been thrifty and was in good financial condition.

The ultimate solution of the relief problem, he said, in a submission from the city of Kitchener, was the retirement on pension of all persons over a certain age and the retirement of all married women from gainful employment. This would give opportunity for employment for all persons who should be employed.

"We have for generations supported the idle rich without complaint," he said, "but we still object to supporting the poor."

MURDER THEORY IN THE DEATH OF KING ALBERT I. DISPROVED

Wild Stories of Intrigue, Even Stavisky Scandal, Branded as False.

BELOVED BY ALL.

The following article sets at rest certain rumors about a supposed mysterious element in King Albert's death.

By CORALIE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

BRUSSELS, July 25.—Was the King of the Belgians murdered? Did he commit suicide? Was he so deeply involved in the nauseous Stavisky scandal that he saw no way out but self-destruction to save the honor of his house? Was he pushed off the cliff by secret agents of the French general staff in revenge for an alleged refusal to obey any longer the dictates of France in military matters? Was King Albert afraid that the friction between his subjects in Flanders and in Wallonia was about to flare up into open warfare? Or did he wilfully plunge to his death because he would no longer bear the quarrels in his own family?

All these questions have been asked abroad but not in Belgium. Many people who are admirers of the King of the Belgians still wonder if any of the allegations about some mysterious circumstances in connection with the king's death.

The Parisian Communist daily, Humanite, started the ball rolling the day after King Albert's death by hinting at suicide. Nobody paid any attention to that slander. The official organ of the Communist party in France is notorious for sending false rumors into the world, so much so that even Moscow feels called upon to rebuke the comrades-editors in Paris from time to time. But if nobody paid any attention that time a sensation was caused throughout the world when a British Fascist, a certain Colonel Graham Seton Hutchison, D.S.O., M.C., F.R.G.S., etc., etc., etc., revealed Humanite's allegation and improved upon it by specifying that the French generals were behind King Albert's death. Since making the statement, the colonel has done some heavy sleuthing in this non-existing mystery and has even written a book on the subject.

Links Up Events

The book bears the title "Your Verdict?" With the death of King Albert the colonel links Trotsky's sojourn in France, the disarmament conference, the Saar plebiscite and the death in the Saar of a man named Albert Prince (Albert Prince, mind you, not Albert the King). The undiscriminating nature of the colonel's mental processes is revealed when he begins to expand his field of action and connect with King Albert's death about everything else that has happened anywhere to anyone else within the last few years. He ends up with a magnificent burst of anti-Semitism, and the cover of the book carries an advertisement of British National Socialism.

The colonel further manages to expose his ignorance of the French press. He reveals himself to be totally misinformed on the nature of newsgathering by foreign correspondents and agencies in Europe. He misspells French words and cites the New York Daily News as one of the Jew-controlled great papers of the United States. I have no intention of reviewing this book of almost undiluted flapdoodle—it isn't worth the trouble—I will merely say that the colonel-writer shows himself quite incapable of drawing conclusions from facts.

Rumors Absurd

Rumors about King Albert's death are too silly to be entertained for a moment. They could have originated only abroad where people do not know so much about the King's character and personality. Albert I. was the soul of honor and integrity. There is not the slightest indication that he was in any way linked with the Stavisky scandal or with any other scandal. And even if he had been, don't you think the combined French and Belgian governments could have seen to it that no disagreeable consequences followed for Albert I. personally? If there was anything Albert hated and loathed it was racketeering, swindle and bucket-shops. In his youth, when he was far removed from the throne, he studied municipal finance and the social sciences until he began to be known as "Le Prince Socialist" (the Socialist prince).

He was not liked at all at the court of his uncle, King Leopold II., precisely because of his austere manners, the simplicity of his life and the seriousness with which he discussed state reforms. The old King, an energetic business man who acquired the Congo as a personal field of exploitation, was also a notorious philanderer. His affairs with Cleo de Merode and the Baroness de Vaughan are too well known to bear repetition here.

Poor In Youth

Albert's conduct contrasted in every respect with that of his royal uncle, and the goings on at the profligate court of Brussels. Albert was a puritan, almost Dutch in his outlook. He was extremely poor in his youth, and for several years he worked in the United States and Canada as a locomotive fireman, harvest hand, shipping clerk in a Boston shoe factory, and other jobs, at a time when his royal relatives were living in extravagant luxury and ostentation through the money that poured in from the Congo. One of the first things King Albert did when at last he came to the throne, was to change the status of the Congo. It is now an autonomous state, decently administered; formerly it was a hell of exploitation and cruelty. Albert succeeded to the throne because Leopold II. had no legitimate sons to follow him. In all the years of his kingship not the faintest breath of scandal touched Albert. He was a model citizen in every respect. More of a citizen than a king.

That he should have refused to collaborate any longer with France in military arrangements for the protection of Belgium—after the 1914 experience—is nonsense of the first water. There are such things as a constitution and a parliament in Belgium. The King has no say whatever as to what military alliances the country will conclude or discontinue. He gave no advice until it was sought, and then only sparingly. Here King Albert was still "Le Prince Socialiste," a believer in democratic procedure and the supremacy of parliament. He never departed from that position. Mussolini said once: "Only one man could have seized dictatorial power in Europe after the war without trouble. That man was Albert of the Belgians. But he failed." The reverse is true. King Albert surrounded himself with Socialist advisers, among them the distinguished Emile van der Velde, the president of the second international, and Kamiel Huysmans, the present mayor of Antwerp. That is the way Belgium was saved from civil war when the Duce of Fascism was having Matteotti and scores of others assassinated and when he stuffed castor-oil down the throats of the liberal intellectuals of Italy.

No Danger of War

Warfare between Flanders and Wallonia, then? Anybody acquainted with the evolution of that grave problem knows that King Albert remained loyal to the traditions of his house, which aimed at the denationalisation of the Flemish people. But there never was any danger of open warfare, and less during the last few years the economic problem has come to overshadow the nationality problem by far. This does not mean the national problem is solved. That problem will ultimately be solved in favor of the Flemish people, and it is significant in this respect that the new King Leopold III. speaks Dutch, that is Flemish, exclusively in his family. Dutch is easier to Queen Astrid, who hails from Sweden, than French. More and more Flemish nationalists are coming to the conclusion that a solution of their problem is possible within the framework of the Belgian state.

Family quarrels? If people only knew how devoted the members of the royal family were to each other. The coming of Princess Astrid made not the slightest change in this almost perfect relationship. Apart from being Queen, King Albert's spouse was and is a woman of extraordinary talent. She studied social science and was forever engaged in clinical work, especially devoting her attention to the eradication of venereal disease. Her children early acquired a rational view of life. The family lived in utter simplicity. When the present King, then Duke of Brabant, spoke to me once, he said: "Wij gaan dit jaar iets later naar Ostende, vader heeft zoovel werk op zijn kantoor!" (We are going a little later to the seashore this year, Father has so much work at his office.) I was in that office once, although King Albert was not there at the time. I looked at a shelf of books. What you do think I saw? The tomes of Beatrice and Sydney Webb! That was Albert's meat! Social statistics and the law of gradualness.

A Popular King

A quiet man wearing a bowler hat riding from the suburb at Laeken to his office in the royal palace every morning at nine o'clock, King Albert did not stand on ceremony. Not riding in a limousine, you understand, but on a motorcycle. The Bruxellois used to set their watches by his passage, "Daar gaat the Koning," they said, "het is negen uur." (There goes the King, it is nine o'clock.)

"Bon jour, Sire!"

"Bon jour, Monsieur van den Berg, fine weather we're having!"

That's the way Albert I. used to talk to the official at the Laeken toll-gate. I remember a comical incident that occurred one summer morning at the toll-gate when Monsieur van den Berg was on vacation. Another official had temporarily taken his place. That man didn't know the King. There had been an epidemic of cycle thefts in Brussels at the time. Albert I. was coming along on his puff-puff machine, smoking a pipe, as usual.

"Halt!" said the official at the toll-gate. The King got off.

"Where's your license number?" The King looked at the machine.

"It must have dropped off," he said.

"We know that story," said the gendarme. "Just step inside here, broederke (little brother). I think we want to ask you some questions." The King stepped into the tollhouse. Some other gendarmes sitting on a large bench, and who knew the King by sight, rose immediately and saluted. The King lifted his hat. "Messieurs, bon jour," said the King. "Good-morning, majesty!"

Democratic King

By that time the official who had arrested the King had realised his error, and had fainted. The man was promoted the next day, for "careful performance of duty," upon the King's request. That was Albert I.

Everybody in Brussels knew the King's amicable relations with M. Adolph Max, the heroic burgomaster. Two friends, who strolled along the Boulevard Anspach in the afternoon and who quite frequently dropped in one of the sidewalk cafes for a glass of beer. If you know anything about the Brussels people, their hearty and natural charms and friendliness, you know also that long conversations with other customers in the "estaminet" were inevitable on such occasions. Albert enjoyed them. He seldom wore uniform after the war, and this pleased especially the Flemings, who hate soldiering. But he had a liking for their joyous processions and cavalcades.

I remember one night at the Brussels fair, that annual feast where joy is so natural and wholesome. I was standing at a stand in the midway, buying some candies, when a gentleman approached with two children whom I did not know.

"Sire," said the Flemish owner of the stand, who recognised the King immediately, "I wished you'd taste some of these cookies. I call them Albert and Elizabeth pastry."

The King tasted a cookie. "Fine cookies," said the King. "Do you bake them yourself?"

"Yes, sir, that's my specialty!"

"How do you get that crispness?" King Albert asked.

"Ah, Sire," said the man, "I can't tell you that, that's le secret de la maison" (the manufacturer's secret).

Was Pious Man

Everybody burst out laughing at this. The King bought a pound.

The next day there was a huge sign up over the stand:

"For these cookies the King himself came from Laeken" it said.

Albert I. was a pious man in his own quiet way. He made no ostentation of religion. He had no foolish notions on the subject of divine rights of kings. He knew he was king of a country where civic liberty had its birth on the continent and where the cloth-makers of Ypres and Ghent, the aldermen of Antwerp and the lace-merchants of Brussels considered themselves the equals of the Kings of France.

The King spoke to me twice during my stay in Brussels. I gained the impression of a good man, kind and simple.

LINDSAY HOTELS REMAIN CLOSED

Scugog Town Hostel Owners Fail to Receive Licenses in Time for Opening Day.

USUAL BUSINESS DONE.

LINDSAY, July 26 (Special to The Examiner). — The inauguration of the new beer and wine regime yesterday did not create even a flutter locally. There was no flood—not even an extra trickle of the beverages, as neither one of them was on tap in places other than the Government emporiums. The proprietors of two standard hotels made application to the Commissioner of Liquor Control for licenses, but they failed to arrive. It is reported that only an ordinary day's business was done at the liquor store and brewery warehouse, and there was no rush on the part of those who, it was expected, would quickly avail themselves of the new conditions and create a line-up at the two establishments. A proprietor of one of the hostelries in Bobcaygeon made application for a license and it is understood that he was informed that the village was local option territory. The villages of Fenelon Falls and Minden are the only two centres in the north country where beer and wine could be sold in hotels. Haliburton Village is in the Township of Dysart, and this, too, is local option territory. The Village of Omemee is also in the dry column. Lindsay and Fenelon Falls are, therefore, the only two centres in Victoria County which can carry on under the new beer and wine legislation.

BANDIT FACING

month. On each occasion the gangster brandished a revolver and demanded morphine.

A Missing Face

ST. BONIFACE, Man., July 25.—(CP)—From the swivel-back chair in front of the small police desk in the Hotel de Ville here, a jovial and familiar figure was missing today. The figure, manimate and torn with bullets lay still.

It lay in a small dark room a block from the Hotel De Ville, in the house where John Verne rested in the hours before duty in the days he served as sergeant of the police force in this small French-Canadian city. Those days were brought to a sudden end yesterday when bullets from a dope-crazed bandit's gun ripped through his body.

For years John Verne lived with his wife and six children near the Hotel De Ville, a small part of which is set apart as the police station. Sergeant Verne was called at any hour and always responded, tearing himself away reluctantly from his Belgian pipe and the picturesque comfort of his small home.

Always Ready

It was such a call yesterday that sent him on the trail of a crazily-driven car, speeding from the scene of a drug-store hold-up. John Verne caught his man, the man in zig-zagging car; but it cost him his life. As he ordered the car to the curb fire flashed from the gun allegedly held by the driver and the sergeant slumped.

Rushed to hospital he died a short time after. Winnipeg police captured the suspect, George Jayham alias Shea who faces a charge of murder.

John Verne was with the St. Boniface police force 15 years ago after returning from France where he fought with the Allied forces.

Standing six-feet tall Verne, a native of Belgium, was quick with his fists but reluctant to draw his gun. In the sanctum of the little police department in the basement of the Hotel De Ville he spoke disparagingly of authorities in Canada and elsewhere who used their guns, when he considered there was no need. It was his reluctance to do this which cost him his life.

OUTLAW'S LAST HOURS RELATED

her house last Sunday evening, when he played cards with Mrs. Keele, whose picture, the police said they learned, was in Dillinger's watch.

Dillinger Proposed Show.

Capt. Stege asked her, "After you had your dinner Sunday night, who suggested that you go to the theatre?"

"Dillinger did."

"He suggested that, theatre?" asked Stege.

"Yes. I wanted to go to the uptown, another theatre, and he said he wanted to go around the corner. That is about a block from my house.

"Before the show was over he walked out of the theatre and went south-east toward my house. When we reached the National tea store, a big man pushed me or pulled me and stepped on my foot, and I looked around and said, 'Say,' and he had a gun. I heard a shot in front of me and I looked and saw Dillinger on the ground, and I stood there and looked. Dolly pulled me by the hand. She said, 'Jimmy got shot,' and she gave me one pull and we walked west.

"We got on the elevated and got off at Belmont, and I said I was going home, and she said, 'Why go home?' and said I wanted to find out what had happened. Then we went home to my house. She was just shaky and she wanted to get out of there. She had a skirt and she slipped that on. I wanted to go to the corner and she did not want to go. She was all nervous. I changed my clothes and went to the corner and every one was yelling that Dillinger was killed."

70,000 CATTLE SUFFER IN PENS

Many Die as Chicago Stockyard Strike Threatens to Spread.

GOV'T LENDS HAND.

CHICAGO, July 25. (CP)—The United States government joined hands with the State of Illinois today to prevent a threatened spread in the Union Stockyards strike.

As 70,000 cattle, ravaged by thirst and hunger, suffered in their pens, Carl Steffenson secretary of the Regional Labor Board of the National Recovery Administration, hurried here from Wisconsin to work for arbitration.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney urged leaders of both parties to meet with him in a conference.

Meanwhile, strike leaders warned that unless their demands are met, a general strike of all workers would be called.

With the temperature at a record breaking 106 reading yesterday, "white collar" workers were pressed into service to bring water to the cattle. But the undertaking was too great for the curtailed and untrained staff, and most of the animals went without food and water, many perishing.

Activities at the yards were at a virtual standstill, and plans were well underway to extend the mercies of the slaughter house to the animals on hand.

Farm administration officials in Washington last night ordered a temporary discontinuance of the purchases of stricken cattle, to relieve the acute condition here and elsewhere, where facilities are jammed to overcapacity

About 50,000 of the cattle on hand here had been purchased by the Federal Relief Surplus Corporation and shipped here for processing, or, if strong enough, to be reshipped to better pasture.

DUNSMORE CAR ON WRONG SIDE

o'clock, terminating shortly before eleven o'clock, after Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., had suggested an adjournment in view of the enforced absence of the drivers of the two automobiles. Date for resumption of the inquest was provisionally fixed for August 14.

On Wrong Side.

Evidence of Highway Traffic Officer A. E. Hornick bore out the testimony offered by John Jordan and Thomas Graham, two of the three employees of the Department of Highways stationed at Port Hope, who were riding in the north-bound car, that the Dunsmore car was on its wrong side immediately prior to the crash.

Questioned regarding an empty liquor bottle that was found in the wreckage of their car, the highway employees both gave emphatic denial to any suggestion that there had been any drinking that morning on the part of themselves or their driver. They were unable to account for the presence of the bottle.

William Logan, Department of Highways engineer at Port Hope, owner of the car, testified that his three subordinates were proceeding to work on the Lakefield-Peterborough road under construction and had taken his car upon his instructions. He was unable to account for the presence of the empty bottle. Declaring that he had never seen the bottle previously, he said he had cleaned the car out shortly before turning it over to Nantel at 7.45 a.m. Standard Time on Monday morning. It was possible he thought that the empty bottle may have been under the back seat, placed there at some time and then forgotten, but he did not regard the probability 'too strongly.'

Week-end at Bridgenorth

Miss Dunsmore who was allowed a seat while in the witness box said that the car in which she was riding left Bridgenorth where the party had been visiting with the Mann's at about eight o'clock Monday morning.

John Frank Dunsmore was driving, she testified, and her father who was killed as a result of the subsequent crash was sitting in the front seat along with the driver and 8-year-old Doreen Dunsmore. Witness was in the back seat of the car along with Mrs. J. F. Dunsmore and the latter's 2 months old baby and Miss Eunice Hammond of Bridgenorth.

Just prior to the accident witness judged the speed of the car driven by Dunsmore would be 34-35 miles per hour. She could not remember having seen the other car approach, nor could she remember on which side of the road their car was at the time of the impact.

Mrs. John F. Dunsmore of Beamsville gave similar testimony she had no previous warning that a crash was about to occur. "All I saw was my baby on the swing in front of me," she said.

Dr. A. G. Howson who was called to the scene of the accident described John F. Dunsmore driver of the southbound car as the most seriously injured of the five persons who had been admitted to hospital. Dunsmore had a bad fracture of the arm, the doctor stated, expressing the opinion that a month might elapse before Dunsmore was well enough to leave hospital.

Dr. J. M. O'Brien who assisted Dr. Herbert Young in performing an autopsy of the remains of John A. Dunsmore described death as being due to extensive head injuries. Dr. Young gave corroborative evidence.

Fred L. Roy, photographer took photographs of the scene of the accident and also of the badly wrecked cars. They were put in as exhibits.

Byron Woods, outside of whose house the accident occurred placed the time of the smash as happening shortly after nine o'clock.

William O'Brien of Millbrook reached the scene of the accident shortly after the crash, he testified. He had been driving on the highway in the same direction as the Dunsmore car which had passed him at a railroad crossing north of Fraserville possibly three quarters of a mile from the point of impact.

His own speed he said was 32 miles per hour. At the time of the accident the Dunsmore car was a quarter mile or a little more ahead of witness.

O'Brien stated that after pulling out to the left of the road to pass his own car the Dunsmore car had continued south on the east side of the highway for what he considered an unreasonable time. The Dunsmore car only appeared to pull back to its own side of the road when it had to in order to let another northbound car past.

He was unable to swear on what portion of the highway the Dunsmore car was travelling immediately prior to the impact with the Nantel car.

Walking with the aid of a cane and bearing a large piece of sticking plaster on his forehead, John Jordan described as a member of the resident engineers staff of the Department of Highways stationed at Port Hope testified that their car left Port Hope at about 8.15 Standard Time.

With the exception of a brief stop the other side of Bewdley to visit a friend, he swore that the car driven by Nantel had not stopped anywhere. He estimated the speed of the car in which he was travelling at about 40 miles per hour as it came over the brow of the incline just before crashing.

The Dunsmore car witness testified, "appeared to me as if the right wheels were approximately on the centre of the highway", Nantel witness declared pulled over as far to the edge of the pavement as was possible.

Questioned regarding the empty bottle found in the Port Hope car Jordan declared positively, "I do not know who was responsible for placing the bottle in the car. I placed the instruments in the back seat before we left Port Hope and the bottle was not there at that time. It may have been placed under the seat at some time and then been forgotten".

Thomas Graham bore out the evidence of the previous witness in all its essential points.

The jury was composed as follows: Sidney Whatley, foreman; John Duignan, John McCabe, James Lundy, Harry Rudkins, George Dinsdale, Frank Shanahan, William Welsh, Harold Baptie, W. R. Payne, W. E. Lech, Ted Boyer.

Grafton's Clear Summer Stock

So large is the stock of men's and boy's clothing and furnishings that employees of Grafton's have been arranging and repricing for days their entire stock in preparation for their Mid-Summer Clearance which begins to-morrow morning. Men in every walk of life as well as boys of all ages will find large tables and racks of seasonable suits, sweaters, bathing suits and fittings of all sorts awaiting their selection at prices representing exceptional savings.

Grafton's have the largest stock and variety in the city, particularly in boy's wear and men's work clothing, and it is in these departments where possibly the greatest reductions are made. Page three to-day carries full particulars of this clearance.

Summer Months Are Menace To Babies

Do you know that one little common house-fly, permitted to settle on a piece of food, milk, a baby's comfort, can deposit germs that will kill a little baby? It has been proved conclusively through scientific investigations made at one of Canada's leading hospitals for children that the invisible deposits left by flies are responsible for "Summer Complaint" or Infant Diarrhoea, taking the toll of hundreds of infants' lives during the summer months. The common house-fly also causes typhoid, diptheria, dysentery and other deadly ailments. It is not then a matter of common-sense, of common duty for every citizen to fight these deadly pests with every available weapon.

Protection of food, screening doors and windows, covering garbage cans, and making a general clean-up are imperative but not sufficient. All the flies that are still around after all precautions have been taken, must be killed.

One of the cleanest, safest and simplest ways to kill all the flies that get into the home during the summer, is to use Wilson's Fly Pads for two or three hours every day. Keep pads too, moistened every day, on porch or veranda and they will kill flies which might otherwise enter the house when doors or windows are opened. Just a little care will reduce the risk to human life to a minimum.

100 ACRE GIFT MADE N. SCOTIA

Professor McIntosh Asks "Love Shelling" be Built on Beauty Spot.

IN INVERNESS COUNTY.

HALIFAX, July 25. (CP). — A rare vein of Scottish sentiment was revealed when solicitors made public last night the request of Prof. Donald Sutherland McIntosh, formerly of Dalhousie University, who died last week.

He bequeathed to his native province 100 acres of land in the north of Cape Breton, and showing the great love of a Highlander for the Heather country his forefathers left, he asked that on it there should be erected a building similar in design to the "Lone Sheiling" made famous in Scottish literature.

Premier Angus L. MacDonald, was touched by the 73-year-old Scot's dying wish. Last night from Province House he issued a statement saying "The provision in the will, of my friend, who for many years well known to thousands of Dalhousie students is one that will appeal strongly to the hearts of all who knew the man."

"The rich vein of sentiment which is never absent from the Celtic soul ran strongly and clearly through his life and is now manifest after his death" the statement continued.

"It is an appealing and magnificent gesture," said Premier MacDonald, "expressive of deep affection for the two Scotlands—the old and the new."

The land which Prof. MacIntosh has bequeathed to his country lies in one of the most beautiful scenic spots in the province. It is at Pleasant Bay, Inverness county, the district where Prof. McIntosh was born and where his family came many years ago to clear the land, and till the soil as early pioneers.

Speculation was rife around the Province House that the land might be taken over as a national Park.

Six Delegates Named For "Hunger March"

Six delegates to the "hunger march" were appointed by the U. W. P. last night, although at the conclusion it seemed that no more than two of the Peterborough men would be able to go.

Reports from U.W.F. members this morning were still rather doubtful as to the number who would join the Eastern Ontario division at Oshawa some time to-morrow.

George Ashbrook of Toronto, who is in charge of the Eastern Ontario section, told The Examiner to-day that the local men would leave to-night or to-morrow for Oshawa, where they would be joined by a score or more from that city and also a small delegation from Trenton. The eastern contingent will set out from Oshawa on Friday morning with the expectation of being three days on the road to East York.

In the meantime all Western Ontario marchers will be converging on Hamilton, from where they will proceed in a body to Toronto. On Monday morning both groups will march to Queen's Park to present their petition to the Provincial Government.

Accommodation for the Eastern Ontario men has been arranged at Pickering and East York.

SEYMOUR WEST GIVES $5 PRIZE

Institute Grants Award to Girl Standing Highest in Wooler Judging Competition.

PLANS DISCUSSED.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 25.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent.)—A prize of five dollars for the Seymour West girl receiving the highest number of points at the judging competition to be held at Wooler on July 31, was approved by the Seymour West, Women's Institute on Thursday last, when that organizations met in monthly session on the lawn of the farm home of Mrs. Roy Flemming. The president, Mrs. Howard Clark, occupied the chair, the opening and closing exercises being led by Mrs. R. W. Free.

The means of transportation for any district girl wishing to compete at Wooler was left with a committee comprised of the president and secretary. The judging includes—Family menus for a day for a farm family of six; the different cuts of beef, to name ten and tell which part of the carcase five comes from, and tell the best way of cooking them; dining room and kitchen plans; the dressing of four models; and a darn on woolen goods. In addition a team will demonstrate on "a well dressed girl," telling the good and bad points of dress.

Every institute in the county may send contestants to this competition, the winners in which will compete in judging and meonstration at the Peterborough Exhibition on August 22.

No action was taken regarding the starting of each little new arrival with a dollar banking account; and the matter of a picnic was discussed and voted against this year, there being so many smaller affairs scheduled for the district this summer. The roll call was, "Recollections of school days," to which many members replied.

After the business the president gave words of welcome to a few of the Hastings branch members who had found it possible to attend as guests, to which Mrs. Lynch, of Hastings, graciously replied.

For the program, Miss Dorothy Watters gave a reading, "My First Ride on a Bicycle"; little Gerene Brown recited about her mother's cake, which appeared at a party at which most of the neighbors and Institute members were present, this being quite refreshing and humorous. Little Misses Watters sang a duet very sweetly; Betty Dunham, a reading, "The Farmer Feeds Them All"; Florence Shearer a reading; Earl Nelson a violin solo; and Mrs. J. A. Brown of Hastings a reading, "The Gentleman Cook." The meeting concluded with a delightful lunch.

Magistrate's Court

"If they say I was drunk I must have been. Policemen never tell lies."

The above remark made by a most voluble woman defendant in reply to evidence offered against her by Constables J. Stevenson and George Carey in Magistrate's court this morning was described by Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C. as one of the highest tributes the police could receive.

While that might have been so, it did not deter Magistrate Langley from registering a conviction against the defendant. He imposed the minimum fine of $10 without costs or in default ten days in the County Gaol.

Going into the witness box defendant denied that she had been drinking liquor although the police constables had previously sworn as to the disturbance the woman had been creating on Elm street prior to her arrest.

Declaring that she was subject to frequent spells of sickness defendant said she had been doing a heavy wash. She placed coal oil and washing soda in the clothes to whiten them, and the fumes got to her head. Later she went into the garden to pick beans and the sun struck her and she remembered no more.

Expressing her inability to meet the fine imposed the woman requested police protection for her home while she was in gaol. On a former occasion when she had been in hospital she stated her house had been robbed and police had refused to go near it.

In Traffic Court Raymond Roy of Toronto was fined $10 and $3.75 costs on pleading guilty to a charge of "speeding". Herbert Hamlin of this city as assessed $3 and $3.75 costs for driving a car with defective lights The informations were laid by Traffic Officer A. E. Hornick.

JUDGE WEARING IN CLASH WITH LONDON'S MAYOR

Threat of "Big Whip" Cracked Over Heads of London Police Commission.

SLOT MACHINES.

Perhaps Can Get a New Commission Here Mayor Wenige Declares.

LONDON, Ont., July 25.—Threat of the "Big Whip" was cracked over the heads of the London police commission yesterday afternoon when Mayor George A. Wenige, citing the recent shift in the Toronto commission personnel, lashed out at the united opposition of the commissioners to his recent order to the police chief for a clean up of slot machines here.

"Perhaps we can get a new commission here. There was a change at Toronto," the mayor snapped. Nevertheless he was forced to back down on his slot machine campaign, over which the city is threatened with suits for illegal seizure, and promised to write an order to Chief Down for the return of the machines to their operators or owners.

It was reported that practically all the machines raked in by the department during its ordered "clean-up" were of the type recently declared legal in city court.

Judge Joseph Wearing fired the shot which was to start the two-hour battle.

"Did you have a written notice from the chief stating that he had reason to believe there were machines in certain establishments?" the judge asked the mayor.

"No."

"Then you had no right to order their seizure. There's a criminal code in existence."

Believes He was Justified

"I issued the order for the seizure and I believe I was justified," said Mayor Wenige. "The chief said there were slot machines in certain places."

"I did not," interjected the chief.

"At the last meeting you said seize them all. I asked that we get at those declared illegal," said Judge Wearing. "Now you're squirming. You sneered at my idea and maintained Toronto and Hamilton had seized all machines. You're on the limb and you're going to stay there."

"I'm surprised at the animosity you show towards the mayor," asserted Mr. Wenige.

"Have I ever got on the public platform and talked about you?"

"And I may do it again," came the mayor's reply.

"Here now gentlemen," spoke up Magistrate T. W. Scandrett. "We are not getting anywhere like this."

"I have a right to say something," snapped the mayor. "After all, I am the chairman. The chief went out and took the machines opposite to the order."

"He just carried out your order. The bench found a certain type illegal. I am anxious to stop gambling but in your haste you wanted them all," continued the judge.

"All as defined under section 641 of the Criminal Code," replied the mayor.

Challenges Mayor's Right

"You had no right to issue the order" continued he judge. "The slot machines are now in your hands and the police commission is not going to deal with them."

"I maintain there is no co-operation by the chief," continued the mayor.

"The chief is anxious to maintain law and order but he feels that going slow and sure is a better policy" replied the judge.

Chief Down asked how he could make progress when the mayor advertised what was going on in the papers.

"The chief is not a member of the commission and he should not butt in" replied the mayor. "Perhaps we can get another commission. There was a recent change in Toronto."

"It is a matter of stern public duty that I attend meetings of the police commission," said Judge Wearing at this point. "I want to maintain law and order and a capable police department, but there is no city the size of London where the members are not paid. The judge in Peterborough gets $300 per year for attending the meetings. I do not want to jump over the law but a meeting like this takes a lot out of me. I am an ex-officio member but a judge cannot maintain his equanimity with your type of chairman."

"Surely you are not going to ask for $300?" spoke up the mayor.

Judge Raps Mayor

"It should have been paid to all members of the board long ago" replied the judge. "I have served on commissions with three other mayors and the meetings have all been quiet until you came along and tried to leap over the law. I have not had an angry word with any of the other mayors."

"Well, previous meetings of the commission have sat with this mayor."

"Yes, and the members all have the same reports."

"The onus is on the mayor" said the judge.

"Gentlemen," said the magistrate, "why not all get together and shake hands and have everything smoothed over. Let us all get a smile on our faces. I just came here to get all this straightened out and get all you gentlemen on good terms."

"Never mind about me," spoke up the mayor.

Mayor Wenige asked the chief about bootlegging and was told that the chief is doing all in his power to stamp out bootlegging, but evidence must always be obtained in order to secure a conviction.

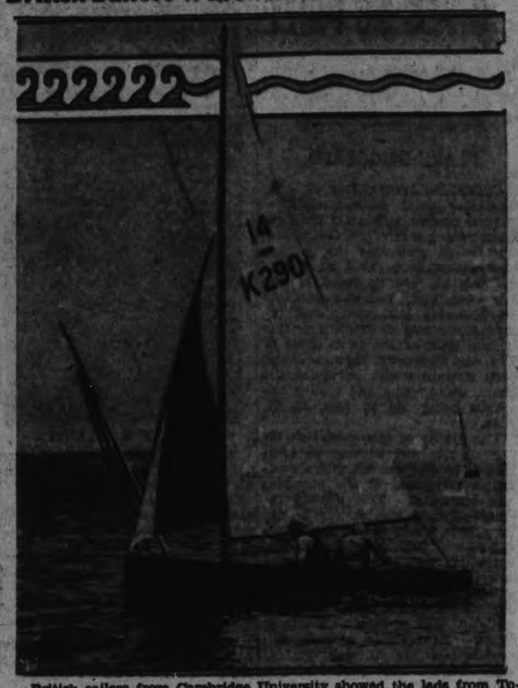
Village Fire Renders 23 Homeless—Threatens Community

The damage was not great, a matter of little more than $10,000, but 23 persons were rendered homeless when their homes at Coterville, Que., went up in smoke in a fire that threatened for a while to wipe out the entire village. The fire started in one of a group of cottages when a coal oil stove exploded. The layout shows the blazing fire from a photo taken at midnight. The ruins also are shown. Below, one of the stricken families having breakfast in the open. Only a small part of the damage is covered by insurance.

British Sailors Win In International Race



British sailors from Cambridge University showed the lads from Toronto and Rochester how to sail when teams from the three nations met in races on Lake Ontario off Toronto. In the first race, the British dinghies ran one, two and three to take a commanding lead. In the second race, Rochester took first place, but the English visitors won the major share of the points. Picture shows Lightning, British boat crossing finish line first in first race.

To The Rescue

STAN LUCAS

When the score is close, the bases loaded and none out, Manager Ike Boone of the Toronto Leafs has evolved a system of stopping the enemy from scoring. He simply yanks his pitcher, calls for Stan Lucas and lets the singing right-hander do his stuff. And how Stan can do it. He is now being dubbed as ace relief pitcher in the International league. Stan is a product of Toronto sand-lots and in the off-season is a radio singer by profession. His hurling of late has been little short of sensational, he having won three games as a relief pitcher in three days.

As England And Australia Tied In Third Test Cricket Match

When England and Australia met at Old Stafford in the third of the cricket test matches, each had won one match. England went to work on the Aussie bowlers and pounded them to all corners of the lot, but had to be content, after the three-day stretch, with taking a tie. The photo, showing action from the third game, shows Sutcliffe and Walters (capt.) stealing a single. They were England's opening pair.

The Outdoor Club of the Y.M.C.A. last night was one of the jolliest outings this season in spite of the weather. All enjoyed swimming at Mr. Kinghan's beach, and the fragrance of the coffee cooking over the camp fire enticed the swimmers to the supper of weiners and bacon and rolls. Marshmallows were toasted over the big camp fire after supper, and camp songs and rounds were thoroughly enjoyed by everybody. At sunset taps was sung and homeward bound in the moonlight. Mr. W. Oke supplied the truck to take the girls to Chemong and three rousing cheers were given Mr. Kinghan and Mr. Oke for the jolly evening. Miss Littlefield announced that the camp fire next week would be in charge of Miss Sherin. Also invited all the girls to the sports hour Friday night, which will be the last until September.

YOUR HEALTH

In the treatment of malaria we recently have had two new drugs introduced. The old standby is still quinine.

Everyone knows, I suppose, the story of how quinine was introduced into medicine by the Peruvian Indians. Quinine is found in the bark of the cinchona tree, and the Indians are said to have observed that after a storm which blew such trees into lakes and ponds, that people who drank of that water found that they were cured of their fevers and agues. Tradition says that the first white person to use quinine was the wife of the governor of Peru, about 300 years ago, and that the chinchona bark was given her by an Indian servant.

For years quinine has been perfectly satisfactory as a cure for malaria. It kills the active malaria organisms in the blood. It has, however, a few disadvantages. The malaria organisms grows inside the red cells of the blood. When it has grown to a certain size it bursts from the cell, and it is only when it is thus free in the blood that quinine kills it. Inasmuch as at any given time organisms may be free in the blood and also inside the red cell quinine will never kill the infection all, off unless given repeatedly over a considerable period of time. Under its use relapses are always likely to occur.

The new drugs which have been introduced are called "atabrine" and "plasmochin". The great advantage of atabrine is that it kills the germs in the blood so completely that relapses are not likely to occur. It apparently kills the germs inside as well as outside the red cells of the blood, and requires only a few days' dosage to do this.

The only disadvantage of atabrine is its cost, but considering the fact that it prevents relapses and, hence, does not require such a prolonged period of treatment, in the long run it may be as economical as quinine itself.

The value of plasmochin is that it destroys the gametocytes' These gametocytes are a form of the parasite which do no harm to man, but which are taken up by the mosquito and developed in its body until the form which is harmful to man is developed. If plasmochin can be used in all people who have malaria and will destroy these gametocytes, it is possible that by its use malaria could be entirely preSented.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

M. D.: "Will you please give me information on how to get rid of warts?"

Answer: The best way is a short exposure to the X-ray. A medical treatment which has proved successful is the use of formalin. Get a half ounce bottle and carry it in your pocket. Moisten the cork three or four times a day, and touch the top of the cork to the wart.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

It is a good idea for children to have small allowances. Pin money was the name given to allowances which were meant to be spent on trifles. This was when pins were scarce, and women wanted money with which to buy them. Pins were not considered essential, but desirable luxuries which indicated incomes above the necessities of life. To have pin money, was a mark of evidence of riches. Today with pins a common commodity and necessary articles, the term pin money has been superceded by that of allowance.

* * * * * *

I have dwelt on the name pin money, partly because mothers can help their little folk to earn their allowances by picking up pins. When I was a little girl I was given a penny for each six pins I picked up off the floor. Pins from anywhere else could not be included. Needles counted a penny each. They were scarcer and considered more dangerous to have where they could be trodden on, and perhaps broken. You can imagine how clear the floors were kept from both pins and needles, and how we children revelled in the days when the seamstress or the dressmaker came to the house to work. Today vacuum cleaners can be damaged by gathering up pins and needles, so why not let the youngsters earn some pin money by keeping the floors free from pins and needles, and thereby help fill their wee purses or banks with the proceeds of their labor?

* * * * * *

There are always some tasks for little hands to do and they will be willing hands if they get some remuneration for their labor. After all this is one way of helping children to learn what it means to be self-supporting. It is a method which works to the advantage of the employer, who is mother in this case, and the employees, who are the children.

Exercise Will Help Too Thin Limbs If You Practice Them Faithfully

Gloria Stuart

"Dear Miss Glad: Although my legs are well shaped from the knees down, my thighs are very thin. For this reason I look a fright in a bathing suit. Could you outline any exercises that might prove helpful in rounding out my thighs?

ALICE"

The following exercises should help to develop your thighs, if practiced faithfully every day:

Stand erect, heels together, hands on hips. Bend the knees and squat to a sitting position. Return to first position and repeat. The back should be kept straight during this exercise.

Lie flat on your back, arms extended overhead. Bring the legs up to the chest and then make a complete circle with each limb, alternating the legs in bicycle-riding fashion.

In addition you might, plus your exercising, massage your thighs nightly with warmed coco butter. This will help to fatten the tissues and round out the contours of your thighs.

"Dear Miss Glad: I've had simply marvelous results from that reducing course outlined in your 'New Figure' booklet. I lost 31 pounds, and my whole body seems as firm and slender as any flicker favorite. My sister has been following the gaining weight course in this same booklet and it's helped her greatly. Do you think, however, that the speed at which she eats has anything to do with her continued thinness?

KATE."

The speed at which your sister eats does indeed have some connection with her thinness. She should always chew her food slowly and thoroughly. Such leisurely and complete mastication might almost be said to take the place of additional food. For thorough chewing makes a gal enjoy her food more and satisfies her appetite better. It increases the flow of saliva and digestive juices in the stomach, and makes meals provide more nourishment because of their complete digestion.

* * *

"Dear Miss Glad: I don't know why it is, but every summer I become terribly afflicted with prickly heat. The condition of my back and arms is not only most annoying, but also most unattractive to the eye. Could you possibly tell me of any good remedy?

LYDIA."

Diet and clothing both must be given attention by the person afflicted with prickly heat. Sweets, cakes, candies, gravies and rich foods should be eliminated from the diet. And all clothing should be light and cool. No woolens should be worn. To treat prickly heat, sponge the afflicted areas two or three times a day with a solution of one tablespoon of bicarbonate of soda and a quart of water. After each sponging, pat the skin dry. Then dust a bit of powder over the skin. Before retiring at night, do the sponging with witch hazel and then, instead of using powder, smooth a bit of oil over the skin. This will help to keep the skin soft, smooth and fine-textured.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

MAINE TEAMS-OF-8-LEAGUE

Various states have contract bridge clubs and teams-of-4, but teams-of-8 afford better tests of skill. Luck of the game is lessened in proportion to the number of players forming the teams competing. Even teams-of-4 sometimes are victims of luck, but teams-of-8 are practically immune from that disturbing element.

Some months ago I wrote of the Maine teams-of-8 league formed for the purpose of holding duplicate contract contests, between cities and for the championship of the state. The league went through the season with 12 full teams of 8 players each. I do not know of another league of its kind with so many or so active teams. It passed a very busy and successful season.

Portland had 3 teams: the Portland club, the Portland Women and the Shepard club. Brunswick had 2 teams, the Brunswick Men and the Brunswick Women. As scores showed, the ladies were sturdy competitors for the season's prizes.

The Shepard club made the best total net scores for the season, coming out more than 50,000 points ahead on its 22 contests. It was a close question whether next season the Brunswick Men will not prove to have a better team.

The season wound up with a tournament of the 12 clubs held at the Lafayette hotel, Portland. Below are given the names and scores of the competing clubs:

	Points
1. Brunswick Men	Net plus 6,400
2. Augusta	Net plus 3,640
3. Shepard Club	Net plus 3,460
4. Gardiner	Net plus 2,100
5. Lewiston Men	Net plus 920
6. Cape Elizabeth	Net plus 580
Non-scoring surplus	2,700
7. Brunswick Women	Even
8. Woodsfords Club	Net minus 600
9. Portland Women	Net minus 1,150
10. Auburn Women	Net minus 3,750
11. Monmouth	Net minus 6,880
12. Portland Club	Net minus 7,420

The game was so large that it had to be run in two sections. Half the team going in one section and half of each team in the other section. Each section played 22 hands. When a pair from one place encountered another pair from the same place, the score was not counted. The final score for each team was the net total score of its 4 pairs.

Already a woman's team from Augusta, and a man's team from Waterville have applied for membership for the 1934-1935 contests.

St. Andrew's Scotland, has ordered full regulation bathing costumes for sunbathing.

England is estimated to have 750,000 young people who never have worked.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THEY HAVE at last given the gate to Tommy Gorman and his Syracuse track. The New York State Racing Commission having revoked the license as punishment for carrying on optional betting in defiance of their laws. Tommy was contemplating a second meeting during September so he will have to do some heavy wire pulling between now and then if he expects to go through with it, but as he is a past master at the art of lobbying we will not go so far as to say he is licked yet.

Rockingham Park was visited by a bad fire on Monday evening, one barn being completely destroyed but only one horse was missing when the check-up took place. All the horses housed in that barn were turned loose as soon as the fire was noticed, so apparently all were saved with this lone exception. Stamford Park has only been going three days and more long shots have registered than in the entire fourteen days of racing at that point last year. Eddie Seagram is going to rest Shady Well up for a few weeks to have her in top form for a busy fall campaign. It is about time for Wacket to turn in another winner performance. Dan Dan McCrimmon has yet to register a win this season although he has ran some bang-up races. He will click in the near future.

WE ALSO expect to see Milestone being led into the winner's circle any day now. This one has been longer than usual this year in coming to hand, but don't sour on him yet as class will always assert itself. Our old friend Kitling is travelling along at a great clip just now, and will win many more races in the cheap Canadian bred ranks. The little birds tell us that Granite Rock is not far off of a winning effort.

The great mystery in Canadian turf circles this year is the failure of Broadway Lights. This once great handicap performer shows remarkable speed in his trials and when he gets in an actual race just folds up. He has been tried both in sprints and long distance events, with light weight, on and heavy weight on, on muddy tracks and fast going, but he just simply quits. We and as a result are attracting and when he does everybody will say "I told you so." There is one down at King's Park called Hey There that the wise boys are all saying is a cinch. He is a former Whitney color bearer so you can rest assured there is plenty of class.

DARK AYR is also down there laying in the tall grass waiting for the proper spot. They always get a real price on this one, so don't be caught napping. Two Tricks won his last at Detroit and looks good enough to put on a repeat performance. Last winter in Florida he won four straight races before being stopped. Mama's Choice came to life at Empire City this week and just tow roped his field.

Cogs Take One Game Lead In E. P. L. Playoffs

CLUBMEN SCORE RUN IN EIGHTH 5 TO 4 VICTORY

Electrics' Errors Cost Them Decision After They Had Piled Up Early Lead.

CALLED IN 8TH.

Cogs won the first game of the E.P.L. playoffs over C.G.E., 5 to 4, at the Exhibition Grounds last night, scoring the winning run in the eighth frame. A fair-sized crowd saw a good tussle, with C.G.E. errors costing them the tilt after they had piled up an early lead. The contest was called at the end of the eighth on account of darkness.

Lefty Billingsley went the route for the winners being touched for seven hits, mostly scattered, while fanning seven and walking one. He went good the last part of the game and had neat support most of the way. Jack Barry started great for the Electrics, giving only one hit till the fifth. He was touched for two then and two in the next and gave way to McGillen in the eighth after putting the winning run on the paths. He is charged with the loss. Barry allowed seven hits while striking out seven and walking three. McGillen issued one hit and fanned one. The C.G.E. support was shaky all through.

Leads Willow Wielding

Masterson led the winners at bat with two hits in three times, while Wilson got two in four. Mowry topped the losers with a double and two singles in four attempts. Weir hit a triple. Billingsley and Padgett went good in the field for Cogs, while Wilson, Weir and Rogers all featured with great catches. Weir's in particular was a nifty, grabbing off a screaming liner one-hand.

C.G.E. tallied once in the first, Weir tripling and scoring on Mowry's single. They added two more to take a 3-0 lead in the third on an error, Nicholls' single and Mowry's two-bagger. Cogs went to work in the fifth to count two on a walk, three pilfered sacks and singles by Masterson and Wilson. They got one more in the sixth to tie it up, Rooke's single, a fielder's choice, an error and Mein's scratch hit scoring the run. C.G.E. got another in the sixth when Busby was safe on a miscue stole second and third, and raced home on an out.

Tie Count in 7th

Again Cogs sewed it up in the seventh. Wilson reaching first on a fumbled ball, pilfering the keystone sack and going right home when Hatton's overthrow to second got through the centre-fielder. They won it in the eighth, Rogers scratching a hit to second, going to third on Masterson's bingle and home on a hit by Vannest. C.G.E. tried hard to score in both the seventh and eighth but lacked the punch.

WEBB'S SINGLE COPS DECISION FOR WESTCLOX

Heavier Clouting Gives Clockmakers 9-7 Victory Over Electrics.

FAIR FIELDING

A clean bingle into centre field by Dot Webb with two on and the score tied in the last half of the tenth gave the Westclox girls a 9-7 victory over the C.G.E. team last night at the Ashburnham Bowl in the best game played in the Ladies' City and District loop this year.

Heavier clouting decided the issue, the winners collecting sixteen hits from the offerings of Helen Newson, but these were scattered for the most part and the snappy fielding of the Electrics left a flock of Westclox runners stranded on the sacks. The losing pitcher fanned three, issued no walks, and pitched a smart game throughout, despite the handicap of an injured ankle. Barb Blade pitched a dandy game for the Clockmakers. She sent eight batters out swinging, walked four and was touched for nine hits, one of these a homer by Winnie Snowden in the ninth which knotted the score. She just pitched three balls in the tenth, the first three C.G.E. batters popping to the fielders.

The teams:

C.G.E.: DeCarlo, lf; English, lf; M. Snowden, cf; Byers, 2b; Millar, c; Gates, 3b; W. Snowden, ss; Self, rf; Todd, 1b; Newson, p.

Westclox: Mortimer, 1b; Ferguson, ss; Webb, c; Hawkes, 2b; Chartren, 3b; Merrett, lf; Crary, cf; Darling, rf; Blade, p.

Score by innings:

GIANTS BLAST ST. LOUIS CARDS' VICTORY STREAK WITH 5-0 WIN

Charlie Grimm's Homer Enables Cubs to Keep Pace By Defeating Dodgers 6-3—Braves Snap Losing Streak by Outscoring Cincinnati.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

From pennant winner and leading contender to just a couple of second division clubs—that summarizes the slumps of Washington Senators and Pittsburgh Pirates which have played important parts in reducing the number of contenders from the major league flags.

Pittsburgh, which was expected to be in the midst of the current National League race among the Giants, Cubs and Cardinals, today found itself near the bottom of the season's worst slump after nine straight defeats. The Bucs struck a new low yesterday when they took a 9-0 beating from the Phillies, being limited to four hits by Sylvester Johson who pitched his first complete game of the season, and dropped a point behind Boston into fifth place.

Drop to 6th Place

The Senators were in even worse condition as they skidded off into the sixth notch in the American League standing for the second time within a week after a 4-1 defeat at the hands of the last-place White Sox. Les Tietje took care of the Washington hitters, giving them only six safeties and losing a shutout when rookie Johnny Gill hit a home run. And it was only the second time this year he had gone the route.

The good pitching which marked these two games was in evidence throughout both major leagues yesterday with the two leaders benefitting from good mound performances along with the law-ranking clubs. The Giants snubbed the Cardinals race toward the top of the National League lead on Roy Parmelee's four-hit flinging, winning 5-0 and the Tigers came through to a 6-3 triumph over Boston's Red Sox with the aid of some flashy relief hurling by Clarence Phillips.

Parmelee Stops Cards

Parmelee, pitching the best game of his spotty season stopped the Cards after seven straight triumphs to leave them four games away from the lead. Mel Ott's 28th homer also figured in the victory. Phillips made his big league debut in a tough spot, relieving Carl Fischer in the fifth when Detroit's early lead was threatened, and pitched four hit ball the rest of the way to earn credit for the victory.

Three Game Lead

The decision increased Detroit's lead to three games over the Yankees as the Browns handed New York a 4-3 setback to go into fifth place. Lou Gehrig's 26th homer gave the Yanks an early lead but the seventh inning brought them a double dose of trouble when Johnny Murphy wilted in the heat and gave up three runs and Earl Combs crashed into the fence trying to catch Harland Clift's deciding three-bagger and was injured. A possible brain concussion and possible fracture of the left shoulder were indicated by the preliminary examination.

Cubs Follow close

The second-place Cubs held their spot two games behind the Giants by making good use of their six hits and seven walks off Van Mungo to beat the Dodgers, 6-3 behind Lee's steady hurling. Manager Charley Grimm supplied the winning runs with a homer with two aboard.

Old Flint Rhem provided the fourth of the National League's good mound performances by holding the Reds to seven hits while the Braves broke a six-game losing streak with a 4-3 victory that lifted them barely into the first division. In the American Monte Pearson recorded his 12th victory for the third-place Indians although touched up for 12 hits, including two homers by Ed Coleman, Cleveland slammed Johnny Marcum for five runs in the first and breezed through to win 10-6.

CLEVELAND — Patsy Perroni, 135, Boston, outpointed Johnny Risko, 198, Cleveland (10); Paul Pirrone., 187, Cleveland, stopped Jackie Purvis, 182, Indianapolis (4).

VITO TAMULIS HURLING STAR IN BEARS' WIN

Newark Southpaw and Vince Barton Combine for 6-1 Victory.

BISONS WIN 13-10.

(By Associated Press.)

High-powered hurling on the part of 23-year-old Vito Tamulis kept Newark Bears in full flight to-day ahead of a hard-pressing band of pursuers from Canada, Toronto Maple Leafs.

Tamulis, a slim left-hander, stepped in yesterday and held the third place Rochester Red Wings to six hits as the Newark clouters pounded John Berly and Jim Windford for an even dozen to win a night game 6-1. It was just as well that he did.

Leafs Follow Close.

In close pursuit, only a game and a half behind the league-leading Bears, Toronto jumped on Syracuse Chiefs with a five-run rally in the first inning, and went on to a 6-3 verdict.

The Leafs got their five runs before a man was out in the first, belting Tim McKeithan and Ad Liska for five straight hits on top of a pair of walks. George McQuinn, Toronto first baseman, gathered in four hits and Manager Ike Boone two.

Sheriff Blake and Charlie Lucas kept Syracuse in fair subjection, but the pitching performance of the day and night was that of Tamulis, who fanned nine and had easy sailing once Vince Barton opened up on the Rochester pitchers. Barton poled five straight hits, two of them doubles.

Fans Storm Field.

Montreal, in a virtual tie with Albany for fourth place, spent an exciting evening with Baltimore Orioles, winning 7-3 in a game that was followed by more excitement than was generated on the playing field. The fans stormed the field after the game protesting Umpire Van Grafiin's decisions on balls and strikes.

There was talk of preferring charges against Prexco Thompson, Montreal infielder, whom a fan claimed had hit him. Van Grafiin thought he should take somebody to court for shoving him down the dugout steps.

Leads Montreal Attack.

Catcher Outen led the Montreal attack with a homer and a single. Pomorski and Mylivangas, Montreal pitchers, were touched for nine hits, while the Royals found Lohrman, Richmond and Granger for only eight.

The wildness of Albany's pitchers, Milligan, Chapman, Pilley and Jones, helped Buffalo pull out a 13-10 victory in a game played in a drizzle. The defeat cost Albany all but a fraction of a point of a fourth place lead over Montreal.

Habocos Win From Maple Leafs 8 To 7

Habocos nosed out an 8-7 decision over Maple Leafs in a snappy bantam ball game that was run off in slightly more than an hour. Curtin hurled a fine game, despite wildness, holding the opposition to four bingles while fanning seven. Cleary allowed eight safeties and also struck out seven. His support was not as good as Curtin's. Scriver hit a homer for the Leafs with one aboard in the third. Some snappy fielding was dished up, with Baxter featuring with a smart catch. The teams:

COLOSSAL IS GOOD CIRCUS WORD FOR JOHNSON'S ELIMINATIONS

Carnera, Hamas, Neusel and King Levinsky Picked as Potential Contenders.

MAY BE CLOWN ACT.

The word James J. Johnston, Madison Square Garden's matchmaker, uses to describe his September heavyweight melee is "colossal."

It's a good word, with a ring of circus press-agentry in it, and before the events Johnston is planning reach mellow ripeness, there may be more of a circus aspect on the affair than even the wise-cracking Johnston now realizes.

It is Johnston's plan to bring together four wearers of boxing gloves who for the sake of the story can be called logical contenders for the world's heavyweight championship bauble now in possession of Max Baer.

These four are Primo Carnera, Steve Hamas, Walter Neusel and King Levinsky. Any one of the cauliflowers can become without warning the kind of clown folk in the farm belt spend their hay and oats harvest money to see when the big top comes to town. And, at least two of those named are rather more than likely to furnish not much fighting but a whole lot of good, clean fun.

Possibilities for Pleasant Evening

Carnera, by benefit of his bulk, has been a potential Pierrot since he began his lumbering career. Even in such tragic moments as when he was losing his title under the buffeting blows of Max Baer, the ponderous Pisan hovered on the edge of comedy. Several of his ring appearances have been uproariously funny, including the bout on the Pacific coast when he was losing to Bombo Chevalier but won when a towel came flying into the ring from Bombo's corner.

The possibilities of another fistic festival between Carnera and Levinsky is attractive for those who are sticklers for silliness within the ropes rather than bloodshed. These two put on a show in Chicago two years ago that made the Nick Altrock-Al Schacht act seem serious by comparison.

Carnera Beat Loughran by a Foot

Carnera's skill has been vastly over-rated by writers trying assiduously to point out that here was a great big man who really could box. Despite his reputation for carrying a lethal punch, he failed to do much damage to venerable Tommy Loughran in Florida last spring until he planted one of those violin cases of his on Tommy's tender foot, breaking an ankle bone. Carnera's knockout of Sharkey must be discounted a great deal by subsequent Sharkey showings.

As for Neusel and Hamas, I don't believe anyone connected with boxing seriously considers either as a championship possibility. Each has demonstrated in-and-out tendencies which are irreconcilable with championship caliber.

The eliminations should be colossal though, as Johnston says. If the matchmaker could find another pair like Carnera and the Kingfish, he would have a full-fledged circus on his hands, and could promote it as such! The bouts might even carry slapsticks to make it merrier.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By C. J. P.

A lot of ball fans squinted the old weather eye at the clouds overhead last eve and said, "It-nay on that E.P.L. game; it'll be rained out." They should have known better. Why, with the farmers all yelling for rain ball fans might have known that it would clear up. Anyway it did and Cogs and C.G.E. ripped off their first chapter of the little world serial. It was a mighty interesting struggle with Cogs copping the duke, 5 to 4, in eight frames. C.G.E. played the better game of soccer, though, some of their boots being of the "Oh, I say, well wicked, old chap!" variety, while others were just plain ordinary bobbles. They kicked the game away after going like a hundred G's the first five frames.

• • • • • •

There was a fair crowd on deck, though it would undoubtedly have been better but for the threatening weather. Cogs tied the game up in the sixth, and had to do it again in the seventh, but they tucked the tussle in the old gunny sack used for toting bats in the eight canto. The pitching was fair and so was the hitting, while the winners' fielding was smart, particularly catches by Rogers and Wilson. For Electrics, Weir pulled off a four-star grab of a bullet drive with one mitt that had us thinking for a minute we were over in Navin Field or Griffith Stadium.

• • • • • •

These teams will likely tangle again about Friday e'en down there along about six bells. The series is best four out of seven, and C.G.E. had better step in there and grab off this second fixture or they're right smack in the middle of the spot—the one called "X". With something at stake, these teams are playing real baseball and, despite some loose fielding by Electrics, they should go good next time out. Vannest or Masterson will hurl for Cogs while Armour or Hofferman will probably get the call for the Hatton hopefuls.

• • • • • •

Johnston's Tires slapped over the chesty Brintons, 12-5, in a softball struggle at Central last p.m., and a lot of the Carpetmen don't know how it happened yet. Elliott twirled good ball and had great backing while the fielding of Brintons was dearodearodear! Of course, Brintons were minus a couple of regulars, so they have some alibi, but they can't afford to be short any player when they tackle this crew. The Deck boys have a curious gleam in their optics these days that looks like a torrid old pennant chase down the home stretch.

• • • • • •

Westclox damsels took a ten-inning thriller from C.G.E., 9-7, at the Bowl last night, Dot Webb's single in the overtime stanza busting up a tie and sending the Electrics home broken-hearted. One like that is the berries to win but tough onions to drop. Barb Blade's pitching was pretty swell, though Helen Newson wasn't so dusty either. This is the sort of gals' softball we like to see, and the fans eat it up and yell for more. The C.G.E. team have certainly come to life this second and are scaring the daylights out of all and sundry they meet up with—and bid fair to continue till all the marbles are counted.

Smith's Smokies won the men's softball playoffs in Lindsay, taking three straight games from the Collegians. From what we can gather, this team—the one that will meet the local winner in the O.A.S.A. first round playdowns—has some hard hitters, fair fielders and a good hurler in Laird Gamble. Here is their lineup: Ecobichon, cf; Shaw, 3b; J. Campbell, 2b; Fever, ss; Brethous, rf; C. Campbell, 1b; J. Bartlett, lf; Brown, c; Gamble, p. Most of these players are known to local softballers. As this playdown series starts Aug. 17th, the local schedule has been revised to include Wednesday and Saturday games in order to hurry it up. It'll end August 4th, when playoffs here commence, instead of Aug. 10th. Revised one appears today.

• • • • • •

The tennis tourney now on here to declare city champions is producing some good play in the first and second rounds. One thing we notice by the daily scores is the consistency of form—that is, the ranking players as a rule are knocking off the opposition in the early rounds and working toward each other for a grand slam in the semi-finals and finals. This holds pretty true of both the lady netters and the men over-the-hemp stars. However, some of the dark horses aren't out of the money yet and may upset the kicked-about dope bucket. Play is going on daily at the Peterborough Club and Kawartha Club courts, and is worth seeing.

• • • • • •

The bantam baseballers are hard at it these days, rushing through a heavy schedule and enjoying it hugely. Last eve, Habocos got an 8-7 nod over Maple Leafs in a smart encounter that was run off in little better than an hour. Jack Deamard was the umpire and he called 'em okay. Even if he didn't, we can't imagine kids around fourteen and fifteen offering very strenuous objection to a police cop. But Jack is a good friend of the minor loop ball players and they know it. Both he and Mike O'Brien are working hard and attending all these bantam games just to provide the kids with baseball.

ELECTRICS WIN LEAGUE POINTS WITH 4-2 VICTORY OVER C.P.C.

Two Well Balanced Elevens Give Clever Combination Exhibition.

BRILLIANT GOAL-TENDING.

A clever goal by Earle, C.G.E. inside right, was the deciding factor in the four to two win over the Canada Packers in the league fixture, last night, before a large attendance of spectators. Two new comers introduced by the C.P., W. C. Howell, at centre forward, and Roy Nicholls, at right half, greatly strengthened the team. Curtis, C.G.E. goalie and Chamberlain, Packers, gave a wonderful display between the sticks. This win puts the winners four points ahead.

Fast Opening

After four minutes of play, George Downer, Packers, had the ball in the net but the referee adjudged him offside. The Packers kept up the pressure to find the defensive methods of the C.G.E. full backs positive to meet their dangerous attacks. Two fouls against the Electrics looked dangerous until Jones punted clear up field. McMaster trapped the ball and run towards goal to find Chamberlain saving his rocket drive in a spectacular fashion. But, he was rewarded on the next visit when he kicked the ball from between the legs of A. Downer for a goal.

The Packers retaliated with a continuous barrage of shots upon Curtis' citadel, who punted clear from the scrimmages or made brilliant clearances when hard pressed. He was well supported by Blowers and Mitchell in their strategetic movements to hold the Packers scoreless. Both teams provided smart combinations as the play run from end to end. A break away by McCracken left G. Downer in possession right in front of goal, to miskick, with an open goal before him. He made amends a little later, when he delivered a beautiful centre to his brother Art who bulged the net behind Curtis. Five minutes before the interval, a misunderstanding between Buchan and his custodian resulted in McMaster putting his team ahead when he lifted the ball into the net over Chamberlain's prostrate body. Half time—Canadian General 2, Canada Packers 1.

Packers Equalizes

Play had only resumed two minutes when a shot by N. Downer dropped into goal where Curtis jumped up to clear. The nippy left winger of the Packers travelled down into the corner to place the ball into centre. Howell, at centre forward, connected with a first timer that found the inside of the net. On the next visit by Packers, George Blowers saved a sure goal when he took the ball off Howell's toe. Bill Robb did likewise with Packer's outside left when he was all set to score. Exchanges continued even for a long while with each half back line awaiting to get the break and it fell to Canadian General, Chamberlain touched the ball over the bar from a free kick taken by Mitchell. From the resultant flag kick taken by Stan Clark, the ball dropped over the line as Newt. Downer cleared but Jones made certain when he headed the sphere in below the crossbar, as Chamberlain's outstretched arms missed the ball. A minute later, Darling travelled down the wing to give Earle the opportunity to score the best goal of the game. For the remainder of the period, the Packers hemmed the C.G.E. into their own goal which brought out the superb qualities of a well balanced half back line. They did everything but score and they were awarded a penalty kick just before the final whistle but Asa Downer sent the ball skyward over the bar. Canadian General 4, Packers 2.

O'HARA EXTENDS GIL. NUNNS IN CANADIAN TENNIS TOURNEY

Leahong, Champion of Jamaica, Wins Easily in Championship Series.

RAINVILLE IS VICTOR.

BY ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, July 25.—(CP)—Only by one the tennis foes of Marcel Rainville are admitting weakness. Scarcely a top-notcher remained in the singles field at the Canadian championships today who could hold to his record as basis for claims against the steady little Frenchman from Montreal, a firm-er favorite than ever.

Yesterday it was Gilbert Nunns, tall Toronto Davis Cup captain who hit the skids, almost losing to Joe O'Hara of Ottawa in straight sets. Gallantly enough, Nunns emerged from the well of almost certain defeat and slugged out victory at 5-7, 7-5, 6-0. But it was a close thing.

O'Hara, a good player but not good enough to be seeded in the national tournament, patiently sent back the best drives Nunns could muster for two sets and almost won on Gilbert's errors. With the score in games 5-4 against him in the second set Nunns rallied and won nine straight games.

Today he takes on Gordon Shields of Toronto, formerly of Vancouver, in a match that may go either way. Observers were unanimous it will take a better Nunns than yesterday to best off the hard-hitting, fleet Shields.

Rainville Is Victor

Rainville, winner of the Eastern Canadian and Ontario titles in successive weeks, reached the fourth round with Nunns, Walter Martin of Toronto, Laird Watt and Bobby Murray of Montreal and eleven other players in easy fashion. He polished off Jim McDougall, a strong Toronto player, 6-1, 6-4.

Vancouver's challenge for the women's single title swept into the round of eight yesterday, Caroline Deacon defeating Miss A. Gausby of Toronto, 6-0, 6-1, while Eleanor Young downed Mrs. E. F. Cole of Toronto, 6-3, 6-2. The favorite, Mrs. Gilbert Nunns, Ontario title-holder, won easily yesterday.

HEAVY HITTING GIVES TIREMEN 12-5 VICTORY OVER BRINTONS

Score Runs in Big Second and Eighth Innings to Clinch Decision.

COLLECT 16 BINGLES

Johnston Tires got back into winning form last night at Central at the expense of the Brintons taking their measure by the count of 12-5. The winners had their hitting togs on clouting out twelve runs on sixteen hits, they had two big innings the second and the eighth in which they scored four and five runs respectively, enabling them to breeze through to an easy triumph.

Elliott was the winning pitcher for the Tiremen, hurling a nice game to hold his opponents to five runs on eleven bingles while walking but two and being very stingy with base hits in the pinches. His support held him up well throughout, only having two bobbles, to aid considerably in the win. Abbott did the carving for the Brinton outfit but threw too many down the groove and as a result was hit hard and Brintons were charged with another loss.

Parsons and McQuade starred offensively for the Deck crew, the former collecting four safe blows out of six times at bat and the latter with three out of six.

For the Carpetmen Pat Calladine with three for five and Jimmie Newson with two for four were the only heavy hitters.

In the field many fine catches were made by both sides, especially by Crary and P. Calladine.

Tom McGrath Holds Ontario Open Title

TORONTO, July 25.—(CP)—Tom McGrath, unattached professional today holds the Ontario open golf title by his defeat of Lex Robson, Mississauga. McGrath arrived at the Mississauga Club yesterday less than an hour before he was to tee off, borrowed a set of clubs he had never used before, and then turned over the fairway with scores of 72 and 71 for a total of 143. Gordon Brydson, leading by three strokes at the halfway mark, was two behind the winner at the finish.

One hundred players entered the 36-hole contest, including some of the province's finest shot-makers.

McGrath, long recognized as an excellent golfer, has been out of work for some time, unable to obtain a job with a golf club. He conducted a school at Hamilton for some time and lately has been "free lancing," giving lessons here and there.

In 1930, McGrath was sixth in the event and the following year was runnerup. In 1926 he tied for ninth in the Canadian P.P.A. championships and later won the Western Canada open.

JUNIOR SOFTBALL GAME

The local O.A.S.A. junior players are all requested to be at the Oval to-night at six o'clock for a game with the Summer Gardens' team.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 57

A man, draggled, and torn, and muddy, and bleeding from a cut on the head, now appeared; he looked at Pointer. It was the man told off to follow Mrs. Burnham. Only the storm which had overturned his car had kept him back. Pointer said a couple of words that conveyed nothing to the others. The detective turned to her civilly enough.

"Will you come with me, please? We can drive back in the car that is at the front door."

"You'll drive me to the commissioner's rooms at Scotland Yard," Mrs. Burnham said firmly. "This is an incredible outrage."

"Ah, here's Miss Scott," said the man beside her. "She did get through the hedge, then."

A tall, quietly-dressed woman, looking neat in spite of a torn cloak and muddy hat, was running towards them. Again Pointer said a word, and she too went up to Mrs. Burnham.

"Will you come with me into the house, please?" She and the man on the other side each laid a hand on one of Mrs. Burnham's arms.

Mrs. Burnham looked first at one, then at the other, then at Pointer.

"I don't envy you your feelings, chief inspector, when I have had my talk with the commissioner," she said gently. "I don't think you'll be called by that title after today."

"As for you," she turned with something very sad in her voice and eye to Etta Naylor, "you disliked me from the first. But you might hvve stood by me in such a moment as this."

Etta Naylor had covered her face with her hands. Now she turned even her covered face away. Mrs. Burnham walked quietly to the house. There to be searched by the woman detective, and then, when they knew that she had no poison nor any weapon on herself, to be taken as she had requested to Scotland Yard, there to have an interview with the assistant commissioner.

Pointer stepped over to where she had been standing. Into a rose bush, all broken by the storm, he put his hand and torch. Another minute and he lifted out a little roll of gray. It was a pair of rubber gloves tightly rolled together.

Etta went to her brother.

"I thought it was she who poisoned John. I wanted to save Gillian Dundas. That's why I took her off with me. But Gillian wouldn't be saved."

Claud hardly heard her. But the man from Pointer was taking the handcuffs, only put on to prevent him from trying again to shoot Mrs. Burnham, heard her.

"No, she wouldn't be saved. She wouldn't come with me either. She thought my brain couldn't beat Mrs. Burnham's. I'd been drinking. She wouldn't come!" A sob choked him but he went on: "I'll tell you everything."

"Come into the house and I'll write it down and have you sign it," Pointer said to that. He wanted witnesses who were not of the police for such an important explanation as might be coming. "You understand, of course, that it will have to be used against you?"

Strange only nodded, with a look that said that he did not care what became of himself. Between the three men, Naylor white but silent, they carried Gillian Dundas' body into the nearest room and laid it on a blanket, covering it with another. And in the same room, Pointer, writing swiftly in his speedhand, Strange began.

"That woman you've got, and Mrs. de Souza, are sisters—and blackmailers. The one you've got is the elder. Mrs. Burnham married a solicitor who left Wales, came to town and did well. He was a family solicitor and had some smart people among his clients. When he died, she went through his deed boxes, I was his head clerk, and what she learned she used. She used! I hadn't had time to straighten out a muddled account"—his voice was muffled here—"she chose to take it the wrong way—I couldn't refund the money on the spot—she got me in her power, and promised not to prosecute if I obeyed orders. I had to write the blackmailing letters for her which she dictated from what she learned in her husband's papers. Her sister got on to the idea too, and met Gillian at her mother's studio. Gilly used to help with the china there. Mrs. de Souza soon found that maids bringing things to be repaired used to gossip to her. Then she took her traveling with her as a very useful companion. Meantime, I took to the films with what was paid me to write the letters and receive the payments. I might have done well, only drink got me, so I had nothing but writing to their victims to fall back on. Then one day Mrs. Burnham told me that her sister could offer me a very well paid, easy post. I was to go at once to Genoa to see her about it. Of course I had to go, and of course, I had to take what was offered me. I was deep in their clutches by that time. They had me on toast, and I had nothing to prove the truth about either of them. Mrs. de Souza told me that she had met a Lady Ida Westmacott, had made friends with her, and learned that she was terrified of her brother-in-law marrying again, in which case her own son, now considered as the heir presumptive, would have nothing and she would have nothing. As long as his idiot son lived, he wouldn't marry, now that he had found out that the son couldn't be cured. He had said so."

Etta Naylor gave a sort of strangled moan. Then she stood as before, rejecting the chair that Pointer had placed for her.

"This boy, or rather young man, was ill. She was afraid he might die at any time. Mrs. de Souza had passed this on to Mrs. Burnham, the cleverer devil of the two, and it was she who had suggested supplying a fake idiot should the son die. He did die while I was in Mrs. de Souza's villa by the sea. They kept the death dark, dropped the body into the water, and I was fetched at once. The terms offered me were fine. It wasn't an impersonation, really. But I could make up enough like him in coloring and general build, and if any one who knew the son should see me, I only had to keep on twisting my face into grimaces. Lady Ida had done most of the nursing herself. She really was devoted to her nephew, really loved him and was intensely sorry for him. The valet-nurse was easily persuaded—by Miss Dundas—to put in most of his time at the gaming tables, and then was found out and dismissed. Another man was engaged in his place over whom Mrs. Burnham had a stranglehold.

"We came to town and the house was divided in half. Westmacott discharged the man we had, and left old Craven to take his place. I refused to be waited on. I refused to let him touch me, but otherwise I was quite tractable. The old chap soon found that the less he saw of me, the better I seemed to be, and the more attention he gave me the more violent I grew. But he's as stupid as he's faithful. He hasn't the faintest suspicion. For one thing, I've kept on the old Jacky's little games and pretty ways, biting and clawing balls, and son. . . . Rooms were taken for me where I could go, except for the hour that Craven 'played' with me or when the commissioners came or Mr. Tait would look in at me from the cage by the door, in response to a letter from Westmacott. By the way, that was a mistake, Lady Ida's letting me play with her fountain pen last time. I felt it incumbent on me to paw and bite it, and the result was Tait took the top away with him.

"By the way"—he looked around him with glassy eyes, he had been drinking recently, Pointer thought, and found it hard to concentrate on what he really wanted to say—"by the way—funny world, isn't it?—Tait was taken with Lady Ida, but I know why it came to nothing. Once, before Tait, she let out a bit at me when I was making rather more of a fool of myself than was necessary. I saw the startled look in his eyes. And as far as he was concerned her lack of sympathy with her poor half-witted nephew—that was me—tore it. Funny world! She loathed me because she had genuinely loved the real boy and hated having to palm me off as him. But about other things—I met Miss Dundas at Genoa."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, July 26

According to the predominant planetary influences this may be a day of unusual liveliness, with much of an abrupt and quite unforeseen nature actuating the affairs. There are adverse elements, with need for precaution, calm judgments and wise manipulation of these sudden opportunities. There may be some gain in possessions, industry or through writings or publicity, but employment calls for amiable handling. Be on guard against fraud duplicity and secret enemies.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of much activity and liveliness, with some unforeseen change, new interests and opportunities. There may be a definite increase of possessions, through industry, wise decisions or as token of appreciation of an elderly person or institution. However, employment offers some perplexities and there is danger through trickery or secret enmities.

A child born on this day may be lively, versatile, ingenious in many directions, taking it into strange fields or levels of high adventure.

HASTINGS STREET DANCE IS SUCCESS

Crowd of Almost 1,200 Persons Bring Proceeds Up $600 —Vaudeville Acts.

HASTINGS, July 24 (Examiner Correspondence).—The second annual street dance to be put on by the local council in aid of the local relief fund, was held on Friday night' The dance in spite of the intense heat, proved to be a marked success, a crowd of twelve hundred people brought the proceeds up to almost $600.00, which is only $15.00 short of last year's proceeds. This will have a net profit of $300.00 for the relief purposes, according to Reeve Stevenson, who was chairman.

Mr. Frank Gilbert, of CKGL station at Toronto, and a summer resident of the village, had his seven-piece Canadian Cowboys orchestra on hand to furnish the music' He also put on a few vaudeville acts, consisting of acrobatic dancing by Miss Elsie Taylor, who thrilled the large crowd with her performance on the hard road; little Princess Helena, eleven years old, radio star of Toronto, also received a big hand from the crowd for her two solos; many others took part in the vaudeville, including Pete and Jim, the radio team. The highlights from a local standpoint were produced by the Waters' brothers, twin youngsters of Mr. and Mrs. E. Watters of Asphodel, who gave a d monstration of step dancing that has not been seen in Hastings in some time. Little Miss M. Dean, grandaughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Dean of town, also made a name for herself as a tap dancer.

Mr, Nevins of Kune, was the holder of the lucky ticket in the drawing, the holder of the second prize ticket has not claimed their reward yet, while the third went to a gentleman from Marmora, who omitted to leave his name at the tand.

The two booths, the wheel of fortune, bingo and the horses all did a brisk business.

HULL, Que. — Quebec provincial authorities are investigating the death of an unidentified man whose body was found to-day on a log boom just west of the Alexandra Bridge which spans the Otawa River and connects Ottawa and Hull. He had been dead only a few hours Dr. Joseph Isabelle, coroner for the Hull district, said after an examination. Death was due to a fractured skull.

BEHIND the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 25.— The marital status of Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller is still Hollywood's most exciting topic of the day. With Lupe's divorce complaint only days old, the Mexican star showed up for rehearsals at the Columbia studio with Johnny in tow. Members of "The Girl Friend" troupe report affectionate scenes between the two with Lupe calling her "darleeng" every few breaths. Another episode in the diverting comedy was staged when the "estranged" couple attended the prize fights together at the Hollywood stadium, with Director W. S. Van Dyke along as extra man.

Lupe Velez

"I don't know whether I am supposed to be chaperon or referee," was the director's dry comment.

Very dramatic, the scene that took place on a Warner Brothers set. Since her family fortunes were affected by the market crash, Marcorita Hellman, Los Angeles society girl and daughter of Banker Marco Hellman, has been working in motion pictures under contract to Warners. The other day, she was doing a small part in the film, "I Sell Anything", featuring Pat O'Brien. The action called for the hero to step out of a swanky automobile and the director instructed the property department to provide one. Presently, a luxurious machine rolled upon the set. Most of the company scarcely noticed its arrival. But Marcorita did. For she recognized the car as one that formerly belonged to her father.

James Blakelye, New York socialite and one-time fiance of Barbara Hutton, wonders how come. For 15 days, the young society man, now an actor at the Columbia studio, has been receiving mysterious postcards. They come one a day and each bears but a single letter. So far, the message reads:

"Do you recall a pig?"

LIONEL ATWILL, incomparable delineator of sinister characters, adds further to his reputation by his splendid portrayal of a powerful role in "Beggars in Ermine," which opens at the Regent theatre to-day. There is poignant drama and deep pathos in the story that tears at the heartstrings and there is comedy relief, too. Cast in supporting roles are Betty Furness, Jameson Thomas, H. B. Walthall, George Hayes, James Bush, Stephen Gross and Astrid Allwyn.

It's hard to remember what a kid Jean Parker is. But this incident will give you an idea. M. G. M.'s newest star entertains a lot of young people at her home. One of them is Aubrey Austin, a student at a Hollywood military school. The other day, after he left, Jean found a note and a class pin. Her bashful admirer didn't have the nerve to offer it any other way. Jean was equally embarrassed about the way to return the pin. She finally did it this way. When the boy called, she left the pin and a note on the hall table at her home. Then she went upstairs and stayed in her room until he found it.

The old story of the star who had her number changed and then forgot it pops up again—and with Alice Brady as the victim. The first result was that Alice had to telephone a neighborhood grocery and have them send a message to her chauffeur. Later that evening, she realized she had failed to give the new number to her director. Fearing that the studio had been unable to reach her to give the time of her daily call, she got up at 6:30 in the morning (her favorite rising time between pictures is 3:30 p.m.) and dashed to the R-K-O studio to report at 8 o'clock on the set with makeup on—and only to be told that her call was 7 p.m.

THE DOMESTIC squabbles of a typical middle class family are sympathetically and humorously aired in Columbia's "The Party's Over," the new screen attraction at the Regent Theatre which made its debut today before an audience that howled with glee and sighed in sympathetic understanding of the hero's plight.

Stuart Erwin and Ann Sothern are featured in the picture with an excellent cast.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Number 361

Pictures made of Henry Cotton, new British open champion, show him keeping his chin back virtually to the very end of his swing.

A number of our leading players have long since gotten the idea that it's not so stylish to be photographed in the old conventional position with the head lifted.

The golfing public is a bit wiser these days and they might wonder if the player had his head in the right position as he hit the ball.

The same thing is true about the general curve of the body, more players maintain the hitting curve right through the finish of the swing.

I'm rather proud that one of my contributions has popularized pictures of this hitting curve.

Preparations Made Bridgenorth Tourney

Preparations are now being made for the annual Bridgenorth Softball Tournament, to be staged Civic Holiday, Monday, August 6. This tournament is the largest held in the district and attracts a great number of entries. As in former years there will five different sections: Ladies' senior and junior, men's senior and junior, and boys.

There will be silver cups given for every section except the ladies' junior. Besides the cups valuable prizes will be given, making it worth while for the various teams to compete.

The Bridgenorth tournament is well known throughout the district and receives more entries than any other affair of this kind. Last year over twenty-five teams competed in the various sections and attracted about five hundred spectators.

Already a large number of teams have entered and others wishing to do so may forward their entries to M. A. McWilliams at Bridgenorth or George Dormer at the Sugar Bowl.

Gliding tests are to be made by German air pilots over the South Atlantic.

Twenty-nine Year Old Hydro Employe Dies With Fractured Skull.

NATIVE OF DOURO.

HULL, Que., July 26.—(CP)—Conclusions reached at an autopsy here on the body of Joseph O'Brien, 40, of Peterborough, Ont., were not given out pending the opening of an inquest into his death. The battered body of O'Brien was found last Tuesday lying on a boom in the Ottawa River on the Hull side of the interprovincial bridge. Death was due to a skull fracture.

The body was identified by Lawrence O'Brien, a brother and funeral will be held in Peterborough.

Checking on the local angle of the story The Examiner learned from Leonard Gooley that his brother-in-law, Joseph O'Brien, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius O'Brien was a native of Douro Township. He had worked on the farm of his late parents until entering the service of the Hydro Commission about eight years ago and had since worked in various parts of the province. Latterly, according to Mr. Gooley, O'Brien had been in charge of a large gang of men engaged on construction in the Ottawa district. He was home for a visit with his wife here two months ago.

Surviving is his widow, formerly Irene Gooley, and one child, Mary Jane, aged 16 months; also two brothers, John O'Brien of Norwood, Frank O'Brien of New York; and seven sisters, Mrs. William Garvey, Mrs. John Sullivan and Mrs. Patrick Condon, all of Douro Township, Miss Regina O'Brien of Brock street this city, and three sisters in Holy Orders at Brockville, North Bay and Toronto.

The funeral will be held on Friday morning at 8.45 from the residence of Mrs. Ellen Gooley, 163 Princess street to Sacred Heart Church for Requiem Mass at 9.00 a.m. followed by interment in St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro.

CUT HAND WITH SCYTHE.

Police have several threads resulting from their investigation into the mystery death of Robert Meharry, 66-year-old widower, which it is hoped may be knit together to provide the solution to what is still a baffling problem.

It was learned to-day that the suspected trail of blood leading from the west side of Gordon Avenue at the point where Meharry's dead body was found early on Tuesday morning, down the Elm Street extension has been satisfactorily accounted for.

One of the many persons interviewed by the police during the course of the investigation is stated to have declared that while mowing in the field that skirts the west side of Gordon Avenue on Saturday last he cut himself with a scythe. He left the trail of blood while returning home by way of Elm Street to have the injury dressed.

Despite the fact that one of the most important clues has been thus followed up and disposed of without Clean Out Cages, Force Employee to Open Safe at Gun Point.

KEELE AND ST. CLAIR.

Disappear in Sedan Without Licenses—City's Third Largest Hold-up.

TORONTO, July 26.—(CP)—Three armed men walked into the Bank of Montreal at Keele street and St. Clair avenue at noon today, ordered the staff to lie on the floor and raided the teller's cage and vault, escaping with $28,000z. They forced the entire staff into the vault and closed the door before leaving, making a clean getaway.

One of the men leaped the counter and cleaned out all the bills in the cashier's cage, said D. Curry, member of the staff. "Another covered us while the third forced Mr. Dunlop (another employee) into the vault and made him open the safe which was cleaned out. They forced us all to get up and go into the vault. They couldn't lock the door because we had the combination thrown over. But they shut the door and vanished. I got out as quickly as possible and rang the alarm. When we got out there was no car in sight and apparently nobody even got a glimpse of it."

Those in the bank at the time were Curry, H. Dunlop, teller, W. A. Moore, manager, and Miss M. McLure, stenographer. There was an unusually large amount of money in the bank today on account of it being the Canadian Pacific Railway payday.

Four Minute Job

According to Curry, the holdup occupied only about four minutes. The three men, all armed, with handkerchiefs over their faces walked quietly into the bank and staged the holdup as though rehearsed.

Shortly after the holdup, a dark-colored sedan with no license plates was seen speeding north from the direction of the bank by a man who immediately notified police headquarters. An intensive hunt was opened with all divisional men available being thrown into the search.

Employees of the Royal Bank branch, across the road, were notified of the holdup by the ringing of an alarm which connected the two banks. Employees armed themselves and ran across the street, but by this time the bandits were gone.

Third Largest Holdup

To-day's robbery was the third largest in point of loot among the 23 bank robberies and attempted robberies here in the past 40 years. In a holdup of bank messengers in downtown Toronto, July 24, 1923, $82,000 was taken. On Oct. 4, 1926, robbers got away with $29,000 from the Standard Bank at McCaul and Elm streets.

MARKET GIVEN BAD HAMMERING

Leaders in Both Sections of Toronto Exchange Show Losses.

MILD CLOSING RALLY.

TORONTO, July 26 (CP.)—Toronto market to-day received the worst hammering since the break of mid-July last year, losses up to $3 showing among leaders on both sections of the exchange at the close. A mild rally in the closing minutes reduced losses by fractions but the come-back was none too convincing.

Walkers Common, Consolidated Smelters, Nicked and Ford A on the industrial board showed depressions ranging up to more than $4 during the height of the selling. On the mining board Dome, Lake Shore and McIntyre closed down $2 to $2.50. The cheaper gold were severely trimmed, God's Lake falling from 3.04 to 2.11 before recovering a little and Gunnar Gold Little Long Lac, San Antonio and Macassa taking losses up to 40 cents.

Civil War Breaks Out In Austria

Civil war broke out in Austria to-day as Nazis battled government forces for control of half a dozen cities in the province of Styria, following the assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.

Nazis were reported to be marching in increasing numbers against the combined forces of the army and the Fascist Heimwehr, or home guard.

An official announcement at Graz, capital of the strong Nazi province, said 14 army men have been killed. Nazi losses were believed heavy.

Sharp fighting raged last night and to-day about several towns of the province, southwest of Vienna.

Meantime rumblings of war were heard over Europe as a result of the menacing situation.

Italian troops were massed on the border, ordered by Mussolini to be ready to march on short notice.

Austria was leaderless, facing the future more uncertainly than she did 20 years ago Saturday when the shot was fired that touched off the Great War.

Above is shown scenes from Vienna, the capital and where the outbreak started yesterday. It was in the parliament building that Chancellor Dollfuss was slain.

HEPBURN PLANS REORGANIZATION T., N.O. RAILROAD

Premier Refuses to Discuss Report McLaren, Hamilton, tobe Chairman.

WILL PUBLISH SALARIES.

TORONTO, July 26 (CP.) — A complete reorganization of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway will be effected, Premier Mitchell Hepburn stated to-day. As yet he is unable to indicate what changes will be made as the government is still receiving reports but the new setup will be along the lines of greater economy.

One thing the government is going to bring about a system under which the full remuneration any government official receives will be shown in the public accounts in one sum. In the past, he said, it had been difficult to find out how much a man was paid for it was shown in several different items.

One instance of this was the case of George Lee, chairman of the T. and N.O. Railway Commission. He received a salary of $10,000 which less the 10 per cent cut, was $9,000 recently. But in addition he had received a special allowance of $3,500 on the authority of the premier since 1930 and an expense account average $1,500 so that before the cut he was receiving a total sum of $15,000 a year.

Mr. Hepburn declined to discuss a report that Col. J. I. McLaren of Hamilton, a member of the T. and N.O. commission would become chairman in the reorganization.

C. A. ROBRTSON SUFFERS STROKE

M.L.A. for Huron Bruce Was Chief Liberal Whip, Last Legislature.

HAD RECORD MAJORITY.

GODERICH, Ont., July 26 (CP).—Stricken with a paralytic stroke last night or early to-day, C. A. Robertson, M.L.A. for Huron Bruce and Chief Whip of the Liberals in the last Legislature, lies at his home under close supervision of his family physician, Dr. Weir of Auburn. The seizure is said to be slight, but one side of the body and the speech is affected.

Mr. Robertson, elected in June by a record majority of over 4,000, visibly showed the effects of his door to door campaigning, he holding no meetings whatever. He has been in the House since 1926, and was one of its most prominent members, his name being prominent as a Cabinet possibility.

The stricken legislator lives five miles from Goderich in his native township of Colborne, of which he has been Reeve, rising to the Wardenship. He is a farmer.

Inquiry at the family residence this morning brought the reply that the patient was doing as well as can be expected.

About 25,000 telephones are connected or disconnected in the U.S., on the average, each working day.

DROUGHT HOLDS ONTARIO CROPS DRYING UP FAST

Western Area Facing Greatest Water Famine in Years.

CORN, ROOTS, OATS WILT.

(By the Canadian Press).

Light showers to-day brought slight relief to people in some sections of Ontario, but the drought-stricken farm lands continued to dry up and heavy losses will be suffered unless a soaking rain comes soon.

Facing the worst water famine in many years, farmers in the Fort Erie and Niagara Falls district, were hauling water in barrels and casks for their cattle. Most wells have gone dry and in some cases water has to be hauled for five miles.

Unless rain falls within a couple of days, raspberry crops in the Kitchener district will be wiped out. Lack of moisture is hitting the corn crop in the area as well as oats, barley and roots. Most of the wheat is out.

Farmers in the Niagara Peninsula declared the hay, potato, bean, turnip, root, peach, plum and apple crops are failures and added that hay will worth $40 a ton by October 1. Meadows and pastures are burned brown from the withering heat.

Although a slight rain fell in Brantford section, the drought situation was not relieved. Corn is generally in tassel but the heads are not filling and the general run of silage corn will be short. All grains are being harvested with short straw and in many fields a binder will not work and mowers are being used.

Nazis Battling Loyal Soldiers In Dozen Cities

All Europe Shaken By Dollfuss' Assassination—Situation Regarded Worse Than Fatal Day 20 Years Ago—Mussolini Moves Italian Troops To Border As Rumblings Of War Shake Continent.

MARTIAL LAW RULES—PRINCE STARHEMBERG NEW CHANCELLOR—NATIONS TALK ACTION.

VIENNA, July 26. — A new Austrian Government to-day smashed at the Nazis who yesterday assassinated Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, driving armed rebel forces out out of the Province of Styria into Yugoslavia.

ROME, July 26 (A.P.). — Four army divisions, each with a strength of about 2,000 men, have been ordered to points along the Austrian frontier, it was stated by an official communique issued late to-day.

MUNICH, Germany, July 26 (A.P.). — A persistent report, unconfirmed in any quarter, stated that Chancellor Hitler appeared here to-day and intervened to prevent a Nazi march on Austria, for which all preparations allegedly had been made.

BY WADE WERNER

(Copyright, 1934 by the Associated Press).

VIENNA, July 26. — The power of the Austrian Fascists, allied in ideals and friendships to the Fascists of Italy, mounted to the rule of Austria today.

Prince Ernst Starhemberg, tall nobleman and leader of the Fascist Heimwehr, was announced as the new Chancellor, succeeding the little commoner, Engelbert Dollfuss, who was assassinated yesterday by the Fascists' bitterest foes, the Nazis. President Wilhelm Miklas was expected to make the formal appointment of Von Starhemberg late today.

But even as the Fascist star ascended, civil war blazed forth in the province of Styria where Nazis battled government forces for control of villages. Early reports did not tell how many men were being killed although an official announcement at Graz, capital of the province said 14 government soldiers were slain.

Styria has for months past been the scene of terrorist bombings inspired, Dollfuss had claimed by the Nazis whom he fought in his efforts to create a "united Fatherland."

Everywhere were expressed rumors and fears for the peace of Europe as a result of the stirring events of yesterday and today. Armed men were everywhere in a strenuous effort to maintain order.

As his first statement as chief of the cabinet, Prince Von Starhemberg said only that the government policy will be to carry on the work begun by Dollfuss.

Care For Frau Dollfuss

The first act of the cabinet when it met under its new leader was to vote an authorization for "appropriate" financial measures for the future welfare of Dollfuss' widow and his two children, five-year-old Eva and four-year-old Rudolf.

Then the cabinet declared the creation of a special military court to try the offenders in yesterday's Putsch when a group of Nazis stormed the chancellery and killed the country's leader. The court will consist of four officers, one of the civil guard and three of the army, the highest ranking of whom will preside.

The government, it was indicated, will act sternly against the killers of its former leader, but apart from this punishment, it was indicated that one of the subjects of most concern was that of relationships with other countries as a result of the murder.

A report which was not immediately confirmed from the province of Carinthia declared Yugoslavian soldiers had fired across the Austrian border and Austrian troops had been concentrated there as a result.

It was known that 75,000 Italian troops were massed on the southern border where they have been held for the last year in readiness in case of border troubles.

The anxiety of Italy in this situation was regarded officially, as LONDON, July 26.—(AP)—An authoritative British source said today that the governments of Great Britain, France, and Italy were convinced that no new action by the three powers to defend Austrian independence was necessary.

This source said the governments named felt assured that a death blow had been dealt the Nazi movement in Austria by the action of the Austrian Nazis yesterday.

A denial by the Italian government that it plans any action was followed closely by a declaration of Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, in which before the House of Commons he belittled the Nazi strength in Austria.

Amplifying Sir John's statement, an authoritative British source disclosed for the first time that alleged proof had been received here that the Vienna broadcasting station had been seized yesterday for the sole purpose of sounding a signal for a nation-wide revolt.

"That it was a complete flop," this authority stated, "is shown by the fact that more than 80 percent of the people showed they were unsympathetic with the Nazis, at least passively supported Dollfuss.

"The Nazis have also done themselves great harm by defying Mussolini, who never wanted to control Austria but who is determined that Hitler will not have control.

"One of the most important reactions to the abortive revolution is certain to be the cooling off of feeling between Italy and Germany."

Warning From France

PARIS, July 26. (AP)—Premier Gaston Doumergue served a veiled warning of France's determination to safeguard "Austria's independence" against a Nazi revolution to-day in a telegram of condolences for the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss.

by the man on the street as well, as intense for Premier Mussolini had telegraphed his sincere condolences from Riccione where today he was to have conferred with Dollfuss.

City of Mourning.

Vienna appeared a city of tragedy. Large black funeral banners flew from all public buildings, from theatres, and from many shops and homes, the worried faces of pedestrians clearly revealed the public tension amid the uncertainty of Austria's future.

Placards announcing martial law were posted everywhere. Steel-helmeted police as well as the Heimwehr were in the streets with machine-guns posted at strategic corners.

It looked like a city under foreign occupation.

In connection with the creation of the special military court to punish the men who had made the putsch, it was pointed out bitterly in some quarters that although Dollfuss died less than 24 hours after the first terrorist was hanged under his anti-terror decree, no Nazi had yet been executed in Austria.

The man who was hanged for a bombing was a Socialist. Despite the severity of his decrees, Dollfuss was known as one who hated to impose the death penalty.

Floridsdorf, the Socialist section which was the scene of the heaviest artillery fighting last February during the battle between the government and the Socialists, was the quietest section of Vienna to-day. However, very few black flags of mourning were displayed there.

Dr. Kurt Schuschnegg, Minister of Social Welfare in Dollfuss' cabinet who was named acting Chancellor by Miklas, indicated in his first official statement that the Dollfuss policies would be carried on.

Carry on Dollfuss Policies

Cyclone Rakes Ottawa Valley

BUILDINGS FALL, CROPS LEVELLED WIRES BROKEN

Five Are Injured as Roof in Capital Crashes Down Upon Auto.

TROLLEY SERVICE CUT.

Trees Block Highways — Heavy Downpour Halts All Traffic.

OTTAWA, July 26 (C.P.). —The Ottawa Valley to-day was assessing the damage wreaked by the storm of cyclonic proportions which sweeping down from the upper reaches of the Gatineau late yesterday, tore a wide swath through this section of Eastern Ontario. Barns blown from their foundations, roofs carried away by the roaring wind, trees and transmission poles strewn across highways, and crops flattened beneath the accompanying downpour presented a picture of desolation in many parts of the surrounding country. No reports were received of any fatalities.

A number of narrow escapes were recorded, however. Five persons were injured when the roof of a Wellington Street building was lifted by the wind and crashed to the street. Telegraph wires broke the fall of the roof, but the debris crashed down on a passing motor-car, injuring its occupants. In Hull a huge sign was blown down and fell on the tonneau of a car. Its driver escaped unhurt.

For some considerable time street car, telephone, and ligh tservices in some sections of the Capital were dislocated. Thousands of feet of tangled wires and broken poles presented a task for the "break-down gangs" of the various utility companies.

Roofs Sail Away.

Some freakish happenings featured the cyclone in Hull. The roof of a lumber company's building "took off" in good style, sailed through the air for 100 yards or so and made a fine 3-point landing in the garden of the oblate fathers.

For the second time in six weeks the drill hall suffered damage, the victims being the Governor-General's footguards. Part of the roof was blown away, leaving the officers' mess exposed to the drenching torrent. Considerable damage was done to equipment.

From the small towns in the Ottawa Valley similar damage was done. At Metcalfe and Russell trees were uprooted, blocking the highways. Lightning struck the barn of George Lannin, at Winchester, setting fire to a considerable quantity of hay. It was raining heavily when the bolt struck. The shock was carried over the wet ground, knocking Mrs. W. P. Workman, who resides in a neighboring house, out of her chair.

Morrisburg suffered heavily. The roof on the home of Mrs. W. Hamilton was blown off, and the interior drenched by the rain. All lights were out for half an hour, and then only partial service was re-established.

Rain, Trees Block Traffic.

Trees were down all over the town, and most of the house telephones were out of order. The rain fell so heavily that vision across the street was almost obscured. Traffic was stopped until the downpour ceased. Williamsburg, a few miles down the river, was isolated.

Cornwall and Iroquois, west and east of Morrisburg, each had rain, but there was little wind and no damage of any kind was caused.

Hazeldean, Arnprior, Emburn and other places on the edge of the storm received a welcome rain and escaped damage. On the Ottawa River, the storm did not touch as far upstream as Shawville or as far west as Rockland.

ANTON RINTELEN DIES IN PRISON

Denied Part in Revolt — Announced as Chancellor by Nazis.

MURDERED SAYS WIDOW.

VIENNA, July 26 (A.P.). — Dr. Anton Rintelen, Austrian Minister to Rome, who was jailed after yesterday's Nazi putsch failed to establish him as Chancellor, died today several hours after he was wounded in his cell, it was learned from private sources.

When he was taken to a hospital Rintelen denied any participation in the revolt, although the Nazis had issued a false broadcast that he had become Chancellor.

Authorities said the Minister shot himself but this was denied by his widow.

"My husband did not commit suicide," she said. "He was murdered. Why did he write the note saying, 'I am innocent,' after the shooting?"

Airtight Alibi

CLEVELAND, July 26. (CP). Bryan Brigt, 20, the man with the airtight alibi, is back in Cleveland to make his peace with the law.

The other day he was picked up in Akron and charged with holding up a shoe store. That couldn't be, he told police, because he was in Cleveland at the time, holding up four other places.

Akron cops took his word for it, and turned him over to Cleveland authorities.

RELIEF POLICY BEING SHAPED

Cabinet Meets To-day—Next Week Hepburn Goes to Ottawa Conference.

CROLL HAS MAYORS' VIEWS

TORONTO, July 26.—(CP)— The Ontario cabinet meets today to formulate its policy on unemployment relief. Next week Premier Mitchell Hepburn will go to Ottawa to participate in his first Dominion - Provincial conference, a gathering called by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett to deal with relief problems.

In preparation for today's meeting Hon. David Croll, Minister of Welfare, yesterday had a long conference with the mayors and reeves of Ontario municipalities and obtained their views.

The view the time has arrived when some permanent system of caring for those unable to find employment should be worked out it strongly held by members of the Ontario government. They feel that relief can no longer be regarded as an emergency but that there are large numbers of people who will never be able to find gainful employment.

It is unlikely the policy of the Ontario administration will be disclosed before the Ottawa meeting but Mr. Hepburn and his colleagues will have some suggestions to lay before the gathering of provincial and federal ministers. In the meantime the government is making no new committments for relief works pending setting of a policy by the federal government.

TROPICAL STORM SWEEPS TEXAS DOZEN MISSING

Eighty Mile Gale Hurls Tidal Wave Six Miles Inland.

MILLIONS LOSS.

HOUSTON, Tex, July 26.— (AP) —Twelve persons were missing today in the wake of a tropical storm which lashed a 100-mile stretch along the Texas Gulf coast, causing untold crop and property damage.

Pitching a mighty tidal wave six miles inland, the 80-mile gale trapped residents of the area, disrupted communication lines, smashed fishing craft and battered buildings. Early estimates placed damage to the cotton crop alone at several millions of dollars.

The tidal waves 15 miles in length, was reported by old residents to be the worst since the great waves of the disaster in 1875. It flooded Sargent and at Freeport rose 10½ feet. Outlying sections of the city were flooded when the levee broke in five places. At Galveston, great waves sprayed over the seawall and levelled flimsy beach homes.

Refugees fled from the Matagorda county area and huddled in public buildings at Victoria. All along the coast residents evacuated their homes as early weather bulletins were issued.

SUPPLY DEPOT BATTLE RAGES

Croll Charges Sudbury Forced to Buy From Sparks Under Threat.

PAY EXTRA RELIEF.

TORONTO, July 26 (C.P.). — In his latest statement in the controversy with R. P. Sparks, over operation of the central supply warehouse, Hon. David Croll, Ontario Minister of Welfare, to-day had left "it to the public to decide whether or not this 'charitable institution' with its governmental big stick to threaten the people's elected representatives, was run by Percy Sparks for the profit of himself and his associates or not."

The Minister, in the statement made public last night, charged the city of Sudbury had been forced to purchase relief supplies from the warehouse under a threat of having its assessment to direct relief increased.

The company, said Mr. Croll, has gone to Sudbury and installed its depot in the civic relief offices, without permission of the civic authorities, and had charged prices generally higher than retailers, according to Mayor W. Barr Brodie. The Mayor, continued Mr. Croll, also claimed Hon. Charles McCrea, member for the district, had warned Mayor Brodie to either leave the government in full control or pay an increased assessment to direct relief.

CECIL LLOYD WINS 3 MILES MARATHON SWIM

Girls' One Mile Event is Captured by Margaret MacDonald of Hastings.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

Junior 100 Yard Dash Won by Jack Glenn—Abram Rappaport Sponsors Event.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 26. — Ploughing through the waters of the Trent with a steady stroke that kept him in the lead from start to finish, Cecil Lloyd of Campbellford won the three mile marathon swim at Campbellford yesterday afternoon, coming in first in competition with a field of fifteen contestants in a class of boys', twelve years and over. He did the three miles in one hour, four minutes and fifty-seven seconds.

In the girls' class of twelve years and over, Margaret MacDonald, of Hastings won the one mile Marathon swim in a time record of twenty minutes and twenty-five seconds, while in the boys' one hundred yard dash, Jack Glenn won the honors making for his time two minutes.

First Since 1929

The swim, the first since 1929, when some of the outstanding swimmers of the continent contested over a five miles course in the Trent was a feature event sponsored by Abram Rappaport manager of the local Hollywood Theatre, who not only stood the expense of all arrangements, but gave six awards in each of the three classes, which consisted of free admissions to the theatre over given periods. Large crowds lined the river bank opposite the fair grounds, this course being laid out in the river at this point, marked by flags fixed to buoys. In conjunction with the event, the local Rotary Club erected their booths on the river bank and did good business with their games and drinks. These arrangements were under the president, Stanley Neale.

The senior boys' event was a good splash and showed real form with all the fifteen entries being local boys. Out of this number six finished the three miles, the margin of time from the finish of the first to last being only twenty-seven minutes. Taking second place at the start of the race, Ernest Wilks ran against hard luck when he got cramps on the fourth lap and had to be taken out of the water, otherwise his form showed that he would have held this position to the finish.

One of the features of this event was the winning of fifth place by Bill McEachern, the youngest contestant, who did the three miles in one hour, twenty-three minutes

GERMANY TAKES NEUTRAL COURSE

Struggles to Steer Clear of Any Implication in Austrian Nazi Outbreak.

CLOSES BORDER.

BERLIN, July 26.—(AP)—Germany officially maintained a strictly neutral course today struggling to steer clear of any implication in the Austrian Nazi uprising.

The German minister to Austria, Kurturieth, was recalled for his unauthorized intervention in Vienna, and the Austro-German frontier was closed.

The recall of Reith was regarded as highly indicative of how anxious Germany is, in view of her difficult foreign position, to assure the world that the third Reich is not involved in the Austrian situation.

In the same light was regarded the official announcement that the border has been closed to all political fugitives from Austria.

The Reith recall, however, was further interpreted as a move to provide Chancellor Hitler with first hand accounts of the Austrian Putsch.

A brief governmer' communique was issued today, emphasizing only that the minister acted "without the consent of the government" in conducting the negotiations which ended the siege of the chancellory.

Triple Action

LONDON, July 26.—(A.P.)—Great Britain, France and Italy have begun informal negotiations to determine what "sensible action" they may take to uphold their February pact pledging the independence of Austria, it was said today in authoritative British quarters.

Roseneath Fair Board Holds Annual Field Day

COLBORNE TEAM CAPTURES CUP GIVEN BY FRASER

Most Successful Field Day is Held by Roseneath Fair Board.

GOOD HORSE RACES.

Todd Grattan, Philco and Richard Hall Win the Races.

ROSENEATH, July 26—Northumberland meadows and grain fields baked under the torrid sun that wilted the fairly large crowd at the second annual sports day held here yesterday under the management of the Roseneath Fair Board.

The directors showed an appreciable profit from their midsummer enterprise, but the financial returns were not so large as last year. The intense heat was a discouraging factor to many who probably intended to come in for Fred Slade's horse races and ball games, but on the whole the results were quite satisfactory.

Probably three hundred dollars at the gate was supplemented by the receipts at the Fair Board's merry-go-round, concessions, and dramatic entertainment at night, winding up with a dance in the Orange Hall.

The horse races comprised one of the most interesting cards the directors have ever presented, but the ball game left something like a headache to Clarence Varcoe and his local team, as they tossed away a ten innings game to Colborne, and saw the W. A. Fraser silver cup carried off to Sam Dudley's village down along the lake shore.

A Close Game

Roseneath started with all the signs of walking off with the game as they put one run over in the first frame on solid clouts that should have netted more than one counter. Colborne unloosed their heavy artillery in the third for four runs, but Roseneath got them all back in the fourth and were still one up.

Two runs for Colborne in the fifth sent them in front for the first time, and they carried this margin into the eighth when the Varcoe boys tied the score. Neither team could do anything in the ninth.

E. Cowie doubled to start the extra innings for Colborne, and when Clarry, the third baseman laid a bunt along the first base line, Jack Loucks, local pitcher, tossed the ball high to cut off the runner coming home, and the final stage of the game turned at that point. Colborne followed up their batting rally for four runs.

Roseneath put men on the bases in their turn, but the best they could do was clout one of them home, and Colborne won by 10-7. It was a long game, punctuated by several verbal clashes with the umpires.

The teams were as follows:

Roseneath: J. Loucks, p; S. Thackeray, c; J. Lapp, 1b; F. McMillan, lf; K. Brown, 2b; P. Baird, ss; A. Covert, rf; E. Waldie, cf; B. Halstead, 3b.

Colborne: Billcox, 2b; C. Cochrane, c; A. Grant, cf; Harvey, 1b; E. Cowie, ss; Clary, 3b; Gaffield, rf; E. Grant, lf; McMann, p.

Score by innings:

Colborne ..... 004 020 000 4—10
Roseneath ..... 100 400 010 1—7

McMann of Colborne had twenty strikeouts to his credit, and Loucks seven.

The umpires were: Earl Shearer at the plate, and Art O'Leary on bases. Both are from Harwood.

Keene girls' softball team failed to show up for a tournament with Castleton and Baltimore.

Castleton won the only game played and were presented by Mr. Slade with the silver cup given by Mayor H. N. Carr, M.L.A., of Campbellford.

Grattan Horses Predominate

Only four horses went to the post in the 2.15 event, but their number provided plenty of racing room, and every heat provided a keen contest. Jim Sutherland of Peterborough behind "Todd Grattan" took the first canter. Babe Elmhirst put "Catherine Grattan" down under the wire leading the quartette in the second, and Jim Eason, driving Lou Bennett's "Ginger Grattan" headed the parade in the third after trailing in second and third positions for the first two heats. He repeated in the fourth, and the officials sent the three Grattan horses out for the fifth heat with "Peter Merrimam" left in the barn.

The Port Hope stepper was just finding his stride in the previous two romps and it was up to Eason to get home in front in the fifth for this third straight win, or send the race into another heat.

Jim Sutherland was given a shade of advantage in the start of the fifth, getting away with a slight lead in the pole position. He held it all the way round the first lap, but on turning into the back stretch "Babe" Elmhirst made his move in second position with "Catherine Grattan", and almost at the same instant Eason sent "Ginger Grattan" to the outside of the track. They both passed "Todd Grattan," and Sutherland's chance faded right here. Elmhirst held a brief lead down the back stretch, but in the approach to the far turn "Ginger Grattan" moved up abreast of the leader, and pushed his head in front at the turn. In the long home run "Ginger Grattan" gradually improved his position, and won handily by a length and a half. Second money went to "Catherine Grattan", who broke its stride momentarily on the back stretch just as Eason's gig was wheel to wheel with it. Sutherland's horse took third money. The heat winners were as follows

Todd Grattan (Sutherland)	1 2 4 3 2
Ginger Grattan (Bennett)	2 3 1 1 1
Catherine Grattan (F. Orr, Belleville	4 1 2 2 2
Peter Merriam (Williamson, Toronto)	3 4 3 3 x

Time: 2.04; 2.04; 2.05; 2.03; 2.07.

"Philco" Takes Three

Lou Bennett of Port Hope won the 2.22 race in three straight heats with "Philco."

Philco (Bennett)	1 1 1
Amar Patch (C. Hodgens, Haliburton)	2 3 2
Betty Wenger (Van Alystine, Port Hope)	3 2 3
Great McKinney	4 4 4

The 2.27 Class.

"Richard Hall", owned by Norman Deremo of Port Hope, made it three straight in the 2.27 race with a shade of class over the rest of the bulkier field. The local horse "Rio Dale" ran up well in the last two heats, but the issue was never in doubt.

Richard Hall (Deremo)	1 1 1
Rio Dale (Franklin)	3 2 2
Jean Grattan (Watson, Cobourg)	2 6 5
Midget	4 4 3
Guy Etawah (Bennett)	6 3 7
Miss Opera	5 5 4
Baba Vini	7 7 6

Jim Eason on the beat behind "Guy Etawah" was spilled in the second heat at the far turn on the second lap. He was on the inside of the track in third place, and as his left wheel skidded slightly in the dust Eason took the air. "Midget" was right behind him, but Eason had rolled out of danger on the inside, and escaped with a dusty shaking up. His horse finished the race with flowing lines, and eased up past the wire.

Eddie Jones handled the starting bell alertly; George Caldwell of Port Hope and "Billie" Elmhirst of Indian River were the judges, and Mr. Elmhirst also held the stop watch.

Kicked Out

SPOKANE, Wash., July 26. (CP): Alex Lindsay, city water superintendent, vouches for this one:

A police dog bounded into the Lindsay yard to have some fun with a pet rabbit. But the rabbit let fly with his hind legs and caught the dog square on the nose, sending it on a hasty retreat.

Six of the contestants were local girls, and two visitors to Campbellford, first and second awards going to the visitors, Margaret MacDonald of Hastings, who did the mile in twenty minutes and twenty-five seconds, and second place being won by Etta May Downhill, of Rochester, N.Y., whose time was twenty minutes and forty-two seconds. Pauline Nesbitt, who came third in the race, doing the course in twenty-five minutes and twenty-four seconds, did excellent work and for a much smaller girl made splendid time and showed real swimming form. The winners were:

In order the first six winners were: Jack Glenn, Jack Tinney, Alan Glover of Toronto, Vernon Shaw, Bill Runnions and Jack Sutton. This event was more in the nature of an exhibition swim.

Judges for the events were E. H. Lewis, Dr. E. A. Stuart and G. F. Phillips, while Dr. S. L. O'Hara acted as starter, and Harry Tinney and Arthur Loucks checked the swimmers round the course in the motor launch, loaned for the occasion by Ken Cairns. Following the events Mayor H. N. Carr, M.P.P., presented the awards to the successful contestants.

WEST HASTINGS HONORS MEMBER

End of Reductions in Expenditure Not in Sight, Faulkner Says.

4,000 AT BIG PICNIC.

BELLEVILLE, July 26.—Liberals of West Hastings gathered at the Belleville Fair Grounds here yesterday, 4,000 strong, to welcome to the riding Hon. Dr. J. Albert Faulkner, Minister of Health, their elected candidate and the first Cabinet Minister for West Hastings in its history. Games and sports were the afternoon bill of fare, with addresses by prominent Liberals of the district, including W. A. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland; T. G. Bowerman, M.P.P.-elect for Prince Edward-Lennox; T. E. Laycock, president of the West Hastings Liberal Association; Peter McLaren, defeated candidate in East Hastings. G. Harold Holton, president of the Liberal Association of Belleville, was chairman.

Dr. Faulkner was presented with an inscribed gold watch by the Belleville Liberal Club, Mr. Holton reading the address and making the presentation, a desk set from the Twentieth Century Liberal Association presented by Miss Mary Butler and a silver basket of roses for Mrs. Faulkner, the presentation being made by two little daughters of prominent Liberals.

Dr. Faulkner admitted he was against legislation by order-in-Council, but explained it was the only way to clean up the mess at Queen's Park that was left by the late Government and put into effect those policies that would be helpful to the great masses.

Telling of the record of the Government to date, the Minister stated a reduction of nearly $435,000 per annum had been effected and the end was not in sight. Speaking of his own department he stated the efficiency would not be impaired by the dismissal of the district officers of health, but the Province would save at least $40,000 a year. He reminded his constituents that if a contagious disease were to break out, they must observe the law and call in the Medical Officer of Health.

W. A. Fraser, M.P., reminded the audience that within ten months they will be called upon to face another election, and that they should turn out the Bennett Government, as the have the Henry regime.

In the softball tourney conducted for the Faulkner Trophy, the Twentieth Century Liberal Club defeated Sidney by 8-2, while Springbrook was downed by Trenton Grads by a 13-2 score. In the finals the Trenton Grads were much the best and won by a count of 10-6. In the girls' competition, the Belleville Fruit were victorious. Races were held for the children, after which a basket picnic on the grounds was enjoyed and the remainder of the evening spent in dancing. It was the largest Liberal rally held in this county in years.

NAZIS BATTLING LOYAL SOLDIERS

"but his work lives in Austria and we call the world to witness that we still in this hour are advance fighters for German culture. The Dollfuss testament remains our guiding star to the future.

Dr. Anton Rintelen, Minister to Rome, arrested when his name was connected with reports that Nazis were establishing their own government, was reported to have attempted suicide in his cell.

The Nazi conspirators, wearing Heimwehr uniforms, swooped down on the chancellery yesterday afternoon and, killing Dollfuss, held control of the building for six hours.

They compelled Fey to go to the balcony time and again to reassure the crowd outside, and order troops and police not to harm Nazis.

When night fell they arranged with Fey for safe conduct to the border.

Although he spoke guardedly, Dr. Schusschnegg expressed disapproval of the part Kurt Rieth, German's minister to Vienna, played in arranging safe conduct for the perpetrators of the Putsch.

(Berlin dispatches said Rieth had been recalled because of his participation in these negotiations.)

Press Attacks Minister

The semi-official Reichpost, attacking the minister, said: "To Minister Rieth fell the task unexampled in history of negotiating with criminals who had killed the chancellor of a German state for their admission into Germany.

"This demand for the Putschists to be brought across the German border gives a clear indication of who planned and organized this day.

President Miklas was motoring from Velden, Caranhia, where he has been on a vacation.

The cabinet remained in session all night.

Morning newspapers said a priest was finally called for Dollfuss, at his dying request, but arrived too late. One report fixed the time of his death at 5 p.m., another at 6.30 p.m.

Dollfuss' wife and children were in Italy.

(A dispatch to the London Daily Mail this morning said Heimwehr members and civilians attempted during the night to lynch the assassins of Dollfuss but were repulsed when police threatened to fire into the crowd.)

The Nazis' daring Putsch, following by a day the hanging of a Socialist in Dollfuss' campaign to suppress terrorists, began shortly before 1 p.m.

Nazis motored into the courtyard of the chancellery, their uniforms barring question.

Firing shots, they ran into the building and swung the huge doors shut. Then they disarmed guards within, dashed into government offices and lined up employees.

Ten men went into Dollfuss' office. A government official later said the chancellor was slain in attempting to flee to an adjoining building. This account said he was shot twice at close range, pistol bullets entering his throat and chest.

Vienna spent a wild afternoon, filled with rumors.

Piles Go Quick

Under Dr. Leonhardt's Internal Method.

Large numbers of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and lasting relief can be accomplished with an internal medicine, when salves do not help and wish is to escape operation.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts lifeless. To end Piles an internal medicine should be used to stimulate the circulation and help to heal the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt was one of the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for large numbers of patients with a fine record of success and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist, with money-back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.

So isn't it wise when other ways fail, to go to McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store, who say: "No matter what kind of Piles you have, one bottle of HEM-ROID tablets must show you the safe, clean way to get rid of your Pile misery or money-back.

Favorable Reports Read By Members

ROSENEATH, July 26. Examiner Correspondence). — A goodly number of members of St. James Women's Auxiliary and many visitors were present at the home of Mrs. James Timlin on Thursday afternoon. Reports were read from the various secretaries and were accepted as read. The extra cent-a-day was given by Mrs. E. Timlin, reporting 90 cents for the month of June. The treasurer, Mrs. R. B. Nichol, reported $2.15 taken in for the past month. The travelling suitcase seems to be doing fairly well, having raised $6.55 for June with Mrs. James Timlin as saleslady. Mrs. Ross McCracken has taken it for July.

The August meeting will be held in the town hall when the W.A. will entertain the ladies of the Women's Missionary Society. Rev. P. T. Battersby will give an address on "Service"; Mrs. Battersby will speak on "China"; a duet will be given by Misses Luella Brown and Valda Webb and a Biblical contest by Mrs. F. Brown. The W. M.S. are also providing several numbers on the program.

The program for the afternoon consisted of a reading "A Happy Ending", by Mrs. James Webb, describing a story of an Indian bride. Mrs. Ross McCracken read a message from the Dominion president regarding the raising of funds for church societies. Cards and dancing are unworthy of the cause and either one should not be indulged in for raising money to aid the church or any of its societies, said the speaker.

Mrs. Ernest Timlin put on a contest that was much enjoyed. A hearty handclap was given the hostess for her kind hospitality, after which the rector, Rev. F. H. Battersby, closed the meeting with prayers.

A delicious lunch was served and a social time was spent in social intercourse.

Bathing Prohibited In Bay Of Quinte

BELLEVILLE, Ont., July 26 (C. P.). — Bathing was prohibited in the Bay of Quinte within the limits of the city to-day by the Board of Health following the discovery of four cases of typhoid fever, two being in the city and two from points outside. All the cases are being cared for at the Isolation Hospital here.

It is not believed that the cases came from a water source as respects bathing, but the prohibition was taken as a matter of precaution. All dairies delivering milk in the city have been given a clean bill by the health inspector.

Dr. Engelberg, of the Department of Health, was in the city yesterday conferring with Dr. R. A. Flynn, Acting Medical Officer of Health in the absence of Dr. C. S. Cronk, and he advised the closing of the bathing beaches as a precautionary measure. The cases of typhoid now reported are not serious, and there is no alarm over the malady spreading.

Car Drivers Being Closely Checked Up

CAMPBELLFORD, July 26 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — With the local Police Department checking up on all traffic violations, car drivers in and around Campbellford are beginning to realize that it is dangerous to drive in the municipality contrary to law. Chief George Hardy is determined to stop these violations, as Gordon Edwards of Havelock realized, when he was pulled for driving a car on the Campbellford bridge without a driver's license, and assessed a fine of $10.00, and costs. Two other traffic charges are listed on the docket to come up next week, and no less than eight people appeared in the Police Court recently and were all fined for violations of the traffic act. Driving without licenses having no rear lights on their cars and failing to stop at stop streets, seem to comprise the majority of the offences.

BUYING MORE FARMS.

It may be surprising for easterners to learn that despite the plight of agriculture in the Prairie Provinces for the last four or five years that there has been a steady movement back to the land in the province of Manitoba.

The figures show that during the four months of March, April, May and June of this year 15,557 acres of Crown land were bought in Manitoba, the total purchasing price reaching $76,000.

The average price, we are told, ran about $5 an acre, and the average sale amounted to 160 acres.

Most of the land so purchased was bought by the sons of Manitoba farmers desirous of establishing themselves on farms of their own or by farmers who wished to extend their holdings.

Some of the purchases were made in the northern part of the province, and this fact is accepted as indicative of the opinion that the southern land has been "farmed" out.

The conditions in northern Manitoba with its rolling land, its trees and streams and more abundant rainfall, of course, have helped to increase land sales in that part of the province.

At any rate it is encouraging to see that farmers who have long been engaged in western agriculture have enough faith in their occupation and in their province to establish so many new farms.

AN ALBERTA APPEAL.

From Captain G. D. Koe, of Edmonton, acting president of the Canadian Civil Liberties Protective Association, The Examiner has received a letter appealing for funds with which to finance an appeal in the MacMillan-Brownlee case.

"The Canadian Civil Liberties Protective Association," writes Capt. Koe, "is asking for all Canadian citizens to rally to their assistance in order that the right of a trial judge to over-ride the decision of a jury may be eradicated from our judicial procedure, and that the inalienable right of a jury to be the sole judges of fact may be, once more, firmly established.

"The Association proposes to use the MacMillan-Brownlee action as a test case for this purpose since, in our opinion, the ancient rights and privileges of British subjects have been encroached upon by the decision of the trial judge in this matter."

Somehow The Examiner does not imagine that there will be a rush on the part of Peterborough citizens to secure express orders and postal notes or to write cheques to be sent out to Edmonton in answer to this appeal.

For one thing, faith in juries as accurate dispensers of justice has been so frequently shattered by absurd decisions particularly in cases arising out of motor accidents, that a good many people have arrived at the conclusion that if justice is to be done in all such cases the issue will have to be left with the judge, rather than with the jury.

A PRESSING PROBLEM.

It is evident that the general relief situation throughout the country, as well as in Ontario, is far from Satisfactory.

The very fact that at a time when the Federal Government has expressed the opinion that it should be relieved of furtheg responsibility for direct relief, and that the provinces and municipalities should assume the burden, the Canadian Union of Municipalities should come forward with the request that the Ottawa Government should pay the whole cost of relief, including the expenses of administration, indicates that the Federal Government and the municipalities are as far apart as the poles on this issue.

This relief problem has been before the country for years, and yet it must be confessed that we are as far away from a complete solution as ever, and when directly opposite views are set forth by the Dominion Government and the municipalities, while the various provincial administraiotns doubtless have their own individual opinions, the outlook is far from reassuring.

A well-planned system of unemployment insurance, had it been available for the present crisis, might have taken care of the situation; most certainly such a system will have to be built up to meet similar emergencies in the future.

Passing the buck from the Dominion to the provinces and the municipalities or vice versa does not contribute to the clearing up of the present situation, which calls for the considered judgment of every thoughtful Canadian.

A GOOD SHOCK-ABSORBER.

If the intimation by the Kingston Whig-Standard that the dismissal of Dr. J. M. McCutcheon as civil service commissioner will come the hope of better days to many who will testify that Dr. McCutcheon had a remarkable faculty for saying "no" and meaning it to applications for increased salaries is really correct, the new Government in its evident desire to bring about economies might perhaps have done well to retain his services.

The opinion of the civil service, according to the same source, is that the commissioner who has just been discharged, was unduly severe in keeping down salaries, and in that respect earned his salary many times over.

Such men are not very frequently found in the public service, and it is apparent that there were not very many of them under the former administration in Ontario or there would not have been so much material for the use of the pruning knife at the present time.

Dr. McCutcheon's record, as suggested by the Kingston paper, might have been expected to have commended itself to a Government which believes it to be its mission to slash public expenditures wherever possible.

A shock-absorber who can keep the remuneration of civil servants from climbing should be a decidedly handy official for an economizing administration to have on hand; but despite that fact the commissioner is "out" about as fast as he would have been had his chief mission been to boost Government salaries.

FORBID SUCH STUNTS.

John Smith, the Peterborough adventurer who started off several weeks ago to paddle in a sixteen-foot canoe to Peterborough, England, is reported to be battling his way across the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Newfoundland. He expects to make St. John's his point of departure for the perilous trip across the Atlantic.

If Smith reaches his destination in the Motherland his feat will be little short of a miracle. What chance has he with a frail craft should a storm blow up while he is on the deep? His proposed trip has all the earmarks of a foolhardy stunt and somebody should try to dissuade him from endeavoring to carry out his plans. It is not yet too late.

Without doubt Smith is a courageous adventurer and a canoeist of note. He demonstrated his prowess in handling the paddle by the manner in which he navigated the Long Sault rapids and other treacherous points on the upper St. Lawrence River. But what is skill compared with the latent force and destructiveness of a mighty ocean? Smith has given a good account of himself so far on his journey. He should let it go at that.

Probably it would be a good idea if authorities put a ban on such inane stunts. Too often would-be adventurers launch out on some uncalled for and very dangerous journey resulting in their deaths and loss of life in a futile attempt to rescue them.

Despite the plethora of regulations, one more to look after these chaps who hold life cheap wouldn't meet with opposition from right-thinking citizens.—Kitchener News-Record.

CITY PEOPLE NEGLECT CHURCH.

Roger Babson, whose business it is to collect statistics, turned his attention to churches of United States, and the result of his survey he gave in an address to the General Council of the Congregational and Christian Churches. For four years Mr. Babson said he had been making a survey of 1,000 churches in United States representing different sections of the country. Some of his findings were:

Churches in rural areas have an average attendance of 71 per cent. of their membership.

In incorporated villages the attendance went down to 66 per cent.

In cities from 10,000 to 50,000, attendance receded to 46 per cent.

In cities of 50,000 or more the average attendance of church members at either morning or evening services was 30 per cent.

The highest attendance is in the southern states where in rural sections it was 78 per cent.

Mr. Babson's figures show that the larger the city the smaller the number of people who attend the services of the church with which they are identified. The survey, it should be remembered, deals with church members and not with others. It opens an interesting field for study. The churches in cities of over 50,000 have, as a rule, everything in the way of equipment and machinery. They are able to call and secure the most outstanding pulpiteers. They have fine organs and organists ,well-trained choirs and in many cases well-paid singers as soloists. The buildings are attractive, and the whole business is highly organized. And yet in the face of all that only 30 per cent. of the members go to church on a Sunday. There is something sadly out of line there; there is too great a difference between the size and excellence of equipment and the interest and concern of the members.

The rural churches might be considered as being handicapped in the matter of equipment. The churches are simple, some of them are humble. They depend on what talent the community provides for leadership in song, and they cannot hope to attract preachers who are considered brilliant or outstanding. Such preachers, they say, are apt to gravitate toward the larger centres. And yet those rural churches scattered over broad areas of United States are gathering from 71 to 78 per cent. of their own members to the Sunday services.

The power of a church is not in the size of its building, the beauty or tone of its organ, the comfort of its seats nor yet is it in the multiplicity of organizations. Neither is it in the wealth nor social postion of its membership. The power of a church is measured according to the degree to which the church membership is willing to be used to do the will of the Head of the Church.

Undoubtedly there are sinister influences in a city which will sap the power of church members. The way in which Sunday can be enjoyed in pursuit of entertainment and pleasure is attractively presented and the person who is but a nominal church member falls a ready victim to such attraction.

It does look as though the problem of a good many of those large city churches was written on their own membership books. They can hardly hope to attract and convert others when they cannot interest more than 30 per cent. of their own members.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A British Columbia peak has been named after Hon. Geo. P. Graham. We're glad it is a mountain because there is no bluff about the popular Brockville senator.

Mr. Hepburn's remark that the Ontario Government is not an employment bureau should sink home with many of his supporters whose campaign for civil service jobs is handicapping the new Premier.

Against the money saved by laying off highway workers the cost of keeping these men and their families will have to be taken into consideration. Necessarily they have gone back from the highways to the relief lists.

Souvenirs of Dillinger are said to be in great demand across the border. That attitude on the part of the public may explain the delay in ending the career of the gunman.

That Quebec police chief who gave his men orders to shoot to kill must be basing his ideas of police work on the American, rather than the British, system.

Mr. Hepburn takes over the reins about mid-July. Just a matter of donning Mr. Henry's overalls, as it were.—Kitchener Record.

FLOWER LOVERS AT CROW LAKE

Majority of Cottagers Keep Beautiful Gardens—Resort Growing Fast.

MANY TOURISTS.

MARMORA, July 26 (Examiner Correspondence).—Rambling along the shores of Crow Lake on Wednesday evening, The Examiner representative found that the resort is in all its glory just now.

At Marble Cliff Pavilion, where a bridge and afternoon tea party was in full swing, the sand beach was the rendezvous for the juveniles. The proprietress, Mrs. W. C. Sills, reported a good season thus far, and told of many applications for August reservations. The dances which have been held thrice weekly are drawing good crowds.

Between Marble Cliff and Judge Parker's cottage, the traveller passes the earliest erected cottages and many of these are real modern looking with a recent application of paint. Then comes a row of bungalows, which extends to Tipperary House, and with their nicely kept gardens and lawns, these occasion many admiring glances. Special mention might be made of D. E. Bell's garden. Mr. Bell's love of horticulture is manifest in the results he has obtained with his flower beds.

At Tipperary House, Thomas E. Potts is enjoying his first season as proprietor. Bookings have been good and more American tourists, principally from Cleveland, Ohio, are on the way for their annual vacation.

Flower Lovers.

Booster Park being the final destination, over twenty cottages had to be passed before this playground was reached. The majority of these have been erected within the last fifteen years and more variety is seen in their construction. To the rear of two of these cottages exist the two show flower gardens of the lake—those of Joseph Judge and William Kerr, Senior. This year, the profusion of bloom equals the previous best.

At five cottages visited en route, the remark was made to the writer, "I suppose you are up to see the speed boat," so to the dock at Booster Park, the scribe took his steps. Here was encountered J. P. Patterson lawyer, of Cleveland, Ohio, and his two sons, William John and Henry, after kindly directions had been given by Mrs. Patterson from her camp kitchen. The other two were helping "W. J." dismantle the boat, for they were due to leave for home in the morning—most reluctantly as they all said.

Two years ago William John, whom his father says "is getting to be a bit of a speed demon," brought a 12 horsepower motor boat to the same dock. This year he returned with a 32 horsepower boat manufactured at Sandusky, Ohio. Lake residents met on the ramble were unanimous in the opinion that it was the fastest speed boat that ever ploughed Crow Lake waters. Its full speed has not been tested so far, but its navigator said he had opened her up at approximately thirty-five miles an hour. Booster Park has furnished accommodation for the usual number of campers this summer, so that the Marmora side of Crow Lake is altogether in its glory now.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

SOREL, QUEBEC.

This city was named for the first seigneur of this land—Pierre de Saurel, captain of the famous regiment de Carignan-Salieres, who came from France in 1665 to check the invasions of the Iroquois.

In 1793, when the village of Sorel was under the rule of the English garrison stationed there, and the majority of its population were loyalists, the name was changed to William-Henry, in honor of the English prince who afterward became George IV., who visited the district at that time.

This named prevailed until 1860, when the old name of Sorel was revived. The present name is a corruption of Saurel, and local residents express the hope that the original spelling will be restored.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

LIFE ISN'T A PERFECT FIT.

Jane was telling me about a friend of hers who isn't happy unless everything is "just right."

When she gives a party, she plans everything in advance for weeks, every detail, almost every minute of the affair.

And her parties are frequently successful. She sees to it that they are . . . She lurks around in the background giving a touch there and a gentle tug here—inconspicuous but persistent and capable, the perfect producer. It's true she isn't IN the party, she is BEHIND it. She doesn't exactly mingle with the crowd, she is the director of the orchestra and that's how she gets her fun out of life—seeing that nothing goes wrong.

That's quite all right. If that's her idea of a good time, then let her enjoy life on those terms. It's a good enough way to live and no one would begrudge her an instant of her pleasure.

But—

If one little thing goes wrong at the party, then her evening is spoiled. If the soup is not quite hot enough, the dinner is ruined. If two of her guests let a casual argument heighten into sharp criticism, she suffers agonies. Little things that nobody notices strike deeply into her breast. Small mistakes break her heart and she does not recover for weeks, if ever.

She wants to be the Perfect Hostess, but she never will be. The Perfect Hostess knows how to mix up people. She wants them to have a good time with themselves. She is a chef and not a producer. She is interested more in the main idea than in the trivial details that are supposed to make up perfection, but usually ruin it . . . She doesn't believe in that saying about genius being an infinite capacity for taking pains, because she KNOWS that genius is really just a grand explosion—not a shower of sparks.

So Jane's friend is always doomed to disappointment. Because nine times in ten, something WILL go wrong. It's bound to happen. Life isn't a perfect fit and nothing can be done about it. Little things go wrong, but the big things stay put. The party may be a big success even though the soup was spilled and the lights went out. The best life is the one with a little slack in it, and Jane's friend's life has hardly any at all . . . That's what makes her unhappy.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A REAL OLD TIME TORY.

On this date, in 1791, there was born at Kingston a boy who was to be not only a great lawyer but also a great politician, a centre of many a political storm. He was of Loyalist descent and when his father, Christopher Robinson, died in 1798 he was taken into the home of Rev. John Stuart, rector of Kingston, and later went to John Strachan's school. Under such masters it was no wonder that he grew to be a die-hard Tory. When the United States declared war in 1812, Robinson was a law student at York and promptly joined Isaac Brock, with whom he was at both the capture of Detroit and on Queenston Heights. The latter battle gave him his start. Attorney General Macdonnell was killed; Robinson was asked to take over the office, although he had not yet been called to the bar, but that was remedied by a special resolution in his favor passed by the benchers of the Upper Canada Law Society. He administered his office with ruthlessness. Any person not definitely a Tory was suspected; those accused of treason were haled to court, as many were executed as juries could be brought to convict. At Ancaster assizes 17 out of 21 accused were convicted of treason and most of them were hanged at Burlington.

The war ended, Boulton, who had been a prisoner of war, came home and was appointed attorney general with Robinson as solicitor general; but the latter was disinclined to play second fiddle to any man and secured leave of absence to go to London to study for the English Bar. While in England he married and came back in 1817 to resume his old office, Boulton having been made a judge. He was elected to the Assembly in 1821 and from then until 1841 was the Tory leader, opposing all reforms, made the target of W. L. Mackenzie's venom, and probably the most hated man in the province outside of the official circle. He was named chief justice in 1829, being then only 39, the youngest chief justice in the Empire. He thus became a member of the executive council and speaker of the Legislative council, thus combining in one person the three primary functions of government, judicial, executive and legislative. This continued until 1840 and he took advantage of all his opportunities to stay the wave of reform. He strongly apposed the union of the provinces, was a doughty upholder of the clergy reserves and did much to provoke the rebellion of 1837; but eventually his Toryism proved a boomerang and in 1840 he was forced to resign his legislative and executive functions and devote himself to his duties as chief justice, which he did until his death in 1863. His is a sad illustration of the folly of hereditary honors in Canada. Not long ago his descendant, the bearer of the baronetcy, died in poverty, but the title still goes on.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyst for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Audre Joye,
Warsaw, Ont.

Your handwriting is expressive of an intelligent personality. You seem to be quite able to adjust yourself to almost any condition. You are very sensible and do not grieve over things that you cannot have. You are distinctive and diplomatic. You appear to attire yourself in robes according to your individual taste. You do not as a rule let yourself deviate from the path of dignity. You should be fond of music and flowers, but not enough to give up your time to the cultivation of either. Your mental powers are well developed, but you are prone to crowd too many ideas into your head at once, though there is a noteworthy tendency predominate in your writing, which tells me that you can undertake more than one proposition at a time, and yet make a fair success of both. Your general character is excellent, but you must be on your guard, and not let your sympathetic nature induce you to make promises which you know you cannot keep.

I think your writing in ink would portray nursing ability and perhaps the size and shape would be more uniform, but as it is, it reveals versatility, and a tendency to become deeply hurt when there is no need to be. You only seem to see one side of the question at these times, and that one your own. Out-of-door recreation should be a part of your very life, and would mean better health.

Lorene Rainey,
Warsaw, Ont.

The handwriting on your sample shows that you are gentle and kind. You have rather a placid nature, and do not seem to wish to partake of too much physical labour, and you do not care to be 'mixed up' in trouble of any nature. Your upper loops indicate that you have a generous share of imagination, which makes you quite interesting to others, especially as you become animated when telling a story which has either pathos or humor in its delineation. The above characteristics of yours could be put to a test in dramatics of an amateur type, more along recreation lines, than as a life work, though I think you have much talent for acting, which is perhaps dormant at present. Your thinking qualifications should stand you in good stead in the business world, and one who really does appreciate thinking as you do, should never be without an occupation. Your weakest point seems to be the fact that you are too reserved and conservative, and cramp your style. You should possess designing ability, and have much interest in things of an artistic nature. The long, lower loops designate you as capable of partaking in out-of-door recreation with a view to the body building process which is part of all real physical culture.

Joan Gillespie,
Keene, Ont.

Your handwriting reveals a quiet reserve and a tendency to draw yourself into a corner as it were, in preference to meeting the public. You write with an English portrayal, as though you learned your penmanship on the other side of the ocean. Your disposition is inclined to change in accordance to your moods, and I am very much afraid that you have many of them. You seem to accomplish a certain amount of work each day, but further than that you cannot go. If you do, then you are fatigued mentally and physically. Quiet home surroundings in which you can be allowed to express your individual taste should do much towards bringing out your best qualifications, but you should on no account let people "boss" you too much. If you do, you will cramp your style to such an extent that you will not have the courage to exert your own willpower again. Kindness and sympathy mean such a lot to you that you should have all that you desire in that line. Your writing does not seem to have become exactly 'set' for life as yet, so you may expect it to change somewhat with the coming years. However, I believe the main characteristics will predominate for a long time.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 72c to 92c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 45c to 46c; corn, 74c to 77c; rye, 48c to 50c; buckwheat, 58c to 60c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Corn reached new high-price records for the season yesterday, and with fresh outbursts of speculative buying scored an overnight gain of 2¾c. Wheat also jumped 2¾c maximum.

Persistent abnormal heat and lack of moisture causing irreparable damage to corn led to trade suggestions that the 1934 United States yield of corn would be the smallest since 1901, about 560,000,000 bushels less than the July 1 official forecast, with Missouri alone showing 90,000,000 bushels curtailment so far this month. Estimates were also current that wheat prospects of the Canadian Prairie Provinces had been reduced 15 per cent. in the last two weeks.

Despite brisk profit-taking at the last, corn closed strong, 1⅝c-2c above Tuesday's finish, wheat firm 1⅜c to 1⅞c up, oats ½c to ⅝c advance, and provisions showing 5c to 12c gain.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Prices on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market were generally steady yesterday.

Butter was quoted at 19¼c to 19½c a pound for fresh No. 1 in cariots or less. Small lots to retailers were 20c a pound for solids and 21c a pound for prints. Receipts were 438 boxes.

On the cheese market, no price changes were recorded. Ontario colored being 10⅝c to 10½c a pound, while Quebec cheese brought 10c a pound. Arrivals were 1,896 boxes.

Egg prices were firm, except for a softening tendency in the lower grades. Graded shipments in cartlots or less sold for 20c to 22c a dozen for A large, 20c to 20½c for A medium, 19c for B, down ½c, and 18c to 18½c for C, off ½c. Receipts totalled 1,903 cases.

New Quebec potatoes commanded 45c to 55c per 80-pound bag, unchanged from Tuesday. Old potatoes were practically off the market.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 26.— Announcement of substantial export sales of Canada's wheat and unexpected strength at Liverpool injected new life into a flagging market on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, wheat futures prices running up sharply to close 1¼c to 1⅜c higher, July at 84⅞c, October 86⅝c to 87½c, and December 87½c.

Earlier tardiness was cast aside as more than 1,000,000 bushels of wheat were reported sold for overseas shipment, and values bounded upward to score gains of more than 2 cents. Some profit-taking at the close, however, chipped fractions off the advance.

Heavy rains reported over a large section of Europe, where harvesting is now in progress, which will delay the harvest and may possibly damage the grains created a strong tone at Liverpool. Prices there closed ¼d to ⅝d higher, erasing earlier declines.

Heavy selling prevailed throughout, but good supprt more than took care of the offerings until the final dealings. Bullish private reports of Western Canada crops induced buyers into the market, with Chicago interests chiefly on the selling side.

Fractional advances for No. 1 and No. 2 Northern wheats were scored in cash grains. Good demand was shown in that market yesterday, reflecting increased export activity. Coarse grains futures moved higher in sympathy with wheat.

HEAVY SELLING ON WALL STREET LOSSES GENERAL

Sales in New York Are Largest in Several Months.

WAR THREAT.

Worst Break in Market Since Last September—Losses 2 to 12 Points.

NEW YORK, July 26 (AP).—Successive selling waves in stocks taxed trading facilities of the exchange today and losses ranged from 2 to around 12 points. Utilities showed some resistance. Sales approximated 33,500,000 shares, the largest in months. U.S. Smelting lost 12 while National Lead dropped more than 9. Case, Johns-Manville, Allied Chemical, Delaware and Hudson, American Tobacco "B" and American Smelting depreciated to 7. U.S. Steel, General Motors and American Telephone were down more than 2 each.

Stocks catapulted down 1 to around 10 points or so at their worst when rumors spread through Wall Street that Italian troops had marched into Austria. While prices were irregularly lower at the start, there was a downward swoop in the second hour which put the ticker tape several minutes behind floor transactions and resulted in the worst break since last September. Pressure was renewed against secondary boards, especially these of the railroad category, and many severe recessions were recorded. German, Austrian and Italian loans were unusually heavy.

Scores of shares, notably those known as "pivotal" leaders, went into new low ground for the year or longer.

The most severe of the stock casualties includes National Lead and U.S. Smelting, off around 10 points each. Union Pacific, Case, Allied Chemical and Armour of Illinois Preferred, yielded 6 to 7, Howe Sound and American Sugar Refining 5 each, and Santa Fe, American Can, Bethlehem Steel and many others sagged 2 to more than 4.

Heaviness embraced the Canadian stock list. In addition to International Nickel, McIntyre and Dome sagged around 2 points each. Canadian Pacific lost more than a point, while on the curb, Lake Shore and Hiram Walker were under pressure. Dominion Governments 4's were easy.

TORONTO MARKET BREAKS WIDE OPEN

New Lows for Year Are Set in the Industrial Section.

TORONTO, July 26 (CP).—Canadian industrial shares were driven to new lows for the year today in an outburst of distress selling which reached 3.50,000 shares of the Toronto Exchange.

The whole market flopped in sympathy with the downward drive on the New York Board, losses up to 4 points appearing for Walkers Common, Consolidated Smelters and a couple of points for Distillers, Nickel and Ford A. There was a mild rally just before the close.

The Austrian situation was cited as a possible explanation of the break but the decline had been under way for a week before the murdre of Dollfuss occurred. Selling in New York entirely accounted for the break down of prices on the Toronto Market, thinly-margined accounts caving in as the slump continued.

The oils stood the gaff fairly well. With the exception of International Pete which dropped about two points, Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams were offered in heavy volume and the former touched 21 for a loss of more than four points. Distillers sold for a few minutes below 10 and then held at 10 in the early afternoon, down nearly a point. Point losses were taken by Nickel, Ford A and C.P.R.

In the closing transactions, Walkers Common came back to where it stood three points down for the day and Distillers Seagrams at 9 was off 2 points, while Industrial Alcohol slumped 3-4 to 5 1-4.

Nickel was severely pounded for a loss of 2 points which was partly made up before the close, while Ford A, closing at 17 was off more than a point. Brazilian and C.P.R. eased down 3-4 to a full point.

Stewart, members of the Toronto Board of Control and other civic officials attended along with detachments of firemen from Montreal, Hamilton, London, Windsor, Oshawa, York Township and Peterborough.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO, July 26 (CP).—After surviving three days of the market decline with losses of minor importance, the Toronto Exchange, mining section, broke out today in a crushing wave of liquidation and prices broke all along the line. Losses up to 2.50 were recorded in the big gold group and it was in the secondary gold group in which the most havoc was wrought as these were the issues in which margin traders were the most heavily committed. Many of these traders and investors were reported to have been sold out this afternoon.

The market rallied a little in the last 10 minutes. Dome, Hollinger, Teck Hughes, Wright Hargreaves and Bralorne and Pioneer were dumped overboard in heavy volume, cutting the price of Dome 2.50 to $37, Hollinger, 1.20 to $16, Lake Shore, 2.50 to $49, McIntyre, $2 to $44, Teck, 45 cents to $6, Wright Hargreaves, 80 to 8.50, Bralorne and Pioneer each lost more than a dollar.

God's Lake was hammered to 2.10 and recovered to 2.30 for a net loss of 7 cents. Gunnar Gold dropped 40 cents, San Antonio, 60 cents, Little Long Lac, 60 cents and smaller recessions appeared for Howey.

LEEMING AND LEEMING

New York, N.Y., July 26th:

The feeling of uncertainty which is currently reflected in the stock markets arises partly from the clouded aspect of the business horizon and also from the fact that neither our business organizations or our securities systems have been completely adjusted to the many new rules and regulations which have been introduced during the past year. To these factors may be added the unanswerable question as to how much further maladjustment will be caused by the second drought affecting so large a portion of the country.

BROKER'S OPINIONS.

Munds, Winslow and Potter:—"We expected to see the market execute a turning movement and consider that current levels represent the bottom prior to a major rise.

Engle and Co.: "We prefer the conservative side."

Clark Childs: "Continued side-line position appears in order for those who want to go into the market for other than a few days."

Waldo Young: "A bottom of a sort was made by the stock market in the first hour yesterday, during which on a volume of 400,000 shares it was evident that the carryover of selling from Tuesday's relapse was being better absorbed than the selling of like volume for any hour in the past week. Prices closed not far from the best levels of the day and market at the close appeared to be in a position to extend the rally somewhat further, but there will probably be resistance to further immediate advance at the level of highs of Tuesday afternoon. If that level can be negotiated today the rally of yesterday will be placed in doubt with a further test of recent lows probable. It will be favorable if the market opens up today and especially favorable if the opening is higher than the highs of yesterday."

Chicago, July 26th:

Brokers reported a good volume of commission house buying developed in the wake of the two-day decline in prices and that this demand offset any selling by floor traders.

NAZIS BATTLING LOYAL SOLDIERS

The French attitude was couched in messages both Doumergue and Barthou sent Acting Chancellor Schuschnigg of Austria lauding Dollfuss for his "courage" in the fight to maintain Austria's independence to which "France is firmly attached."

Dollfuss' work in "defence of his fatherland's independence will survive him" said Barthou, while Doumergue echoed this statement.

"Indignation at the abominable attack" was expressed by the foreign minister.

Doumergue's telegram said: "The French government learned with profound sorrow the news of the odius attempt which cost the life of Chancellor Dollfuss. In its name I express condolence.

Nazi Jubilant

MUNICH, Germany, July 26. — (AP). Headquarters of the Austrian Nazis in Munich was undisguisedly jubilant to-day over the turn of events in Austria.

Leaders emphasized Germany's intention of maintaining its policy of "watchful waiting," but meanwhile incoming trains disgorged subordinate leaders and officers of exiled Austrian Legionnaires in Germany, apparently under orders to report to headquarters.

Three thousand of the Legionnaires already were on the scene, fully armed and equipped with steel helmets. Filling five local barracks, they were not permitted to leave the premises.

Reports that Chancellor Hitler of Germany was arriving here from Beyreuth to-day to discuss the Austrian situation received no confirmation. The press spokesman at the "Brown House", German Nazi headquarters, said "The Chancellor still is in middle Germany."

Pope Sends Condolence

VATICAN CITY, July 26. (AP) Pope Pius expressed deep grief today over the "criminal assassination" of Chancellor Dollfuss in a lengthy telegram to President Wilhelm Kiklas of Austria.

"I take the liveliest part in the profound sorrow brought upon you, upon beloved Austria and the while civilized world by the criminal assasination of Chancellor Dollfuss" the Pope's message said.

leading to any definite result, has not tended to lessen the suspicion of the authorities that Meharry met death through foul play. Every possible avenue of investigation is being fully explored by Chief Samuel Newhall and his detective staff.

The remains of the dead man were interred at Little Lake Cemetery this afternoon following funeral services conducted at Belleghem's Funeral Home by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church in the absence of the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard.

Pall-bearers were: Messrs. William Dorrington, George Meharry, Thomas Turcott, Robert Robinson, Jack Thirnbeck, and Joseph Crowe.

Frau Dollfuss Flees To Slain Chancellor

RICCIONE, Italy, July 26 (A.P.) —Frau Dollfuss, heartened by the personal encouragement of Premier Mussolini, took off for Vienna to-day to go to the side of her husband, the assassinated chancellor of Austria.

Rising early this morning, Frau Dollfuss told her two children that she was returning to Austria but did not tell them of the death of their father.

She drove from the villa placed at her disposal by the Italian government to the Riccione airport, where Mussolini and his wife, Donna Rachelle kissed her and told her she would take good care of the children. There were tears in her eyes as Frau Dollfuss stepped into the waiting aeroplane.

MURDER OF NOTED FIGURE IS FORECAST BY FAMOUS SEER

Prophesies Big Political Surprise for Canada—Revolution in Ireland.

CONSULTED BY MANY.

By CORALIE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

PARIS, July 26.—The stars do other things besides mere silly twinkling for the benefit of composers of nursery-story books. The stars foretell things. They predict wars, the assassination of prominent statesmen, big financial scandals—they don't bother about the little ones—they know when prosperity will be back, when there will be an earthquake, a flood or a funeral. They prophesy ritzy weddings in the upper crusts of society, passion murders in high places, the birth of princes and the date when dictators will get tired of dictating and go and do a little work themselves.

It's all a trick this astrology business, this knowing how to find out what the stars foretell But once you have the secret it is as easy as eating a chocolate nut sundae. You just gotto go to grammar-school for a couple of weeks in the Milky Way, so to speak. That's all. If you do you'll soon learn that those vibrant winks of Venus on a sensuous summer evening are not just meant to make youngsters believe that Santa Claus is playing with poppa's matches. They mean much more.

I met a lady here who knows exactly what the Big Bear is up to when he shimmies in the gloaming. Orion's belt is no mystic brassiere to her and as to the Southern Cross, she told me that it had nothing to do with Alabama mammies or Ol' Black Joe. "The stars are man's best friends" she said. "They tell him what to expect. But man must have confidence in those who are initiated in the secrets of astrology."

Has Been Successful

I forgot to say that the lady-soothsayer's name is Senora Jeelti. She is Spanish. You can tell that by her black-eyed Susan orbs. She has also an enormous reputation in Europe. And why? Among other things she foretold the Stavisky scandal the war in Arabia, the Astor-French wedding, and the murder of Captain Roehm, Hitler's favorite buddy. Her horoscopes are reprinted in the popular press all over Europe, and there are even certain statesmen—she mentioned two names to me—who come a long way to Paris to consult her before introducing an important measure in parliaments of their respective countries. Yes, there are still some parliaments left! Neither of the two men, I hasten to reassure you, come from Ottawa In our capital the statesmen have their own private soothsayers, although they don't call them by that name. Some of these sit in the press-gallery when the House is in session.

Madame Jeelti began by telling me that the Derby would be won by a horse with a "W" in its name. That was a week before the race. Windsor won. I just happened to be broke that time. Then she said that one "very prominent statesmen in Europe" is going to pass out of the picture before the year is over. "He will be assassinated,' she specified, and "his sudden death will cause quite an emotion. There is an 's' in his name," she added. That seems to narrow it down somewhat on first sight until you begin to run the list of statesmen over in your head: Venesilos, Stalin, Mussolin (heavy on the "s"), Simon, Ramsay MacDonald, Gaston Domergue, Woldemaras, Goebbels, Gomboes, Dolfuss (another double-header), and Pius XI. That lets out Hitler. Unless the "h" in his name is aspirated as in snake.

Ireland Not British

Here are some more predictions: England will wipe out unemployment completely. That's definite. Ireland will have a civil war. Some could have foretold this without looking at the stars. At the beginning, Madame Jeelti couldn't say which exactly—the star that held this secret was just at the moment engaged in playing hide and go seek with Halley's tailed comet—well, anyhow, it doesn't matter much when: Ireland will break away from the British Empire "There will be nothing done about it in England," she assured me when I asked her. To be sure, why should one exert oneself in such a heat-wave?

President Roosevelt's "New Deal" will turn out to be a success, she predicted This prophecy ought to simplify matters a great deal for harassed editorial writers who pose that question off and on, beginning with the impressive words: "We view with alarm," or "There can scarcely be any doubt," depending on whether they're Republican or Democrat. Sometimes, it is true, they "view with alarm" and "doubt" in the same breath. At the Paris fair last year there was a gink who swallowed a boiled egg and a lemon in the same gulp. That was clever. He had a big congregation.

"The summer will be hard," said Madame Jeelti, speaking of Uncle Sam, "but beginning September the qualities of the new system will begin to show themselves and the ensuing winter will be free of breadlines. Mr. Roosevelt will rectify mistakes and out of the confusion his administration will evolve a system which will be the admiration and envy of the world. Everybody will be content," she assured me.

"The farmers, too?" I asked

"Everybody," she said emphatically.

That's a big ticket, I thought, and I asked: "Can you tell me something about Canada?"

Prosperity in Canada

"Let me see," said Madame Jeelti, and she looked at the celestial canopy and she began to enumerate under in a whisper: "There is Urania, Mackenzie King, Hepburn, Woodsworth, Taschereau....

"Diana is on the upgrade," she said.

"Good for dear old Di'," I said. "But will she get there?"

"There will be a big political surprise in Canada," said Madame Jeelti.

"When?" asked I.

"Late in the year, autumn probably," she came back. "I see a meteor falling!"

"What does he look like?"

"A beard," she said.

"No," I said, disappointed, "the politician I have in mind is clean-shaven. What else?"

"Canada will have a prosperous 1935," she promised, "but...."

"No, buts," I said, "that will do for the present. Don't tempt the stars!"

"One hundred francs, please," said Madame Jeelti.

Another blue angel flapped its wings and flew away.

The total length of the Amazon river from the head waters of the Ucayali is about 3,300 miles.

Unlucky

PADUCAH, Ky., July 26.—(C P) — Richard Knight, 29, thumbed his way into jail. Sheriff Cliff Shemwell discovered the hitch-hiker he picked up was knight, a tramp missing for five days after telling a deputy jailer he'd "be back in five minutes."

Farmers Wanting Help To Harvest Crop Dozens Of Men Are Seeking Employment

A dozen farm jobs were going begging at the Employment Bureau this morning. Although scores of men are still making daily calls at the office in search of work, a number of unfiled farm orders have been on hand at all times during the past two months, officials reported.

"Anything today?" an unemployed man asked the clerk while a reporter was paying a visit to the Bureau this morning.

"Lots of farm work," the clerk informed the job seeker.

"No thanks," he replied hastily and made his exit.

Unemployed married men and most of the jobless single men would rather scrape along without jobs and wait for something to open up in the city than take a farm job, the official explained. The farmers are paying only $15 to $20 a month with board and the long hours and hard work is not attractive while there is a possibility of any other kind of work.

Most of the farm orders are for men willing to stick to the jobs for a month or so until the various harvesting operations are finished. Orders for farm help by the day were plentiful earlier in the year but scarce now.

As usual, there are a number of orders for men to fill highly specialized jobs on hand from other centers in the Dominion. The list this morning was as follows: A Barber-Coleman warp tying machine operator, Stafford loom fixers, wood heel turners, heel coverers, a heel scourer and a shank scourer.

Little labour has been absorbed during the past month. With local building operations at a standstill, few jobs are available in that field. Sixty men are busy on the Lakefield road contract and a smaller number are continuing work on the Landsdowne street cut-off from Highway 28.

BERMUDA NEGRO WINS HIS APPEAL PRIVY COUNCIL

Verdict Never Should Have Been Given as Jury Discharged Previously

"MAN NOT CONVICTED."

Accused Had Been Sentenced to Die for Murder of Illegitimate Children.

LONDON, Eng., July 26. (C. P. Cable).—The appeal of Warren Dousne Smith against a conviction in a Bermuda court and the death sentence for murder of two illegitimate children of whom he was the putative father, was to-day allowed by the judicial committee of the Privy Council.

Smith, a colored Bermudan, was tried by a special white jury. His counsel to-day told Their Lordships Smith had sent him newspaper reports showing that the chief justice had referred to this appeal and had examined the substance of it, in an address to the jury in another prosecution. These reports said the chief justice had one so far as to describe the appeal—in the words of the late Lord Balfour—as a frigid and calculated lie.

Lord Atkin remarked to-day: "It is obviously very improper for a chief justice or any other judge, when there is an appeal pending, to make reference to statements in the petition for leave to appeal."

Lord Wright added: "It is most improper."

"It seems a matter,' Lord Atkin continued, "which shoud be brought to the notice of the colonial secretary."

"Come Back To-morrow"

Appellant's counsel spoke of a conversation between the foreman of the jury in the Smith trial and the chief justice who was quoted as saying: "You have been out for three hours and it seems to me the best thing to be done is for you to retire to the hotel and come back to-morrow, by which time after you have had, I hope, a most excellent dinner, you will probably be able to come to some agreement."

The jury the next day were still unable to reach an agreement and the judge ordered them to be discharged. The foreman walked over to the judge and had a short private conversation, after which a verdict of guilty was returned.

Lord Atkin, who announced their Lordships' decision, said they were of the opinion the man had not been convicted, because the verdict was one which it was not competent for the jury to deliver inasmuch as they had previously been discharged.

MEIGHEN DENIES SOUGHT AID

Senator Conferred With Members of Government Regarding Abitibi Action.

HYDRO PROBE CONTINUES.

TORONTO, July 26 (C.P.)—Senator Arthur Meighen revealed today he had conferred with members of the Ontario Government in June, 1932 regarding a situation which was causing bonds of the Ontario Power Service Corporation to sink in market value before the government decided to make an offer to acquire assets of the firm through a bond exchange deal.

The senator, testifying before a royal Commission inquiring into acquisition of the power company's assets, said he had gone to see the government members at a time he was becoming anxious over holdings of O.P.S.C. bonds by companies in which he was interested, but that he had asked no assistance for himself or his companies.

He met Hon. W. H. Price, then attorney-general, and Hon. William Finlayson, then minister of lands and forests, in an attempt to get a "decision as soon as possible as to what the government intended to do" regarding the O.P.S.C. situation. Mr. Price at the time was acting premier in the absence of George S. Henry.

The result of the interview, he said, was unsatisfactory, in that the ministers declined to take any action until Mr. Henry's return.

The senator denied repeatedly suggestions of Arthur G. Slaght, Royal Commission counsel, that his purpose in going to see the government members was to obtain assistance.

He declared he had merely asked for a decision "whatever it is" as soon as possible because there was danger of the bond prices being further depressed and of weaker holders of the securities being induced to sell and losing large amounts of money.

The position of his own companies regarding the bonds, he acknowledged, was not very strong although bonds that had been placed as collateral with Laidlaw and Company, brokers, were accepted as satisfactory security.

Finlayson Opposed

The senator insisted he had "never" consulted with Mr. Henry concerning the situation. He said also he had gained the impression that Mr. Finlayson was "inclined to be adverse" to taking any action in the matter at all.

Mr. Meighen, in reply to queries by Mr. Slaght, said he had consented to recommend, at the request of the government, the bond exchange offer by which the assets of the power company were acquired for the government by the commission without inquiring as to its propriety because he considered it was purely the business of the administration and not his concern as a Hydro Commissioner.

The senator explained he did not feel his acceptance of a seat on the Hydro Commission which was offered him by Mr. Henry obligated him to do the bidding of the premier, but that it was his duty in this instance to accede to the request of the government and recommend the bond offer to enable the government to complete its business. The government could not have made the offer without the recommendation of the commission, he acknowledged.

He denied his action in any way contributed to liability of the Hydro Commission in regard to the bond deal, because the offer it made on behalf of the government to exchange $18,000,000 of its bonds for $20,000,000 of those of the power company were guaranteed fully by the government.

LICENSES COME FOR TWO HOTELS

Grand and American Receive Licenses to Sell Beer.

NOVELTY IS DYING.

Two more hotels, the Grand and the American, received licenses to sell beer from the Liquor Commission this morning. Sale of beer by the bottle got under way at the Grand Hotel this afternoon but the management of the American stated that the beverage will not be made available there until late to-morrow at the earliest.

Workmen at the Grand Hotel are busy installing tables and generally refitting the old bar room. Draft equipment is to be installed as quickly as possible. The hotel secured a dining room beer license as well as a beverage room authority but did not apply for a dining room wine license.

Not Ready For License

Waiting definite assurance regarding the license, the arrival of a beverage room authority caught the management of American Hotel completely unprepared. Hopes that beer by the bottle might be purveyed by to-morrow are held but the regular facilities which have been planned will not be ready for a day or two. The hotel secured only a beverage room license.

In the meanwhile, the initial flurry of excitement over the novelty of drinking beer in a public room is dying down in the city. The Empress Hotel served a large number of customers last night but the rush compared in no way to that of the first evening. Business was brisk until about 11 o'clock but dropped off rapidly after that time.

ITALY IS READY TO AID AUSTRIA SAYS MUSSOLINI

Assures Prince Starhemberg He Will Defend Country's Independence.

LAUDS DOLLFUSS.

Was Personal Friend—Bound Together by Identical Political Views.

By ANDRUE BERDING
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

ROME, July 26. (AP).—Premier Mussolini assured Vice Chancellor Ernst Von Starhemberg of Austria by telegram to-day that Italy will defend Austrian independence even "more strenuously in these exceptional and difficult times."

Mussolini's message was sent as war time sentiments came to the fore in Italy, long opposed to a union of Germany and Austria. Troops north of Padua were ordered ready to march on short notice.

"The tragic end of Chancellor Dollfuss saddened me profoundly" Mussolini telegraphed Prince Starhemberg, who is leader of the Fascist Home Guard.

"I was bound to him by ties of personal friendship and by identical political points of view. I have always admired his capacities as a statesman, his simple probity, his great courage.

"The independence of Austria for which he fell is a principle which has been defended and will be defended by Italy yet more strenuously in these exceptional and difficult times.

"Chancellor Dollfuss served the people from whom he came with absolute disinterestedness and disdain for peril. His memory will be honored not only by Austria but everywhere in the civilized world, which has already with its moral condemnation struck at those persons directly and indirectly responsible for this deed.

"Please receive an expression of my condolences, which interpret the unanimous sentiment of execration and mourning of the Italian people. (Signed) Mussolini."

HALL STILL LEADING.

SASKATOON, July 26 (C.P.).—Six additional polls reported to-day in the deferred Saskatchewan Athabaska election reduced the lead of D. A. Hall, of Lac La Ronge, to 78 votes over Jules Marion, of Le a La Crosie. Both are Liberals and represented their respective ridings in the last Assembly. Passage of the redistribution bill merged the two seats into one vast constituency.

NEW WHEAT PLAN.

WASHINGTON, July 26 (A.P.).—A sweeping change in the United States Government's wheat control tactics was under consideration to-day as the drought tightened its disastrous grip.

Instead of plowing under to cut the crop, officials studied a plan to return to almost normal acreages next year—but with an ace in the hole. If restricted production were found necessary, part of the crop would be harvested while still green to be used for forage.

BEHIND the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL.

HOLLYWOOD, June 26.—A certain star who used to be vain of his looks has burned the candle at both ends and now actually averts his head when passing a mirror. The trick has been noted and commented upon all over Hollywood but Bill Goetz put it most brutally.

"That guy still looks all right in stills," he said, "but you can't retouch a mirror."

CAN IT BE

that La Garbo is unbending? The Swedish star amazed her fellow-workers in "The Painted Veil" by actually participating in a practical joke. Red Golden, assistant director on all the Garbo films, had a birthday and the troupe framed him. After a scene was finished, Director Richard Boleslavsky called for silence and Herbert Marshall approached Golden with a package in his hand. He delivered a presentation speech in the name of the company. Garbo, who usually hurries to her dressing room as soon as she finishes before the camera, remained for the ceremony. Playing it straight, she shook Golden's hand and congratulated him on his birthday.

Everyone insisted that the package be opened and Red, very much fussed, unfastened the wrappings to discover—a bunch of vegetables. La Garbo's laugh rang out as loud as any in the lot.

WILL ROGERS

keeps the laughs rolling right along in his latest picture, "Handy Andy," which opens tonight at the Capital Theatre. Without doubt, it's his funniest picture. Dialogue and situations combine to maintain a steadily mounting crescendo of mirth—just a whirlwind of belly laughs. He keeps the audience in stitches most of the time.

Rogers portrays a druggist who wants to work in peace. But his wife, expertly played by Peggy Wood, nags him to sell out and learn to play. And he does!

There is a clever surprise finish involving Rogers, Miss Wood and the culmination of the diverting romance running through the picture between Rogers' daughter, Mary Carlisle, and Robert Taylor.

JIM FARLEY

got an earful at the Warner luncheon given in his honor. Major Rupert Hughes, in his best form, delivered a satirical warning to the Washington mogul about the wickedness of Hollywood.

"Don't be deceived by the innocent appearance of these people" he urged. "Inside their shoes they have cloven hoofs and under their toupees they conceal horns."

WEARING $100,000

worth of rubies and diamonds, Lupe Velez entertained a small party of guests gathered to celebrate her birthday and in hopes of hearing that the Mexican star had decided to drop her divorce suit against Johnny Weissmuller. While the announcement was not formally made, Lupe whispered the good news to a few people. Johnny said he hopes to move back in a few days. And incidentally, the Velez house is again to ring to the hammers of carpenters. Lupe has decided to tear out another wall and enlarge her play-room.

CARDWELL IS STAR PERFORMER IN CLOSELY CONTESTED EVENTS AT ANNUAL HIAWATHA REGATTA

Chemong Contingent Fails to Gain Money List as in Gore's Landing Program.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Loucks-Gray Battle for Tilting Championship is Feature of Sports.

(By a Staff Reporter)

HIAWATHA, July 26. — Herb Cardwell of Wallace Point proved the star performer of the afternoon as the Hiawatha Aquatic Club staged its annual regatta on the rippling blue waters of Rice Lake yesterday. In a series of stiff battles with a delegation from Chemong led by Art Wood and Drake Jopling and some formidable talent hailing from Alderville and the local Hiawatha district, he made five appearances in the money list.

The Chemong boys and girls, with their numbers up to full strength, battled hard throughout the card but failed to bag the same volume of silverware they secured in their first appearance of the season at Gore's Landing last week. Besides Cardwell, Nels Stanger, Bill Taylor and Mrs. Cardwell, proved stalwart representatives of the Wallace Point Aquatic Association. Pat and Lillian McClellan, Flossie Selby and Ralph Louckes were outstanding local competitors while Frank Gray upheld the reputation of Alderville. In addition to Wood and Drake Jopling, the Chemong group included Ross Pulkinghorn, Doug McPherson and Perry, Ralph, Jack and Phyllis Jopling.

Large Crowd

The regatta was run under the auspices of the Hiawatha Aquatic Club. An efficient body of officials handled the events. Judges were Dr. E. H. Wood of Chemong, Geo. Harlock of Hiawatha and Eddie Wright of Peterborough. Madden Howard acted as starter, Hanlin Howard as announcer and George Paudash as recorder, all three from Rice Lake ports. The sharply-rising shore of the lake forming a perfect grandstand, a gathering of several hundred enjoyed the spectacle.

Perhaps the battle of Ralph Louckes and Frank Gray through to a championship in the tilting event was the feature of the card. With Louckes handling the pole, they first put Nels Stanger and Bill Taylor out of the running after a tough scrap. In the meanwhile, Herb Cardwell and Jack Deyell had succeeded in dashing the hopes of Drake and Jack Jopling by the simple expedient of shoving Jack overboard with one well-placed thrust of the pole. Louckes took a decisive victory over the Deyell combination when Deyell took to the water unexpectedly and a quick victory over Ward Wright and Perry Jopling, who had secured a bye, settled the championship. Second money honors were not decided.

Three Indian guides fought a hard race over a mile course in a canoe event for professionals. Battling neck and neck over every inch of the course, Hiram Taylor and his son Clayborn Taylor from Chemong Lake, finished in a dead heat to split the first and second purses, $10 and $5. Frank Gray finished three-quarters of a length behind. It was one of the finest demonstrations of paddling endurance during the regatta.

Good Battle

The four-men-in-a-canoe was another contest which had the spectators on their toes. Art Wood and three Jopling boys, Ralph, Perry and Drake, managed a victory by little more than a length after a furious quarter-mile paddle in a field of seven. A canoe propelled by the sturdy biceps of Ralph Louckes, Frank Gray, Jim Bigam and Fred Smoke placed second and four Chemong youngsters —Grant Clark, Ross Pulkinghorn, Doug McPherson and Jack Jopling —did a fine job in placing a close third. An upset in the last five yards cheated a crew captained by Herb Cardwell of second money.

Flossie Selby paddled hard to nose Pat McClellan out in the ladies' single canoe event, one of the outstanding clashes of the female side of the list. The victory was gained by a game last-moment spurt. Lillian McClellan took third money and looked good doing it. A gap of a couple of lengths separated her from the other four canoes in the dash.

BERRY FESTIVAL AT FRASERVILLE

Splendid Supper is Followed by Program of Peterboro' Talent.

OVER 200 ATTEND.

(Examiner Correspondence)

FRASERVILLE, JuJly 26.—About two hundred people attended the raspberry festival at the United Church here Tuesday evening. Visiting friends were noticed from Peterborough, Millbrook, Bailieboro, Keene, Springville and Port Hope. The ladies of the church provided a most excellent supper under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid. The weather, which had been threatening rain all day, was fine and clear so that the nicely decorated tables on the church lawn with busy boys and girls as waiters made a very attractive scene. A refreshment booth where ice cream, soft drinks and hot dogs were dispensed by Mary Wood, Mildred Moncrief, Mrs. Moffatt and Melville Wood was well patronized throughout the evening.

After the supper the church was well filled to hear a program under the leadership of Mr. Henry Turner of Peterborough supported by friends from St. James United Church. The program consisted of piano selections by Miss A. Rose who was also pianist for the evening, an exhibition of club swinging by M. Dryadale, cartoon sketches and ventriloquism by Mr. Lewis, a humorous sketch entitled 'Oysters' by Messrs Drysdale and R. Kitchen and solos by Mr. Sid Turner and Mr. Henry Turner. Every number was well rendered and heartily encored.

A hearty vote of thanks to the visitors was moved by Mr. Arthur Wood and seconded by Mr. Robert Delaheye and carried with enthusiasm. The financial returns were about $50.

TRESPASSING
A local subscriber telephoned The Examiner this morning and requested that a notice be published warning parents to see that their children are not treapassing on other peoples' property. "They tramp through gardens and, in some cases, steal fruit, not only on my property but all through my neighborhood. Police action will be taken if this is not stopped," he stated.

DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF ACCIDENT
Served by the local detachment of the provincial police with a summons charging that he failed to return to the scene of an accident Thomas Padgett of Sundridge this morning swore a declaration before Magistrate Langley denying any knowledgeof the incident in which his car is alleged to have figured.

According to the information laid by a Toronto woman motorist she was forced off Highway 11 near Gravenhurst on July 8 last by an automobile identified according to the license number furnished police as belonging to Padgett.

While admitting that he was travelling from his home back to Haultain where he is engaged in constructing a bridge, on the day in question, Padgett denies any knowledge of an accident in which his car was involved.

HEPBURN TURNS HIS SPOTLIGHT UPON ARCHIVES

Will Either Close Them or Bring Department up to Standard.

MUM ON FINANCES.

Period of Cheaper Money Near—Will Cease Movie Production.

TORONTO, July 26.—(C.P.)—The question of the continuance of the Ontario government archives will be discussed at Ottawa when Premier Mitchell Hepburn meets Prime Minister R. B. Bennett next week. Mr. Hepburn believes the archives are to a large extent a duplication of the Dominion government archives on a smaller scale and thinks they should either be expanded or done away with.

If a suitable arrangement could be made whereby historcal records and documents of Ontario can be taken care of at Ottawa the provincial archieves might be done away with. The alternative is spending more money to bring them up to a proper standard.

In its drive for economy the new Ontario administration does not propose to spend money on work of mediocre character. A somewhat similar situation to the archives prevails in connection with the motion picture bureau. Mr. Hepburn said to-day the province would go out of the production end of motion picture activity. It did not have the technical equipment to produce good pictures and it was not worth while spending money on second rate pictures.

The province may continue to distribute pictures for tourist publicity and other purposes when suitable films can be obtained.

Retire King's Printer
The Archives will be the next department the government will overhaul. It will then give its attention to the King's Printer's office and Premier Hepburn remarked the present King's Printer, Herbert H. Ball, was eligible for superannuation. He had been informed, he said, a substantial saving could be effected in this office. After that the treasury department will be reviewed. The government is continuing its survey of the financial affairs of Ontario but Mr. Hepburn would not discuss them.

"We don't want to get the people alarmed," he said. "we have a heavy debt but we have great resources, and substantial revenues. We are sitting back waiting and money is getting cheaper. People with money to lend have ample confidence in the soundness of Ontario's credit, particularly now that a Liberal Government is in office."

Ontario bonds should be sold at par at all times, said Mr. Hepburn. The last two bond issues were sold below par and were now selling much above par. This indicated they had been sold away out of line with the bond market.

"We are going into a period of cheaper and cheaper money" said the Premier, adding the province was in no hurry to float a bond issue.

The premier has obtained a list of all permanent employees appointed since November, 1933, when the first four years of the former government's term of office expired, and whose appointments he refuses to honor. They will all be dismissed by a general order-in-council but the ministers are being supplied with the names of those affected in their departments so that if they wish to re-employ any of them they may.

All former Conservative candidates and members recently appointed, however are "out to stay" declared Mr. Hepburn.

Magistrate's Court

Harold Sherwin, 19, of Harwood, this morning appeared on remand and was sentenced by Magistrate C. A. Langley, K.C., to one year's imprisonment in the Ontario Reformatory on each of two charges to which he had formerly pleaded guilty. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Arrested by Provincial Police at Napanee recently the youth admitted theft of an automobie here on the night of July 6, and the subsequent breaking and entering of Alex Graham's service station on Highway 7 in Otonabee Township.

This morning his counsel, E. F. Sheehy, urging leniency, suggested that suspended sentence would meet the ends of justice. While this course was not strongly opposed by Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., he stated that he was more inclined to the view of His Worship that the case warranted stricter measures.

The youth, it is understood, faces a further charge at Cobourg relating to theft of a bicycle which he is alleged to have sold in Peterborough for $18.

Imposing sentence His Worship intimated that in the event of early application for parole being made on behalf of the accused, he would be pleased to support any such application. Mr. Kerr also suggested that he would give support to application for parole.

Four transient inebriates occupied the dock. Each was fined $10 and $6.50 costs or in default ten days' imprisonment.

Donald Moore and Patrick Rooney were found intoxicated yesterday on Murray street. According to Inspector James Reid the two men were sleeping. They had a partly consumed bottle of wine for company.

Before the Magistrate could read the charge over to Rooney defendant frankly admitted, "I was drunk Your Worship. Banish me from Peterborough."

Fred King, pleading guilty to being intoxicated on Burnham street, vainly urged that he was on his way to get a job he had secured in London, while John McLeod, admitting he was drunk early this morning on George street, declined to say anything further.

Bearing minor cuts and scratches on his face, Charlie Taylor, 37, an Indian from Curve Lake Reserve, answered to a charge of being intoxicated in a public place and upon pleading guilty was fined $10 and $9.50 costs or in default 10 days' imprisonment.

Constable Sam Taylor from the Reserve arrested his namesake when he created a disturbance at the weekly public dance held at Curve Lake Town Hall last evening." Defendant was raising trouble. He was quite drunk," the Constable told the court.

Six Firemen Attend Funerals In Toronto

With the permission of Mayor Roland Denne and Alderman Malcolm McIntyre, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, six members of the Peterborough Fire Department attended the funeral of the three Toronto tanker fire victims in Toronto to-day. The men were Assistant Chief George Smith, Archie McDonald, Stewart Foster, Victor Barrie, James MacFarlane and Joseph Finney.

The group joined with similar delegations from many other fire departments of the province in paying a final tribute to the three gallant members of their brotherhood.

Ambarvalia originally was a religious procession round the land of the early Roman community, whose purpose was to purge the crops from evil influences.

DOLLFUSS' DYING WORDS WERE FOR WIFE, CHILDREN

"Gamecock Chancellor" Denied Doctor or Priest in Last Minutes.

SHOT AT CLOSE RANGE.

Office Boy Witnesses Murder as Dozen Armed Nazi Rush In.

VIENNA, July 26 (A.P.). — The dying words of Engelbert Dollfuss, "Gamecock Chancellor," were for his wife and children.

And Dollfuss, a staunch Catholic, died without the fulfillment of his final wish—a priest.

A graphic account of the little Dictator's end at the hands of 300 Nazi enemies was given by Herr Adan, new Austrian propaganda chief. Dollfuss was in a corridor of the Chancellory Building when he heard the plotters, Adan said.

"He went into his own office from there," the official continued, 'where an office boy followed him and urged him to flee into the building of the State Archives adjoining the Chancellory. The Chancellor agreed to this proposal.

"On his way to the office of the Federal President he had to pass the so-called Congress Hall which also has a door leading to the corridors.

"As he entered the Congress Hall the door was broken in by the Putchists, a group of 10 or 12 followed their leader into the room, rushing with drawn pistols upon the Chancellor.

"Two shots were fired at close range. One shot hit Dollfuss in the throat and the other below the shoulder.

"To defend himself the Chancellor raised both hands against his face, turned a little sidewise, and dropped backwards to the floor.

"He called out twice in a faint voice, "Help! Help!" and then was silent.

Lad Taken From Room
"The office boy, who witnessed the shooting, believed the Chancellor was dead. The lad was led from the room and Dollfuss remained with those who shot him.

"After a short time Minister Fey (Emil Fey, former Vice Chancellor), was called by the Putchists.

"The Chancellor was lying on a couch, his head covered with cloth, and few saw the blood-soaked first aid bandage with which he had been wrapped.

"In a weak, but still determined voice, the chancellor bade Fey to take care of his wife and children."

Adan said, "We do not yet know at exactly what hour our Chancellor gave up his soul, but we know that he was without medical assistance and also that his request for a last sacrament in his hour of death remained unfulfilled."

A priest was denied Dollfuss, Adan related, but when his body was put on a bier a crucifix and two candles were placed at his head. Four soldiers stood guard over the body.

"We are going into a period of cheaper and cheaper money" said the Premier, adding the province was in no hurry to float a bond issue.

The premier has obtained a list of all permanent employees appointed since November, 1933, when the first four years of the former government's term of office expired, and whose appointments he refuses to honor. They will all be dismissed by a general order-in-council but the ministers are being supplied with the names of those affected in their departments so that if they wish to re-employ any of them they may.

All former Conservative candidates and members recently appointed, however are "out to stay" declared Mr. Hepburn.

Magistrate's Court

Harold Sherwin, 19, of Harwood, this morning appeared on remand and was sentenced by Magistrate C. A. Langley, K.C., to one year's imprisonment in the Ontario Reformatory on each of two charges to which he had formerly pleaded guilty. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Arrested by Provincial Police at Napanee recently the youth admitted theft of an automobile here on the night of July 6, and the subsequent breaking and entering of Alex Graham's service station on Highway 7 in Otonabee Township.

This morning his counsel, E. F. Sheehy, urging leniency, suggested that suspended sentence would meet the ends of justice. While this course was not strongly opposed by Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., he stated that he was more inclined to the view of His Worship that the case warranted stricter measures.

The youth, it is understood, faces a further charge at Cobourg relating to theft of a bicycle which he is alleged to have sold in Peterborough for $18.

Imposing sentence His Worship intimated that in the event of early application for parole being made on behalf of the accused, he would be pleased to support any such application. Mr. Kerr also suggested that he would give support to application for parole.

Four transient inebriates occupied the dock. Each was fined $10 and $4.50 costs or in default ten days' imprisonment.

Donald Moore and Patrick Rooney were found intoxicated yesterday on Murray street. According to Inspector James Reid the two men were sleeping. They had a partly consumed bottle of wine for company.

Before the Magistrate could read the charge over to Rooney defendant frankly admitted, "I was drunk Your Worship. Banish me from Peterborough."

Fred King, pleading guilty to being intoxicated on Burnham street, vainly urged that he was on his way to get a job he had secured in London, while John McLeod, admitting he was drunk early this morning on George street, declined to say anything further.

Bearing minor cuts and scratches on his face, Charlie Taylor, 27, an Indian from Curve Lake Reserve, answered to a charge of being intoxicated in a public place and upon pleading guilty was fined $10 and $9.50 costs or in default 10 days' imprisonment.

Constable Sam Taylor from the Reserve arrested his namesake when he created a disturbance at the weekly public dance held at Curve Lake Town Hall last evening. "Defendant was raising trouble. He was quite drunk," the Constable told the court.

Six Firemen Attend Funerals In Toronto

With the permission of Mayor Roland Denne and Alderman Malcolm McIntyre, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, six members of the Peterborough Fire Department attended the funeral of the three Toronto tanker fire victims in Toronto to-day. The men were Assistant Chief George Smith, Archie McDonald, Stewart Foster, Victor Barrie, James MacFarlane and Joseph Finney.

The group joined with similar delegations from many other fire departments of the province in paying a final tribute to the three gallant members of their brotherhood.

DOLLFUSS' DYING WORDS WERE FOR WIFE, CHILDREN

"Gamecock Chancellor" Denied Doctor or Priest in Last Minutes.

SHOT AT CLOSE RANGE.

Office Boy Witnesses Murder as Dozen Armed Nazi Rush In.

VIENNA, July 26 (A.P.). — The dying words of Engelbert Dollfuss, "Gamecock Chancellor," were for his wife and children.

And Dollfuss, a staunch Catholic, died without the fulfillment of his final wish—a priest.

A graphic account of the little Dictator's end at the hands of 300 Nazi enemies was given by Herr Adan, new Austrian propaganda chief. Dollfuss was in a corridor of the Chancellory Building when he heard the plotters, Adan said.

"He went into his own office from there," the official continued, 'where an office boy followed him and urged him to flee into the building of the State Archives adjoining the Chancellory. The Chancellor agreed to this proposal.

"On his way to the office of the Federal President he had to pass the so-called Congress Hall which also has a door leading to the corridors.

"As he entered the Congress Hall the door was broken in by the Putchists, a group of 10 or 12 followed their leader into the room, rushing with drawn pistols upon the Chancellor.

"Two shots were fired at close range. One shot hit Dollfuss in the throat and the other below the shoulder.

"To defend himself the Chancellor raised both hands against his face, turned a little sidewise, and dropped backwards to the floor.

"He called out twice in a faint voice, "Help! Help!" and then was silent.

Lad Taken From Room

"The office boy, who witnessed the shooting, believed the Chancellor was dead. The lad was led from the room and Dollfuss remained with those who shot him.

"After a short time Minister Fey (Emil Fey, former Vice Chancellor), was called by the Putchists.

"The Chancellor was lying on a couch, his head covered with cloth, and few saw the blood-soaked first aid bandage with which he had been wrapped.

"In a weak, but still determined voice, the Chancellor bade Fey to take care of his wife and children."

Adan said, "We do not yet know at exactly what hour our Chancellor gave up his soul, but we know that he was without medical assistance and also that his request for a last sacrament in his hour of death remained unfulfilled."

A priest was denied Dollfuss, Adan related, but when his body was put on a bier a crucifix and two candles were placed at his head. Four soldiers stood guard over the body.

"I'VE FOUND THERE'S NOTHING LIKE OLD DUTCH FOR CLEANING PORCELAIN AND ENAMEL BECAUSE IT POLISHES AS IT CLEANS."

"YOU'RE RIGHT, AND IT'S JUST AS GOOD FOR FLOORS, WOODWORK OR PAINTED WALLS—IN FACT, FOR ANY SURFACE ON WHICH WATER MAY BE USED."

There's a reason behind these facts—

OLD DUTCH is made with pure "SEISMOTITE"

"Seismotite" (pronounced sis-'mo-tite) is a matchless cleaning and polishing material of volcanic origin. It cleans quicker, cleans more things and doesn't scratch. Seismotite particles are very fine. They cover more surface because they are flaky and flat-shaped, like this . That's why Old Dutch goes further and does more cleaning per penny of cost. Avoid cleansers containing harsh, chunky grit .

Old Dutch polishes as it cleans fine porcelain and enamel, and is ideal for any surface on which water may be used. It's kind to the hands, doesn't clog drains, is odorless and removes odors—the only cleanser you need.

Buy a package of Old Dutch and test it thoroughly against any other cleanser.

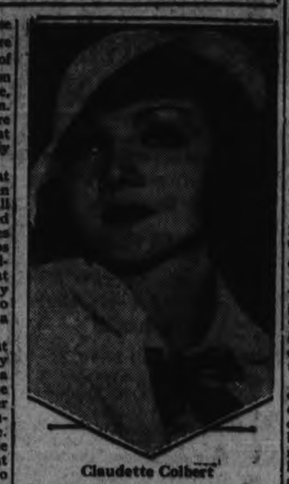
Claudette Has Lovely Complexion And Takes Excellent Care Of It

The lovely Claudette Colbert, whose beautiful orbs and shapely limbs are among the most perfect in the whole of Hollywood, seldom wins recognition for her flawless complexion. Claudette, however, really has a beautiful skin. And she always takes excellent care of her complexion, for she knows that a lovely skin can make even an ugly duckling seem beautiful.

Claudette, however, claims that most gals look simply awful when awake in the morning. They're all covered with cold cream and as greased up as a channel swimmer. Their eyes seem dull and unattractive. Their lips are pallid and colorless. And, according to Claudette, it's no wonder that men often get divorces. For it certainly must be rather shocking for a man to see the gal of his dreams in such a condition.

Claudette maintains, however, that it's very easy to avoid any such early morning unloveliness. Naturally, a girl can't wear make-up to bed, if she has any respect for the texture of her complexion. But she might advantageously practice Claudette's routine. Claudette says that the first thing she does when she awakens is to dash out to the refrigerator and help herself to a couple of ice cubes. These she deposits in her washbowl, and while they are melting she cleanses her skin thoroughly with a pure cleansing cream. She then wipes her face thoroughly with cleansing tissues, using an upward motion. She begins at the base of her neck, very sensibly, and works up to her forehead.

By the time the skin cleansing is completed, the ice generally is melted, and Claudette then utilizes the cool water in spray formation. She uses an ordinary spray, or just her hands, and dashes the cool water over her face, neck and shoulders until her skin actually glows. Then she applies her make-up in her usual fashion—and when the entire process is completed,



Claudette Colbert

Claudette's skin looks as fresh and smooth as a gardenia petal.

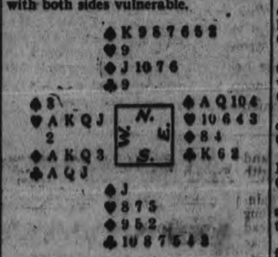
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

PITIFUL STRATEGY.

A sound rule is to help partner at least once, when able to do so, rather than double opponents for a comparatively small penalty. The hostess of one of New York's best known card clubs reported the pitiful strategy displayed by East on the hand below, with both sides vulnerable.



Bidding went: West, 2-hearts; North 2-spades, scenting a probable adverse slam and willing to be left in if doubled, but hoping that his bid might at least put a stop to a grand slam call, even if it could not stave off a small slam contract. Of course East should have first supported hearts, later on doubling any rebid of spades, if made, but she doubled the 2-spades. West was not prepared to state that she held a certain game against opponents. The double might yield an enormous penalty, so she passed, thereby surrendering a grand slam at hearts, with 100 honors, worth a total of 3,060 points.

The opening lead was the 3 of hearts, which was held by West's J. North ruffed the second heart led, and led a low trump, which East passed. Dummy won the trick. A low diamond was led. West's Q won. North ruffed a heart and again led a diamond, putting up dummy's 9 and losing to the K. When a fourth round of hearts was led the declarer discarded his singleton club. East's last heart fell. West led her last heart. North ruffed. East discarded her lowest club. Now North and East each held 3 trumps.

The declarer led the J of diamonds. It was the ninth trick. East knew that her partner held the Ace of the suit, so East let go the guard to her K of clubs and West won the trick.

West led her ace of clubs. North ruffed. East's K of clubs fell. When North led his last diamond East had to ruff with the 10. Then she had to lead from her A-Q of spades, up to North's K-9, giving the declarer the last trick of the hand.

Dummy won the first trump trick. North ruffed four times and won the last trick with his K of spades, giving him six trump tricks, and setting his contract only two tricks. Playing 2-spades doubled, when vulnerable, cost North only 500 points, instead of 3,060 points for an adverse grand slam. Pitiful strategy is a mild term to apply to East's act.

JUDGING CLASS HAS FEW ENTRANTS

Miss Edith Hopkins Supervises Class Held at Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, July 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—Miss Edith Hopkins, supervisor of Junior Institutes was the instructress for the coaching class in connection with the annual girls' judging competition held in the town hall on Friday afternoon, the only unfortunate feature locally being the small number of girls in attendance. Holidays, and intervening events, apparently accounted for the few taking advantage of this splendid educational opportunity.

A new departure this season is the 'meat identification' in the competition a large colored chart, showing the various cuts of the animal, being studied, smaller cards with individual cuts being then held up from which the girls are required to do their judging, naming, stating which are the choice sections, giving reasons, and other details. Nutrition which includes judging of family menus; kitchen plans, a dress parade with four models and darning a hole about as large as a ten-cent piece, in a space one and one-half inches round, completed the list on which coaching was given.

The final judging competition will not be held this year until October 12, but the two high girls of last season have the privilege, if they so desire, of taking part in the inter-county team demonstration on good dressing at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition next month. The points on which decisions are made include suitability to person, general effectiveness, style and color.

Miss Hopkins' coaching classes in East Durham are at four points, Canson, Bethany, Millbrook and Mount Pleasant; in West Durham at three centres, Solina, Nestleton and Newcastle. So the work grows, as Miss Hopkins and other specialists associated wish her in the Institutes Branch of the Department of Agriculture, help to promote special lines of homemaking study, and develop a general educational movement along various worthwhile lines.

LOCAL BUSINESS SHOWS EXPANSION

Uptown Silk Shoppe Expresses Thanks in Big Bargain-Giving Sale.

In observing his fourth business anniversary in Peterborough, Mr. R. A. Grafstein of the Uptown Silk Shoppe, George street, says he can take pleasure in looking back upon four years of trade expansion far exceeding his most sanguine expectations. He attributes his gratifying business success largely to an expert knowledge of buying acquired in having, prior to locating here from Toronto, purchased for several stores in Ontario province. And, when buying his very best efforts are at all times exercised that patrons may find in his store what they want in season, and at prices as low as good quality will permit. But he wants it distinctly understood that no "merchandise" sees a birthday on his premises, as his policy is to, rather than carry over any line of goods from one season to another, to let it go at prices that represent a sacrifice in his customers' favor.

Tangible Appreciation.

As customary in business anniversaries, this birthday observance at Uptown Silk Shoppe takes the shape of a sale at which Mr. Grafstein expresses his gratitude for generous public patronage the past year by offering the best grades of dress fabrics, undies, neat the skin wear, ladies' swim suits, purses, knit goods—in fact all ladies' dress accessories—at such substantial price reductions that purchase will carry with them values far excelling those obtainable at any other time of the year. These bargains, Mr. Grafstein gives the assurance, will be coupled with savings that are astounding in the truest sense of the term.

Sale Starts Friday.

This big selling event starts tomorrow, Friday, and will continue for thirteen days; and preparations and price marking down indicate a bargain festival indeed at which Uptown Silk Shoppe regular merchandise is priced without thought for either profit or loss.

Popular Astronomy

THE MOON

BY H. W. L. MAHOOD

Usually craters are not lofty. Earth craters do not rise to great heights. Moon craters do. This is rather surprising. The Moon is so much smaller than the Earth. Its diameter is a little more than one-fourth. The length is 2163 miles. The Earth is none too large to form a solid basis for Mt. McKinley which rises 20,464 feet in height. Mt. McKinley, Alaska, is the highest peak in North America.

Now take a look at Mt. Everest the giant of the Himalayas, looming up to a height of 29,000 feet. The sight is sublime. To climb up its rugged front and to view the picturesque and far running scene is enchantment.

But hold your breath, as with an ordinary hand telescope, a look is directed to the extreme southern edge of the Moon disk, at the Leibnits Mountains. Several peaks are 30,000 feet in height. One of the peaks is 36,000. The weight of the mountain ranges can be figured. There are forty-five mountains on the Moon loftier than Mt. McKinley. After figuring the weight of one of these mountains then estimate the strength of the foundation to bear the structure.

The names of the other prominent mountain ranges on the Moon are arresting. They suggest a study of the meaning of the names and why given. Among them are the Appenines, the Alps, the Doerfel, the Carpathians, the Caucasus. The Appenines are four hundred miles in length. You can trace the direction in a north-west and a south-east line bordering the Mare Imbrium. During the first quarter of the Moon phase the sight is a blend of the majestic and brilliant. When the Moon is in the full the Appenine range can be seen with the naked eye It is the nose of the "Old Lady in the Moon." She has a longer nose than any man that ever lived.

Farmer Found Shot Out Berry Picking

Immediately prior to his death, Schulist had descended from the buggy in which he was riding, taking a rifle with him. He disappeared into the surrounding bush and soon afterwards those who had been with him heard a shot. Rushing to the spot, they found Schulist dead. A bullet had entered below the chin and emerged at the back of his head.

A delightful model is this one pictured carried out in thin chiffon cotton voile print.

You'll note it has the cool caped shoulders, so modish. The narrow sash tied in a bow gives emphasis to the slimming surplice bodice.

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Prickly heat is known medically as "miliaria."

The little red spots of irritation or itching which forms at the mouths of the sweat glands were supposed to be due to the irritation of the perspiration on the sensitive skin, but we recently have had a somewhat different explanation of the cause.

The question is, why the perspiration should be irritating in hot weather, and not so irritating when it occurs in a heated house in the winter, or on a warm day in spring or fall. Of course, it might be said that the perspiration is excessive in summer, and macerates the skin and makes it more delicate and, hence, more susceptible to this form of irritation.

Another feature of the condition, which was not explained on the basis above mentioned, was the predilection of prickly heat for certain skin areas, as under the arms, under folds of skin, and under the breasts in fat people, etc.

I mentioned a few weeks ago—but it will bear repeating—that this has attracted the attention of a physician, who found that perspiration normally contains a small amount of sugar, and that the perspiration from the places mentioned has rather a higher percentage of sugar than any place else. Perspiration of this character is a good culture medium for sugar-loving yeast organisms, and it is the growth of these which produces the irritation of the skin. Inasmuch as they are more likely to be on hand in the summer than in the winter, this explains the fact that prickly heat occurs more often in warm weather.

Medical advice on the treatment of prickly heat always has emphasized the fact that a mild antiseptic, such as boric acid, salicylic acid, or alcohol, will help this condition. Nobody knew the explanation, but if the theory I have just outlined is true, the explanation is at hand, because the antiseptic solutions keep off the sugar-loving yeast organisms.

Perhaps even better than any of the dusting powders or lotions that have been used for the condition is phenylmercuric nitrate ointment, which was mentioned as a remedy for ringworm in the article yesterday.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

H. C. N.: "Can you tell me what to do for feet that perspire in such an obnoxious manner as to be a hardship for the family when the owner removes his shoes?"

Answer: Bathing the feet night and morning in a solution of weak formalin (10 or 20 per cent. formalin solution in water) is often helpful. Alum powder, a teaspoon to a pint of water, is another good bath. A dusting powder, such as Squibb's Surgical Powder (phenol 1, camphor 3, and alum 96 parts) dusted inside the shoes, often is helpful.

MENU HINTS

Chicken Roll
Buttered Green Beans
Lettuce With Peanut Butter Dressing
Beaten Biscuits Cheese
Berries Coffee

The beaten biscuits are served with the cheese and berries for dessert. They may be even baking while the rest of the dinner is being served. This menu is simplified for summer, and it would serve as a luncheon or Sunday night supper menu, leaving the beans out of the latter meal.

Today's Recipes

Chicken Roll—One and one-half cups ground cooked chicken, one tablespoon minced onion, one tablespoon minced pimento, one-eighth teaspoon paprika, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup chicken gravy, two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, six tablespoons lard, three-fourths cup milk. Combine first three ingredients and season with next two. Moisten with gravy. Make a soft dough of remaining ingredients and roll out in oblong sheet one-third-inch thick. Spread with chicken mixture and roll like jelly roll. Place roll on baking sheet and bake in hot oven, 450 degrees, 25 minutes or until brown. Serve in slices with hot chicken gravy. Serves four.

* * *

Peanut Butter Salad Dressing—Four tablespoons peanut butter, one-half teaspoon salt, cayenne pepper, vinegar, sweet or sour cream, one teaspoon sugar, one-fourth teaspoon mustard. Mix all ingredients together, add vinegar and cream slowly until the consistency of mayonnaise.

* * *

Beaten Biscuit—Three pints cake flour, one-fourth pound lard, two teaspoons salt, ice water. Sift the flour and measure. Work in the lard and salt, add enough ice water to make a stiff dough. Beat the dough with a club for twenty-five minutes. Make in small biscuits and bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees, until done.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Peaches a la Creme

Six peaches, fresh or canned; two eggs, one cup sugar, one and one-half cups milk, one-half teaspoon almond extract. Peel and quarter peaches, or drain if canned. Into yolks of eggs beat two-thirds cup sugar and milk. Pour this mixture over peaches in a baking dish, set in pan of hot water and bake until firm, like custard. Make a meringue of the egg whites and the other third-cup of sugar, with the almond extract. Spread over peaches and brown in very slow oven.

Non-sticking Cakes

To prevent cake from sticking to the tins after baking, grase the tins with unsalted fat and then dust lightly with flour. Shake out all flour that has not stuck to the grease and pour in the batter. The cake will come out beautifully clear.

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Blue is a color which can be used in decoration, with reservations, it is true, since it is so cold a color, but it is not alone in decoration that it is valuable. The quality of the color makes it particularly suited to certain practical purposes. It has a tendency to preserve the whiteness of articles kept next it or surrounded by it. This is a fact that was recognised by old-time homemakers, but which seems to have been somewhat overlooked by women of today. Just now there is a return to this color for practical uses.

* * * * * *

Use blue tissue paper, to wrap around laces to prevent them turning creamy white instead of their original pure white, or dead white as the untinged color is called. What is known as sky blue or baby blue is the preferred hue of blue for this purpose. Linens that are laid away, either as heirlooms, or awaiting the return of the style of the particular pieces, such as large white damask tablecloths will not be nearly so apt to get the creamy tint if wrapped around in blue paper.

* * * * * *

White ribbons and silk pieces are also benefitted by being kept in blue-paper lined pasteboard boxes. When white shawls were in fashion, the women of that day were punctilious to keep them folded in light blue paper, and placed in pasteboard boxes where there would be no pressure on the folded beauty of the choice shawls. This suggests how to preserve the pristine color of white silk Spanish shawls or Spanish or other kinds of white lace shawls.

* * * * * *

Today the fashion for using blue to keep white silks and laces linens and fine white textiles, from changing color has taken a new turn, or we may say has reverted to a very old-time method. Then inside surfaces of bureau drawers are being painted blue. Whatever the white contents, its whiteness will be helped to keep its right tint by the action of the blue on the goods. Sometimes the surfaces are a delicate sky blue, and again they are darker, but the former is generally preferred. It has a daintiness which is lacking in the heavier blue tones. Chests of drawers for linens, and shelves of linen closets are painted sky blue. It is a style with a reason and one which homemakers do well to follow.

MADRIGALS TO SING VARSITY STADIUM

Concert is for the Benefit of Unemployed Musicians.

"The Madrigal Singers" has added one more honor to their extent record. This beautiful choir, under the leadership of Dorothy Allan Park, has brought a great deal of the right kind of publicity to Peterborough, and on August 2 will sing to the largest audience it has ever faced, in the largest building it has ever sung in.

Reginald Stewart, who is conducting the very successful series of summer symphony concerts in the Varsity Stadium, asked Mrs. Park if "The Madrigal Singers" would assist at the concert to be held on Thursday, August 2. The singers are widely scattered at the moment and it speaks well for the fine enthusiasm of these choristers that they have pledged themselves, almost without exception, to come back for three rehearsals, and the performance. The concerts are for the benefit of unemployed musicians, and "The Madrigal Singers" are giving their services to this worthy object, receiving only their bare expenses. The series is being attended by between three and four thousand people.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

FIRST REPORTS of the Rockingham fire stated there was only one horse destroyed but later news reveals the fact that six equines were lost including Little Stokes and Arrowswift, two of our specials. The latter was performing at our tracks early this year under the colors of Lloyd Gentry. Old Depot was another well known thoroughbred that succumbed with the rest. Pat Remillard, the veteran jockey is performing in great style this year. On two different occasions since the opening of Stamford he has ridden three winners in one afternoon. Old Dude Feden is slipping over a long shot every now and then to let the fans know he is still around, while over at Arlington Park.

Johnny Westrope last year's sensation is hitting his real stride again and booting home two or three winners each afternoon. King's Park twilight meeting is going along in very good style and Tom Clarke's work at the starting gate is very satisfactory. The condition books are out for the second Hamilton meeting which opens one week from Saturday. This is the first leg on the second round of the C.B.A. wheel. Harry Giddings has decided not to ship Horometer to Saratoga after all, and is going to rely on four two-year-olds which he thinks will do some business. They will pay nice prices if successful in getting down in front.

THE GRAND Circuit trotting meet closed yesterday at Thorncliffe and Toronto is still classed as a real good running horse town. While fair crowds turned out for the trotters and pacers most of the attendance came from small places adjacent to Toronto. The Queen City is regarded as one of the best cities on the continent for the runners, but they never go for any other form of horse racing. Scotty McArthur, the track superintendent at Thorncliffe will be the busiest man in four counties for the next few weeks putting the cushion back on the track as it had to be scraped off to allow the trotters to show their best form, but by the time September comes around he will likely have it OK again.

Rockingham closes on Saturday and a lot from there will go direct to Saratoga, and from this bunch many a winner will come. It is also expected that the long looked for meeting between C. V. Whitney's famous Equipoise, and Mrs Sloan's Cavalcade will take place. This sure will be the battle of the century. Quite a number of the experts are calling Cavalcade to win but we like the chances of Equipoise, taking everything into consideration, such as age, weight, distance, etc. It will attract quite a crowd to Saratoga as fans from all over America will want to witness this classic. We also have an idea that Jim Badame may ship Khorasan up to this place and if he does don't let him run light.

Tigers' American Lead Reduced to One Game

SYRACUSE COPS DOUBLE-HEADER 2-1 AND 6 TO 5

Senators Take Two Games From Buffalo Bisons 5 to 1 and 3-2.

FLOODLIGHT CONTESTS.

Effective Hurling Wins For Bears as Wings Drop Second Straight.

(By Associated Press.)

By a slow process of borrowing and building, Albany Senators, a second division club through the first half of the International League season, have risen to the place where they are a threat to the three clubs which have had the pennant race almost to themselves.

Starting the season with almost nothing, Albany secured players from a half-dozen major league clubs, and finally has built up an organization that moved into the first division and has remained on top in a keen struggle with Montreal Royals for fourth place.

The Senators proved their worth yesterday when they halted the clouting Buffalo Bisons twice on a pair of pitching performances by Bill Harris and Ed Chapman to win a twilight-night doubleheader 5-1 and 3-2. Between them the Albany flingers allowed only 13 hits, while the Senators made excellent use of a few more.

Gain on Wings.

The result not only placed Albany a full game ahead of the Royals, whose floodlight contest with the cellar-dwelling Baltimore Orioles was rained out, but cut the Senators' distance behind the third-place Rochester Red Wings to 5½ games.

The league-leading Newark Bears, gaining some measure of revenge for the beatings they took at Rochester last week, trimmed the Red Wings for the second time, 4-1, as Marvin Duke and Frank Markosk go together to pitch a four-hit game. Duke was forced out in the seventh because of the heat. Vince Barton and Jesse Hill backed up the flingers with home run, Barton's being his 23rd of the season, while Buster Mills' circuit drive was the only Rochester tally.

Two injuries marked the day's big games. The Albany catcher was hit on the head by one of Frank Pearce's pitches in the first game, and was taken to a hospital for observation, while Dale Alexander, the Newark first sacker, pulled a leg tendon and had to retire.

Fall to Chiefs.

The second-place Toronto Leafs suffered an even more serious setback than Rochester when they succumbed to the humble Syracuse Chiefs in both ends of a night bargain bill, 2-1 and 6-5. The Chiefs had to go overtime in both contests, winning the opener in the eighth when Eddie Cihocki tripled and scored on Ed Taylor's single and the afterpiece in the 13th after Toronto had tied the count with a three-run burst in the ninth. Cihocki again provided the winning punch, driving home Maruska with a single.

Oshawa Dukes Here Saturday Afternoon

Oshawa Dukes play the Petes at three o'clock Saturday afternoon in Riverside Park. Regardless of how the locals go in Belleville tomorrow evening, this Saturday fixture will have a real bearing on the C.O.B.I. standing. The Petes will be under pressure with two tough games on succeeding nights but may come through and cop both of them. The Dukes have appeared here twice before this summer with the Petes losing the first and winning the second one. The Lee crew needs every game now that Belleville has hit its winning stride and is fighting hard for the top rung, the Nats being perhaps the most dangerous team in the loop at present.

Knox or Wills will likely get the Oshawa pitching assignment here, with Bill Calladine the probable starting flinger for the Petes. The homesters lost two heart-breakers here in a row to the Nationals and will try hard to get back in the fans' confidence by knocking off the Dukes this week end. With Doc Rowden back on the latter lineup, along with Red Hollingsworth and Moose Mathews, the Motor City team is going to be mighty tough opposition. It is doubtful if Les Burton will be ready to return to his spot in left field till next week.

Homers by Lazzeri and Byrd Lead New Yorkers to Victory Over St. Louis.

INDIANS HUMBLE MACKS.

Braves Take Pair From Lowly Reds in Only National League Games.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

Unless there is a sudden change in the luck of the American League clubs, the 1934 campaign may become known as the hospital season" of big league baseball.

Starting with the pre-season mishap in which Rabbit Maranville broke his leg, there has been a steady trail of injuries through both major league circuits. Much of Washington's decline can be attributed to various injuries; there are difficulties such as those which have kept Lefty Grove from pitching his usual brand of ball for the Red Sox and now comes Earl Combs' crash into a St. Louis fence which has cost the Yankees the services of their fleet outfielder and left them in a precarious position as regards to the pennant race.

The Yanks refused to be dismayed by the loss of Combs and promptly stepped out yesterday to defeat the Browns 5-4 and reduced Detroit's lead to a single game when the Red Sox bludgeoned out a 9-7 decision over the Tigers. But the game only served to emphasize the plight of the New York club, which is already seeking another player to replace Combs.

Babe Ruth, still bothered by the leg injury he suffered in Cleveland and at the best only a part-time player, had to step into action. Then Ben Chapman was forced out by a recurrence of the charley horse which has troubled him. Dixie Walker, one of the few outfield reserves, is troubled by a weak arm. It was Sam Byrd, leader of the Yanks' yesterday's argument. He plastered Ed Wells, a former Yank, for a home run with two aboard in the sixth to provide the winning run.

Detroit made on big bid for victory by landing on Wes Ferrell with both feet in the second inning to score six runs and tie the count after Boston had pummeled Eldon Walker around in the first two frames. The Tigers went ahead in the fifth but failed to survive the Red Sox closing drive when Roy Johnson doubled off Schoolboy Rowe in the ninth to send home the winning run and Charley Gehringer's error let another tally count.

Down in third place Cleveland's Indians assaulted four Philadelphia throwers to overcome an early lead and defeat the Athletics 8-3 for their eighth victory in their last 10 games. The last-place Chicago White Sox added to Washington's woes when George Earnshaw blanked the Senators 4-0 with a seven-hit performance that brought the Hose their first regulation shutout of the season.

A rainy day along the eastern seaboard wiped out most of the National League program but gave Boston Braves a chance to consolidate their hold on fourth place, going a game ahead of Pittsburgh with a double victory over Cincinnati. Pink Whitney's homer gave them a 2-1 victory in the opener although they got only five hits off Si Johnson, then Marty McManus hit for the circuit with the bases loaded to help win the second clash 7-3. Chick Hafy cracked a futile homer for the Reds in each game.

7th Frame Rally Wins For Omemee

Omemee staged a last-minute rally on their home diamond last night against Sixth Line when they pushed three counters across in the seventh and won, 19 to 18, in a scheduled Ladies' softball battle. The game was called owing to darkness.

Agnes Weir dished up a slow ball for the Liners, and for five frames it looked as if that team would salt away the game, as they counted ten times in the third to take a big lead. Omemee improved as the game progressed getting four in the fourth and six in the fifth, to slide ahead, but the opposition tied it up again and had a two-run advantage midway in the seventh. Two walks, an infield error and a clean double by Dot Sherin, gave the decision to the homesters. Jean Hickson pitched six innings for Omemee, holding the visitors to five hits, but walked ten, and had a flock of wild pitches. She was replaced by Dot Sherin in the seventh, who fanned two, passed two and allowed no hits. Lil Bowie hurled the last two frames for Sixth Line, but poor support robbed her of any chance of victory. She made the only double-play of the game unassisted, in the fifth when she nabbed a line drive and caught a runner off second. Sherin, Ev. Bigelow and Pickett each hit tripies for Omemee, and Agnes Weir secured the only three-base clout for the losers.

The teams:

Sixth Line: J. Richardson, rf; Weir, p, ss; Bowie, 2b, p; Miller, c; J. Clarkson, cf; Nelson, lf; Davis, 3b; Renwick, 1b; Bell, ss; Payne, rf.

Omemee: Rehill, cf, c; Sherin, ss, p; E. Bigelow, c, cf; Fisher, 2b; McQuade, 3b; Pickett, 1b; Hickson, p; P. Bigelow, lf; Magee, rf.

Rainville Advances by Defeating Grant McLean of Queen City 6-3, 6-4.

By ELMER DULMAGE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, July 26. (CP). Uncle Sam's somewhat quiet challenge for Canadian tennis supremacy was billed to-day for its first rigid test in the quarter-finals of men's and women's singles. Three American entrants will be earmarked "dangerous" if they surprise today's shooting in the national championships.

Hal Surface, Kansas City youth who attends University of Texas, will play Leird Watt of Montreal in one quarter-final while Philip Castlen of University of California hooks up with Marcel Rainville of Montreal in another. According to the form sheets both Americans will lose.

Impresses Gallery

But surface impressed a gallery yesterday in defeating Eddie McKush of Winnipeg, Manitoba titleholder, 6-3, 8-6 and Castlen's easy conquest of Roland Longtin of Montreal at 6-2, 6-0 boosted the Californian's stock. McKush put up a brave fight against Surface's fluent game.

Watt, stroking superbly, made short shift of a fellow-Montrealer, Henri Paul Emard, by scores of 6-4, 6-1. Emard beat Rainville in the recent Quebec tournament but he had nothing that bothered Watt yesterday. Rainville advanced by defeating Grant McLean of Toronto, 6-3, 6-4.

Donald Leahong, Jamaican singles champion, was the only seeded star to fall yesterday. Ross Wilson, Toronto and district title-holder, eliminated the ace from the West Indies in three hectic sets, 6-2, 5-6, 7-5. He will play Gilbert Nunns, fourth seeded player, to-day.

Nunns won from Gordon Shields of Toronto, in three sets, by scores of 3-6, 6-4, 6-1. Walter Martin of Toronto was carried to three sets by George Leclerc of Ottawa before winning at 4-6, 6-2, 7-5. The fourth player in the top seeded list, Bobby Murray of Montreal, downed Harry Dayes of Jamaica, 6-0, 6-4.

U.S. Flyer Ousted

United States hopes in the women's singles rested on the veteran Louise Hormeister of Chicago. Eleanor Young of Vancouver, eliminated the other American player, Mrs. Catherine Rose of Los Angeles, yesterday in three sets, 6-1, 2-6, 6-3 while Mrs. O. G. Gray of Toronto sprang something of an upset in beating Diana Pope of London, Ont., 4-6, 7-5, 6-6.

Softball Dance Brock Street To-Night

Proceeds for Injured Players' Fund—Quite a Casualty List So Far.

The Girls' and Men's Softball Associations are putting on a dance again to-night at Brock Street Summer Gardens, the proceeds of which will go to the fund for injured softball players, both girls and men. There are nine or more casualties this season so far from broken fingers to torn ligaments—the small amount collected at these games which the public so much enjoy must be augmented in some manner and it is hoped the dance to-night will produce a tidy sum. The admission to all is only 25c and includes dancing for the night as well as the fine floor show put on by Morinez and Vivienne, the professional dancing team playing the Summer Gardens to-night and again to-morrow night.

BOWMANVILLE WINS

BOWMANVILLE, July 26.—Out-hitting Port Hope by ten hits to four Bowmanville took a well-earned 9 to 5 victory from Johnny Rowden's Ontarios in a scheduled Lake Shore Baseball League fixture in Bowmanville last night. Port Hope bunched their four hits in two innings scoring their entire five runs on three hits, two walks and a batter hit by pitcher. Bowmanville scattered their hits to good advantage scoring five runs to the end of the fifth to tie the score. An impressive four-run final inning brought Bowmanville victory. Large scored his second home run in two games with a beautiful drive out of the field.

Lawn Bowling by Herb Martin

These mid-week mixed tournaments are getting bigger and better each week. Eighteen rinks turned out last night and enjoyed three hours of real sport.

To those who stayed at home on account of the heat—well, that was their hard luck. There is no cooler spot in town than the Bowling Greets. Everybody was in good humor and seemed to be enjoying themselves.

Down at Norwood yesterday, out of an entry of twenty, George Cairns' rink was successful in getting into second place. His rink was composed of Mrs. R. Hendry, R. Hendry, Mrs. W. Hepburn, and George Cairns. Each received a set of silverware.

Over at Port Perry, Ross Downey skipped his rink to land in second place. It was the occasion of R.F.'s annual visit to his old town, and they sure did know he was there. The rest of our boys did not fare so well. The members of his rink were: J. Cullen, V. Tully, F. Dearborn, R. F. Downey. Besides each winning an auto rug, the rink has the honor of holding the Port Perry Lawn Bowling Club Cup for one year.

Last night's winning rinks were skipped by: Norman Routley, George Coleman, Sr., and J. J. Howden.

FAVOR RETURN SEAMED PELLET

McCarthy and Evans Agree Pitchers Unjustly Handicapped by "Lively Ball."

TOO MANY RUNS.

The standard baseball for both major leagues has not ended the controversy over just what sort of pellet should be employed in the performance of what is still known as the national game.

Since 1920, or thereabouts, when improvement in manufacture of the white leather missiles gave batters a better break there has never been a time when the sphere in current use has pleased all hands.

However, the end of a 15-year-old discussion was believed at hand when the National and American League decided to use the same ball, which is understood to be identical with the pellet in use in the American last year.

Now, however, at least three highly placed baseball men have expressed dissatisfaction with the 1934 ball—Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees; Pie Traynor, Pittsburgh Pirate pilot, and Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland Indians.

McCarthy and Evans agree that pitchers are unjustly handicapped by the so-called "lively" ball. They have plenty of evidence to back them up—the many games this year where total runs for a game exceeded 15. In some cases both teams have made more than 10 runs each in the same contest.

McCarthy's complaint is based on the great number of pitchers often required in the playing of one game. Evans would like to see a ball with raised seams, thereby encouraging a return to more curve pitching.

Traynor contends the current rabbit ball makes good defensive play by any infield almost impossible, that the many runs and free hitting resulting unnecessarily prolongs a game. There may be something to that, too.

It's too bad that it is impossible to please everyone by giving pitchers the dead type of missile to fling and, at the same time, enable batters to smite the rabbit ball they so dearly love.

So, we just must put up with more arguments in the future over dead and lively baseballs.

FROOD AND VERDUN PLAY ANOTHER TIE

Each Team Scores Twice in Extra Time After Scoreless 90 Minutes.

TORONTO, July 26. — Coming from behind twice in a hectic overtime period Frood Mines again deadlocked with Montreal Verdun Park to make a fourth game necessary in the Dominion cup semi-final round, when the teams met for the third time, at Oakwood Stadium last night.

The two regular periods went scoreless, although each defence was hard pressed on several occasions as each goal came under a severe bombardment with many close calls. It was the Miners' ninth game in the competition, and it was a valiant remnant of the original northerners, who fought back to offset disaster in the final two minutes of extra play, when all seemed lost. The more finished Verdun aggregation were literally swept off their feet as attack followed attack, after McDonald's counter was nullified by L. Fitzpatrick in the eighteenth minute of extra play.

QUINELLA PAYS $3,300.50.

MONTREAL, July 26 (C.P.). — A pair of outsiders combined to run one-two in the seventh race at King's Park here yesterday and pay a man who refused to give his name for publication just $3,300.50 for a $2 investment.

The price broke all records here for a quinella. Only one ticket was sold on the winning combination of Visa and Jack D'Or, who finished first and second, and when the official placing was posted, the single holder walked calmly into the office and demanded a cheque for the amount, called for by his winning certificate.

Green Clicks for Circuit With 3 Men Aboard to Give Belleville 7-3 Victory.

ON KINGSTON DIAMOND.

KINGSTON, July 26. (CP)—In one of the most hectic games of the season locally, Kingston went down to defeat before the Belleville Nationals by a score of 7 to 3 to boost Belleville farther along in the C.O.B.L. race. The game had a grandstand finish to it. The score was tied in the first half of the ninth 3 to 3. There were three men on bases and two men out. Green stepped to the plate and landed a home run to give Belleville four runs and the game. Kingston ended their half of the ninth in one-two-three order.

By C. J. P.

A pretty fair sort of regatta was run off at Hiawatha yesterday with many folks from near and far present. And many contestants came and saw and were conquered. The Jopling menage was again well represented, but they didn't do as well as they've been doing hither and yon all over this district at regattas. The Bridgenorth Joplings who are prominent at canoe paddling, tilting, swimming and other such regatta rackets include: Phy, Drake, Ralph, Jack and Perry. Drake—who is sometimes known as Frank—is also rather well known as a backfield football star and a husky hockey defenceman.

• • • • • • •

Is interest somewhat on the wane so far as regattas are concerned? The crowds aren't so large as they used to be, there aren't as many regattas as formerly, and the contestants are fewer. Some of the old faithfuls—both entrants and sightseers—roam all the way from Crowe's Landing in Stoney Lake to Gore's Landing in Rice Lake to attend these water carnivals. But many of the folks present just doll up in white flannels and such and come out more to be seen than to see. Even the robust cheering of yesteryear is dying out. Or is it just our imagination?

• • • • • • •

We met him outside a groggery yesterday—one that was still waiting and foaming for a license. "So ya went and got soft on us," he greeted, "going around and defending ball umpires now. Whynohia let the fans ram 'em for all they're worth and dip 'em in the river even if they wanta?" We were extremely apologetic; we didn't know we had been defending them to any great extent. But we promised not to let it occur again. "Toss em all into the Otonabee for all of us," we told the guy; "our only defence is when we think the umps is right on some rule that maybe the fans aren't sure of. But go right ahead, the two bits admission entitles you to pan the officials. We'll even help you carry certain ones to the drink and dunk 'em."

• • • • • • •

Down at the ball orchard in the Exhibition Grounds tomorrow after supper, C.G.E. and Cogs meet in the second part of their E.P.L. would serious Cogs having copped the first one. Madame Mollee La-Murphy isn't around now to look into her teacup and tell us how this playoff will result, so we wont lay any shekels unless maybe one team wins three in a row. Then, perhaps, we'd be willing to bet on that team to grab the flag—though we'd still like to get odds. Baseball is harder to figure out than a frail, and we think it's much more fun. The lads deserve a good crowd for this brand of intermediate "A" titular ball.

• • • • • • •

And over at Riverside Saturday, Les Dukes des Chev—sometimes known as the Dukes d'Auto Parts—play the Petes a C.O.B.L. contest at three bells in the afternoon. Les Dukes are cockier than somewhat ever since they pushed over the tottering Kingston Ponies twice last week, and the Petes will try hard to take a little of the swelling out of the Motor Citizens' noggins. Or will it be vice versa? Oshawa won here once this season and lost the next one, and as this tilt Saturday is a highly important fixture, ye Petes will have to get in there with both feet and slug out a victory or they wont be able to see the Nats for dust.

• • • • • • •

With the score of the Nats'-Ponies' game in Kingston yesterday tied at 3-all in the first of the ninth, three runners on base for Belleville and two out, Sonny Green entered the hall of fame by whamming out a home run to give the Mills' boys a 7-3 verdict and boost them further in front of the C.O.B.L. race. It would be a lovely one to win, and maybe Belleville doesn't like to win right in Kingston! Williams and St. Louis were the rival tossers-uppers, which means that the Petes will likely face Casey or Smith in the Quinte ball field tomorrow. The Nats are now a full game up on us while Oshawa and Kingston are tied for third.

• • • • • • •

Six Peterborough lacrossers, Pete King, Ira Dundas, Carlos Routley, Doug Miller, Becky Jack and Red Creighton, aided Belleville considerably in slapping over Ottawa Emmetts, 13-4, in an exhibition game in Belleville last eve. Ottawa has a good senior team but it was just duck soup—or beer and pretzels—for the all-star intermediate outfit. Belleville is here tomorrow (Friday) night for a loop lacrosse game with Kiwanis at six in Riverside Park, and this should be a dandy battle. Kiwanis have yet to lose a game, but Belleville may do it this time.

• • • • • • •

Omemee lasses took a 19-13 nod at home over Sixth Line yesterday gloaming, the tilt starting late and being called after seven verses were warbled through. The pitchers—the O's in particular—walked more than a night cop and these Annie Oakleys figured largely in the high score. Leafs, Omemee and Sixth Line are all in the bottom bracket of the gals' circuit, but they keep battling away and having a lot of fun. We'd like to see some of them snap into it and knock the tar out of a few of the leaders just to kick up more interest in the fair ones' game.

• • • • • • •

Up and down Sports' Rialto: Fashion-Crafts defaulted to Johnston's Tires in last night's men's softball game, only half a team showing up . . . . Don't forget the big softball benefit dance for girls and men at the Brock this eve . . . . Local O.A.S.A. juniors walloped Summer Gardens' softballers, 13-6, last p.m. at the Oval . . . . And St. Peter's took a 10-9 bantam game from Habocos . . . . Tonight, it's Habocos vs. King Edward at the Oval . . . . Umpire Woodley had to be escorted from the Kingston park last night with a mob of fans around him and peeved 'cause ye umps had the police take Coach Daley of the Ponies off the bench in the hectic ninth.

ELECTRICS DETERMINED TO WIN ON THURSDAY

C.G.E. and Cogs tangle to-morrow (Friday) evening at six o'clock in the Exhibition Grounds in the second game of the E.P.I. playoffs. The game will go nine innings with Cogs being the home team. The Clubmen took the first tussle Tuesday, 5-4, in eight frames and hope to repeat. It's best four out of seven games. C.G.E. will make a mighty effort to get back in the running by winning tomorrow's contest and tying up the series. It may be all settled next week, though the series might go the full seven games. A large crowd of fans is expected for Friday's battle.

Casey Masterson or Percy Vannest will do the Cogs' hurling in this fracas. Both are ready to go in and neither has lost a game so far this season. They are speedball twirlers and will dish up a lot faster ball to the C.G.E. batters than Lefty Billingsley threw Tuesday. Armour or Hetherington are the logical choice to start for the Electrics, with McGillen also a possibility. There is also a slight chance that Manager Hatton will send Jack Barry right back at Cogs. At any rate, it promises to be another fine game of intermediate championship calibre.

Habocos Drop 10-9 Decision To Saints

Scoring a run in the last frame, St. Peter's took another bantam baseball game last evening, nosing out Habocos, 10 to 9, in a smart fixture. The Saints used three hurlers, Lucano, Condon and Cutting, with the latter receiving credit for the victory. Habocos were held to five hits, whereas the winners got seven bingles off Cleary. The fielding on both sides was only fair, with McCormick going nicely in centre for the losers. The teams:

Habocos: Collins, c; Copperwaite, rf; Bradshaw, 1b; Scriver, ss; White, 3b; Cleary, p; Pammett, lf; McCormick, cf; Curtin, 2b.

St. Peter's: Gerard, c; Conroy, cf; Lynch, 3b; Scollard, ss; Brown, 1b; Whaley, 2b; Condon, lf, p; Lucano, p; Cuttin, rf, p.

Belleville Meets Kiwanis On Friday

Belleville lacrossers are here tomorrow (Friday) evening at six o'clock for a league game with the local Kiwanis in Riverside Park. The Quinte squad was here earlier in the season and lost by a fairly large score, but since then have been strengthened by the addition of several experienced wielders of the gutted-sticks. The Aajmaa Club, like the Petes, have been winning their games right along recently, and last night—aided by some of the Petes—turned back a strong senior team from Ottawa in an exhibition game.

As these two squads will likely meet in the play-offs, to-morrow's match should be a good test as to how the group title will be settled. Kiwanis will be at full strength, and Belleville will be greatly bolstered with a new goalie and two or three forwards. They may also try to work in a couple of the better Campbellford players in this tilt, though the local management will object if signed Campbellford athletes are used on the Belleville lineup. Fans should not miss this lacrosse game.

City Tennis

Matches Friday in the city tennis championship tourney: At 5.30—J. Donaldson vs. the winner of the W. Young vs. E. Rigby or G. E. Nicholls' match at Peterborough; 4.30—W. Jackson or J. E. T. Langley vs. J. M. Kirkwood at Peterborough; 5.00—Mrs. J. A. Dewart or Miss P. McClellan vs. Miss K. Benson or Miss T. Hart at Peterborough; 6.00—G. C. Scott vs. B. Swarts or W. Howden; 5.30—Miss M. Donaldson vs Miss B. Cutting or Miss M. Cowan; the outstanding match this evening will be the Hammell - Cotton quarter - final singles at 5.30 at Peterborough.

H. Hammell defeated M. Swarts, 8-6, 7-5, in yesterday's second round play; V. Donaldson eliminated J. H. Bell, 6-2 and 9-7; G. C. Scott won from R. Friend, 6-4 and 6-3; G. M. Kirkwood pulled a real upset by defeating H. A. Wilson, a third seeded player, 2-6, 6-0 and 6-3 in a fine match; E. Rigby and G. E. Nicholls, in first round play, battled two sets, 6-0 and 7-7, and will finish it to-night; Miss T. Hart defeated Miss G. Caddy by default; and Miss M. Donaldson won from Miss A. Macdonald, 6-4 and 6-4.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 58

"Miss Dundas was as much in their clutches as I was," Strange continued. "I don't say she was an angel," but what could she do? She liked the easy life and the easy money. Then she thought she could get a bit more for herself than the 10 per cent allowed her, and put the screw on to Lord Mills herself. I suppose you know all this? She overdid it. He shot himself. Gillian was in for the devil of a time with Mrs. Burnham and Mrs. de Souza. She got rattled, and overlooked a paper in her studio. It was a note to me from Mrs. Burnham about two years old, on the back of which I had jotted down the directions for a face-pack actresses often use after a fatiguing night. She left it, my directions uppermost, on her table. Tait came to the studio the morning after Mills shot himself, brushed it off by accident, picked it up, recognized Mrs. Burnham's writing, and must have seen a word here and there. Anyway, he read it, standing before her and asked its meaning. Now, though guarded, it would have put any friend of Westmacott on to the right track—about me. Gillian said she had never seen it before. He didn't believe her and took it to show Mrs. Burnham, who promptly said it was a forgery, you may be sure. I don't know how she explained that talk to you that Tait had with her after lunch. It was about the note. When she said it was a forgery, he believed her, and went to fetch Miss Dundas to confront her, feeling sure that it was she who had forged Mrs. Burnham's writing. But Mrs. Burnham had seen to it somehow that though he was to leave the house all right, he would never return.

"It was Mrs. Burnham, of course, who ordered Gillian to come to her, so as to have her under her own eye and be able constantly to direct her. For Gilly lost her head. Completely. When Tait was poisoned she knew her turn would come next. She knew Mrs. Burnham would never forgive her for having left that piece of paper lying about which forced her to kill Tait, and with him do away with all her chances of a good marriage. That engagement had been a piece of most unexpected good luck for her. Mrs. Burnham told her that if she obeyed all orders she would overlook her carelessness. Much Gilly believed she would! But she had no other alternative than to obey. Mrs. Burnham had destroyed the paper, of course. Told Tait, you may be sure, to leave it with her while he went for Gilly. Oh, she was a clever devil, with the face of a dear little parson's wife. But there was one thing she didn't know. That I loved Gilly. She told me, thinking I was completely under her thumb, that Gillian was a danger to all of us. That she must be silenced for all our sakes. Mrs. de Souza would bring her down to Tor Cottage, which was shut up for the week. Mrs. Burnham had a key to it and had a couple of extra keys made. I was to come down, and shove her dead body into the cement!" His eyes were like a madman's.

"Knowing the danger to Gillian, I pretended to agree and then tried to her to come with me. I'd have hidden her safely where even those two devils couldn't have got at her. But they got her first. They had frightened her of me. Telling her some damned lies. Mrs. de Souza took her down here, and then lit out; leaving her fastened up, I'll bet, for her sister to finish. I thought I could get here first. But that damned storm . . ." He broke down and sobbed wildly.

"And what about those lily-of-the-valley boutonniers you bought at the Ricci's shop?" Pointer broke in. "Who told you to buy them?"

Strange raised his despairing face as though to refuse to answer such a trivial question.

"It's important," Pointer said quietly, and Strange looked at him more sharply.

"Is it? Do you know I fancied there was something about them . . . Mrs. de Souza made such a scene when she found I had one in my own buttonhole—she saw me with it at my rooms . . . Mrs. de Souza had told me that I was to have my hair cut at the Ricci's shop in Soho and there buy a couple of lily-of-the-valley boutonnieres and leave them done up in a box at the studio. I did it, bought a third one for myself, and that's all I know about them."

Pointer turned to Miss Naylor, who was now sitting at the window, her back to the room. He had to touch her arm before she heard him. When she did it was she who spoke first, and as though continuing a talk.

"The boy died! And all the time we've been separated by a fraud!" Her eyes, too, were aflame. "It broke our hearts nearly. But he wouldn't marry, as that horrible creature there says, while the boy lived. The taint was in his mother's blood. But he wouldn't chance having a son who would have to stand second to an idiot. And so he went off to Honduras and Chin and I—I tried to change into something worthy of a saint. I don't doubt I overdid it. There was such a lot to change that every one thought me a canting humbug. And all the time these devils"—she choked on the words.

"What about Mrs. Burnham down here" Pointer urged. "She must have slipped away from you and shot the girl just now."

Etta dropped her personal feelings at once. Yes, knowing of some short cuts, she had come straight to the cottage and found it, apparently shut up. They had tried to find Gillian. Mrs. Burnham pretended to think she might be hiding in one of the rooms. In the storm and the darkness, Etta missed the widow. "How could she have done it so quickly?" she asked in hushed tones of the chief inspector.

"She evidently came prepared for any eventuality—though she expected to find Strange had relieved her of the necessity for doing it herself. But finding Miss Dundas alive, tied up somewhere and gagged, left so by Mrs. de Souza—the traces are still on her cheeks and wrists—I think Mrs. Burnham untied her and told her to hide in the barrel, that I was on her track. I think she may have shown her a revolver and seemed about to hand it to her, perhaps saying 'Take this, and get away while you can. He's after you!' Mrs. Burnham is no revolver artist to have shot her through her pocket, and I don't see how else she got that shot in without your hearing a cry. Her revolver would of course have a silencer on it. Then she covered her with bags of cement that were standing around. She was doing this when I got here, and, of course, turned it into trying to get the bags out of the barrel. She helped me to lift the body out—still warm, but unfortunately dead."

"Have you got the revolver with which she did it?" Strange broke the silence of sheer horror that had followed on the chief inspector's words.

Pointer had. It had been dropped into the cement. It was of foreign make, and would, he fancied—rightly—probably turn out to be Miss Dundas' own revolver, which Mrs. Burnham had hidden.

"But fingerprints?" Etta asked.

"There aren't any. She wore rubber gloves." He looked at Naylor. "Just as she had them on when she tried to shoot me before I could read what I had told her was Miss Dundas' confession just now. You see, I didn't know that Mr. Strange would appear at that moment, and I wanted to catch her in the act. But, of course, his evidence was what I needed most. . . . I let her tell us that she had seen Strange and intended to threaten him with a revolver . . . it was the best lie she could tell . . . by the way." He turned to Etta. "Did Miss Dundas tell you she was going to Brussels? Of course, all that scene was 'arranged' by Mrs. Burnham beforehand."

"Just so." Etta agreed with him. "I was sure from Miss Dundas' manner, voice, look, that she was repeating what she had been told to say, and that was why I wouldn't let you know that I had heard her speak of Brussels. I was afraid it might mislead you. Poor Gillian Dundas! Despicable enough she was, but I knew she was frightened of Mrs. Burnham. And that she hated her. You could feel both welling up in her every time Mrs. Burnham came near her. And because of that, when John was poisoned, I wondered—well, something of the truth. But it seemed mad to suspect Mrs. Burnham. And she seemed so sweet and good. She really was a solicitor's daughter and widow. . . . It all seemed so mad . . . my suspicions, I mean . . ."

(To be continued.)

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, July 27

The lunar transits bearing rule on the affairs of this day may be said to offer splendid opportunity for attaining the goal of high ambitions. This through excellent business or financial projects, sustained by the friendly co-operation and solid support of those in places of power and prestige. It is a time for reaching out for such stabilizing of the fortunes and ambitious projects. But there should be a restraint on rash, impetuous and quarrelsome behavior, and the purely personal affiliations should not be permitted to react unfavorably on business.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of a definite stabilizing of the fortunes, with splendid prospect of attaining high goals in ambitious projects and in enhancing the place of power and prestige, largely through the friendship of those in "big business". But impetuous, hasty and contentious conduct would be hazardous to the best interests and private affiliations should not be permitted hindering intrusion.

A child born on this day should be capable, large-minded and ambitious, succeeding in life's undertakings.

NUMBER 369

A short time ago I was hit on the head with a club.

In spite of all my warnings about swinging when you're in danger of striking a person near you a fellow swung away while my back was turned.

The blow was sharp enough to put me out temporarily. For several days after each time I bent over I got a dizzy feeling, particularly when teeing the ball. As I stood up I found myself decidedly unsteady.

It brought to mind a similar feeling which I'm sure many golfers have.

If you're feeling a bit out of sorts bending over to tee your ball will make you somewhat dizzy. You may not notice it at first, but it's best to pause a bit before you go to make your swing.

Give your head a chance to clear.

GIBBARDS BEAT BRIGHTON

NAPANEE, July 26. — Gibbard Athletics and Brighton finished their scheduled games in the Bay of Quinte League here yesterday afternoon, the locals gaining another one-sided win, 15-1. The visitors' lone tally was significant as far as the outcome was concerned, but it carried more color than any other counter in the game because it represented the only run Brighton had scored against Gibbards in their four games this season. Shannon's single in the sixth scoring Fries.

REAL LUCK.

FORT ERIE, Ont., July 26 (C.P.). —Lionel Griffin, son of Dick Griffin, famous for years for success in tracking down international criminals, and veteran Erie Beach scribe, has reached the zenith of his Irish ancestors' desires.

Dropping a coin from his pocket on his way home from Stamford race track last night, he flashed an electric torch to find a four-leaf clover. He says he no longer fears breaking a few mirrors.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Kearns In Court

Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker and one-time pilot of Jack Dempsey, is pictured as he entered a Los Angeles, Calif., court to appear before a grand jury investigating a "walkathon" promoted by Kearns. John Spandeaux, Deputy District Attorney Vernon Ferguson declares, complained that he invested $3,000 in the walkathon enterprise without profit or return of any of his original investment.

ELEANOR YOUNG ENTERS FINALS

British Columbia Girl is Gunning for Two Canadian Tenins Titles.

JUNIOR SINGLES.

TORONTO, July 26 (CP).—Gunning for two titles, 18-year-old Eleanor Young of Vancouver, reached the final in the junior ladies' singles today at the Canadian Tennis championships, defeating Diana Pope, of London, Ont., in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3. She will play Virginia Hollinger of Dayton, Ohio, for the title tomorrow. The British Columbia girl, who also is in the quarter finals of the open women's singles, was hard-pressed to overcome Miss Pope, Western Ontario champion, but her faster placed shots gradually built up a lead in each set that the London 16-year-old could not reduce.

Bruce Hall, of Toronto, and Roger Durivage, of Montreal, reached the boys' singles final, Hall beating Hugh Pope, of London, 6-3, 6-1, and Durivage downing D.Kaye, of Toronto, 6-0, 6-4.

FERGUSON NOT RETURNING PREMIER BENNETT SAYS

OTTAWA, July 26 (C.P.).—Reports that Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in London, would be recalled to Canada to re-organize the Conservative Party in Ontario, and that Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, would go to the London post, proved to be "news" to Prime Minister R. B. Bennett when his attention was called to the matter to-day. "You may say," Mr. Bennett declared, "that this the very first intimation I have had that such a step was contemplated."

Mr. Rhodes dismissed the report without comment. Those close to the Minister stated that there was very little likelihood that he would consider the appointment.

CHICAGO CLEANS STOCKYARDS OUT

Strikers Return for Day Till Starving Animals Are Sold.

MOSTLY GOV'T OWNED.

CHICAGO, July 25 (C.P.).—The Chicago Union Stock Yards reopened yesterday under agreement between officials of the Yard and striking handlers to permit the disposal of stock on hand.

It was a "clean-up" market, designed to permit the merciful slaughtering of stock shipped in an ordinary commercial accounts Yards officials were confident that all of the commercial stock could be cleaned up before 3 p.m.

A revised estimate placed the number of privately owned cattle at a little more than 5,000. The remaining 65,000 to 70,000 cattle belong to the Federal Government, and were purchased for relief purposes. In addition, there were 6,000 head of hogs and a few of sheep.

Striking handlers asserted that they would not interfere with the market so long as the handling was not done by strike breakers. The feeding of the cattle, most of which had received nothing but water, was done by non-union feeding crews.

Reports persisted that handlers for commission men who have their own union, would join the strike at the close of the day, but union officials refused to comment. A walkout of union butchers and slaughter house employees was considered likely.

Lindsay Rumour Tells of 'Spy' Being Sent to Hospital by Peeved Courters.

Police investigations into the mystery death of Robert Meharry, 66-year-old widower who was found dead early Tuesday morning on Gordon avenue from extensive head injuries, is believed to have narrowed down to the point where an early solution of the problem is regarded as a strong probability.

While police officials are preferring to make no statement regarding progress of the investigation, they are known to be still working on the theory that Meharry met his death in a fight with some person who thought he was being watched.

The spot is a favorite place for courting couples and The Examiner learns as a result of inquiry into the Meharry case that spying on young courting couples is quite prevalent in various sections of the

CAVAN FARMER TO STAND TRIAL

Herbert C. Bigelow is Commited for Trial by Magistrate Campbell.

THREATS ALLEGED

[Special To The Examiner]

PORT HOPE, July 27.—Charged that during the months of April, May, June and July he counselled or attempted to procure one George Cameron, to murder the complainant, Reginald Palmer, contrary to provisions of Section 266 (B) of the Criminal Code, Herbert C. Bigelow of Cavan township, was committed for trial by Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell in police court here Thursday afternoon. He was released on bail of $4,000, consisting of his own surety of $2,000 and two $1,000 sureties by two brothers, Robert Bigelow and George Bigelow.

The accused, Herbert Bigelow, is a farmer of Cavan township. Palmer is also a resident of that district, residing within a few miles of Bigelow's farm.

In addition, Bigelow faced a charge of being in debt to Hattie Richardson a former housekeeper, for wages, and he paid a total of $14.50, being $10.00 wages and the balance making up the costs.

The Bench advised I. E. Weldon, K.C., Lindsay lawyer for the defense, to arrange a settlement, claiming that he was not going to cater to those who refused to pay wages to a hard-working woman. "It is too small and contemptible" the Cadi said.

Miss Richardson answered Bige-

Gov't Sends Trucks To Hunger Marchers

TORONTO, July 27 (C.P.)—The Ontario Government sent out trucks to-day to meet the Toronto-bound hunger marchers and give them a ride to Toronto. Premier Mitchell Hepburn said to-day he had received a telephone call from Hamilton that the group from the south numbering about 125 people had left that city intending to reach Oakville by night.

The trucks will bring them to Oakville and later to Toronto if they wish the ride. He had learned, he said, that a large number of the marchers were women and children and felt they should not be walking on a busy highway as they might be injured. The government trucks, he said, would escort them "right into the sanctum of Tory Toronto."

Justice Fisher to Probe McCaughran Case—Air Force Inquiry Ordered.

TORONTO, July 27.—(C. P.) — The Hepburn government's economy campaign found Ontario today facing two new governmental investigations, designed to discover where further administrative savings can be effected, and the prospect of abolition of government exhibits at Ontario fairs, including the Canadian National Exhibition.

A third investigation concerns the appointment and resignation of Daniel McCaughrin as Police Magistrate at Orillia. Scheduled to start at once, it will be conducted by Mr. Justice R. G. Fisher of the Supreme Court of Ontario, Appellate Division.

Referring to serious charges in connection with the Ontario Air Force, but refusing to discuss them, Premier Mitchell Hepburn yesterday announced the service would be probed by Daniel W. Lang, K. C., of Toronto

Attempts of the government to secure cheaper insurance led to the other probe, to be conducted by Angus German of Toronto. He will investigate the insurance carried by various government departments. Mr. Hepburn said he had been informed the same protection could be obtained for two-thirds of the assurance paid out for insurance policies.

The McCaughrin appointment and resignation both of which took place under the Henry government, was investigated by a committee of the legislature last winter. Mr. Hepburn stated the forthcoming probe was undertaken in pursuance of his promise to "investigate a number of the investigations conducted by the Tory government."

Counsel for theinvestigation have not yet been selected.

Swing Bridge Holds Up Railway Traffic

A break down in the electrical machinery which swings the span on the Canadian National Railways bridge near Lock street, caused a three-quarter hour tie-up of railway traffic this morning. The bridge had been opened to allow passage of a steamer and operators found repairs necessary before it could be closed.

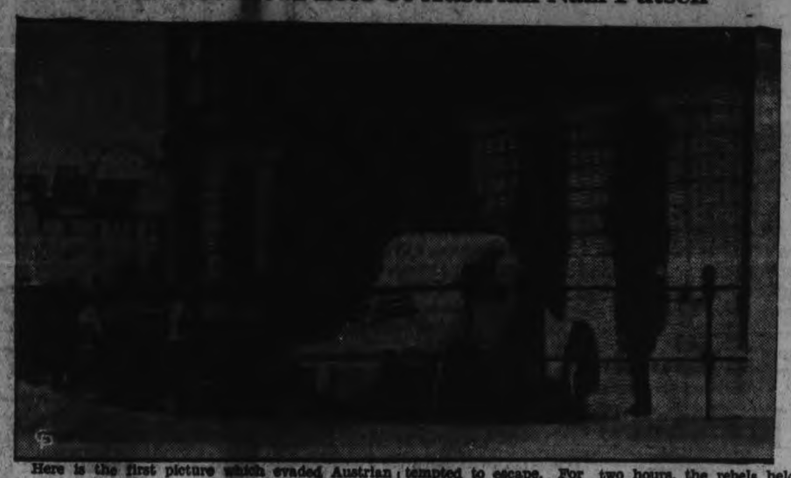
Delivery of a considerable volume of mail from Belleville and eastern points was delayed as a result of the accident. The mail was carried on Train No. 11, the regular morning passenger train from Belleville. Due at 8.25 a.m., the train did not pull into the station under 9.11 a.m.

The swing machinery is operating satisfactorily once again.

MARSHAL OF FRANCE DIES

NANCY France, July 27 (CP-Havas)—Louis Hubert Lyautey, Marshal of France, died here to-day following an attack of pneumonia which he had resisted for several days. He was 80 years old.

First "Uncensored" Photo of Austrian Nazi Putsch



Here is the first picture which evaded Austrian censorship of the Nazi putsch, sent telephoto to London and radioed to New York, showing Heimwehr troops with tanks before the Chancellery building in Vienna, where 144 Austrian Nazis daringly captured Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss and two other ministers, killing the tiny anti-Nazi dictator when he attempted to escape. For two hours, the rebels held federal troops at bay by means of the hostages, surrendering with the guarantee of a safe conduct to the German border, afterwards retracted and the Nazis jailed amidst threats of lynching by troops and civilians when death of the tiny chancellor was learned.

HITLER MAKES VITAL DECISION

Halts Invasion of Austria by Nazi Legion—Goering, Werner Present.

OTHER CONCESSIONS.

MUNICH, Germany, July 27 (AP) —A meeting which amounted to an extraordinary session of the German Cabinet at which Chancellor Hitler made significant concessions to foreign powers on the Austrian question, was believed to have been held at Bayreuth yesterday.

It was reported that at this important session Hitler reached his decision to halt a projected invasion of Austria by the Austrian Nazi Legion from here.

The dismissal of Theodore Hasicht, Austrian Nazi leader in Germany, followed quickly, as did the appointment of Vice Chancellor Franz Von Paper as Minister to Austria. Both these actions, it was believed, would be regarded favorably by foreign powers, watching closely the development of Germany's Austrian policy.

It was said here that not only

ITALIAN PRESS DEMANDS DIRECT MILITARY ACTION

ROME, July 27.—(A P)—Direct military action in Austria by Italy, France and Great Britain was demanded in Italian afternoon papers today which published vigorous inspired editorials.

The authoritative Gournale D'Italia, frequently chosen to represent government opinion, under a headline "not words but action," says that "It is useless to think of traditional diplomatic experience, or collective verbal or written protest which already has proven useless."

The newspaper accused Germany of trying to establish an alibi with respect to Austria without changing her fundamental conceptions.

The position of Germany, the writer found, is now more than ever worthy of examination.

Col. Fraser Hunter To Represent Gov't

TORONTO, July 27.—(C.P.) — Col. Fraser Hunter, Liberal member-elect of the Ontario Legislature for St. Patrick's, Toronto, has been appointed to represent the Ontario Government at all functions in connection with the Canadian Corps' Re-union which will be held here next week, Premier Hepburn announced to-day. Previously Mr. Hepburn had declined a personal invitation to attend the re-union on the ground that pressure of business was too great to permit him to take time from his duties.

POWERS FAVOR ITALIAN ACTION

France, Britain Believe Massing of Troops Will Halt Others Mobilizing.

GERMANY INCLUDED.

LONDON, July 27 (AP)—A well-informed foreign diplomat revealed to-day that the massing of Italian troops on the Austrian frontier was fully approved in advance by both Great Britain and France.

British authoritative quarters admitted that Great Britain and France were "fully informed" concerning the Italian manoeuvres, and that they came as no surprise."

It was explained that the big powers regarded the Italian move as the most practical means of preventing other countries, including Germany and the nations of the Little Entente, from "starting to march."

Great Britain and France, it was stated, were assured that the Italian army would not move past its frontier post unless armed forces of other nations entered Austria. The speed with which Germany disowned any connection with the Austrian revolt and the promptness with which it called home its Minister to Vienna was attributed directly to the Italian military demonstration.

TREASURY BILLS RATE REDUCED

Hepburn Refinances $15,000,000 at New Low of 3.58 Per Cent.

ALL PAYABLE IN CANADA.

TORONTO, July 27 (C.P.)—Ontario to-day obtained the lowest interest rate in its history when the Government renewed treasury bills to the amount of $15,000,000 at a rate of 3.58 per cent. per annum.

Announcement of the financing was made to-day by Premier Mitchell Hepburn, who is also Provincial Treasurer. He was highly gratified with the step and said it was in line with the Government's policy of bringing interest rates down to a level the taxpayer could carry the load. Previously the notes now renewed had carried varying rates of interest but 3.58 per cent. was a new low.

The banks had co-operated with the Government to the fullest extent in making the new rate possible, said Mr. Hepburn. They realized a genuine attempt was being made to reduce the Government's cost and so afforded the low interest rate. It was an indication of the favorable rate the Government might obtain on the large bond issue it will have to float some time in the not distant future. The notes are all payable in Canada.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 27.—(A P)—Minneapolis went to work today under military rule—a form of dictatorship pressed into command at the behest of Governor Floyd B. Olson, who feared further violence in the Truck Drivers' strike.

Flowers May Be Trampled By Marchers But Ontario Government Will Not Mind

TORONTO, July 27 (C.P.) — Ontario hunger marchers who plan plan to descend on Toronto next week will not lack a park in which to hold a meeting, Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney General, stated today. Even though it may mean the trampling of a few flower beds the Ontario Government will accord them the use of the area in front of the Parliament Buildings.

This was Mr. Roebuck's reply to the latest decision of the Toronto Parks Commission refusing to rescind an order forbidding the hunger marchers to meet in any city park. It carried a step further the long controversy between the Hepburn Government and Mayor William Stewart and the Toronto City Hall administration over the treatment to be accorded the hunger marchers.

Mr. Roebuck had an investigation made to find out how much park land was controlled and owned by the government. He found that in addition to the land on which the Parliament Buildings stands, the Province controls approximately half of the semi-circular area in front of the buildings. This part of Queen's Park is dotted with huge flower beds now in gorgeous bloom.

"We hope they will not trample the flowers," said Mr. Roebuck, "but if they do we will replant them. The only reason we suggested they might be accorded the courtesy of city parks was to save the expense of a few geraniums."

The City Police Commission at first forbade the hunger marchers to parade on the streets, but the Government removed two members of the commission and appointed others who rescinded that order. The Government, however, has no control over the Parks Commission.

Owner Wanted

FORT ERIE, Ont., July 27 (C.P.) — Three thousand dollars worth of "giggle water," the finest champagne brewed in France, is awaiting an owner here. The bubbly was found in a barn on the Walsh farm and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are anxious to have the owner drop in and claim it. The champagne was packed in sacks and still bore the dust of years on its ancient labels.

TERRIFIC SMASH WRECKS TRUCK AT C.P. CROSSING

Cargo and Debris is Scattered 100 Yards Along Right of Way.

FIRE FOLLOWS.

Driver Fails to Notice Speeding Train as He Makes Turn to Tracks.

PORT HOPE, July 27. — Struck by a Canadian Pacific freight train at the depot here at 8.20 o'clock last night, Delbert Bell, aged 25, and Carl Coupland, aged 25, both natives of this district, were instantly killed. The two young men were riding in a transport truck and trailer and the speeding engine crashed into the side of the truck with terrific impact, demolishing the truck and hurling the bodies 50 feet down the track.

Bell, driver for Martin's Transport, makes daily trips to Toronto and had planned to stop off at Port Hope to visit his sister. The crossing where the smash occurred is 100 yards east of the C.P.R. station and about 20 yards north of the provincial highway. Bell had made the turn and apparently did not notice the Canadian Pacific through freight.

The train, with nearly 70 cars, was travelling at a fairly fast rate, it was believed, although there were no actual witnesses to the double fatality. The truck was thrown 100 yards down the track, scattering its cargo on the way and smashing off a signal light.

Body Carried 50 Yards

Bell, the driver of the truck, was carried 50 yards from the crash and landed in the ditch on the north side of the tracks. His body was badly battered and death resulted from a fractured skull. Coupan's body was picked up 30 feet easterly and he met instantaneous death from a fractured skull. Couplan's body was picked up 30 feet easterly and he met instantaneous death from a severe wound on the head. Bell lived for a few minutes, but died before the arrival of medical assistance.

The engine of the truck was disconnected and thrown into the north ditch. The truck, immediately after being hit, caught fire, destroying what was left and portions of the load as well.

Couplan was born in Port Hope

U.S. Heat Wave Eases After Killing 1,368

CHICAGO, July 27 (A.P.)—The scorching heat wave in the United States has been routed after killing 1,368 persons.

Cool breezes swept rains into most sections yesterday and to-day, but while they brought a sharp drop in heat fatalities, they afforded no material aid to the drought ravaged farm areas.

Temperatures broke 43 degrees in some sections, but in the Pacific south-west, where a new heat wave started, thermometers rocketed to 110 degrees. Readings were high, too, along most sections of the Atlantic coast.

The heat wave took its greatest toll in Missouri, where 378 perished. Illinois and Ohio were next with 362 and 163, respectively.

Seven thousand miles of highways radiating from Berlin and linking every corner of the country are to be constructed in Germany.

Battles Rage With Mounting Casualties in Score of Provincial Cities.

(By Wade Kerner. Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press)

VIENNA, July 27.—Tension eased slightly tonight as a feared Nazi attack against the Capital failed to develop immediately, but the vigilance of Government troops, scattered strategically about the city, was not diminished.

VIENNA, July 27 (AP)—Unverified reports circulated to-day saying that eight of the Nazis who participated in the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss Wednesday have been killed without trial and that 30 more will be hanged this afternoon.

PARIS, July 27 (AP)—The French Foreign Office said to-day war is "impossible" as an immediate result of Chancellor Dollfuss' assassination.

Peace, instead, it was said, was strengthened by the "failure" of Austrian Nazis and world wide disapproval of the German campaign against the little dictator.

Hitler was described by other officials as suffering a 'striking defeat."

ROME, July 27 (AP)—A Government spokesman said to-day no further Italian troops will be sent to the Austrian border at present. He characterized the Austrian situation as satisfactory.

LIEZEN, Austria, July 27 (AP)—Government troops at noon to-day gained control of Phyren Pass in a battle again Nazis which had lasted since 2 p.m. Wednesday. Eighteen men were killed.

VIENNA, July 27 (C.P.-Havas).—One of the Nazis charged with murdering Chancellor Engelberg Dollfuss, to-night made full confession of his act.

Warned of a new Nazi plot to seize the Austrian government the Heimwehr to-day made hasty preparatiois to defend the capital.

Machine guns bristled in the streets of Vienna, and troops threw a heavy guard around all government buildings. A government spokesman said the military demonstration was a precautionary measure against another "foolhardy effort to seize the chancellery," which, he said, the government has been told, is being plotted.

Suspicious Europe peered fearfully to-day at the powder-smoke clouds of civil war which puffed in Austria.

It saw an Austrian government, headed by the Fascist Prince Ernst Von Starhemberg, fighting rebellious Nazis with guns, hand grenades, and propaganda.

Telephone service in the Ballhausplatz was still being maintained. An Associated Press correspondent conversed by telephone with a government spokesman who viewed the situation calmly.

"Personally I don't believe any attack is seriously being planned but we have received reports the Nazis are en route to Ballhausplatz in another foolhardy attempt to surprise and imprison us here," the spokesman said.

"All doors to the Federal Chancellory are barred, and Ballhausplatz and the former Imperial Palace, as well as adjacent streets, have been closed to traffic. We regret that foreign diplomats who had appointments at the Chancellory this afternoon will be obliged to postpone their visit until the blockade is lifted."

A short time later telephone connection between the Chancellory and other buildings were cut off.

NAZI-LOYALIST BATTLES RAGING ACROSS AUSTRIA

Farmers Reported Joining Banner of Revolt in Many Provinces.

VICTORY SEE-SAWS.

300 Slain—Von Papen Named Ambassador to Vienna by Hitler.

By WADE WERNER
(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

VIENNA, July 27.—Fighting broke out to-day between government forces and Nazis close to the Italian border.

The skirmish was for posession of Hayakyted Villach, a town barely half an hour's journey from the border along which Italy has concentrated 48,000 troops and many aeroplanes.

A Nazi victory was reported early to-day in the occupation of Goisern, a town in Upper Austria not far from Salzburg.

This, and other reports, indicate the revolt is spreading.

The government is moving energetically to put down the Nazi uprising, troops are reported enroute to the Murgtal Valley. The Fascist regime, headed by Prince Ernst Von Starhemberg, successor to the slain Dollfuss, appears, however, to be having its hands full as the revolt spdeads. Until late yesterday the uprising had been confined principally to the province of Styria.

Communications, with many of the provinces, has been cut off, making it impossible to compile any accurate figures of the number of casualities in the fighting between government forces and the Nazis. Estimates believed conservative are that at least 300 persons have been killed.

Many farmers are enlisting under the banner of revolt, some reports say.

There has been fighting near Stveit. The government expected to retake the town to-day. Troops also have been massed for an assault of Feldkirch.

The government claims important victories elsewhere on the Carinthian front. Nazis in the upper

Pills

HAMILTON, Ont., July 27 (CP)—A report that mysterious pills were being given laborers at some of the large plants in town brought an immediate reply from Coroner Dr. A. O. Cannon that there was no mystery connected with the tablets. "The pills are sodium chloride, or common table salt," he explained. "In hot weather the body perspires freely and with the perspiration chlorides are given off. In this way the supply of chloride in the body is depleted and exhaustion or prostration is the final results. By taking these salt tablets the body supply of chloride is maintained and the men are better able to withstand the heat."

POLICE HUNTING FACE LIFTERS

Suspect Skilful Surgeon Changing Many Gangsters' Appearances.

DILLINGER WAS CLIENT.

CHICAGO, July 27 (AP)—The United States Government's ace man-hunters were confronted with a new problem in running down public enemies to-day—the ancient art of plastic surgery.

The underworld is exchanging old faces for new by means of the skilful use of the surgeon's knife, and the men most wanted in the drive against crime may no longer look as they did six months ago.

For some time the authorities have suspected there was in Chicago a clearing house for criminals to undergo face lifting operations to thwart the law, but only now has the full extent of possible ramification of the practice come to light.

The revelation came after James Probasco, 67-year-old horse and dog fancier, leaped from the 16th floor of a Loop skyscraper, where he had been questioned about the use of his home as an infirmary for facial operations for the late John Dillinger and one of his mobsters, Homer Van Meter.

"If," said Samuel P. Cowley, of the Chicago Bureau of Federal Investigation, "Probasco had lived, we should have the names of many gangsters who had their faces disguised in his home.

The investigator's statement led to the belief that George "Baby Face" Nelson and John Hamilton, hunted Dillinger gangsters, may have followed the lead of their late chief with operations to disguise themselves.

The doctor who "lifted" Dillinger's face, straightened his nose and otherwise altered his appearance was still being sought. There were rumors he had already been caught.

EIGHT CHILDREN DIE UNDER TRAIN

Victims Step Aside to Miss One Express and Are Hit by Another.

PLAYING CARDS ON BRIDGE

SHELTON, Conn., July 27.—(A.P.).—Grief-stricken parents of eight children who were killed by a meat train contemplated a mass funeral to-day.

The youngsters, seven boys and a girl, were playing cards on the New York, New Haven and Hartford tracks along the Housatonic River yesterday when they were mowed down by a south-bound freight train.

John Roy, fireman of a north-bound train which was passing at the time, had shouted and squirted water at the children to warn them but his efforts went unheeded. A moment later the card players were crumpled forms, sprayed along the roadbed by the meat train.

The victims included two brothers and a brother and sister. They were: Ruth Bierwith 12, John Gentile 17, Joseph Gentile 14, George Rumble 16, Charles Bierwith 12, Carl Hoffman 13, Steven Rotkowich 17, Joseph Dawchyk 14.

An inquiry disclosed that John Kane of Hartford, engineer of the train which struck the children, was unable to see the children because of the north-bound freight train and a curve in the tracks.

The noise made by the north-bound train is believed to have kept the group from hearing the meat train.

A Complaint

LOS ANGELES, July 27 (CP)—Michael Connolly, Liquor Administrator here for the State Board of Equalification, announced to-day he had received a letter from a South Gate beer parlor operator reading, in part, as follows:

"My place has already been peaceful and is patronized by law-abiding citizens. Members of a nearby religious organization conduct themselves in a loud and undignified manner, singing long and unfunefully into the night. This noise is disrupting my business."

Connolly said he would investigate.

Dollfuss Assassinated As Nazis Seize Austrian Government

Chancellor Engelbert Dolfuss of Austria was reported slain, Minister of Public Security Emil Fey was held captive, and Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, head of the Heimwehr, escaped as Nazis captured the government of Austria by seizing the chancellery in Vienna. FARMERS MOVE TO AID SETTLERS

Would Set Up Re-establishment Committees to Assist Unfortunates.

IN DRIED OUT AREAS.

By SAM G. ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

SASKATOON, July 27.—(C.P.)—Farming tragedies in dried out areas and misfortunes of moving into unbearable lands of the northern parts of the province to-day led the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, to urge the Saskatchewan government to establish farmers re-establishment committees to guide future settlement.

A non-political, non-sectarian educational commission was also endorsed by delegates to the ninth annual convention, which ended its straight farmer gathering Thursday night before enlarging into the Farmer-Labor Group sessions to-day.

Political questions and the set-up of the political organization were slated to come before the enlarged gathering whch was preceded by a private conference between the political directing board of 21 members, elected members, defeated candidates and campagn managers.

H. J. Coldwell, Regina, leader of the Farmer-Labor Group, and other labor representatives arrived to-day for the Farmer-Labor sessions.

The farmers' re-establishment request was passed by a convention reduced in numbers owing to the political directorate conference. Lack of expert advice and efficient preparation for settlement of farmers in new areas had led to extreme suffering, the resolution declared.

STRICT ADHERENCE FOR LIQUOR LAWS

No Relaxation in Laws Governing Consumption of Beer in Other Hotels.

Pessimists who predicted that the sale of beer and wine in the hotels would bring a wave of drunkeness and disorder are apparently doomed to disappointment. Police said today that as yet no drunkeness resulting from the relaxed regulations has been encountered.

The Police Department will continue to insist on strict adherence to the liquor regulations, however, Inspector James Reid stated. While beer and wine is to be sold in hotels which have secured the required licenses, there has been no relaxation of the laws governing the consumption of beer and wine in other public places and in automobiles, he said. Persons availing themselves of the privileges of beer and wine by the glass in hotels will be expected to govern themselves with due regard to the regulations against intoxication.

The Police Department is prepared to enforce the Liquor Commission rules which restrict the hotel sale to the hours between 10 a.m. and midnight.

Toronto Livestock Review

TORONTO, July 27 (C.P.).—With the exception of calves, all classes of livestock on the Toronto market this week dropped and losses ranged from 15 cents on most grades of cattle to $1.25 to $1.50 on lambs. Off car hogs lost 10 cents and truck hogs 35 cents. Calves opened the week by taking back the previous week's 50-cent drop and closed steady at the higher level.

Cattle trading was dull throughout the four days with the price holding steady on Monday and Tuesday. A weak feeling set in on Wednesday and the division finally closed with a 15-cent loss. The holdover from the previous week was reduced from 300 to 500 head, but it was more through the lighter receipts than brisk trading that the reduction was effected.

Exporters and packers took the best of the weighty steers on Monday at $5 to $5.75. For the balance of the week, however, steers ranged from $3 to $5.15, with no choice offered. Butcher cattle sold mostly at $3 to $4.25, with tops at $4 and $4.75. Common, light boners sold down to $2. Butcher cows were steady at $2.50 to $2.85 for choice.

Bologna bulls closed at $2 to $2.25 and good bulls at $2.50 to $2.75. Fed calves were steady at $4.50 to $5.50 cwt., according to quality.

Store cattle trade continued dull with very little inquiry from the country. Speculators and a few farmers paid $2 to $3 for light stockers and a few picked feeders sold up to $3.50. Milker and springer trade was draggy at $20 to $35 each. The holdover consisted mainly of stockers and springers. Total cattle receipts for the week were about 4,700, a reduction of about 700 head from the previous week.

Calves showed about the only firmness seen on the market. They gained 50 cents on Monday and held their advance throughout the week closing at $4.50 to $5 with common vealers and thin grassers at $2.50.

Hogs experienced their worst trading spell for some time. Off cars dropped 10 cents and off trucks 20 cents and the spread off truck hogs was cut to 25 cents. On Thursday with only truck hogs on the floor, packers paid $8.75 and were quoting lower for week-end deliveries.

Lambs slumped badly at the opening, losing $1 the first day, selling and holding at $7 for good ewes ad wethers. Wednseday afternoon the division lost another 25 to 50 cents and the close was weak at $6.50 to $6.75 for good ewes and wethers and at $5 for culls and bucks. Sheep were unchanged for the week at $2 to $2.50 cwt. for good, light ewes. Heavies brought $1.25 to $1.50 and culls $1. A few yearlings were sold at $3.50 to $5 cwt.

SILVER SLIPPERS NEW SERIAL STORY

Examiner's New Story Will Commence in Monday's Paper.

Is jealousy a measure of love?

Joan Dudley was engaged to marry Drew Halaim. At Granitehead, where they were vactioning, Joan met Giles Armiger in the latter's bookshop. They became interested in each other. Then Drew forbade Joan to see any more of Giles.

A few evenings later, Drew came out on the hotel porch to confront his fiancee in Giles' arms coming up the steps out of the rain. His jealousy was aflame. In a moment, words which were destined to change the courses of two lives had been spoken....

Such is one of the many dramatic incidents in Temple Bailey's new novel "Silver Slippers" which begins in The Examiner on Monday. It is a fascinating romance by one of the most popular fiction writers in America. It is an absorbing love story which even surpasses "Pre-War Lady" and "Little Girl Lost" two novels which won for Temple Bailey the wildest acclaim.

In arranging for publication of "Silver Slippers", The Examiner has been fortunate enough to secure a novel which, for subtlety of plot, vividness of style and colorful description, has been unsurpassed by any previous serial offerings.

URGES LEAGUE FIGHT PRICES

South African National Council of Women Told Situation Scandal.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, July 27.—(CP).—Strong language about the cost of living in South Africa was used by Professor W. H. Hutt in an address to the National Council of Women. He described the price of bread, butter, milk and other necessities in the Union as "one of the biggest scandals of the present age," and accused Ministers of "betraying the consumers' cause."

What was wanted, the professor urged, was a live consumers' league which would strictly avoid any form of alliance with any political party. He said he did not propose to discuss the facts or the significance of the many discrepancies between international prices and prices within the Union. He assumed that his listeners were all convinced that there was a strong prima facie case against a situation which resulted in the prices of necessaries within the Union being so much higher than world prices.

He charged in court here, that Mike Palik hit him in the face with a pound and a half of beefsteak, giving him a black eye. The argument began when Kruska accused Palik, a butcher's assistant, of giving him short weight. Then, said Palik, Kruska swore at him and he hurled the steak. Palik was fined.

PAPEN IS NAMED AUSTRIAN ENVOY FROM GERMANY

Action Seen Astute Move by Hitler to Show World Good Intentions.

RISE FOR GOERING.

(By Elmer W. Peterson, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

BERLIN, July 27 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler named the Conservative Vice Chancellor, Franz Von Papen, Ambassador to Austria to-day in what was regarded as an astute move to assure the world Germany's attitude toward Austria is everything that can be desired.

The Propaganda Ministry announced that Von Papen, now in Switzerland, had accepted the appointment.

In keeping with custom, the appointment was formally framed as a request to President Paul Von Hindenburg, who has yet to reply with his necessary consent. Approval of the President was taken for granted, however, Government circles assuming his opinion had been asked beforehand.

Should Von Papen go to Vienna Hitler would achieve the long-sought wish to have Von Papen out of the Cabinet. The post became vacant with the summary withdrawal from Vienna of Kurt Rieth, following the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss.

Von Papen, who has dared to criticize the Nazi regime, is at present Saar Commissioner as well as Vice Chancellor.

Agreeable to Neighbors

His appointment, it was believed, would be highly agreeable to other foreign powers.

Hitler's recognition of this was seen in his expressed wish in the letter to Von Hindenburg to "relax the general situation" in Europe, especially as regards Germany and Austria.

The move likely will result in the appointment of Herman Wilheld Goering, Hitler's right-hand man in the June 30 revolt and Premier of Prussia, to the Vice Chancellory. Many believed Von Papen's appointment would not be temporary, as Hitler says.

Reports that Hitler had definitely intervened and disrupted plans of Austrian Nazi sympathizers in Munich was interpreted as further evidence of how aware the Chancellor is of the European political situation, which would make intervention in Austria by Germany a most serious matter.

This consciousness also can be detected among the German citizenry. There is a definite belief here that Mussolini, for example, will permit no tampering with Austria.

Rome Wonders

ROME, July 27.—(AP)—The news that Chancellor Hitler had requested Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen to go to Vienna was received in Rome with intense interest today.

Since the exact nature of the mission could not be ascertained no comment was ventured but it was evident that his actions would be studied closely.

It was felt that the choice of Von Papen was a happy selection, but also that his mission could have an extremely grave effect, depending upon its character.

Any attempt to bring the Austrian government into close cooperation with the Hitler regime would be viewed by Italy with the greatest alarm.

If, however, Von Papen's mission turns out to be for the purpose of making explanations or giving guarantees that German help will be denied to Austrian Nazis, then it was believed that it may straighten out the present complicated situation.

City's Relief Gardens Surpass Those of 1933

PROMISING CROP OF POTATOES DEVELOPING IN 200 GARDENS WORKED BY CITY'S UNEMPLOYED

Second Year of Garden Plot Scheme More Successful Than First FEW WEEDS TO BE FOUND.

Inspection of Gardens Made by The Examiner and A. B. Cunningham.

A promising crop of potatoes is ripening in the two hundred lots, comprising more than twenty acres, that have been planted this year in the second summer of the garden plots campaign conducted by the Central Relief Board.

Estimating the value of the produce of each lot at approximately twelve dollars, this community effort represents a return of $2,400 from land within the city which in most instances would have been left idle and unworked. A. B. Cunningham, chairman of the Garden Plots committee, calculated the vaue of the yield of potatoes and other vegetables from last year's experience, and is just as much pleased with this season's accomplishment as he was last summer when the venture was regarded at the outset by sceptics as likely to run more to weeds than to food for tables that are not as well provided as they used to be.

An Examiner reporter visited most of the gardens yesterday afternoon with Mr. Cunningham, and one of his remarks was to the effect that if he were working, and it is voluntarily work faithfully and well done, for the city he wouldn't be "bothered with it."

"Working for the public generally is a thankless job," he said, "but when you can help men as individuals to help themselves, the effort bears its own reward. Naturally we consider the material results such as home supplies of potatoes for next winter, and the other vegetables such as beans and peas and beets and tomatoes which are picked as they ripen, but the principle satisfaction is more than that. It has to do with helping men who don't own such gardens, but who are willing to work them, and thereby maintain, even if it is only in a small way, their confidence and self-respect. When you see the way these two hundred lots have been planted and tended, your own faith in humanity is strengthened. The work done this season has been excellent, and all we need is more rain to finish off the potatoes, and bring on the tomatoes, cabbage and corn to what they should be."

Mr. Cunningham was not speaking for publication, but there it is anyway, reflecting the spirit that has always animated the Central Relief Board.

Few Weeds Seen.

A survey of the community gardens will find few weeds anywhere. In fact the uniform quality of the vegetables plots, freed of weeds and potato bugs, well cared for and with here and there little groupings of flowers, is the main impression left by a more than casual inspection.

The tour started in a property at the end of Gladstone avenue, and ended across Little Lake on the south fringe of the Engleburn neighborhood.

There are twenty-five lots in the Gladstoone avenue area, some of them on the south side of the C.N.R. and others across the railway extending out to Crescent street. Potatoes were a feature here as subsequently elsewhere, but there was also a variety of other domestic vegetables. Mr. Cunningham explained that the men, and in a few instances women, generally found from last year's work that they could plant enough of the other vegetables at home, and that the best plan was to concentrate on potatoes in the community gardens. Most of the home gardens, however, are so small that their yield is negligible, leaving nothing for winter needs.

Eighteen lots on Lansdowne street on the corner of Monaghan Road, apparently rated on par with the Gladstone avenue garden, and twenty more on Douglas avenue, south of Chamberlen street, were in the same class. The owner of one of these lots decided to build a house on it after he had given permission for its use as a garden. The crop was nearly all in, and the owner paid five dollars for the work that had been done.

Eight lots opposite the Prince of Wales school on Monaghan Road, four at the corner of Charlotte street and Monaghan Road, and six at the head of Homewood avenue, west of Monagnan Road, comprise another group. Six lots on Bonaccord street are just as well kept as last year.

On Park Hill Road and Dowtie streets, two acres of sod were broken last spring, providing twenty-four gardens that are in fine condition. Eight more on Bethune street north, twenty lots on either side of O'Carrol lavenue, and twenty-two on the old Barnardo Home property are further examples of the sincerity in which citizens joined in this self-help movement. There are ten more lots near the Golf Links, and four on the city's land at the end of Engleburn avenue adjacent to the C.P.R. Others are scattered throughout Ashburnham.

Eight Acres Planted.

Ten men are working eight acres five miles from the city in Smith township, and are said to have made a good job of their undertaking. The committee paid for the plowing, and provided the seed in an agreement that the men would return an equal number of bags of potatoes in the fall for distribution by the relief department. One of the men in this group set out quite a number of tomato plants.

Mr. Cunningham explained that the committee had a private fund of one hundred dollars which was used in buying seed for citizens, most of whom were on relief. Others are near the border line, but this assistance helps them to avoid appealing to the Relief office.

The total number who have taksaid. "That is twice the size of the Toronto lots. I know now of gardens that were not planted because of the fact that men hadn't money enough to buy seed. Others started to work in the spring, thinking it was going to last all summer. They did not apply for lots until they were out of work, and then they came in quite a rush, and we didn't have enough to go round."

Mr. Cunningham believes that the city authorities should try to continue this form of help for some years ahead.

"If the depression ended to-morrow, we know that there are middle-aged men who are not going to be absorbed by industry. They are willing to work, but under present day conditions their age seems to be against them. Something will have to be done when the time comes, and this form of gardening is one way to help them, even if it is very limited in its results."

The second year Cunningham gardens, on the whole, will compare favorably with the best in the city, and are an evidence of the fact that most men desire to be independent and to work for themselves. Mr. Cunningham made one request that the gardeners pay special attention to any signs of weeds during August and September.

en gardens this year exceeds two hundred, including others who required help to plant their home lots.

"We tried to give each man one-tenth of an acre," Mr. Cunningham

Austria Totters As Dollfuss Reported Slain In Nazi Coup

Austria's internal disturbances, smouldering fiercely under cover since the bloody Socialist riots of last spring suddenly burst into flame on Wednesday as Nazi troopers sprang a dramatically sudden trap and caught Engelbert Dollfuss, diminutive chancellor unprepared. Dollfuss, the little dictator who has ruled Austria for the last two years with an iron hand and has recently become the centre of a new storm of invective as he pushed a ruthless policy of suppression in an effort to quell terrorist activities, was slain. Reports circulated throughout Vienna stated that the veil-pocket autocrat had been wounded by bullets as Nazis effected his capture. Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, vice-chancellor and leader of the Fascist Heimwehr, or home guard, which has supplied Dollfuss with his power and who was also surrounded, escaped from his captors and immediately attempted to gather his loyal troops and launch a counter offensive. The iron-willed prince sent an ultimatum to Nazis holding the chancellery declaring that unless Dollfuss and other captives were immediately released the heimwehr would attack the building. Emil Fey, minister of public security and one of Dollfuss' most trusted lieutenants was captured along with his chief. Strong man of the Nazi movement, Anton Rintelin, former ambassador to Italy and known as "King Anton" among his supporters because of his tremendous power, was reported by Nazis as the man who would form a new government. The scene ABOVE shows a rally of the Austrian Nazis while in the UPPER RIGHT is shown a street scene in Vienna during the rioting earlier this year with a victim lying dead in the street. Chancellor Dollfuss whose fate is as yet uncertain is at the LOWER LEFT and President Miklas, LOWER RIGHT. At the UPPER LEFT are shown Prince von Starhemberg and Major Emil Fey, two men who have been powerfully instrumental in shaping recent Austrian policy. Capitals throughout the world are watching anxiously while Austria totters on the verge of a bloody revolution.

The society desires to extend the work of horticulture and a useful way of doing so are these keenly contested exhibitions to which all persons in this district are entitled to take part by taking out a dollar membership ticket in the society.

Prizes are offered to contestants, advice is given by capable growers on staging the exhibits, expert judges have been engaged and the public are invited to come along and hear their comments on the several merits of the exhibits.

MR. BENNETT'S VISIT.

Premier Bennett's visit to Portsmouth Penitentiary is being hailed as an augury of important changes in that institution, but that does not necessarily follow.

If the Premier, after viewing the conditions for himself, is satisfied that there is nothing very wrong in the penitentiary, it can be taken for granted that demands for an investigation will fall on deaf ears, for Mr. Bennett is accustomed to make his own decisions and has shown little inclination to be governed by outside opinion when it happens to differ from his own.

There are those who will point out that in a visit such as he made, it would be impossible to get a real picture of penitentiary conditions, but Mr. Bennett is likely to have arrived at a conclusion one way or another after his inspection this week, and the public will await further action from him with a great deal of interest.

SEEKING A SOVIET CANADA.

The Examiner has been accused of being unfair to the unemployed because of references in this column to the futility of the hunger march and to the Communistic origin of the demonstration.

It has been said that this effort should be supported because it is seeking better treatment for victims of the depression, but The Examiner has always felt that the real object behind the whole affair was the creation of publicity for Communistic doctrine, and this opinion has been substantiated by a frank admission from one of the Western Ontario leaders of the hunger march that while they expect concessions that will help the unemployed, the ultimate object of the promoters is the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of a Soviet Canada.

The demonstration is thus exposed in its real light as a Red effort to cash in on the distress of Ontario's unemployed, and those behind the hunger march are undoubtedly elated over the fact that it has already caused a bitter controversy between the Ontario Government and Mayor Stewart, and that it has been taken so seriously that the Toronto Police Commission has been reconstructed by the Government.

The more trouble of this kind that is stirred up, the happier will be the Communist leaders in this country, and if the hunger march happened to terminate in a riot they would probably agree that the whole affair had proved a tremendous success.

THE RIGHT METHOD.

Hon. David Croll, Windsor's mayor and the new Minister of Welfare and Municipal Affairs, is to be congratulated upon the attitude he is displaying toward the relief problem.

In an interview he has declared that it will be the purpose of his department to make "the humanitarian principle the guiding one for all employees who have anything to do with those who are in unfortunate circumstances due to the stress of hard times."

The Examiner believes that the vast majority of Ontario people will applaud that statement, inasmuch as they believe that victims of the unusual conditions of the last few years are entitled to sympathetic and courteous treatment from welfare workers, whether they be municipal or provincial.

These citizens who are suffering because of the depression have a right to be dealt with decently, and not to be looked upon as "chiselers" and "impostors," and Hon. Mr. Croll is to be thanked for making it clear that so far as the new Government is concerned courtesy and kindliness will be insisted upon.

At the same time, however, the Minister of Welfare has had enough experience with the relief question to know that the funds must be guarded against fraudulent claims, and any one who imagines that because of what he has said there will be a chance to exploit relief efforts is due for a rude awakening.

THE WEEK-END OF SAFETY.

Shaken by the heavy accident record of the last week-end, J. F. H. Wyse of the Ontario Safety League has issued a special warning and appeal to the people of Ontario to be on their guard at all times against accidents.

The time to prevent an accident is before it happens," declares Mr. Wyse.

To motorists planning a trip this week-end, he suggests that before beginning their journey to make sure that their brakes, tires, steering gear and lighting are in good shape.

Other helpful recommendations include the following:

Make an early start before congestion of the roads begins, as more accidents happen later in the day.

Avoid overcrowding the interior of your car with luggage. Overcrowding leads to accidents.

Give undivided attention to your driving. If passing traffic be sure there is a place for you in the traffic line ahead. Never pass on a hill or curve.

When other vehicles try to pass you—let them pass.

Before entering main streets or highways, or when approaching a railway crossing, particularly where a full view is obstructed, "Stop" and "Look."

Do not "loaf" where traffic is heavy.

Always signal before you slow down, stop, or change your course.

Make sure that the road behind is clear before backing up.

To any or all of you to whom the water has a lure during these hot days, remember:

Learn to swim.

Keep out of the water for two hours after eating.

Keep out of the water when there is an undertow.

Keep out of a canoe unless you can swim.

Always take a companion along—a good strong swimmer when you go into the water. You may need his help.

Never change places when in a canoe or light boat.

Do not use automobile tires as floats or life preservers and do not let your children use them.

Swim in protected areas only. Do not attempt to swim when tired out.

Do not swim in rough water. Do not dive in shallow water, and above all, watch that little children, who cannot swim, do not get too far out, beyond their depth.

Learn the Prone Pressure Method of Resuscitation. It may help you to save a life. The Ontario Safety League will furnish you free of cost, and upon application, instructions on the Prone Pressure Method of Resuscitation. Please make a note of the address—Ontario Safety League, Metropolitan Building, Toronto. These instructions may help you to save a life. Write the Ontario Safety League, Metropolitan Building, Toronto.

Observe these few simple rules, enjoy the week-end holidays and all other holidays during this lovely weather. Enjoy these holidays safely and live to tell what a fine time you had.

Remember—the week-end is the weak end of safety.

A SIGNIFICANT CHANGE.

For the fiscal year ended March 31, last, 37.7 per cent. of all our imports from Great Britain came into the country free of duty. In 1930 the percentage was but 5.8; and this is a significant change. It has been brought about in considerable degree by the pact between the two countries entered into at the Imperial Economic Conference in 1932. In return our products are given preferential treatment in the markets of the United Kingdom.

On the other hand, the total volume of our imports from Great Britain has fallen since 1934. In 1935 they had a value of $151,084,000, as compared with $105,101,000 for the past fiscal year. Nevertheless, there was a gain of nearly $20,000,000 over 1933. The aggregate volume of free imports last year was $48,063,000, of which $39,593,000 came in under the preferential tariff and $8,470,000 under the general tariff.

The exchange under the new trade arrangements has been mutually satisfactory, although superficially it would seem to favor Canada. For many years we have been selling much more to Great Britain than we have bought from her. On the other hand, up to recently our trade with the United States was somewhat one-sided, in that our purchases from that country greatly exceeded our sales. There has been some modification in that regard, although the balance of trade is likely to be permanently against us because we must buy from that source a considerable volume of our raw materials.

It has been unofficially stated that Prime Minister Bennett and President Roosevelt are to meet soon for the purpose of talking over trade matters. There have been many parleys of that nature, but they have been invariably fruitless. It may be, however, that a new atmosphere obtains at Washington. That would be necessary, since in the past our overtures for freer trade relations were not received in a spirit of frank mutuality.—Brantford Expositor.

MR. STEVENS IN THE PULPIT.

When the Hon. H. H. Stevens spoke from a Toronto pulpit recently he revealed more definitely than in previous public utterances that he believes that Big Business is evil merely because it is big. The Minister of Trade and Commerce evidently thinks that the old personal relationship between employer and employee is preferable to a relationship where a remote board of directors decides on wages and employment policies.

This assumption doubtless is resented by scores of high-minded executives throughout the country because there is plenty of evidence that the man or woman employed by most of our largest institutions is better off than the man or woman who works for the small employer who cannot afford to maintain pension schemes and regularized sick benefits.

Consider only a few of those huge corporations whose activities have not (as this is written) come within the inquisitorial scope of the Stevens Committee. First come to mind the railways, employers of tens of thousands, where moderate attention to duty and continuous service earn a pension for the man or woman. Next are the banks, accused frequently of paying a low initial wage, but which never dismiss an employee for anything short of gross negligence or irregularity, which do not lower salaries progressively as efficiency declines and which have adequate pension schemes. Employees of insurance companies are similarly well treated. And Imperial Oil Limited, to mention what is reputed to be Canada's largest industrial organization, likewise has a retirement scheme which gives the old employee enough on which to live in his or her declining years, no matter how great the improvidence or stock-market losses in the period of employment.

There are individual employers who treat their workers well. An individual can make new rules to fit an individual case of a faithful employee, while a great corporation sometimes feels that it must adhere to, say, a rule, that for illness, full pay cannot be continued for more than two or three weeks. But at the head of the big companies are men who are blessed with as much humanity as will be found elsewhere and there frequently are instances when department managers and boards of directors have interpreted rules and regulation in such a manner as to give an employee more personal aid and comfort than that employee expected, or had any right to expect.

Condemnation of big business because it is big is as reasonable as condemning all politicians because, now and then, graft is discovered.—From "The Printed Word" published by Rielle Thomson & J. G. Johnston, July.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Captain Philpott has once again retired from politics, which makes it necessary for the C.C.F. to decrisis fraught with the greatest danger.

With Europe ready to explode at any moment, the assassination of Chancellor Dollfus has created a crisis fraught with the greatest danger.

Liquor Control Commissioner Odette says he has had no complaints in regard to the sale of beer. Rev. Ben. H. Spence cannot be on his list of correspondents.

The Financial Post suggests the appointment of Mr. Drury to one of the Hydro commissionships. The suggestion is a good one. Mr. Drury's membership on this commission would be a guarantee that the interest of the whole province in the Hydro undertaking would receive attention. At present the cities get the cream of the benefit from the great public ownership enterprise, while the small towns and rural districts have to get along with the skim-milk."—Goderich Signal.

SHOULD RETAIN SERVICES.

Dear Editor,—

I wonder if the people of Peterborough would like to know that the young lady who has been released from duties as the stenographer to the district officer of health, also did the duties of about three people and was being paid for one of these positions only. Her duties as stenographer in the health laboratory in the city buildings entailed doing the stenography work for the laboratory itself, all the clinic work and the work for Dr. Waite, (as doctor in charge of the laboratory), as well as the work for Dr. Sutton.

Some job, I would call it, and I am just wondering what these other three departments are going to do for a stenographer in the future. Surely there is a need for one. I for one suggest that Miss McNaughton's services should be retained.

CRUDE WAY OF HANDLING DYNAMITE

Editor of The Examiner,

Sir.—In reading the inquest into the death of Edward Tait who was fatally injured by a premature explosion of dynamite while blasting rock on the new Burleigh-Apsley road, I was amazed at the crude and unexperienced methods in which high explosives such as dynamite were put to use. Dynamite, while of a dangerous and perilous nature, can be handled with perfect safety if kept free from shock or excessive heat, i. e. that it doesn't receive a blow or placed where the hand cannot be borne comfortably. Experience is only necessary to determine where and the quantity of explosives to be used. My experience with dynamite is that it is unnecessary after the charge is placed in the hole to ram in material of any discription. Dry sand may be run into the hole, or it may be filled with water. If the latter be used care should be exercised to see no water gets into the cap and render it useless, by placing a piece of tallow or other substance around the detonater where the fuse is inserted. The fuse should be of sufficient length to reach the surface of the hole in order that when everything is in perect readiness it can be lighted and the party may reach a place of safety before the explosion. Wherever possible the battery should be used—one of the magneto type. This practise reduces all possible accidents to a minimum and installs greater confidence in the party entrusted to perform such a hazardous task.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

MANIWAKI, QUEBEC.

This town is situated on an Indian reserve given to the Algonquin tribe, so that it is fitting that the Indians should have had something to say about naming it, although the Oblate Fathers, who were the real founders of the village, gave it a name.

They called it "Land of Mary," as they were under the patronage of the Blessed Virgin Mary. The Indian translation of this couplet was spelled "Maniwaki," so we have the spectacle of a French expression, translated into Indian, being used to christen a town.

People of England spent nearly $5,000,000 in the last year on "lucky charms" and various forms of fortune telling.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

WASHINGTON

THE number of officials, and semi-officials, hangers-on about political Washington is a subject of unfavorable comment. Morgenthau Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, has sent home a group of men called to his aid and has summoned a new batch of financiers to Washington. He has been searching the universities for trained business men as advisers. The greatest United States financiers of the present and of the past never saw the inside of a university. Where did John D. Rockfeller get his training? Some time ago Morgenthau called to Washington Professor Groves of Madison, Wisconsin. Groves has won for himself and for his university a reputation any man might well covet to win. But his views were not in agreement with those held by Morgenthau, Jr. Cold treatment took the place of the warm welcome given him on his arrival in Washington. Infra dignitatum took the place of honor. Groves was humiliated. He left the Capital with a wounded heart. His Wisconsin friends have not forgotten. A fierce windstorm shakes the dead wood to the ground. When this occurs the trees have a feeling of relief. Refreshed life flows through trunk, and branch, and leaf. The N.R.A has been given a good shake. Faces that had become familiar to Washington residents suddenly disappeared. Strangers are now in the places they occupied. Every one of the New Deal agencies have been given a shake. Men who came with high expectations have returned the way they came, but wiser.

One man will be greatly missed. He was head of the National Emergency Council. He was efficient. Things came to pass with his counsel. F. Walker was modest, unassuming, quiet. He had a will of his own. Neither Johnson nor Morganthau could lead him by the nose. And so he had to go. As a Dictator, of what shall be done, and how General Johnson has reached the end of the way.

ALBANIA

On such days as we are living through the striking of a match is noise enough to awaken the fear of the most powerful of nations. For nineteen war vessels and six cruisers to steam into the Albanian port of Durazzo shook that wee nation like an earthquake. The news was flashed to all parts of Albania. The ruler and his cabinet kept their heads. The entrance of the port was an intrusion. There is such a thing as International Law. The Italian fleet with its show of force to steam into the port of Durazzo, unannounced, was a rude violation of International law. International courtesy stipulates that a salute be fired outside of the port of a foreign nation before entering. Before that, International Law demands that notification be given the foreign nation that a visit is intended before a start on the journey is begun by warships.

Instead of this procedure, the Italian line of battleships suddenly invaded Albanian waters. The battleships came in the night and there they were when the morning dawned. And behold, the Italian admiral landed and boldly walked to the offices of the civil and military authorities of the port of Durazzo. The Italian minister to Albania resides at Tirana. He was a rather arresting name. Pronounce it if you know how. Djafir is Albanian Minister of Foreign Affairs. That also is a name to juggle with. Djafir protested the action of the Italian government in sending the warships unannounced into Albanian waters. He boldly announced that such proceedings must cease if Italy wished to be at peace with Albania. Italian intrigue was behind the incident. Of this we will have more to say later.

ROCKY MOUNTAINS

FORTUNATE is the man who owns a mountain. Out in Utah and Colorado they will tell you so. The Federal government and these states have completed an extensive mineral finding survey. The Rocky Mountains in these states are laden with rich deposits of shale and coal. Both deposits are full of oil. The oil can be profitably developed. The find is one of the richest in the world. The survey and the experiments have extended over eight years. Oil, and gas, and gasoline, and coal await the investment of capital. The extent of the deposits surpasses in commercial value any other region, so far as is known, on the American continents. The shales extend over thousands of square miles.

The commercial value of the shale deposits are easily figured. One series of the shale twenty-five feet in thickness yields forty gallons of oil per ton. The thicker the shale deposits the less the yield per ton. One series fifty feet thick gives up thirty-two gallons per ton. Another seventy feet thick averages twenty-nine gallons per ton, and still another one hundred feet thick in every test has averaged twenty-five gallons per ton.

This story now reaches the high spot. Government engineers have experimented with apparatus and methods and find that oil can be produced from these various fields at fifty to seventy cents per barrel. Machinery to produce one thousand barrels per day can be purchased and set up and operated and the oil sold wholesale at that low price. If the find does not fall into the hands of speculators and is developed by the government for the welfare of the whole nation mineral oil, and gas, and gasoline prices will take a tumble. And the huge profits of private ownership will no longer burden the people. The struggle for ownership is on. Billions of private capital await the opportunity to purchase.

Oxford Group To Storm Bailieboro

The Oxford Group in Peterborough is on a pilgrimage to Bailieboro this week-end, starting off with a young people's rally this evening when the younger members of the local group will witness. This meeting will be held in the United Church in Bailieboro.

On Sunday morning two teams will take charge of the regular services in Fraserville and Bensford, both places being in the Bailieboro district. In the evening at the United Church in Bailieboro an augmented team will witness again to the saving power of Jesus Christ in changed lives.

Truly, the message of this Oxford Group movement in its unique way of presentation is arousing the genuine interest of the people of this city and district. And during the summer Sundays similar journeys will be undertaken to the towns and country places around Peterborough.

A Thought

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

WOLFE'S PROPHECY AT LOUISBOURG.

On this date, in 1758, the British, for the second time, captured the fortress of Louisbourg, Cape Breton, which it had taken the French 25 years to fortify at a cost of thirty million livres, and which was the gate to the St. Lawrence. Once it was secured, the control of the gulf was British and the fate of Quebec was inevitable. This was the second British capture of the fort. The first was in 1745, but then French diplomacy was stronger than British arms, Louisbourg being handed back to the French king by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle. But in 1758, there was no return. It was kept by the British and has so remained. Now a coal shipping port, its former glory as a battle ground is its partially restored outlines to remind visitors that once there was fought some of the most desperate battles in the world's history.

James Wolfe, who played a leading part in the final victory and was destined to be both the hero of Louisbourg and the victor of Quebec, made a remarkable prophecy in a letter to his mother written the day of the French surrender:

"North America will sometime hence be a vast empire—the seat of power and learning. There will grow a people out of our little spot, England, that will fill this vast space and divide this great portion of the globe with the Spaniard, who is possessed of the other half. It is my humble opinion that the French may be rooted out, if our government will follow the blows they have given and prosecute the war with the rigor it requires".

He did not foresee the division of British power through the American revolution; neither could he foresee that the French colonists in New France would become the firm bulwark of a British connection which gives them a freedom they could never have had under the sovereignty of France.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 87c to 92c; oats 35c to 38c; barey, 45c to 46c; corn, 77c to 80c; rye, 48c to 50c; buckwheat, 58c to 60c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Turned topsy-turby by unsettlement of the New York stock market, grain values underwent two severe smashes yesterday, one just before the day's dealings were ended.

At first most traders here construed European developments as a stimulus for higher prices on grains but jolted by tumbles of securities, such ideas were later treated in many quarters as more or less obsolete.

A maximum break of 3¾c a bushel from the day's top level for wheat was witnessed. This was afterward almost wholly overcome by big concentrated purchase orders from the East until a renewal of heavy selling ensued in the last few minutes.

Wheat closed nervous, 1¼c to 2⅝c under Wednesday's finish; corn, ⅞c to ⅞c down; oats, ⅛c to ⅞c off, and provisions at 5c decline.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Eggs and potatoes displayed firmer price tendencies on the Montreal Produce and airy Market yesterday.

On the egg market, demand was heavy, with a consequent price advance. Graded shipments in cartons or less were quoted at 21c to 22c a dozen for A large, against 20c to 22c; 20c to 20½c for A medium, 19c for B and 18½c to 19c for C, up ½c. Receipts totalled 456 cases.

Potato prices were shaded 5c, new Quebecs being 45c to 50c per 80-pound bag. The decline reflects increasing arrivals.

Butter was unchanged in price, fresh No. 1 being quoted at 19¼c to 19½c a pound in cartons or less. Small lots to retailers were 20c a pound for solids and 21c for prints. Arrivals were 814 boxes.

The cheese market was quiet, prices remaining steady. Ontario colored continued to command 10¼c to 10½c a pound and Quebec cheese brought 10c a pound. Receipts were 2,924 boxes.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Wheat futures prices fluctuated erratically on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, reflecting the downturns at Chicago, and values closed 1⅝ to 1⅞ cents, lower, July at 83½c, October 84⅞ to 85c, December 86c and May at 89⅛c.

Pounded by selling in the late stages, futures dipped sharply to relinquish most of the ground that had been recovered from an earlier two-cent "break." Offerings poured in from Southern and Eastern interests, and the modest purchases that appeared from time to time were insufficient to stem the decline.

Lack of foreign interest in Canadian wheat also was a depressing factor. No figures were available for to-day's export sales, but it was believed business was confined to only a few scattered loads. Political developments in Europe, it was said, restricted importers' requirements.

Private reports, however, indicated good prospective demand for Canada's wheat in the United Kingdom. Argentine wheat exports this week, it is anticipated, will show a 1,000,000-bushel decrease from last week's total, and only 48,000 bushels have been cleared from Black Sea ports.

Some demand was shown for top grades of wheat in the cash grain division, but this comprised most of the session's activity. Spreads on other varieties closed generally unchanged. Trading in coarse grains futures was featureless, prices turning lower in sympathy with wheat.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

TELL ME THIS.

I used to know a man quite well.
And I liked him.
He had had an interesting life. Lived all over the country. Done a great variety of things . . . Been up . . . Been down . . . Been around . . . And he was always amusing. He was intelligent and he had, I thought, a keen sense of humor about everything . . . He had talents, too. He could write, fight, sell things, tell a story well. And he had a new idea every day. Perhaps too many ideas. . . . I used to like it when he came into my office and sat down and told me stories or showed me the clever things he'd written . . . Any time I spent with him was worth every minute of it . . . He wasn't a friend, but he was an interesting acquaintance.

After a while he left town. He was going into business in another place, and for some months I didn't see much of him. Occasionally he'd come into town on a business trip and tell me how he was doing.

And after awhile I got the idea through him that his business wasn't doing very well . . . And a few months after I learned that, I found that he didn't have any business any more . . . It was tough. I was sorry for him . . . He was broke and I let him have a little money. Not much. He didn't ask for much. I was glad to let him have the money . . . Occasionally he borrowed a little more. Never paid any of it back. And I didn't expect him to . . . Only thing I didn't like was his dislike of the man who'd staked him to that business.

Soon he began to drop into the office every day, nearly, and sit down and talk. Even when I was working, he'd talk. Even though he could see I was busy he'd start telling me a story . . . I was irritably patient and polite, but I did ask myself once in a while why he didn't get off my neck . . . And I began to suspect, perhaps unjustly, that he came to see me just to "borrow" money . . . It came to a head one day when I had only fifteen minutes to write something in and he wanted to use the time for talk . . . I told him I HAD to write, had no time to talk. But he wouldn't stop. He laughed at my protests and kept on talking. . . . Finally the temper that's in me blew off the lid and I turned on him and expressed my feelings about a fellow who wouldn't let a man work in his own office . . . He flared back and stood up and said I'd be sorry for talking that way to him.

And out he went and I haven't seen him since . . . And I'm sorry for that because I had liked him, but I'm not sorry for telling him what I thought . . . Just between you and me and the lamp post, SHOULD I BE?

HUNTS GOLD AT 86.

WINNIPEG, July 27.—(C.P.) — William Alfred Preston, former Conservative member for Fort Frances,-Kenora in the Ontario Legislature, celebrated his 86th birthday to-day in a search for a lost gold mine in the Lake of the Woods area.

BOARD REFUSED

Octuplets!

CANTON, China, July 27 (AP)—The Chinese newspapers have accepted as true a report here that octuplets—seven boys and one girl—were born to the wife of Sam Ting, a poor Chinese boatman, and that the mother and children are in good health two months after the birth.

All efforts to verify this record multiple birth have proven unsuccessful so far as foreign correspondents are concerned, partly because the report states that the babies were born on a Chinese fishing junk, the exact location of which is not given beyond a statement that it is somewhere in the Pearl River delta.

MINE SECTION HOLDS STEADY

GOLDS FEATURE.

TORONTO, July 27 (CP).—The mining section of the Toronto Exchange scored a substantial recovery today from Thursday's low prices, thereby interrupting the wearing down of values that had been proceeding for more than a week. All groups, but mainly the golds, worked slowly higher through the first four hours and held fairly steady through the secondary reaction which developed on the New York Market around two o'clock. The mining tape slowed down when selling was proceeding in the course of profit-taking in the late afternoon.

New York, N.Y., July 27, 9:27 a.m.: While the market seems to have witnessed a true selling climax yesterday with both the Dow Jones, industrial and rail averages getting down not far from the October lows, it is still too early to conclude that the wave of liquidation has run its full course. It is quite probable that margin selling will precipitate further declines during the early part of today's session, with perhaps a technical rally before the close.

If one rule of a game is changed, players may quickly readjust themselves, but when a whole group of major rules are altered or modified, or in process of being formulated, confusion is bound to result and the game will either be slowed up or stopped. This is equally true of business and stock markets.

Just how serious the European situation may become no one can foretell, but until war clouds have been dissipated, sentiment will continue quite nervous. Those who wish to play for a trading rally should give particular attention to such stocks as American Can, Dupont, McIntyre, Cerro De Pasco) Johns-Manville, Dome, American Sugar, U. S. Smelting, Liggett & Myers and U. S. Steel.

BROKERS' OPINIONS.

E. A. Pierce: "We would not be willing to extend substantially market committments to the long side until a further successful test of the general position."

Jackson Bros.: "We entertain the view that the administration forces are alive to the effect on public sentiment of the recent declines in equities and leading business barometers and that activities to counteract depressing influences will be in evidence should the emergency demand it.

Waldo Young: "War scare market tops 3 million shares. Decline will be halted today. After all is said and done fact remains that for every share of stock that was sold on the exchange there was a buyer and even if some of the sellers were panicky, the buyers were cool and deliberate or they would not have been buyers. When General Motors fell to 25 yesterday, some interests took 32,000 shares in two lots and thereafter threw out the last hour "GM" changed hands in a quarter point range from 24 3-4 to 25 in thousand share blocks. Total transactions this one stock was 145,000 shares. If war fright continues today there will be buying of equal importance in stocks of importance. I reason that if the market were to become demoralized on this news and fear of unknown news it would have been more demoralizing yesterday. On any further deluge of selling would buy stocks for a trading rally. The market has been declining a week without a rally of consequence and development of a sold-out condition is only a matter of time. perhaps hours.

TOO RED SAY THOMASITES OF HUNGER MARCHERS

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 27 (CP). —"Too red for us," was the explanation offered by Arthur Gardner, president of the St. Thomas Unemployed Association, and C. B. Grass, for their desertion of the hunger march to Toronto and their return to the city Thursday evening.

"I may be accused of being yellow for not going on with that bunch, but I'd rather be called yellow than red," Mr. Gardner said this morning, in relating his experiences to Mayor A. W. Johnson, Inspector C. J. Watling and others at the City Hall. "Most of those fellows on their way to Toronto appear to be out and out Communists. Delegates from Windsor are wearing Communist badges, carrying the picture of Tim Buck and the Internationale. The Red marching song was sung repeatedly. Clarence Grass and I got as far as Brantford with them yesterday and then we decided we had had enough and left them."

by the Hepburn government today as the "big parade" of dismissed civil servants continued. The Provincial Archives was overhauled and an annual salary outlay of $17,700 was cut to $6,000, a saving of more than 50 percent. Col. Alexander Fraser, Provincial Archivist, will be superannuated and six other officials are being dismissed. The organization will mean no impairement of the service, the Premier said, and he hopes to keep the total annual cost of the Archives under $8,000.

Economies were also affected in the Health Department as a general revision started there. The division of dental services was merged with the division of child hygiene and Dr. Fred J. Conboy, Director of Dental Services who drew a salary of $4,000 and some other allowances was dismissed. Miss Inkster in the dental services division was also let go.

Premier Hepburn reiterated the Government's determination to spend no money on exhibits at fall fairs this year. He admitted this would raise a "storm of protest" but said the taxpayers would approve.

LINDSAY, Ont., July 27.—(Special to The Examiner.)—The warehouse owned by Tony Bakogeorge, wholesale tobacconist, situated at his residence, Wellington street, was broken into during the night and 50,000 cigarettes stolen. The thieves bored a hole in the door of the warehouse, pushing an arm through and turned the lock. Before commencing opeartions they cut the telephone wire leading to the Bakogeorge home. The cigarettes were carried to a car which had been parked on a lawn in front of a vacant house adjoining the Bakogeorge home. The cartons were opened and contents dumped in the car. The loss is placed at $1,500.

Firemen said the fire would probably continue throughout the day. The Atenas was scheduled to sail at noon. She carried a cargo of general merchandise.

PLOT LEAKS OUT

Even the official Austrian News Agency was unable to get calls through to officials within Ballhausplatz. The call by the Associated Press representative apparently was the last made to any official.

The public telephone lines through the Chancellory operator were open, but the operator told all callers that for the time it was impossible to reach officials.

Von Papen Sign of Peace?

The chief propaganda ammunition was the announcement that Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany ,originator of the Nazi movement, had named Germany's Vice Chancellor, Franz Von Papen, as Minister to Austria. Von Papen, who is a non-Nazi and a Conservative, is to replace the Nazi Minister Kurt Rieth, whom Hitler recalled from Vienna because he had mixed in internal Austrian matters.

The announcement of Von Papen's new mission was received with satisfaction by the Vienna press and the Austrian Government saw to it that Nazis under arms were informed of the development in the hope they would decide no aid could be expected from Germany.

Italy took no chances, however, and Premier Mussolini, originator of the Fascist movement, held 48,000 Italian soldiers on the border, ready to move across at a moment's notice, with equally large reinforcements standing close by.

In Paris, the French Foreign Office said the assassination of Dollfuss had wrecked Nazi hopes for sympathy and control of Austria.

It was indicated that France, Great Britain, and Italy mean business in their joint declaration that the independence of Austria will be preserved.

The Parisian attitude corresponded exactly to that which was expressed yesterday in London, where the Foreign Office watched Austrian developments closely, but calmly.

Strife-Torn Nation

Whole sections of the country were reported in a state approaching anarchy.

In Vienna itself heavy cordons of Fascist Heimwehr troops were drawn around the districts in which are the most important Government buildings.

Machine gun companies mounted their weapons on the roof of the "Hochhaus," Vienna's skyscraper, giving the guns a position of command over the Federal Chancellery on the Ballhausplatz. The Ballhausplatz itself was jammed with Heimwehr troops.

All Government buildings were hurriedly supplied with candles as an evidence of fear that the electric supply may be cut off.

At Heimwehr headquarters in the closely-guarded Renngasse petitions for reinforcements were constantly arriving from Carinthia.

The last SOS message made an urgent demand that all men available be sent immediately to Carinthia where the Nazis apparently were making big gains.

Heavy Losses

Officers in the Heimwehr headquarters estimated that 180 Heimwehr men had been killed in Austria by last midnight.

This estimate did not include the casualties in the regular army, in the police, in the gendarmerie and among the Nazis.

This same source estimated that the Nazis had lost 2,000 dead and wounded.

All death estimates at present are unreliable, but the best sources indicated that the aggregate death total of all forces including the Nazis already has greatly exceeded 500.

The commanders of the Heimwehr were considerably embarassed by the fact that 6,000 of their armed men were concentrated to-day in Vienna and were urgently needed here. Therefore it is impossible for them to send reinforcements to Carinthia.

Unverified reports said Nazis were congregating in the railway station outside the inner city, intending a surprise attack on the inner city.

Ambushed

"Soldiers were mowed down like pigeons at Leoben" an officer said. One group fell into an ambush at 11 a.m. yesterday when crossing a bridge into the city's border. The Nazis, however, shot at legs, not to kill.

All hospitals here and in neighboring villages are jammed. Many bullet marks can be seen on buildings. Terror was written on the faces of townspeople.

Nazis were in control of Leoben Thursday morning. When the army and Heimwehr advanced some of the Nazis remained, and others took positions ont our wooded hills which dominate the city.

Artillery fire was directed against one of these hills behind a stone quarry.

The length of the engagement was due to the fact government forces, while in the majority had to fight Nazis within the city and attack the four hills as well.

One group of Nazis fired from a church tower which was riddled by government bullets.

Other Nazis fired from houses in which they took cover.

A heavy loss of life occurred when Heimwehr were repulsed in an attempt to storm a hill overlooking the Goesser brewery, the largest in Austria.

Two other hills in which there was fighting overlook Donnawitz where iron ore from the nearby mountain is refined. (Access to these iron mountains furnishes one of the chief reasons for Germany's desire for an Austro - German union.)

Surprise To Vienna.

VIENNA, July 27 (A.P.). — The appointment of Vice-Chancellor Franz Von Papen by Chancellor Adolf Hitler as Minister to Austria and special peacemaker between Germany and Austria was received here with much surprise.

Von Papen's appointment is unusual from a formal standpoint. All German foreign business is supposed to be done in the Wilhelmstrasse and ambassadors, ministers and consuls report by way of the Foreign Office. But Hitler has chosen to make Von Papen directly responsible to himself.

If Von Papen, whose relations with Koostantin Von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, have been strained since the Lausanne conference in 1932, so chooses he need send no report whatever by way of the German Foreign Office.

Moreover, Von Papen has apparently been appointed impulsively by Hitler without the customary step of asking the Austrian Government for its agreement.

The Vienese daily "Dieszunde" professes to see in this fact an attempt to deal with Austria as though it merely were a domestic department of Germany.

OFFICERS CLING

city. Jackson Park, Nicholls Oval and other places of a similar nature are stated on good authority to be favorite spots for courters and "spies" alike. In some instances it has been suggested young couples have even been subjected to petty blackmail.

A Lindsay Story

Peterborough is not the only city in which young couples are thus hounded. A recent report from Lindsay rumors that not long ago a resident of that town who had been allegedly spying on courters was summarily dealt with by six men and was so badly beaten up that he spent some time in hospital.

The report has it that following complaints against the "spy", three men dressed as women accompanied three other male companions to the scene where "spying" operations were known to have occurred. The "spy" took the bait and learned a lesson that he will not soon forget, it is stated.

Relatives of Meharry are known to favor the theory held by the police as the only possible solution of the mystery connected with the slaying.

George Meharry nephew of the dead man told The Examiner that so far as he knew Meharry had no enemies. He could think of no other explanation for the killing other than that Meharry got into a fight with someone who thought he was being spied on.

Relatives Skeptical

"I do not know what progress the police are making with the investigation", Mr. Meharry replied in answer to The Examiner. "It seems to me that they are unable to get a start, but I believe they are doing all they can to clear the matter up."

While a reporter chatted with Mr. Meharry outside the police station this morning other relatives of the dead man including his son and two sons-in-law were closeted with the police chief. During the forenoon the group of relatives made two visits to the police office and on the second occasion were in conference with the chief constable for a lengthy period of time. Detectives William Meagher and William Piercy also made one or two excursions in the police car supposedly in the course of their investigation into the mystery.

Three Held For Drinking

Among those who occupied the cells at the lock-up last night was a local young woman and two young men. The trio were arrested at Burnham's Point and had been drinking.

This morning the girl who was the only one of the trio to be charged before the magistrate was remanded in custody as a vagrant until Monday next. One of her young companions was given his release, while the other was detained in the detectives room at the station presumably for questioning.

A suggestion by The Examiner that the trio were in any way suspected of connection with the Meharry affair was given denial by the police.

PEACE AND WAR STRUGGLE HARD FOR UPPER HAND

Austrian Press and Government Hail Von Papen's Coming as Hopeful Sign.

BUT FIGHTING GOES ON.

By WADE WERNER

(Associated Press Foreign Staff) [Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press].

VIENNA, Juy 27.—Peace and war wrestled spectacularly in Austria to-day.

"Peace! Peace!" screamed the bannerlines of extra editions of newspapers carrying Hitler's letter to Von Papen.

"War! War!" roared the artillery bombarding Nazi positions in the provinces.

"Cease fighting—Von Papen is coming,' pleaded the telephone wires reaching into distant villages and rocky fastnesses.

"Revenge! Death! Revenge!" rattled machine-guns echoing hellishly down the narrow streets of picturesque Carinthian towns within a taxi ride of the troop-crowded Italian and Yugoslav borders.

"Hitler makes peace with Austria!" fluttered down upon Nazi fighters and government troops from the clouds as government planes scattered leaflets with the hope of spreading the Hitler-Von Papen news before it was too late.

Laconic communiques informed Vienna:

"Motorized troops are rushing to Carinthia:
Twenty dead;
"Nine dead;
Thirty-six dead;'
"One hundred dead."

Hitler's Message

"My dear Herr Von Papen: In consequence of the events in Vienna . . . If possible to relieve the general tension . . . to re-establish normal relations between Austria and Germany . . . My unlimited confidence . . . go to Vienna . . ." groaned the Austrian official radio repeating again and again and again Hitler's letter to Von Papen.

"My son has been ordered to Carinthia," sobbed the mother of a young Austrian auxiliary officer as she called the Associated Press office early to-day.

"Pray God it means peace!" she exclaimed when told of Hitler's letter. "Enough of blood!"

"It means peace!" cried German citizens living in Austria.

"It looks like peace." diplomatic representatives of neutral countries said.

"We are hoping it is peace," a high ranking Austrian Nazi leader commented. "But time presses. Will the news get around in time."

HITLER MAKES VITAL DECISION

General Werner Von Blomberg, Reich Minister of Defence, and Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian Premier, but Von Papen himself attended the meeting at Bayreuth.

Particular significance was attached to participation of Van Blomberg in the Bayreuth conference.

It was reported persistently that had Hitler, on his fleeting visit here, been unable to prevent the march of the Austrian Legion toward Vienna the Reichswehr would have been called out to stop it.

Hitler was reported to be back at Beyreuth. In an official communique issued there it was said he had been absent only a few hours.

Air Service Director Welcomes Probe

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., July 27 (CP)—"We welcome any investigation of the Ontario Air Service," said Director W. Roy Maxwell today, when informed of the Ontario Government's intention to probe complaints made concerning the service.

"We are lookig forward to it," Capt. Maxwell added. "We keep our own ledgers here and base our yearly costs on the period from Nov. 1 to Oct. 31. These books are kept in the same way as those of any commercial concern. They show that the cost of flying was $96 an hour when we started and that it was $38 an hour last year. We have suggested before that these ledgers be examined."

GIRL WHOSE CAR KILLED MAN MUST NEVER DRIVE AGAIN

Manslaughter Conviction Also Brings a Six-Months' Prison Term

ADMITS DRINKING

Stafford. — A 23-year-old girl motorist, whose car had killed a man, was led weeping from the dock at Stafford assizes. Her mother became hysterical and she, too, was assisted out of court.

Mr. Justice Mackinnon had just sentenced Mary Jervis of Cannock to six months' imprisonment in the second division for manslaughter. He disqualified her for life from holding a driving licence.

The jury were absent an hour and a half. When they had delivered their verdict, with a recommendation to mercy, the sobbing girl cried to the judge, "Please, sir, don't send me to prison."

When, after the sentence, there were hysterical shrieks from Mrs. Jervis, her daughter cried out, "God help my poor mother!" Then she collapsed in the arms of two warderesses.

Heeds Mercy Plea

The judge, in passing sentence, said he had never heard a more appalling case of the kind. He had contemplated a far more severe sentence; but he would give effect to the jury's recommendation, and diminish it by half.

The charges against the girl were: Manslaughter of Thomas Landers; doing bodily harm to two motorcyclists; and driving dangerously.

It was alleged that Miss Jervis, while driving with Mrs. Cresswell, a police-sergeant's wife, called at some public houses; and that on the return journey a pedestrian, Thomas Landers, was killed and the two motorcyclists seriously injured.

The girl, in evidence, said that she was ill during the drive and took some gin to relieve the pain. At one point on the return journey she felt a slight bump, but did not think anything had happened.

She admitted in cross-examination that she was not accustomed to alcohol, but that she had three bottles of beer, as well as the gin, during the drive.

CAN'T GET SERVANTS HUBBIES DO COOKING

"It's 'Osses' Work" Complains One Landlady's Spouse

Blackpool — Landladies here are solving the problem of the shortage of domestic servants by employing their husbands. They stamp hubby's health and unemployment insurance cards, too.

The wives, in many cases, are in control of the business and are mainly concerned with the financial and catering side, while the husbands help with the cooking and housework.

It is a hard life, too, for both of them. A big boarding-house is not easy to keep clean and manage, and in the words of one of these husband-domestics, "It's 'osses' work."

This was borne out recently by an employment committee statement that domestics were not easily obtainable here.

The girls complained that the work was too hard and the hours too long.

ROAD ACCIDENTS KILL 54,138 IN 8 YEARS

Dead and Injured Toll Exceeds Glasgow's Population

London.—On the roads of the British Isles, in the last eight years 54,138 people have been killed and 1,-325,704 injured—a total of 1,876,842.

This figure exceeds the population of Glasgow or Birmingham, and is three times the total British casualties during the Somme battles of 1916, which were the heaviest losses in any series of battles on the western front incurred by any allied army. In the whole of the South African war the British killed totalled only 5,000.

The January-June figures for this year show an increase on the figures for previous years, and each year the total is rising.

Danish Knight Was Greenhouse Pioneer

Waltham Abbey.—Hans Ove Larsen, a Danish knight, who a few years ago was visited by the King of Denmark, and was known as the "Tomato King," was found dead, hanging from the staircase rails at Quinton House.

Mr. Larsen came from Denmark forty-four years ago, and after studying horticulture at Kew Gardens, began growing tomatoes and cucumbers at Waltham, where he became one of the largest owners of glass houses and a pioneer of the industry. He grew 800 tons of tomatoes a year.

FIND RODEO PROMOTER GUILTLESS OF CRUELTY

Magistrate Awards Costs Against Society in 'Roping" Case

London.—Charges of cruelty to a steer during the rodeo at the White City were dismissed at West London police court.

The magistrate (W. J. H. Brodrick) awarded costs against the R.S.P.C.A., who prosecuted, on each of the two summonses.

"The real objection of the society," he said, "is to the competition. I cannot express any opinion on that except that this competition is not unlawful and I cannot stop it. If you are going to have competition you must have accidents. This is an accident. I do not think there was any absence of precaution either before or afterwards, and I am impressed further by the fact that no member of the public protested at the time or has come here to protest."

One summons was against Tex Austin, the promoter of the rodeo, and alleged that he caused a steer to be terrified or ill-treated. A Texas cowboy competitor, T. J. Richards, was accused of terrifying or ill-treating the steer. Both pleaded not guilty.

J. D. Cassels, K.C., explained that during a "breakaway roping" contest a steer was released from a pen at one end of the arena and a man on horseback chased it and attempted to lasso it.

On June 11, when six inspectors of the society were among the audience, a steer Richards was chasing crashed through the stout wire fencing around the arena and fell on its side, where it remained for some seconds.

It struggled to get up, but could only use its hind legs and fell again. After struggling a bit it managed to get one of its forelegs out and went on three legs.

BATH WATER MUST NOT EXCEED FIVE INCHES

Britain Acts as the Drought Situation Becomes Grave

London.—Owing to the continued drought Britishers must not use more than five inches of water in their bath.

Authorities in many parts of the country are now adding this to the growing list of drought "don'ts."

The water shortage peril is as great to-day as ever it was, despite a recent rainfall.

At Basingstoke (Hants) the corporation has introduced exceptionally stringent regulations.

With the approval of the minister of health it has issued a new order prohibiting the watering of gardens, tennis courts, lawns, bowling greens, recreation grounds and cricket pitches, as well as the washing of cars, the swilling down of yards and pavements and the operation of fountains.

The maximum penalty for a breach of these regulations is a fine of $250, or for a subsequent offence a fine of $250 and three months' imprisonment.

Mr. Percy Wiggins, chairman of the committee, said that the situation is serious and the recent rain will have little or no effect on the amount of water available for domestic use. Weeks of continuous rain are needed to bring supplies to anything like normal. In London there is grave anxiety.

BRITISH RAILWAYS INCREASE EARNINGS

Four Major Lines Do Bigger 1934 Business Though Costs Reduced

London. — British railways have earned £3,500,000 more in the first half of this year than in the same period of 1933.

Returns were issued recently by each of the groups.

Total earnings for the first 26 weeks of this year were £71,182,000. This is an increase of £3,532,000 on the same period of last year.

Details of the report follow:

	Receipts	Increase
L.M.S.	£29,751,000	£1,422,000
L.N.E.	£21,303,000	£1,479,000
G.W.R.	£11,835,000	£399,000
S.R.	£9,386,000	£232,000

The record increase in the series is returned by the L.M.S., whose receipts of £11,553,000 from merchandise were £1,013,000 more than those of last year. This company showed increases of £287,000 from coal and £122,000 from passenger traffic.

An official of the Railway Companies' Association stated that operating costs have been reduced appreciably compared with the past four years. It is anticipated that this year's earnings will be £9,000,000 more than those of last year.

CELT ROLLS HIS R'S TO WIN TOWN-CRIER CHAMPIONSHIP

Overcomes Tricky Aitches Defeating 26 Other "Oyez" Men

EACH SAYS "PIECE"

Marlborough.—Twenty-seven town criers, in bright liveries of another age, jangled their bells and gave tongue, contesting for the "Oyez" championship of England and Wales.

A Welshman, Gomer Thomas, from Abertridwr, won the championship—not for the first time.

Three other ex-champions competed, including W. B. Anglias, of Marlborough, holder of the record. He had been adjudged premier crier four times.

The contest was held on the football field, after the competitors had lunched with the mayor and had paraded the decorated streets of Marlborough.

Each crier had to "speak a piece" praising the health-giving air of the uplands around Marlborough, and its historic associations.

It was a difficult test, containing a number of initial aitches and other traps. But one of the judges, Mr. Titley, said that no single competitor tripped up over the word "honorable." Here the aitch was silent in every case.

Mr. Thomas, the new champion, being a Celt, rolled his "r's" as no one else did. He has been town crier of Abertridwr for twenty-four years.

Mr. Anglias won the prize for the best-dressed crier. He wore a royal blue coat and vest with red facings and bright buttons, royal blue velvet knee breeches, saxe blue stockings, a three-cornered black hat with silver braid, and buckled shoes.

DUKE-ELECT KEEPS SHOP

Marlborough's Heir Manages Provision House

London.—A peer who keeps a shop in Mayfair has succeeded to the title of Duke of Marlborough.

The ninth duke died at his London home, in Carlton House Terrace, at the age of 62. His heir, the Marquis of Blandford, has been for some time managing his own provision shop in Berkeley Square.

BREATHES INTO LUNGS TO SAVE 'DEAD' BABY

Doctor's Two-Hour Fight for Child's Life Termed "Miracle"

London.—Colin Brown, of Wakefield Rd., Tottenham, was born a month ago—apparently dead. His heart did not beat; he did not breathe.

Recently a reporter found him sleeping in his pram, to all appearances a normal healthy boy. He weighs over seven pounds and is gaining steadily.

Dr. Edward Baron attended the mother. The baby had all the appearance of being stillborn, but the doctor breathed into its lungs for half an hour until there was a flicker of life.

An injection of adrenalin (which stimulates the heart) was then given and breathing was resumed until Colin broke into a cry.

"It was a miracle," the baby's father, Frank E. Brown, declares. "Colin is strong and sturdy now and he owes his life entirely to Dr. Baron, whom we can never thank enough."

Nurse Howlett, of Thackeray Ave., Tottenham, who was first called in, said she had attended over 300 births and never known of a case like it. "The doctor worked for two hours before he brought it to life," she declared.

WHO PAYS FOR COW KILLED BY BALL?

Debate Whether Club or Golfer Should Make Good

Dover.—An interesting point is raised by the killing of a cow by a golf ball at St. Margaret's Bay Golf club.

Golfers want to know whether the striker of the ball or the golf club would be held liable should the owner of the cow seek compensation.

The secretary of St. Margaret's Bay club said: "Mr. W. J. Robinson, the club professional, was driving from the last tee, and the ball hit and killed the cow, which was only about 100 yards away.

"Nothing has been done about the accident yet. As Mr. Robinson is our professional, the onus would probably fall on the club, and in that case I understand that the matter would be covered by third-party insurance. The golf club rents the land from the farmer whose cow was killed and who grazes his cattle on the course."

It has not been unknown for sheep to be killed on golf courses, but birds are the chief sufferers. At Surbiton a ball killed two sparrows in flight. At Curzon Park club, Chester, an approach shot killed two wagtails.

GOLFER PLAYS 180 HOLES IN ONE DAY TO WIN BET

Covered Forty Miles But Carried Off $1,500 Wager

TOOK 889 STROKES

Kingsdown.—Captain George Morris won a wager of $1,500 by playing ten rounds on the Kingsdown golf links in 889 strokes in one day. The bet was that he would not do it in under 900 strokes.

Side bets totalled $15,000. To complete the golf marathon Captain Morris had to walk more than forty miles.

He started playing golf at 4 a.m., when visibility was only fifty yards. It was impossible to see where the ball landed. The captain and his caddie could only watch the direction it took and trust to luck to find it again.

Yet the first hole was done in four strokes and the second in five. During the whole ten gruelling rounds Thomas Adams, the caddie, carried the captain's clubs.

The only refreshment Captain Morris took during the first five rounds were a few drops of brandy and an egg and milk. His lunch consisted of ginger beer and lettuce.

Changed Shoes Twice

Twice he changed his shoes and socks. His feet grew sorely blistered. Every one was struck by his cheerfulness. Every time he holed the ball he cracked a joke.

In spite of the broiling sun Captain Morris refused to wear a hat. His costume consisted of a pair of flannel trousers and a colored shirt.

On the first seven rounds he was accompanied by Joe Robinson, the local professional and his son Charles. Then they gave it up, and friends from London took their places and kept the score.

Though his face was haggard and his eyes reflected the tiredness of his body—he had only had half an hour's sleep the night before—he continued to joke at every green.

In the last round but one Captain Morris speeded up his play. He took only an hour and a quarter for the eighteen holes with a respectable score of 85.

His handicap is 10, but for the purpose of the wager he started from scratch. These are his scores:

Round one, 86; round two, 85; round three, 84; round four, 88; round five 88; round six, 84; round seven, 97; round eight, 95; round nine, 85; round ten, 87.

SMOKE BOMB FALLS WHEN NOT INTENDED

Drops From Aeroplane, Narrowly Missing House

Beeford. — An explosive smoke bomb fell accidentally from a Royal Air Force bomber flying in Yorkshire, and missed a house by 20 feet, bursting on Bridlington-Hull main road within 20 yards of an approaching car and two road workers.

The car was immediately enveloped in dense smoke and the driver, O. Honor, of Hull, received a severe shock. He at first imagined that the engine of his car had exploded.

HEAVY STONE FALLS NEAR PEER'S CHILD

Believe Organ Reverberations Loosened Masonry

Warwick.—A heavy block of masonry crashed in St. Mark's church, just after the christening of Lord Brooke, son and heir of the Earl of Warwick.

He had been carried out by his mother, the twenty-one-year-old Countess of Warwick, formerly Miss Rose Bingham.

The piece of masonry fell on the floor a yard from where the baby was being nursed a minute before.

It is believed that reverberations of the organ during the playing of the "voluntary" caused the masonry to fall.

The ceremony was performed by the Bishop of Coventry, and the baby was given the name David Robin Francis Guy.

STOOD UNDER WATER TO SAVE WIFE, SONS

Father Supported Kin Though Head Was Foot Beneath Surface

Bexley Heath.—Police Sergeant Harold Glasby saved his wife and two boys from drowning by holding them up until help came, while he stood in water over his head. He lost his own life.

Witnesses of the fatality had no idea that a six foot man had been standing in water seven feet deep and holding up his wife and boys till help came, but Mrs. Glasby's evidence at the inquest showed that this was so.

"My husband stood on the bottom," she told the coroner. "I knew that as I went down. He held the boys and then he held me. The water was over his head, but he had his arms round me and round the boys, too."

The story of heroism was confirmed by Dr. W. A. Rogerson, who said that on examining the body he missed some of the usual signs of drowning and made a post-mortem. He found that death was due to asphyxia by drowning aggravated by exhaustion. The air passages were free from mud or weeds.

He came to the conclusion that the effort of supporting his children and wife exhausted the man, and when he went down he could not come up again.

THINK RADIO PIRATES USE FORBIDDEN WAVES

One "Voice" Cut "Story" on Wife's Arrival

Norwich.—More mysterious broadcasts which are assumed to come from Norfolk are being investigated by the post-office authorities.

There have been several of these broadcasts recently. On one morning listeners at Norwich heard clearly a conversation between two persons in the Norfolk dialect. This took place on a forbidden wave-length of between 300 and 400 metres. One "voice" said to another: "I can hear you perfectly. We only want an Oxford accent now to be as good as the B.B.C. Listen to my dog barking. I will tell you a story, but I hear my wife coming."

DAUGHTER PROVES FATHER INNOCENT OF WIFE'S DEATH

Successful in Freeing Parent Imprisoned Fifteen Years

PUZZLING CRIME

Prague.—After spending fifteen years of a life sentence for murder in the Straubing (Bavaria) jail, a convict has just been set free by the devotion of his illegitimate daughter, who has proved his innocence.

The man, a 54-year-old basket maker named Lorenz Rettenback, was accused of the murder of his wife.

On December 1, 1918, he sent her to a neighboring village to deliver a basket, and she was later found dead in the forest.

As she held a bank note in her hand, robbery was ruled out as a motive.

But she was known to have violent quarrels with her husband over his infidelity, and in June, 1919, he was sentenced to life-long imprisonment for her murder.

In prison, Rettenback still protested his innocence, but the difficulty was that no one else could be pointed to who had a motive for killing his wife.

Even if he did not shoot the woman himself, the authorities argued, he must have hired someone else to do so.

Finally, the efforts of his counsel found another person interested in the death. This was Rettenback's housekeeper.

The pair had a daughter, who was a child at the time of the crime, but is now a grown-up woman.

When Rettenback's lawyer told her how her father had been kept in jail fifteen years for the murder, she at once supplied the clue to his innocence.

The housekeeper had been desperately jealous of Frau Rettenback, and the day before the murder she had urgently sent for a cousin, a soldier just returned from the war.

The pair had plotted that the cousin should lie in wait for Rettenback's wife next time she went into the forest and kill her.

The housekeeper had been conveniently "ill" at the time of Rettenback's trial, so that she was never called on to give evidence.

UNEARTH FOREST REMAINS

Cherbourg.—Remains of what was once a huge under-sea forest have been discovered on the west coast of the Contentin Peninsula, between the seaside resorts of Flamanville and Rozel. Lodged among the rocks have been found huge tree trunks, many of them six feet in diameter and 60 feet long. Foliage is still recognisable and beneath the trees there is vegetable earth.

COUNT SHARES ROOM WITH HIS OWN HORSE

Royal Wanderer Is Discovered Slain

Sarajevo—One of the most extraordinary characters in Jugoslavia, Count Djedushitzki, has been found murdered. His manservant, a young Albanian, has been arrested and charged with the crime.

The count was reputed to have hoarded vast quantities of gold and jewels, but a search of the house has failed to reveal any trace of them.

Many years ago he quarrelled with his family because of his eccentric ways and became a homeless wanderer over the face of Europe. Wherever he went he insisted on sharing his room with his horse.

SPLASH EACH OTHER TO BREAK DROUGHT

Ancient Rain Rites Arouses Ire of Communists

Moscow. — Mass prayers, processions, "splashing ceremonies" and even sacrifice of animals were resorted to by peasants in various regions of the Soviet Union in the hope of bringing rain to end the serious drought, according to Bezbosnik, organ of the Society of Militant Godless, which thundered out in the manner of one of the major prophets against this "return to superstition."

The anti-religious newspaper was especially incensed by the news of a ceremony conducted by Mahommedan mullahs (priests) of the village of Gubden, in Soviet Daghestan, in which 112 sheep and two cows were sacrificed to Allah with a prayer that he would water the parched fields. The local authorities of the Communist party, according to Bezbosnik, were apathetic in the face of "this disgraceful performance."

"Bezbosnik" also reported that "wet days" or "splashing ceremonies" were held in a number of villages. In the village of Durovka, in the black earth region of central Russia, the chairman of the Red Star collective farm organized such a ceremony.

"The collective farmers," Bezbosnik continued, "were seen running about the village with buckets of dirty water which they splashed upon every one who came their way. According to an old superstition, this ceremony helps to bring rain."

SISTERS FIND SELVES WED TO SAME MAN

Discovery Uncovers Marriage Frauds and Spoils Dinner Party

Paris—Over an area extending from Marseilles to Paris, officers of the French Scotland Yard are searching for three men and two women who are said to represent the stage army used by a fraudulent matrimonial agency to bring off about 500 marriages with the aid of forged identity papers.

The bogus agency is said to have advertised extensively, though quietly, in selected journals undertaking to put persons desiring life partners into touch with each other.

If a woman registered she was introduced to one of the three men, always under a different name, and if the applicant were a man he was recommended one of the two women in the agency.

If the end desired could be obtained without going through a marriage ceremony, the bogus clients were content to scoop the pool and clear off.

Wed, If Necessary

But, where it was necessary to go through to the bitter end to despoil the intended victim, there was no reluctance to go through a marriage ceremony with the aid of forged identity papers.

This trick in France or Belgium renders a bigamy charge almost impossible, because proceedings can only be taken against the person described on the papers presented to the registrar at the ceremony.

Even if the culprit is traced, he is able to establish that his name is different entirely, and if a jury convicted, the conviction would be set aside on technical grounds by the high court.

The authorities, however, have now decided to proceed against the enterprising quintet for fraud, following the complaints of two sisters, who, unknown to each other, married the same man in different names.

The trick was discovered when one of the sisters invited her sister to spring a little surprise on the husbands by arranging a dinner at which all four could meet.

The husband in each case was to be told that the other guests were to be friends. When the hour arrived the surprise was greater than the sisters had bargained for, because it was found that there was only one husband for them both!

FARMER RICHER BY $250,000 THANKS TO WIFE'S JUDGMENT

Woman Staved Off Gold Interests Until Ready to Sell Claims

LIVED IN MUD HUT

Nairobi.—A woman's wit pitted against the big financiers of the gold-mining world . . . a poverty-stricken farmer's wife whose clever judgment has brought her husband a fortune of $250,000.

That is the story that lies behind the announcement made recently that 75 claims belonging to a Kenya farmer named Musgrave have been bought outright for $250,000 on behalf of Tanganyika Concessions and the Eldoret Mining Syndicate.

Farmer Musgrave, impoverished, found himself facing huge difficulties common to all farmers in the present depression. He decided to try his luck at Kakamega.

Going there, he was one of the first to peg claims near the concession area granted two years ago to the Eldoret Mining Syndicate.

He and his pretty young wife lived in a mud hut with a thatched roof on the goldfield. But they were buoyed up with a great hope.

At last Musgrave found what he sought—gold; clear evidence of a valuable reef.

Wife "Business Head"

Thenceforward Mrs. Musgrave took matters into her hands. For two years, on her advice, her husband staved off every offer for his claims, every approach made by various big groups.

Finally came the offer which satisfied Mr. and Mrs. Musgrave and they agreed to give an option to the syndicate which has now bought the claims.

Mrs. Musgrave has now taken her husband for a holiday in the south.

On behalf of Tanganyika Concessions, a new subsidiary company, called East African Concessions, with a capital of $300,000, has been registered in Nairobi, for the purpose of buying further interests in Kakamega.

LOVED SAME MAN THREE GIRLS SUICIDE

Budapest. — Three girls living in Ujkecske, all desperately in love with the same young man, signed a suicide pact. The next day two were dead and the third, although unconscious, was saved. She eluded her rescuers, however, hid herself in the vineyard, and was found hanged the next morning.

The youth now divides his bouquets between the three graves.

TRIP TO MOON FATAL IF SPEED TOO GREAT

Professor Claims Journey Could Be Made in 2 Days

Paris.—The possibility of a voyage in a rocket conveyance propelled by radium which would travel to the moon in 48 hours 58 seconds has been set forth in a calculation completed by Professor Isidore Bay, director of the Astronomical Society of Lyons.

In order for a rocket projectile to leave the sphere of attraction of the earth, Professor Bay explains, it would be necessary to attain a speed of 12,000 meters a second. This could be done by the use of radium, he has estimated, but it would be necessary to increase speed gradually in order that passengers might not be killed by shock.

REARED AMONG DOGS BOY THINKS SELF ONE

Police Find Six-Year-Old With Wrists Cut by Cords

Bois-Colombes.—Guy de Sibias, six years old, thought he was a dog.

That was what the police discovered when passersby brought the little boy, his wrists wounded by cords with which he had been tied and his face swollen from blows, to the police station after he had run away from home, where he was beaten, punished and often half-fed and had been brought up like a dog in a house filled with dogs and birds.

When the police commissar asked him if he had any brothers and sisters, he said, "Yes, many of them. I love them very much. There are black ones and white ones, big ones and little ones."

So the police investigated and discovered that Guy was the illegitimate son of Nelly Doumet de Sibias, who did not know the name of the boy's father, and that he lived with his mother and grandmother in a house given over mostly to the birds and dogs which his grandmother raised. He had been brought up like a dog, and thought he was one of them.

HOAXED INTO 'BUYING' HUGE TRAJAN COLUMN

American Paid Stranger $100,-000 for Right to Move Relic

Rome.—An ingenious swindler, who is still at liberty, has made the whole of Italy laugh.

The story came to light when a Mr. Gardner, an American business man, engaged a number of engineers and some hundreds of workmen, and ordered them to pull down the Trajan's Column, with a view to taking the building to the United States.

Trajan's Column is one of the most precious architectural relics in Rome. It was built by the Roman emperor, Marcus Ulpius Trajan, and, quite apart from its historical associations, its purely artistic value is such that it cannot be expressed in terms of money.

When the Italian engineers refused to touch the Column, Mr. Gardner showed them an apparently genuine permit from the ministry of the interior, bearing the appropriate signatures and an imposing seal.

There were two copies of the document, one in Italian and one in English, and both stated clearly that Mr. Gardner, in consideration of the payment of $100,000, was entitled to remove the Trajan's Column to the United States.

But the Italian engineers remained sceptical and communicated with the police. Then it was found that the American had been victimized.

It appears that Mr. Gardner went to Rome about a year ago to buy art treasures.

He mentioned this to an Italian "nobleman" whom he had met at a hotel, and the stranger suggested a tour of Rome, with a view to selecting something suitable.

Trajan's Column was one of the buildings inspected, and as the American expressed his admiration of this ancient monument, the stranger suggested that it was available at a price.

There followed visits to the ministry of the interior, where Mr. Gardner was made to wait in anterooms while his new-found friend talked to high officials.

Eventually the Italian "nobleman" collected from Mr. Gardner $100,000 as the price of the monument and an additional $5,000 as his own commission, and handed over the "official" documents authorizing the American to take away his purchase.

The documents, however, stipulated that demolition must not be begun for six months, and the stranger explained that this was due to "certain political conversations."

RECEIVES SMALLEST BOOK

Had to Set Type at Night for Fear of Vibration

London.—The Bodleian library at Oxford has been presented with a copy of what is said to be the smallest book in the world, through the kind offices of Henry H. Chamberlin, American poet. It is a privately printed translation of the chief parts of the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam.

The volume measures one-quarter inch in height and three-sixteenths inch in width. It contains 34 pages, the size of the text on each page being three-thirty-seconds inch by five-thirty-seconds inch, weighing a grain and a half, bound in crimson morocco. The setting of the type was so delicate an operation that it had to be done at night when the vibration of traffic and office machinery had ceased.

OFFICERS SHOT AT

Bailiffs Return Fire When Ambushed by Gunmen

Toomebridge.—Gunmen hidden in bushes on the shore of Lough Neagh, near here, opened fire with rifles and revolvers on a party of fishery bailiffs and police who had arrived in boats.

The police replied, and for a few minutes a brisk battle took place. Then the gunmen fled.

The bailiffs, escorted by the police, had made a seizure of eels which, it is alleged, had been poached during the night, and they were ambushed as they were about to re-enter their boats.

WHOOPEE ON STREETS OF PARIS ARTISTS AND WRITERS PARADE

Exhibition Twice Yearly Depicts Life in History and Mythology.

TERMED SCANDALOUS.

By CORALIE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

PARIS, July 27.—Shortly after midnight—the street-lamps were burning half-force, so it must have been after midnight—an aged citizen stuck his nightcap-covered head out of a window on the narrow Rue des Saints Peres (Street of the Holy Fathers) here in the old Latin quarter, and, for a moment stood petrified like a statue as he contemplated the scene in the streets below. Such an infernal chaos presented itself to his eyes, such a deafening roar and racket smote his ears that he felt constrained to lean forward and call out: "Eh bien, c'est la revolution, ca, dites?" Say, is this the revolution?

For answer he was almost smothered under an avalanche of confetti, serpentines, paper-flowers, bottomless straw hats, puff-balloons and other festive knick-knacks of that sort. Even so, the aged citizen aforementioned did not draw back his venerable dome. He was getting an eye-full, so to speak, both literally and figuratively. And it was worth the risk. For what passed by his house was not the revolution, although that wouldn't have been so unusual in the Rue des Saints Peres. It was "La Horde de Montparnasse."

What is "La Horde de Mont parnasse"? It is an association of litterateurs, journalists, painters, sculptors, engravers, and their friends and models. Montparnasse is a quarter of Paris, which is dotted with studios and cafe. The Mount Parnassus in ancient Hellas, after which the quarter is named, was the dwelling place of the inspired poets, to whom the immortal gods—and goddesses—paid frequent friendly visits from the neighboring Mount Olympus. Pleasant week-ends!

Depict Ancient Gods

The Horde gives an exhibition twice a year of the works of art of its members. On the last night of the exhibition there is a ball. Before the ball or while the ball is in progress, a procession is staged through the streets. The students of the Sorbonne, who inhabit the same quarter, generally join themselves to the artists and models and so make the jubilee unanimous. On each occasion the festivities stand in token of a different historical or mythological event. This time it was decided to evoke the private life of the gay deities of Greece. Next time I understand, customs and habits of the North American Indians will be graphically represented. "The Indians as they were," is the official title. It will take a lot of red paint, I can see that now.

It is a well-known fact establish- masked actors is hypocrites. We call it manliness, gravery, equanimity, and I don't know what else.

The Parnassian gods of antiquity were scantily dressed. This was probably so because the sewing machine is a human invention and came much later in the day. It may also have been due to the temperate climate of their abode. The ed by reputable scholars from away back, that the private life of the gods, of antiquity would not have carried away the approbation of gentlemen, say, like the late-lamented Dr. Comstock. The trouble with those gods was on the whole that they were far too human. At that, you wil admit, it is pretty difficult to be simply human. Most people in this world wear masks, whether a smile or a growl. Most of us repress what is going on inside of us and put on a so-called brave face. The Greek word for "Horde", true to the old tradition had discarded its garments that night. But, I hear you say; does the police of Paris permit such things? Alas, Madame, the police of Paris does. What's more, or worse, the police enjoy the spectacle, just like the aged citizen aforementioned who refused to draw in his noble head. The police are human.

Police Refuse Ban

Some months ago a certain female newspaper editor in this town went to the Prefecture of Police and asked Monsieur Chiappe, the then boss in that institution, to clap a ban on the nudist demonstration of the "Horde" and the students.

"But, Madame," said the chief, "I always go to have a look myself. When is the next one? Tomorrow, you say? Ah, thank you, Madame, I had almost forgotten!"

"But I want you to forbid that demonstration," persisted the lady.

"Madame," replied the chief, "that is impossible, we have had those demonstrations since the tenth and the eleventh century when there were bishops and archdeacons sitting here in my place in the prefecture of police They did not stop them then. We cannot stop them now. Remember, Madame, some of us have also been young once. Moreover what harm is there? And then, you wouldn't want Paris to become an Anglo-Saxon blue Sunday affair, would you, now?"

"Why not?" snapped the lady. "I want decency. Why can't you forbid this scandalous demonstration?"

"Because, Madame," replied the prefect, "if we forbid those demonstrations the Anglo-Saxon tourists will no longer come here to spend their money!"

So the "Horde" had its parade. It is estimated that some fifteen thousand boys and girls participated. That some of the boys had whiskers and probably were grandfathers doesn't matter. Boys will be boys. Even if they get to be a hundred. Processions of that sort have a curious rejuvenating effect. It may be due to the champagne which flows in generous torrents on such nights. It may be something else. To see the immortal gods and goddesses of Helas back in the streets of a modern city, as if Noah's flood never had taken place, is something after all.

The "Horde" accompanied by a dozen accordeon-bands came down the Boulevard St. Michel about 10 in the evening. Painter, sculptors, writers, artist-models, students, midinettes, Parisians, provincials, Americans, Greeks, Egyptians, Roumanians, Chinese, Senegalese, Tahitians, San Salvadorians. There are sixteen thousand foreign students in Paris from 42 different countries. Among them are the future prime ministers of South American republics, ambassadors-extraordinary to this or that his majesty, and embryo-dictators of tumultous Balkan and sizzling-hot Near Eastern States. Who knows if there isn't an Irish Lenin amongst them, or a Canadian Trotsky? You can't tell the definite color of a baby's eyes till he's over a year. And sometimes not even then!

Rich Join Citizens

Naturally the chic with the cheques also come to Montparnasse on such evenings. Money and pleasure have no fatherland. They are more international than the League of Nations. Joy is contagious, more so than sorrow. The spectators are distinguished from the Horde-members in that they come in fancy costume—with masks. One sees ladies in bathing suits, in gowns once affected by Roman matrons. Messalinas, Pierrots, Charlie Chaplins, red dominos, blue, green, violet and purple, clinging gowns with little golden hearts embroidered in front. Enough hearts to go around a mass meeting. Thumping jass bands alternate with languid Viennese string orchestra and hectic Argentine tango ensembles under the lurid lights of the Salle Bullier, which is the centre of the festivities on such evenings—five thousand couples can dance on its floor. On other hot nights the Communists quarrel there, as to how to bar the road to Fascism when it comes, forgetting that it is already here. Sparkling eyes gleam through the masks; here dark-brown Latin pupils, there some green cat-like ogling is going on. Sometimes you see eyes so pale that they make you think of French thousand franc notes.

The Horde may not, this is an old tradition of Paris, cross the Seine. The grand boulevards are not to be scandalized. The bourgeoisie must not to be disturbed in its righteous slumbers. It's a law of Medes and Persians. This does not take away that thousands go bathing in the public fountains on the Place de la Concorde just before dawn and play leap-frog in the Bois de Bologne or on the soft-green lawns under the Eiffel Tower. That's also a tradition. You say the two traditions don't gibe. For the Bois is on the right bank. So it is. I can't help it, if traditions clash.

But at daylight the show must be over. Any nude figure found walking around after sunrise, is unceremoniously pushed into a taxicab and sent home. That's called mopping up. The police like the job. I said before that policemen are human. At seven the bourgeois early birds, going to work, look at the confetti on the streets and say: "Tiens il doit y avoir eu une noce hier soir!" Look there must have been a wedding here last night. A wedding? And how!

European Powers Ready to Act to Preserve Austrian Freedom

Concerted action by other European powers to prevent Austria from being made a German dependency by a Nazi coup is indicated, following "putsch" in which Emil Fey (1), minister of safety, and Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss (2) were captured and the latter killed in the Chancellory in Vienna, before which a crowd of demonstrators is shown. Kurt Schuschnigg (3) became acting chancellor and President Miklas (4), and Dr. Anton Rintelen (5), Nazi leader, became principal actors in the drama staged to the accompaniment of rattling machine guns. WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind;
But each shall cast the common weal—
The good of all mankind.

MILLBROOK.

A district picnic under Women's Institute auspices, held last Tuesday, found the branch which should have provided the program unable to attend, and the president of the hostess society found herself "up against it," as she said, to entertain the visitors—quite a considerable number—with something constructive outside the sports program.

"I shall have recourse to clippings which I always carry in my handbag," this resourceful woman declared, "and here is the daily paper, so between the two we will surely gain some information of value to homemakers, and from which we may each carry home an item or two that will prove of practical value."

From the clippings there was a message for the senior girls belonging to the branches represented. "You are all planning how much of a coat of tan you can acquire this summer, and that is all right, but remember that doctors advise that you add the tan gradually. That means exposing only a small portion of your bodies at first, and that for not longer than ten minutes. You may increase the area and the time after two or three days, making it, say, fifteen minutes, then a bit more as the days go on. Most people agree that a good coat of tan is both becoming and healthful, but it should be borne in mind that severe sunburn can be as dangerous as any other kind, and causes digestives disorders and fever. So for your holiday time and all summer have as your slogan, 'Moderation.'

"We no longer feel that we have to dose ourselves with sulphur and molasses every spring, as was done in the old days when it was impossible almost to procure fresh fruits and vegetables through the long winter months. Meat, bread, Oatmeal and other items of a heating diet were eaten in cold weather, practically exclusively. Now we use more milk, and all the year round may have an abundance of fruits and vegetables for daily menus. So, from the best health authorities we have assurance that the best spring tonic is more fruit, more vegetables, more sunshine, more sleep, and more fresh air; then Dame Nature will do the rest."

Discussion on the subject of diet followed, and one woman, delving into her handbag, brought out a clipping on her own account that supplemented something the president had been saying at the moment, and aded that pie, generally considered so injurious to health, is not necessarily so, "according to cooking experts, who say, if properly made and eaten at the proper time, is actually nutritious. Pies, rich shortcake and puddings of rich content may be eaten without ill-results if taken after a light vegetable meal, but never after a heavy dinner. Finish that kind of a meal off with a dessert of raw fruit or a very simple fruit pudding that will not tax the digestion, but bring its quota of nourishment."

In the closing moments of this section of the afternoon and before the sports began, the presiding officer had a warning on efficiency for the homemaker. "The efficient attitude of mind is really a balance wheel to the homemaker's entire life and work. Its end and aim is not a perfect system that ties the woman to her work with slave-like fidelity to keep up to schedule, allowing no time for reading a good book, or for an afternoon off with her husband, children or friends for an outing, or even for attending a good concert. That means a garbled sense of values.

"I call that wife and mother efficient who keeps her mind so clear that both her work and her system are her slaves, and she does not consider it a sacrilege to change her schedule and leave dishes unwashed and furniture undusted once in a while for a day off in the woods in the springtime, or for attendance at a picnic such as we are enjoying this afternoon, or for some other social and uplifting occasion."

"You never fail us," was the comment as the president was thanked.

low's advertisement in a Toronto paper and came from Orangeville on May 9th and stayed in his employ until Friday, July 13th. She stated that she had signed her name in Bigelow's notebook and that certain terms were then inserted whereby she was to work for $7 per month and not $10 as previously arranged. The sum of $10 had been paid and she was claiming the balance of similar amount.

Worked One Month

Regarding the first charge, George Cameron, of Emily township, testified that he had worked for Bigelow for one month, his time terminating on July 13th. "During that time, I had several conversations and Bigelow said that he would give good money to any man who would put a bullet through Palmer's head and blow his brains out. He had great animosity against Palmer and conversations on this subject took place repeatedly. Bigelow seemed to have had his worries on being mixed up in court matters. He understood that his wife was at Omemee and that Bigelow had said that Palmer was 'running around' with her.

Trouble Getting Pay

Cross-examined, Cameron related that he had experienced difficulty in getting his wages when leaving Bigelow's employ in July. "He didn't want to pay me. He got excited and lost his temper and dared me to hit him. I did not do so for fear of getting into trouble. He got the idea into his head that I wanted to so with his housekeeper."

"I told him" Cameron continued, "that I would get it before the day was over."

"Or take it out of his hide?" suggested Mr. Weldon.

"Oh, no," replied the witness," he said that I wouldn't get it. He asked me to hit him three times, and he put his fist under my nose. Bigelow cooled down and came back a few minutes later and said he could get another man and would pay me off."

Roy Howden, a brother-in-law of the accused, who resides near Omemee, stated that he had met Bigelow in Peterborough and Palmer figured in the conversation. "He said: 'I will kill that fellow or hire two men that will'."

"Are you friendly with Bigelow?"

"As long as he is with me."

"Are you now?"

"When he issues a writ on me for $2,000, I'm not very friendly."

"What is that for?"

"For slander as far as I know."

"And you didn't slander him?"

"No, I didn't."

Hattie Richardson, former housekeeper for Bigelow, related that she had conversations with him and he had said: "I will blow Palmer's head off, or get someone to do it, or else burn him out."

Witness added that she had heard these remarks every day she had been there from May 9th to July 13th.

"Did you have any trouble?"

"Not any more than to get my wages"

Witness told that when she was leaving, Bigelow said that he didn't have the money and she replied she would see a way of getting it.

Considerable delay was caused on the absence of Mrs. B. Ferguson, a housekeeper who had preceded Miss Richardson, and a motor brought her to court from her home at Hiawatha, Rice Lake, late in the afternoon. She had worked for Bigelow for two months. "He seemed very nervous. I paid no attention to anything he said. I couldn't say that he made threats."

McCAUGHRIN CASE TO BE INVESTIGATED

Justice Fisher is Appointed to Inquire Into Incident.

TORONTO, July 27.—The reopened injuiry in the McCaughrin case will be conducted by Mr. Justice Robert Grant Fisher, it was announced yesterday by Premier Mitchell Hepburn. He has been commissioned by the Government to investigate all matters growing out of and incidental to the appointment and resignation of ex-Magistrate Daniel McCaughrin of Orillia.

"This is one of the investigations into investigatons which we promised during the campaign," said Mr. Hepburn. "The Commissioner will report to the Attorney-General and it will be up to Mr. Roebuck to decide whether further action shall be taken."

Justice Fisher was out of town last night, but was expected back Tuesday. The investigation will probably get under way immediately after his return.

The McCaughrin affair arose from the Henry Government's removal last year of the Orillia Magistrate, who had been appointed during the Ferguson regime. With the knowledge of the then Attorney-General Price and Forests Minister Finlayson, an agreement was drawn between McCaughrin and his successor, Magistrate Howard Gover, of Coldwater. The agreemen' provided for the payment of $2,000, and was concluded, it was alleged, in Mr. Finlayson's office at Parliament Buildings.

The Globe drew public attention to the affair, and subsequently the matter was investigated by the Legislature's Committee on Legal Bills. That committee cleared the two Ministers in its report, but advised that a different method of arranging retiring allowances be pursued in the future.

Mr. Hepburn, in his campaign, claimed that the committee merely had "whitewashed" those concerned, and promised to reopen the inquiry. One of his early acts as Premier was to order the investigation and suspend Magistrate Gover.

OLD LANDMARK IS BEING REMOVED BY WRECKERS

Last Remaining Portion of Peter Hamilton Being Torn Down.

ADDITION TO WAREHOUSE

T. A. Brown Construction Co. Gets Contract to Erect Building.

The last remaining portion of the former residence of the late Peter Hamilton adjacent to the Brewery Warehouse on George street south is fast disappearing under the onslaughts of the wrecker's pickaxes. It is being removed to make way for extensive addition to the Brewery Warehouse, the contract for which is held by the T. A. Brown Construction Company.

The old red brick structure now being demolished is but a portion of the spacious residence in which the late Peter Hamilton, founder of the Peter Hamilton Company, Limited, and his family resided many years ago. The main part of the old residence, which was once regarded as one of the larger residences in Peterborough, was torn down some thirty years ago. Since that time the remaining portion of the building had been used as a storehouse.

With the loosening of restrictions governing the sale of beer in Ontario, the Brewery Warehouse found cause for expansion, and the addition, which is to cover an area of 36 by 67 feet, is to include refrigerated rooms for the storage of beer in cask and bottle.

Alderman James Hamilton recalled that the old home of his parents had once stood in its own spacious grounds which extended almost south as far as King street. There were many splendid maple trees on the property at one time, he said.

Remarking on the fact that it used to be common for manufacturers to build their residences adjacent to their factories, Alderman Hamilton said it was because the factory started to "crowd out" the home that his parents finally moved to another part of the city and tore down the main portion of the old home.

Built of Stone.

The main portion that was demolished some thirty years ago, he said, had been constructed of stone secured from the old quarry on Park Hill road, near Monaghan road, which used to provide much building material for many of the older properties here.

It is learned by The Examiner that the general contract held by the Brown Construction Company calling for completion by August 15, includes refrigerated storerooms occupying an area of 35 by 40 feet and divided into two sections.

One section of the refrigerator room is to be used for maintaining kegs of beer at an even temperature of 35 degrees, while the other section is to keep bottled stock at an even temperature of 45 degrees.

The present premises occupied by the warehouse are to be structurally altered and at the west end of the new addition a stock storage room is to be built, and at the south end of the present building business offices will be installed, and also another stock room for storage of beer and "empties."

In all the proposed adition, which is to be of all brick construction, will cover an area of 36 by 67 feet, according to John T. Hornsby, architect, by whom plans were prepared.

Sub-constracts are held by the following: John Smith, plumbing and heating; W. Gordon Hall, electric wiring.

The contract for the refrigerator plant has not yet been awarded.

Nazis, using a secret radio station, broadcast an appeal to all their supporters to join in overthrowing the government.

Artillery has been used by the government units in some sections. Mostly the troops are employing machine guns and hand grenades The Essenkapel was taken from the revolters.

A railway station at Bleiburg also was recovered from the Nazis who had occupied it.

Fascists claimed Rintelen was to have been made Chancellor had the Putsch been successful.

Vienna is still under martial law. Cafes are closed and the usual gay life of the city is no more.

The Government said firm measures would be taken with the 144 Nazis who stormed the Chancellory Wednesday and killed Dollfuss. They have been imprisoned in a military barracks.

Wild excitement was created in Vienna when extra editions of newspapers announced Chancellor Hitler of Germany had named Vice-Chancellor Franz Von Paper, Ambassador to Vienna.

The papers flatly ignored Government decrees banning headlines longer than seven inches in type and higher than one quarter inch.

"Chancellor Hitler Makes Peace With Austria," was the headline of the semi-official Reichpost.

(A Berlin dispatch said Von Papen had accepted the post).

An air of foreboding hangs about Vienna, although residents are mostly ignorant of what is going on in the provinces.

ORANGEMEN SCORE THREATENED MOVE

Ousting Governors Sever Ties Binding Dominion is View Expressed.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

HALIFAX, July 27.—Determined opposition to abolition of the office of Lieutenant-Governor in the Provinces of Canada was stressed yesterday in a resolution passed by the Grand Orange Lodge of British America, in annual session here.

Being of the opinion that "it would sever one of the ties binding this Dominion, and also be a violation of the Constitution," the members voiced "in the strongest possible manner" their objection to such a move.

The resolution was passed "in view of the threat evident in certain parts of the Dominion to abolish the office and function of the Lieutenant-Governors of the Provinces."

Members looked with concern upon the violation of the Constitution in such a move, claiming that "more than ever before, considering the subversive tendencies of the day, it needs to be upheld and preserved intact rather than impaired."

Insurance Survey Ordered By Hepburn

TORONTO, July 26 (C.P.)—A complete survey of all insurance carried by the Ontario Government will be made at once, Premier Mitchell Hepburn announced today. Angus German has been appointed to make the investigation without salary and it will include all departments and insurance covering automobiles, buildings, furniture and equipment.

"Patronage has been running wild in connection with insurance," said the premier. He had been informed the government could carry the same protection it now had and still reduce the cost of the insurance by one third.

PRESS BLAMES DOLLFUSS CASE NAZI GERMANY

Italian Paper Claims Assassination Preached Openly for Months.

LOOK TO LEAGUE.

"Time for Protests Past—Hitler Recognizes Only Force"—L'Echo, Paris.

(By The Canadian Press and Havas News Agency)

French and Italian newspapers were loud in their editorial protests against the Nazi assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria today.

"In the future," the Gazeta del Popolo at Rome declared, "our vigilance must be sharper, and perhaps it will be expedient to see whether certain measures of precaution are not necessary."

The Messagero declared that yesterday's events in the Austrian capital "did not succeed in shaking the solidity of the Austrian regime in the face of the inconceivable, intolerable determination of a foreign government (Nazi, Germany) to smother it."

The paper also observed "Nazi Germany went so far as to preach daily the assassination of Dollfuss."

Alluding to the death of Dollfuss as "a crime inspired and directed by Germany," the Figaro, in Paris, said: "The responsibility of the Hitler government is crushing. Europe will no longer tolerate such practices."

What About League?

"Can France, Britain, Italy, witness such piracy without a word? Will the League of Nations fold its arms?"

There was a broad hint of war in the comment of Le Journal, in Paris. Should the disappearance of Dollfuss from the political scene fail to be followed by a restoration of order in Austria, that paper observed, then the situation will be critical indeed.

"But Austrian independence will be maintained," the paper added. "Italy must be among the first to take measures of precaution and the troops in Trento are not far from Innsbruck. The Germans need but take one more false step."

Le Matin in Paris, said the Munich broadcast proved beyond doubt the responsibility of Germany. Le Petit Journal reviewed yesterday's events and said all Europe was not in a state of alarm.

L'Echo de Paris wrote: "The time for protests is passed. The Hitler forces will retreat only before brutal force—the entry into Austria of Italian and Czecho-Slovakian troops.

Forget Own Troubles.

The political significance of the death of Dollfuss so concerned most papers they ignored or forgot their rightist or leftist sentiments—their own party attitude toward Dollfuss himself; but Le Populaire of Paris wrote:

"There lies the assassin, assassinated in turn. The hangman of the Austrian Socialists and Communists met the end he deserved. He died by the hand of those for whose profit he labored."

L'Humanite: "This coup is Sarajevo multiplied by ten. Smouldering under the ashes, the embers of the Danube threaten to burst into flame, as in 1914, the flame of war."

In London, the Daily Telegraph observed: "Austrian independence is a vital question for the powers and the danger rests in the fact that a foreign power might support one of the three Austrian factions."

Object Accomplished.

Said The Times: "The Nazi attempt failed, but nevertheless it accomplished its principal object, for the Dollfuss government has been upset. It would be unjust to attribute to the Reich responsibility for the events yesterday. That is, it would be unjust if we based our opinions on the present reports. But it is not to be doubted that the revolt was partially due to the persistant instigations from Germany."

The Daily Mail said: "The disappearance of Dollfuss is pregnant with consequences for Europe." The paper compared yesterday's events in Vienna with the June 30 executions in Berlin.

The Soviet press held German Nazis responsible for the putsch and for the slaying of Dollfuss.

ALL ONTARIO'S FAIR EXHIBITS

nounced in making known the Government's intention to abolish all its exhibits at Ontario fairs for the year.

Mr. Hepburn said the exhibits had been costing altogether too much. He thought it likely they would be resumed on a less expensive basis another year.

Informed last night of the Government's decision, Col. F. H. Deacon, president of the Canadian National Exhibition, said: "I can't believe the report is correct, and I think if it is correct it is not a final decision.

Elimination of the Government display will mean the closing of the expensive Provincial Building at Exhibition Park, officials stated.

"NOT CONSTIPATED FOR SEVEN WEEKS"

Writes Mrs. Johnson After Using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Sufferers from constipation will be interested in this unsolicited letter:

"Your ALL-BRAN surely relieves constipation. I am so glad over the good it has done me that I feel I must write and tell you of it.

"For lunch I take a banana, a large one. Six tablespoons of ALL-BRAN in a sauce dish, and dip banana at each bite until all is consumed. I haven't been constipated now for seven weeks."—Mrs. Louise Johnson (address furnished upon request).

Constipation often causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. This condition is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further promote regular habits. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the wastes.

Try ALL-BRAN in place of patent medicines — often harmful. Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal, or in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Yesterday a posse scoured the district and a pond near the Cornell home was dragged. Later it was learned that Mr. Cornell was seen walking across a side-road which leads to Alberton, and was later observed getting on a bus bound for Hamilton.

Aged Indian Jailed For Horse Stealing Has Time Of Life On His First Trip To City

VANCOUVER, July 27 (CP)—A wrinkled, old Indian, who had never been out of his familiar haunts in Cilcotin country, a wild, little inhabited district in the Cariboo Northern British Columbia, went to jail to-day but had the time of his life doing it.

Police say it all happened because Gilpin—he claims only one name—thoughtlessly helped himself to some ten or twenty horses, then tried to sell them back to the owner. He was sentenced to three month in Oakalla Jail here, and brought down by Provincial Police.

Gilpin's first initiation to the wonders of civilization came when he boarded the boat at Squamish, B.C., for the trip down. He had never seen a steamer in all of his 73 years. And when he arrived in Vancouver his astonishment increased.

Many-storied buildings, street cars, shopping crowds, all were a source of wonder to him as he was whisked through the streets in a police car, his eyes goggling and his mouth agape. Street cars particularly intrigued him.

"What make him go?" as asked his escort, pointing at a passing street car, and the officer pointed to the overhead trolley and attempted to explain as simply as possible the marvel of electricity, he muttered to himself, "Little wheel go round, make big wheels go around, car go along. Hmm—Plenty fun."

The traffic crowds were "Just like plenty mosquito, and a group of children splashing in a park pool brought forth a chuckle and a "Ha, Ho. Papoose all same ducks."

And as the car turned off the highway at the edge of the city for the run to Oakalla, Gilpin shoot his head and muttered, "Hi-Yu big city. Houses ge, mebee five, six miles, eh?"

FRESH BOMBING TERRORIZE PARIS

"Three Judges of Hell" Blamed for Death of Station Master by "Innocent" Parcel.

2 OTHERS INJURED.

PARIS, July 27. — (A.P.)—The "Three Judges of Hell"—mad bombers who have terrorized the French capital—were believed by police to be responsible for an infernal machine blast in a Montparnasse subway station which killed the station master and injured two passengers.

A conductor in a "first-class" coach found an innocent looking package lying on a seat. At the Montparnasse station, where two subway lines intersect, he turned it over to the station master to be sent to the lost package office.

The train pulled out and, just as the station master was examining the package the bomb inside exploded.

He was killed. Two subway riders were injured.

The episode was the first subway blast in a long series of bombings attributed to the unidentified persons for whom police have sought for months past and who signed notes attached to their bombs: "The Three Judges of Hell."

Cabin Smashed.

The station master's cabin was smashed and windows of one coach were shattered by the impact. A conductor was among those injured. Several passengers were cut by flying glass and the crowd in the station was thrown into great confusion.

The subway station is in the centre of the Montparnasse district, adjoining the Montparnasse railway station.

The bomb exploded on the platform, where it apparently was planted unnoticed.

The station itself is an important junction of two subway lines and is usually crowded with subway riders.

The police immediataely opened an investigation.

The station master died as he was being taken to a hospital. The condition of the conductor was said to be serious.

Remnants of the bomb were taken to the municipal laboratory fo ran examination.

SCOUTS SPEND WEEK IN CAMP

Outing at Young's Point Most Profitable to Boy Scouts.

BREAK UP SATURDAY.

The District Boy Scout Camp at Young's Point, where the combined troops of Peterborough Boy Scout Association have spent a pleasant and profitable week of healthful recreation is to break-up to-morrow evening.

In charge of Scoutmaster Ernest Wolff, assisted by A.S.M.'s Warren Turner, Max Hutchison and Emmett Creighton, the camp has proved to be an entire success, according to District Commissioner John T. Hornsby.

For the first time in the history of the local association, the combined troops of inter-denominational religious character are under canvas together, and the experiment has justified repetition in future years.

Visitors' day on Wednesday brought a large number of parents and friends out to the camp and an enjoyable program was concluded late in the evening with a camp fire. Speakers at the camp fire meeting included Rev. E. R. James, Dr. J. F. O'Brien and Fred Johnston, head of the Vocational Department at the Collegiate.

Earlier in the week the Rev. J. L. Hughes took a party of visitors to the camp, spending the entire day with the Scouts.

24 Boys in Camp.

Including the officers, the complement of the camp numbers twenty-four. Each day commences with reveille at seven o'clock, followed by morning prayers and flag break preceding the breakfast hour.

For the daily tent inspection which is carried out at ten o'clock in the morning, a flag is awarded to the best kept tent, and the occupants receiving the daily award the greatest number of times are permitted to retain possession of the flag when camp concludes.

Instruction in scoutcraft, games, swimming and physical exercises is also a part of the daily routine. At seven o'clock each evening the colors are hauled down from the flag staff, then follows a camp fire at which remarkable talent has been displayed by the boys. "Lights Out" brings the day to a close at quarter to ten o'clock, but not before each of the boys has received a steaming mug of Ovaltine, milk or cocoa, according to individual fancy.

Commissioner Hornsby stated the boys are allowed to eat all they want, but one of the strictly enforced rules of the camp has been that what a boy once requests at table has to be eaten by him before he is allowed to leave the dining tent.

JUDGE URGES OPERATION UPON 12 YEAR OLD GIRL

DENVER, July 27 (CP)—A Juvenile Court Judge to-day declared doctors should not hesitate to proceed with a birth control operation upon a 12-year-old child, but physicians declined to act because the judge failed to issue a formal court order.

The girl is in Denver General Hospital. Physicians said the birth of her expected child might result in her death or seriously impair her health.

Dr. B. B. Jaffa, Superintendent of the Denver General Hospital, said there is no immediate need for an operation, and that he must be satisfied physicians will not be prosecuted in the event they operate and the child dies.

The mother of the girl, whose identity has not been disclosed, was reported to have pleaded with Dr. Jaffa to perform the operation immediately. She also asked prosecution of the man reported to be responsible for the girl's condition. The man, who was engaged to be married to the girl's mother, faces a serious charge.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL.

CHATHAM, Ont.— Injuries suffered when she fell from the verandah of the upper storey of a duplex apartmen. Tuesday evening proved fatal to Lois Shuttleworth, five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Shuttleworth. The child died last night in St. Joseph's hospital.

WITHDREW CHARGE AGAINST BENTLEY

Police Find Lindsay Man Not Involved in Accident—Mistaken Identity.

In stressing the fact that a charge relative to an infraction of the Highway Traffic Act laid against Sydney Bentley of 127 Durham Street, Lindsay, was recently withdrawn, by the prosecution on the grounds of mistaken identity, the publishers of The Examiner deeply regret any injustice that might unwittingly have been done Mr. Bentley as a result of publicity formerly given to the matter.

The Examiner hastens to point out that Mr. Bentley, who was reported to have been the "hit-and-run" driver of an automobile that struck down and injured 5-year-old Betty Deal of Oshawa while she was visiting here with her parents early in July, was wrongfully connected with the accident as a result of an eye-witness of the incident who apparently was mistaken in giving the license number of Mr. Bentley's car as being the number observed on the car that was seen to leave the scene of the accident.

While an information was laid against Mr. Bentley on July 5, charging that he failed to remain or return to the scene of an accident, the charge was withdrawn by police here on July 18 without costs after Mr. Bentley had satisfied police that neither his car nor himself had been in the vicinity of the scene of the accident on the day in question.

The Examiner is pleased to make this statement in justice to Mr. Bentley and to prevent the possibility of any misapprehension arising as to his connection with the matter.

Good Response To Fashion Craft's Sale

Announcement has already been made of Fashion-Craft's Semi-Annual Elimination Sale which opened this morning and already they report a good response to the many unusual values offered at this time. Twice yearly it is a feature at this store to offer as a clean-up, existing stocks of seasonable men's wearables at prices which prove very attractive. And as there is great deal of fine weather in which a large percentage of the clothing and furnishings may yet be worn, they feel that it is an opportunity to make real savings which only a visit to the store will reveal.

A fine string of fourteen speckled trout, the largest of which was probably four pounds in weight, was landed by a party of anglers at Eagle Lake yesterday. Harold Freeman, who showed The Examiner one specimen of the catch, said the party consisted of himself and his brother Andrus Freeman and family of New York City who are visiting with relatives here. Archie Foster completed the group of successful fishermen.

From Whetung's Fishing Lodge at Curve Lake, comes word that Robert Bruno of Cleveland recently landed two fine lunge weighing twenty and eighteen pounds respectively, also four small mouthed black bass weighing over four pounds each.

Ontario Fair Exhibit Action Held Mistake

LONDON, Ont., July 27.—(CP)—While the discontinuance of the Ontario government exhibit at the Western fair will make no difference in revenue to the fair board, W. D. Jackson, secretary of the board stated today that he considered the move to be a mistake.

"We wil lose nothing financially as the space was given free to the government. These exhibits always had an educational value and were interesting to the public," said Mr. Jackson.

The secretary expressed the opinion that the proper procedure would have been to notify the fair of the discontinuance of the exhibits and to delay the actual cancellation until next year.

DROUGHT ENDS ACREAGE LIMIT

Officials Fear Dry Spell May Cut Cotton Crops Below Total Set.

EVACUATING DRY AREAS.

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—Out of the dust and misery of the United States worst drought two developments arose to-day:

1.—There is a possibility that the Bankhead Act, involving compulsory reduction of the cotton crop, may be scrapped. The drought has been extending its killing reign into the South, notably Texas and Oklahoma. This has led officials to wonder whether the crop would not be reduced even lower than the 10,460,21 ba'es permitted under the Bankhead Act.

2.—An enormous expansion of the Governmen's cattle buying program is planned. Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace declared "We expect to buy at least 4,000,000 cattle and possibly 7,000,000." The Government has already bought 1,00,000 to save them from death by thirst and starvation.

The Weather Bureau said that from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachians, more rivers have shrunk to abnormally low levels this month than in any other July since record began in 1859.

Efforts to persuade families in hardest-hit sections to sell their land and move to better soil were said to be having some success.

Fisherman Missing After Boat Capsizes

GLACE BAY, N.S., July 27.—(C.P.)—"She may not hold both of us, but you'he married, Charlie, with a couple of kids, and I'm single so you stay on the boat and I'll chance it to swim to shore for help."

So Jack Wadman, 19, struck out for land, leaving Charlie Nolan safe he thought, sitting on the overturned motorboat from which they had been sword fishing.

Wadman ju- made it, reaching shore exhausted. While being rushed to hospital he told about how he was atop the mast watching for swordfish when Nolan walked along the gunwale and capsized the little craft.

That was Wednesday. Today fishermen and police were still searching the sea off Glace Bay but hope of finding Nolan alive had been virtually abandonded. Apparently the boat had disappeared, for an aeroplane flyby over the area yesterday found no trace of it or the missing man.

HAVELOCK RECREATION CLUB HOLDS EIGHTH ANNUAL PICNIC

Twelve C.P.R. Coaches Required to Take Crowd to Riverdale Park, Toronto.

SPORTS ENJOYED.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, July 27. — Under ideal weather conditions the eighth annual picnic outing of the Canadian Pacific Recreation Club of Havelock was held on Wednesday for the second time at Riverdale Park, Toronto.

As early as six o'clock cars from all points of the compass began to arrive and before the departure of the twelve coach train the streets near the station were lined with cars of the pleasure seekers on hand to attend this monster picnic which each year is better than the last.

Coaches were reserved for those at Norwood, Indian River, Peterborough, Cavan, Drancel and Pontypool who had purchased their tickets at those places and any who left the purchase until the last moment were decidedly out of luck ... none were to be had later than Monday evening.

Each coach was manned with a competent railroader, placed there by the club to obviate the danger of the slightest mishap to the passengers entering or leaving the train or en route. Members of the committee went through each coach and distributed balloons and fans, and other trinkets to the youngsters as well as tickets entitling them to ice cream, pop, or chocolate bars to be procured at the booths on the grounds at the park. Free milk and boiling water for tea or coffee were also provided by the committee.

While lunch was being prepared by the mothers, the kiddies patronized booths for pop and ice cream, after which they amused themselves watching the animals in the cages. This proved a source of great entertainment throughout the day. Many of the young people took the opportunity to attend a theatre or visit Sunnyside or the big stores, and get a glimpse for the first time of life in the big city. The older members of the picnic party for the most part were content to remain at the grounds and visit among themselves, or with friends from the city or other points who had come for the annual re-union.

Sports Program

A fine program of small sports, and a baseball game were also a part of the entertainment provided by the committee. The high light for the older people was the pensioners race, there being twenty entries,each of whom received a key ring in a leather case, a souvenir of the eighth picnic of Havelock Recreation club. The pensioners present were F. Haig, A. Burt, W. E. Wyatt, A. Carmichael, V. Carroll, G. Yonke, J. Kimberley, S. McGill, J. Harvey, J. Weymark, H. B. Stevens, J. Howe, A. Brinkman, J. Dorricott, W. Ritchie, W. Drewitt, T. Wright, T. Curran, A. Frost, F. J. Hooper. A photographer was on the grounds by arrangement, to take the pictures of this group of old employees, many of whom had spent more than forty years in the service of the railroad.

The Highland Pipers of Havelock in full costume accompanied the picnic, and played a number of selections at the park. These proved a great attraction, especially to the Scots present, many of whom were to be seen taking a few steps to the tune of the bagpipes.

The softball game between Toronto and Havelock Recreation Club ball teams, had to be called at half time, owing to the very great heat on the flats, which was not noticed in the park proper. Havelock was declared the winner.

Winners of small sports were as follows:

Boys 10 years and under— Jack Evans, Jack Copp, Hubert Hallihan.

Girls 10 and under—Helen Monaghan, Vivian Carter, Margaret Wilson.

Boys 12 years and under — Jim Crawford, Bud Webb, Ted Yeo.

TWEED RESIDENT HAILED TO COURT

Constable Alleges W. G. Grier and Friends Were Drinking in Car.

(Examiner Correspondence)

TWEED, July 27.—W. G. Grier of Tweed was charged before Magistrate Casement with driving a car in such a manner as to be dangerous to the public, also with having a bottle of liquor in his automobile.

While driving his car near Tweed on July 19, Provincial Constable Dacon in company with Mr. Graham passed the Grier car in which someone in the front seat was drinking out of a bottle. Provincial Constable Dacon drove on for a few yards and turned around to meet the one driven by Grier, who immediately increased the speed of his car to between forty and forty-five miles per hour, and threw the bottle out of the car. Constable Dacon found the bottle, still containing part of the liquor in the grass. Three gentlemen friends of Mr. Grier's were in the car and were supposed to be looking for frogs to go on a fishing expedition. They emphatically denied the allegations of Officer Dacon and Police Constable C. Hayes of Tweed, who was called to assist in the arrest.

Considerable evidence was taken and the case was adjourned until July 31. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Mr. O'Keefe, a fifth occupant of the car.

Mr. Donnelly acted for Mr. Grier with Mr. A. Donnan, Crown Attorney.

MARMORA LAD HOOKS MUSKIE

Seven-year-old Douglas Nobes "Shows Anglers How" With Dewworm.

WEIGHED 3½ POUNDS.

MARMORA, July 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — Marmora's youngest angler got the thrill of his life on Wednesday morning in landing a 3¼-pound maskinonge from Crow River while fishing off the temporary bridge. Douglas Nobes, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Nobes, is small for his age, but a very optimistic little fellow. He has taken great notice of adult anglers, and so in company with his nine-year-old brother, Cecil, went to the bridge with hs rod, dangled a dew worm on the hook: and awaited results. He was rewarded with the catch of a maskinonge, which he took to the local hardware store for correct weight and length measurement, which was 3½ pounds and 27 inches.

Unlike many of his seniors, he enjoys a taste of his own fish, for he has taken bass before on his hook, and conscientiously always asks an adult bystander if the fish he takes is large enough to carry home. He also enjoys cleaning his own fish, which he feels completes his job.

DANCE PLANNED ON NEW BRIDGE

Marmora Agricultural Society Obtain Permission to Use Crow River Span.

100 x 50 FOOT FLOOR.

MARMORA, July 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — According to present plans, the annual street dance under auspices of Marmora Agricultural Society will be held on Wednesday, August 22. Permission has been obtained from the Minister of Highways to hold the dance on the new bridge over Crow River, which will be completed about that time.

The top of the bridge floor will be of asphalt on the concrete base and this, it is believed, will make a fine dancing floor. The asphalt surface will be about 200 feet by 50 feet, with a five-foot sidewalk along the south side of the bridge which will be about ten inches higher than the main floor of the bridge. Every effort is being put forth to provide a program that will include the most attractive dance yet held.

Weddings

CARPENTER—BRANDOW.

LETHBRIDGE, July 27.—There was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, on Sunday afternoon, the marriage of Winogene Mae, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Brandow, to Mr. Bryer Curtis Carpenter of Stettler, Alberta, and son of Mr. and Mrs. George Carpenter of Peterborough, Rev. Pritchard officiating and Miss Bessie Marie Lovering playing the wedding march.

The bride, given away by her father, was lovely in a gown of shell pink dotted net over a foundation of silk taffeta, with frills and capette of net and long bow sash of silk. She carried an armbouquet of American Beauty and Ophelia roses. The bride and groom were unattended save for the bride's sister, Bernice, as maid of honor. She was sweetly girlish in a long frock of white organdie with butterfly ripples and carried a bouquet of pink larkspur, clarkia and sweet peas.

The immediate friends were admitted by little Babsie Bell, who was pretty in pink silk and hair bow.

Following the ceremony, Mrs. J. E. Lovering invited to the tea room, where Mrs. R. J. Follis presided over a tea-urn and Mrs. E. R. J. Forster cut the ices. The wedding cake, draped in tulle and edged with smilax, made a lovely centrepiece. The attractive serviteurs, gowned in dainty pastel shades, were the Misses Jean Hamilton, Helen Reagh, Marie Lovering and Mazie McPheat.

Mrs. F. J. Redmond took charge of the gift room.

In the living rooms, which were adorned with summer flowers, the bride's cake and punch were served. Mr. E. R. J. Forster proposed the toast to the bride, the groom responding.

The bride's going-away gown was canary-colored silk crepe under a three-quarter coat of striped silk in summer shades. Her accessories were white. They left on the evening train for Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Alberta.

WEDDING SHOWER HELD FOR LAKEFIELD GIRL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, July 2. — The A. Y.P.A. sponsored a miscellaneous shower in the parish hall for Tuesday evening for Miss Ione Sanderson, whose marriage to Gordon Millen of Peterborough, takes place next week. The bride-elect and her mother arrived at the Parish Hall to find a wide circle of friends awaiting her arrival with kindest interest. Rev. W. J. Creighton made a very graceful little speech, expressing the hearty good wishes of the entire parish to the bride who had lived all her life in the parish, and was one of "our own girls," and ended by speaking of the seasonable need for showers, and that the requirement had been met on this occasion by a shower. Mrs. Mendal Smith and Mrs. G. Hutt brought forward a table covered with parcels of various sorts, daintily wrapped in bridal white tissue paper. Miss H. Crawford assisted the bride-elect in the pleasing task of opening the parcels.

Miss Sanderson replied in a very appropriate speech, thanking her friends for the kindly remembrances, and assuring them one and all of a hearty welcome at her new home. Refreshments were served and an informal social hour spent.

Obituary

JAMES KILLEN.

ENNISMORE, July 27.—(Special). —In the passing of James Killen, of Ennismore, the township has lost one of its most respected citizens and the parish a loyal and devoted member. Born here seventy-four years ago, Mr. Killen spent the greater portion of his life as a resident of the community, wherein he established a home and became one of its most successful farmers.

A man of sterling qualities, whose honesty and uprightness was known by all who came in contact with him, he naturally gained the respect of all classes. His charity and kindness to the sick and afflicted earned for him the well-merited title of a "good neighbor." A very honorable title indeed in rural life. This was evidenced by the throngs of people who visited his home during the days preceding the funeral and the unusually large number that attended the obsequies.

Stricken with a malady over a year ago that rendered him incapable of carrying on his usual labors, he recognized that the years of his life were drawing to a close. Another attack a month ago presaged that the end was near, and in the early hours of Tuesday, July 17, he passed peacefully away.

The funeral took place at St. Martin's Church on Thursday morning, July 19, where a solemn requiem mass was sung by Rev. J. V. McAuley, assisted by Rev. Simon Perdue as deacon and Rev. H. Archambeault as sub-deacon. Rev. Joseph Walsh was master of ceremonies. A short sermon on death with appropriate references to the life of the deceased was preached by Father McAuley, who together with the visiting clergy, assisted at the graveside.

The pall-bearers were his four brothers, Sam, Richard, Henry and William Killen, and Dan Kennedy and Michael O'Donohue.

Left to mourn his loss are his wife, one daughter, Mrs. J. J. Young, of Ennismore, and six sons—Rev. Fr. Killen, of Rockyford, Alta., who was unable to be present for the funeral; Stafford of British Columbia; John, Frank, Sam and Malachy, at home.

MRS. CAROLINE JEROME.

TWEED, July 27. — (Examiner Correspondence.)— The death occurred on Saturday of Mrs. Caroline Jerome at her home in Flinton. The late Mrs. Jerome was one of the oldest residents of the community. She had been in ill health for some time.

The funeral was held on Monday, July 23, from the home of her son, by Rev. M. Dowall, of St. Paul's church. Interment was made in St. Paul's cemetery.

JAMES BOHAN.

TWEED, July 27.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—Although in ill health since last November, James Bohan, Mercies street, Trenton, passed away on Sunday, July 22nd, at his home. The deceased was well known in Trenton, having resided there for a number of years. He was a C.P.R. conductor and formerly resided at Havelock.

The late James Bohan was born in Elzevir township, Hastings county, 64 years ago, being the son of the late Patrick Bohan and Mary McDonald. Thirty-eight years ago he entered the service of the C.P. R. and worked through the various departments until he was made a passenger conductor, the last fifteen years being in charge of the Toronto-Montreal passenger train. He was forced to retire early last fall due to ill health, but his sudden demise on Sunday was unexpected and a wide circle of friends will regret his passing.

The late Mr. Bohan was a member of St. Peter-in-Chains, Trenton and leaves to mourn his loss four sons, James of Winnipeg, Clayton, Jack and Francis of Trenton, one daughter, Mrs. J. G. Squire, Jr., of Trenton, and one brother, Peter Bohan, of Duluth, Minn, and four sisters, Mrs. William Cassidy, Stoco; Mrs. J. B. Gausmore, of Toronto, Mrs. William Crossman, Sault Ste. Marie; and Miss M. Bohan, Moncton, N.B.

His wife predeceased him seven years ago. The funeral was held on Tuesday.

BE BEAUTIFUL

"Dear Miss Glad: Some time ago you mentioned the effectiveness of clothes in disguising unbecoming figure lines. I myself am very tall and thin. Could you tell me how a person of my type should garb herself in order to appear shorter and plumper?

MAUDY."

If you are tall and thin, you should avoid vertical, unbroken lines in your gowning. For you horizontal lines and broken lines are best. Belted frocks, boleros, tunics and cape dresses may all be worn by the tall, thin type, as they cut the height and add to the breadth of the figure. Flares, ruffles, bouffant skirts and pleats also tend to increase the apparent width of the figure, and to cut the height. In colors, the most flattering shades for the tall, thin individual are warm, bright ones. Dark subdued shades should be avoided, as they are slenderizing and present too definite outlines.

"Dear Miss Glad: I just received the loviest permanent, and it's you that I have to thank for it. You see, my hair has always been so dandruffy, thin and lifeless. But I've been following the hair care advice in your 'Beauty Culture' booklet, and since, my hair has become clean, thick and glossy. No more dandruff or stringiness now! However, do you think it advisable to use a cold rinse after an ordinary shampoo? I'd appreciate your opinion. LEONA"

A properly administered cool rinse after an ordinary shampoo really is beneficial to the hair and scalp. It acts in the capacity of scalp tonic, stimulant and hair toner. It has the same effect on the scalp as the application of cool water has on the skin. It stimulates the circulation and sends the blood pumping vigorously through the scalp. However, extremely cold water should not be used. Remember that your scalp is just about as sensitive as the skin of your face. And if you use very cold water for the last rinse, it will chill your scalp and fail to prove beneficial.

"Dear Miss Glad: I am rather round-shouldered, and have been told that this is due to the fact that I do not maintain proper posture. Can you tell me just how the body should be carried in order to prevent, or to help correct, round shoulders?

VIOLA."

To correct round shoulders, the muscles of the chest must be strengthened through breathing exercises. The spine must be held straight and firm, and the head held erect at all times. In other words one must stand with hips and abdomen well back, chest in the lead head erect and shoulders level. If this posture is maintained always, round shoulders will not develop. You should also avoid the habit of standing with the weight of your body on the balls of both your feet. If you remember to maintain such posture it should help a great deal in correcting your apparent round-shouldered condition.

Editor's Note: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Once upon a time when there was no depression at the moment, a great thinker, John Ruskin, wrote: "No amount of pay can ever make a good soldier, a good teacher, a good artist, or a good workman." It is a saying that contains an undeniable truth. It is not pay which makes any work good, although good work is worth good pay. Just what good pay is depends upon the age, or era. For example, in the World War prices soared to phenomenal heights. In the recent depression prices were extremely low. Just now there is the gradual return to the normal. But whatever the pay for the work, its excellence should not be influenced. The worker should endeavour to reach a high level of excellence and maintain it.

* * * * * * *

Th underlying idea in the saying quoted is easy to find. There is a personal equation in all work whether it is craftsmanship, cooking, carpentry, plumbing—and so through all trades and arts. The worker decides whether he will do his or her best, or whether it shall be good only when the pay is high. The crudity of making the money value the criterion of excellence is recognized in a moment. And yet there are persons who slight their tasks unless pay is high.

* * * * * * *

Fortunately there are workers who have such respect for their vocations, that they would not demean themselves to do poorly what they could do well. There is pride of the finest sort in such an attitude. Whether it be in painting the masterly way of some artists, or in doing the simple and comfort making home tasks these workers give little or no thought to the remuneration. They have an inner appreciation of tasks well done, and they adhere to it.

* * * * * * *

It is such spirits that raise the standard of work to the highest peaks. Sometimes they gain the applauds of the world. Sometimes it is only within the radius of their family and friends that appreciation is received. But if it should be only within their own souls that they find acknowledgment of the worth of their work, they would have a meed of pleasure. The satisfaction of doing a thing well is in itself a payment if not in the coinage of the country at least in the joy of the knowledge it is their best work.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS
By E. V. SHEPARD

THE PENALTY OBSESSION.

Instead of winning games and rubbers some players are afflicted with an obsession for defeating low contracts for small penalties. Yesterday we had a pitiful example of losing the rubber game with both sides vulnerable and a grand slam awaiting proper bidding for the sake of collecting 500 points penalty, instead of gathering 3,600 points for the grand slam. To-day we have a less aggravated case, but bad enough, as will be seen.

	♠5 3 ♥7 5 2 ♦9 6 5 4 3 ♣10 9 8
♠Q 10 8 6 ♥Q 10 8 4 ♦A 8 ♣Q J 2	W. N. E. S.	♠7 4 ♥K J 6 ♦K Q 10 7 ♣A K 6 5
	♠A K J 9 2 ♥A 9 3 ♦J 3 ♣7 4 3

It was the first game of the rubber. South dealt and bid 1-spade. In West's position I would have overcalled with 1-no trump, but West passed. That pass would have caused many players in East's position to also pass, but he held too big a hand to do that. He made an informatory double. South passed. Here was West's opportunity to bid 2-no trumps rather than 2-hearts. Instead of that West made a business pass, ending bidding.

The defenders won 9 tricks: 2 spades, 2 hearts, 2 diamonds and 3 clubs, and West was jubilant over the 450 points collected. His side won the next game for 120 points, but lost the last 2 games, losing the rubber, and paying for the rubber only 170 points.

Had West bid hearts he should have gone game, losing only 2 spade tricks and 1 trump trick. This would have insured a love rubber for his side, worth 940 points, instead of losing a rubber for 170 points.

West's bid over his partner's informatory double would have been 2-no trumps. Suppose we see how play probably would have gone at that call.

North leads the 5 of spades, which South passes, hoping that North has a card of re-entry, to allow South to establish spades before losing his ace of hearts, but West will know that South must hold the ace of hearts to have a sound opening bid. The day has long since passed when players make an opening bid on 2 quick tricks, unless long enough to pre-empt.

West's first act must be to lead hearts until the ace is dislodged. Then South will have to lead off his ace and K of spades. West should make 4-odd at no trumps, winning even more than he could at hearts. Letting the double stand for a penalty was almost unbelieveable strategy. Unless East had held powerful cards he could not have excused his informatory double.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

In the prevention of infantile paralysis, the most important thing to do is to recognize the disease in the early stages, and isolate and treat the patient. By the time paralysis has set in treatment is usually too late to do any good.

The disease being infectious, it is accompanied by fever. And in the early stages it looks very much like a simple case of sore throat or a cold. The child complains of sore throat and a feverish feeling, with headache, and then usually has some stomach and intestinal upset. Cases of this kind are common enough, of course, and would not receive any attention except in the midst of an infantile paralysis epidemic. Since there is a possibility of such an epidemic spreading over the country, physicians should be particularly on the lookout for these cases in children from 2 to 7 years of age.

Diagram of section of spinal cord, nerve fiber and muscle. Infantile paralysis causes destruction of nerve cell (A) in anterior gray matter of cord. This cell is origin of nerve fiber (B) which, after destruction of A degenerates. When A is destroyed, paralysis results.

This stage lasts several days and then is followed by the pre-paralytic stage, in which there is a great deal of muscular irritability, twitching and jerky movements and, finally after one or two days of this, the paralysis sets in.

The paralysis is due to a destruction of the cells in the anterior part of the gray matter of the spinal cord. These cells are the first line of motor cells, and send out nerve fibers to the muscles. When they are completely destroyed, the nerve degenerates and the muscle, in the course of time, atrophies. Frequently cases occur in which there is no paralytic stage whatever, simply a short period of fever.

When the disease can be easily recognized from the paralysis there is very little to be done in the way of treatment, and for that reason it is extremely important to be alert to catch these patients in the first stage. At this time treatment can be done with convalescent serum, a method which will be described in the article tomorrow.

Nudism is dying out in England.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Margaret Thomas,
General Delivery,
Peterborough, Ont.

The handwriting as delineated on your sample describes you as a rapid thinker, though your first and most insistent thoughts are not always definite and correct, but you are not stubborn enough to desire to have your own way about this. You are 'big enough' to admit when you are wrong. You are good-hearted and often let friends play on that good nature to such an extent that you suffer in consequence. You are not ambitious to attain personal gain. You are fairly well satisfied with existing conditions, and do not grumble, because you are aware of the fact that no matter what happens, you cannot better affairs by adding your tale of woe. You are unobstrusive and never push yourself in somewhere that you feel your presence is not required. You can accommodate your personality according to the different types of people with whom you come in daily contact. Loyalty to those whom you deem worthy of your love is an attribute you possess, which in itself is above price as regards other characteristics.

Your address seems to signify that you are a visitor in our midst, and I do hope that you will enjoy your stay amongst Peterborough's beautiful surroundings, and receive the hospitality which usually accompanies the good will of our citizens.

Ann M. Oliver, Westwood, Ont.

Your handwriting indicates that you are reserved to a degree of being afraid. You are, in fact, too reserved for your own good. Your friends are carefully chosen but those people who think they know you feel that you do not desire their friendship, on the contrary, you do, more than anything else. Why not use your talent in order to make friends? You have a most retentive brain and can acquire and retain knowledge. This would be instrumental in assisting you to gain a place in dramatic art, or in imparting knowledge to little children. You work best when alone; you could find an outlet for your pent-up emotions by creating your own art. It may be household science or dramatizing. You really have the courage to do many important works, though you think you haven't. Why not make an impression by beginning to assert yourself now? Say to yourself, "I can, if I will, and I will". Then do whatever your heart most desires.

Versatility is noted in the uneven shape and size of your writing, and perhaps that is why you have remained below your station in life. I mean your changeable nature has made you rather restless, and so nothing definite has been decided upon for the future, or for progress.

Loretta Gray,
Keene, Ont.

Your handwriting shows that you are energetic, but not always very sure of interpreting your energy correctly. That is to say, you do not save yourself. You are not quite mature enough in years to enable you to be 'set' in your ways, or to allow you to form an honest opinion of life as it is. You seem to be subject to spurts of laughter and humor. You appear to desire to plod along in about the same rut from day to day, though that is not your ambition. I see no logical reason why you should not be as successful as the next person. You are capable of bettering yourself, but seem to require study along practical lines for endeavour, which you might choose afterwards as your life work, whether it be in a domestic field or otherwise. Clerking might suit you for a time but I am afraid that you would soon grow tired of it. Your imagination is good, but you must exercise great care, in order to prevent imaginary ills. To get the better of yourself it would be essential to acquire the habit of going out-of-doors, even when you feel that it is too much trouble to get dressed up to get out

YANKEES REGAIN TOP RUNG IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

NUMBER 363

I've yet to have anyone questioning me about approach shots show anything like the proper foot action.

After asking me to watch his swing the player will stand flat-footed, keep both feet and ankles absolutely still while he moves the club back and forth with his arms and hands.

He follows the idea that all short shots must be made by using only the arms and hands—no body action.

I also tell my pupils that these short swings should be made mainly by the arms and hands. But I always point out that there must be some body motion or foot action, however slightly.

When the ankles are rigid the wrists will be tense.

Loosen up your ankles and watch the improvement in your wrist.

NUMBER 364

The prize fear of the player who is just beginning to savvy the swing concerns getting his body, his hands or his wrists into the shot too soon.

So many players worry their heads off about getting their hands ahead of the clubhead in the downswing. This worry goes on in spite of the numerous action pictures of our leading players, showing that the hands should lead the clubhead.

The players are afraid that the clubhead will lag through the hitting area of the swing and thereby produce a slice. This fear actually prevents the clubhead from speeding up as it might if the swing was free from tension.

Try a few short shots with your hands well ahead of the clubhead as you address the ball. Start the clubhead back first and then swing down on the ball, keeping your chin back.

You'll not slice if you do this.

CONNY SMYTHE is given Easter Hatter a few weeks rest and now he should be ready for one of his smashing performances.

Right now his connections are counting on putting him over at another big price. Happy Warrior is another that seems to favor this track and usually reaches his best form about this time of the year. Butch Keeling has still figuring on grabbing a heat with Exhibition at Detroit. Up at Stamford they tell us that Double Dare is all set to turn in a win. Meridian Queen is showing remarkable speed in her early morning trials and any day now will see her on the front end. A real sleeper up there is one called Pan. He has not won a race since last spring at Dufferin, when he paid around sixty dollars.

5 Hits in Seventh Enable Boonemen to Overcome Early Syracuse Lead.

SENATORS LOSE 11-4.

Ray Harrell Allows 5 Bingles in Wings' 4-1 Victory Over Bears.

(By the Associated Press)

The second division clubs of the International League, aided and abetted by the third place Rochester Red Wings, made a show of the top ranking outfits last night as all eight teams engaged one another under lights in night games for the first time this season.

The Red Wings pulled up within a game of Toronto, second place club, and hauled Newark Bears back within a 3½ game reach by defeating the league leading Bears 4-1 as Ray Harrell fanned five and allowed but five hits. Johnny Mize hit a homer for the Red Wings as they scored all their necessary runs in the first three innings off Charley Devens.

Tail-end Baltimore Orioles rose up against fifth place Montreal Royals and beat them 6-2 with George Darrow, formerly of the Phillies, pitching steady ball.

Orioles nicked Lauri Myllykangas, Orin Collier and Harry Smythe, late of the Yankees and Dodgers, for nine hits. Earl Clark led the hitting attack with three, one of them a triple.

Buffalo Bisons, staging an uprising from sixth place, piled up six runs in the first and four more in the second to beat Albany Senators 11-4. Fabian Kowalik pitched his seventh straight victory. Bud Clancy featured the second inning attack with a home run within the grounds with two on. Kowalik eased up after that and the Albany snipers got to him for four runs in the sixth.

Toronto and Syracuse struggled through eight innings to a 5-5 tie, enabling the Canadians to gain half a game on Newark and pull up within 2½ games, in the final contest. Syracuse led 5-1 going into the seventh when five straight hits tied the score.

LOPSIDED VICTORY WON BY CLOCKERS

Westclox Girls Fatten Batting Averages at Expense of Maple Leafs.

Westclox girls fattened their batting averages last night at the Ashburnham Bowl, when they swamped the Maple Leafs, in the biggest batting spree of the season, by the lopsided count of 39 to 11 in a league tussle.

I. Burnham and G. Mann shared the pitching for the losers and were unable to stem the parade of hits that mounted to a total of 35, and included five homers and two triples. Mary Hall tallied twice on homers, the second one coming in the ninth with the bases loaded. Dot Webb, Laura Chartren and Dot Merrett, each got one. Hazel Mann hammered out a four base clout for the Leafs and E. Foster conked a triple. Mary Hall pitched for the winners, fanning four, passing three, and allowing 20 hits.

The teams—

Westclox—Mortimer, 1b; Ferguson, ss; D. Webb, c; Hawkes, 3b; Chartren, 3b; Merretti, lf; Crary, cf; Harris, rf; Hall, p; Curtis, rf.

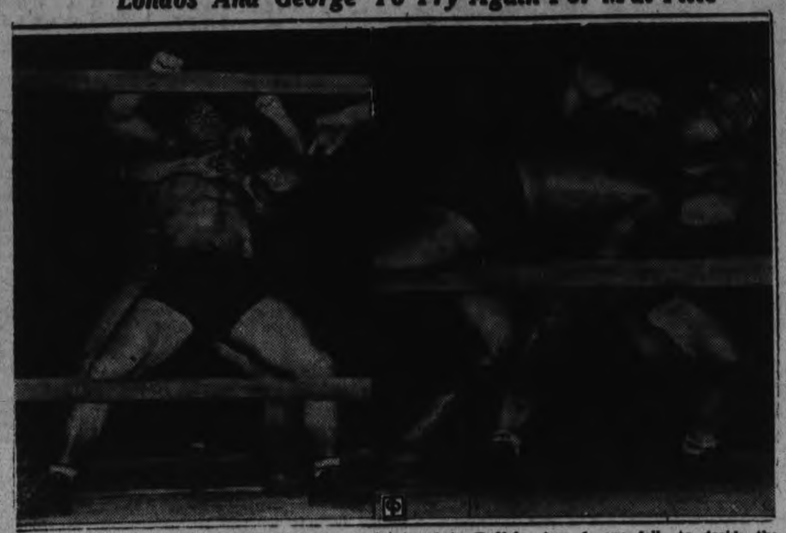
Londos And George To Try Again For Mat Title



Three hours is hardly enough time for such grapplers as Jim Londos, the championn, and Don George shown above, to settle their differences, so they are booked to repeat the recent terrific tussle in Boston, pictured here. The return match will be staged in Buffalo, Aug. 1, one fall to decide the match. At LEFT George is shown taking a bit of tossing around, and at RIGHT he is putting a punishing hold on the champion. Each won a fall in the three-hour match at Boston.

Deloro Wins From Former Village 7-1 in Regular League Fixture.

HOLD EARLY LEAD

MARMORA, July 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—Deloro journeyed to Coe Hill on Wednesday to fulfil a Trent Valley League fixture, and won by 7-2. F. Callery, for the victors, and B. Former Holds Browns to Four Hits While Latter Belts His 29th Homer.

Sad Sam Jones Hurls Chicago to 9-0 Victory Over Washington.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Defying the lightning of injuries which struck again and again as they toured the western sector of the American League, the Yankees returned eastward to-day with no appreciable loss as the result of their trip.

They were a half game ahead of Detroit when they left, after dropping to second place, they were again in front as they returned. Despite injuries to Babe Ruth, Ben Chapman and Earle Combs, the Yanks fought their way back to the top yesterday when a brilliant hurling exhibition by Goofy Gomez and Lou Gehrig's 29th homer brought them a 3-1 victory over St. Louis while the Red Sox belted Detroit down for the second straight day, 11-3.

This combination, while it left the rivals virtually tied, gave the Yanks the lead by two percentage points. Gomez's contribution was a four-hit hurling job in which three blows came after one out in the ninth. Gehrig helped the southpaw win his 16th victory by belting his homer in the fourth to start a three-run rally as Buck Newsom equalled Gomez's four-hit flinging.

The Red Sox never gave Detroit's elbowers a chance as they opened up on Vic Sorrell in the first and slammed out 17 hits, scoring in six innings. Bill Werber and Rick Ferrell each made four blows.

Jones Blanks Senators

The real drama in the American League's performance came in a meeting between two second division clubs when "Sad" Sam Jones of Chicago, the oldest pitcher in the circuit and a big leaguer for more than twenty years, celebrated his 42nd birthday by shutting out Washington with six hits for a 9-0 victory. It was the second straight white-washing administered to the 1933 champions, and the Sox smacked out 11 hits to do it. The Athletics and Cleveland were rained out.

GIANTMEN ADD TO LOOP LEAD

Dean Brothers of Cards Hold Jinx Over Giants, Who Lose Opener 7-2.

BUT WIN SECOND 6-3.

(By Canadian Press)

Although they couldn't shatter the jinx of the Dean brothers, the Giants again got the best of the National League struggle by adding a half game to their lead when they broke even in a doubleheader with the Cardinals. The two Deans, who haven't lost to New York this season, ganged up to win the opener 7-2. Paul pitched seven innings and got credit for the family's eighth triumph over the league leaders, and Dizzy relieved him when he tired toward the finish.

Carl Hubbell was on the losing end, being knocked out in four games for this third straight defeat. Pat Freddy Fitzsimmons squared the count, 6-3 with the aid of homers by Hughey Critz and Hank Leiber. He hurled two-hit ball for the first seven frames.

Second-place Cubs, meanwhile, took one on the chin from the Dodgers, 6-3, when Danny Taylor's circuit blow with two aboard overcame an early Cub lead and gave big Jim Weaver his first defeat of the season.

Pittsburgh's nine-game losing streak came to an end through the capable hurling of Larry French, who set the Phillies down with three hits to win the first half of a bargain bill 3-0. The Phils came back behind Curt Davis to win the after-piece, 5-3. It was Davis' 14th triumph of the year.

The defeat cost the pirates a chance to regain fourth place as the Reds rose up and clouted the Braves into submission, 12-5, with a 19-hit attack that produced two five run innings.

LATE RALLY WINS FOR KING EDWARD

Todd Hurls Three-hit Ball to Subdue Habocos for 8-6 Victory.

King Edward tallied twice in the last inning to take an 8-6 decision over Habocos in a good bantam ball game last night. Todd hurled three-hit ball for the winners, while Curtin gave way to Foster in the third for the other side. Homers were conked by McInnes and Ridley, while a neat doubleplay was pulled off by Lawson, Berwick and Todd. Moldaver was nicked on the ancient hidden ball trick. The umpire was rassed plenty all through for his decisions. The teams:

King Edward: Jay, c; Castle, 3b; Lawson, 3b; Berwick, 2b; Todd, p; Platt, ss; Lucas, cf; Mackness, rf; Williams, ss; Hopcroft, rf; Ridley, 1b.

C.O.B.L. Leadership At Stake Saturday

The leadership of the C.O.B.L. will be at stake when Oshawa plays the Petes here tomorrow, provided the Petes win in Belleville tonight. Regardless of this evening's game, the Dukes-Petes' tussle at three Saturday in Riverside Park will have considerable bearing on the close Central League race. It promises to be another grand baseball battle—the same calibre as home fans here have been seeing the past month or more—and should attract a huge crowd, if the weather is right.

Lefty Wills may be the Oshawa pitcher to start against the locals, as Lefty turned back the Lee crew on his one appearance here this summer. The other Oshawa game in Peterborough ended in a home-town win. The Petes hope to repeat this and will be playing heads-up ball from start to finish. If Calladine goes the route tonight in the Quinte town, Archie Deyell will get the hurling assignment here tomorrow. The big righthander did not go so good last Saturday, but is due to twirl another real game, the same as he did in Oshawa two weeks ago. It shapes up as being a fine game all around with a great deal at stake.

RAIN HALTS MATCH IN 5TH SET WITH OPPONENTS IN DEADLOCK

19 Year Old McGill Student Extends Walter Martin Before Play Stopped.

NUNNS VS. RAINVILLE.

(By Elmer Dulmage, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, July 27. (CP). — A hostile weatherman had caught up to Bobby Murray, Montreal's tournament sensation, for the second time in a week to-day to build additional barriers against the title challenge of the 19-year-old McGill student in the Canadian Tennis championships.

Whether or not he defeats Walter Martin of Toronto in the concluding phase of their quarter-final singles to-day, Murray's chances of adding the Canadian title to his Quebec conquest were the slimmer because rain stopped his duel with giant Walter yesterday. The score was two-all in the deciding fifth set when the contest was abandoned.

Murray's scores were 4-6, 8-6, 6-3, 6-4. He fought from behind virtually all the way to finally square the match and hold his own for the first four games of the fifth set. The winner will rest a short time to-day, then take on Hal Surface of Kansas city, University of Texas ace who reached the semi-finals by defeating Laird Watt of Montreal, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-0.

Wilson Defeated

Nunns, back in complete control of his game, defeated Ross Wilson of Toronto yesterday in straight sets, 7-5, 6-2, 6-3, and qualified to meet Marcel Rainville of Montreal to-day in the other semi-final. Rainville eliminated Phil Castlen, University of California star, in five sets, 6-0, 3-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-0.

Caroline Deacon and Eleanor Young of Vancouver reached the women's singles semi-finals and the doubles final as a team. Miss Deacon defeated Mrs. O. E. Gray of Toronto, 6-1, 6-1 and qualified to play Louise Hofmeister of Chicago in one semi-final. Miss Young conqueror of Eddie Billing of Montreal at 7-5, 6-2, will play Mrs. Gilbert Nunns of Toronto in the other.

The Deacon-Young combination got together in the doubles and moved into the final against Mrs. H. L. Beer of Ottawa and Mrs. Ken Salmond of Toronto.

Lawn Bowling

BY Herb Martin

All bowlers love to see a close and exciting finish to any bowling game and the crowd who stayed late last night were well paid.

There were three games in which it was anybody's game up until the last bowl was delivered. In two of the games, extra ends had to be played. Walter Oke made Jimmy Cullen go into the extra frame before he would call it a day. George Gimblett was leading H. Freeman by 16-8 with only four ends to go. Freeman's gang pulled themselves together and scored three 3's and a one to win out by two points.

And then, if that wasn't enough excitement for one night, George Cairns and yours truly had to go an extra end—just to be in style.

We were up seven points on friend George, and then his hired help got busy and started to score and tied the old ball game up on the last end—and then naturally we had to play the extra end—it was only by a piece of good luck that we were able to get the odd shot.

The boys are asked to remember all about to-night—Friday—usual time and the same price.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer, Softball, Bowling, etc.

By C. J. P.

There is a baseball game slated for this eve at six or so down at the Exhibition Grounds, it being the second playoff tilt betwixt C.G.E. and Cogs. For the umpteenth time, we'll point out that Cogs won by a snub nose in the first fracas which has no bearing whatsoever on this secondary struggle. A Mister Percy Vannest who whistles the ball in with a buggy-whip snap and a Mister Casey Masterson who mixes a smoke-ball with a nasty hook in a disgustingly deceiving manner, are both begging to get this crack at C.G.E., said Electrics doing much viewing with alarm. They, on the other mitt, have Messrs. McGillen, Armour, Hetherington and Barry all craving a chance to stop Cogs. Both teams are rarin' to go and both promising a win. Ye scorer will have no change to bet on this tussle—in fact, he'll be placed in a very embarrassing situation should the guy on the gate not recognize him and say: "Kick in!"

Then, for lacrosse lovers, there is a bit of plain and fancy carving offered on the menu tonight at six in Riverside Park, Belleville's Aajmaa Club—they ought to get licked for wearing that monicker—doing the carving for one side, and Peterborough Kiwanis wielding the sticks for us. It is a regular O.A.L.A. game, while the loop moguls are deciding whether they have a loop or had a loop, and it looks like a tasty dish—except maybe for some of the players. We don't play lacrosse, but the harder others play it the better we like it. We view boxing and rasslin' with the same enthusiastic eye, said optic being at a safe distance from the point of hostilities.

• • • • • •

The Petes' baseballers are in Belleville this e'en, doing or dying for dear alimony, or something. We sincerely trust they are doing, and not dying, as they have a very important engagement in Riverside Park tomorrow along about three o'clock with a team known for some reason or other as the Oshawa Dukes. As it promises to be another swell baseball engagement, and as it is decidedly rude to invite Dukes here and not entertain them properly, the Petes will most likely be out in force and hand 'em nine full innings of entertainment. And a lot of fans, incidentally. Or are fans incidental?

• • • • • •

Belleville writer has this to say about last Saturday's game: "We hate to think of the attitude that would have been taken in Kingston had Saturday's game been played there. The Petes and their supporters had a logical kick coming insofar as the usual baseball alibis go, as the majority of snap decisions made by the umpires were against the Petes. Had the same situate arisen in other C.O.B.L. towns, we can almost imagine what the result would have been. But the Peterborough press and the fans in general proved their mettle as sportsmen, realising the entire situation as it was presented by the umpires. Peterborough was always the best sporting town in the loop from every conceivable angle."

Orphans jumped Brintons at Central last p.m. to cop a neat 9-3 number, Shine outpitching Currie in a classy struggle. The Waifs seem determined to go places and with Frank Shine doing a consistent job of throwing the ball across—accompanying each pitch with a bit of the Carioca—they are liable to find themselves places one week from tomorrow, when the schedule ends. And said places may be at a higher elevation than that of the Brintons and Tiremen, who knows?

In the gals' Thursday softball sport, Westclox did Leafs dirt to a 39-11 accompaniment. We never discuss softball games when the score goes over 30. If we want to see big figures, we can always go down the line and watch some dandies go by on the side of box cars, or we can ankle half a block down the street and look at some impressive figures on bank windows proving, no doubt, that such-and-such a bank is a good place to do your shopping. We watched this gals' game last night for one inning and saw nothing worth mentioning except the fact that Westclox lasses are learning to bunt. Not doing too badly, either, though one damsel did bunt a robust bunt over third that was good for two bases.

What will our baseball minors do in O.B.A.A. playdowns this year? Well, we don't expect too much of the bantams. They have a well-balanced local loop which means that there is no one outstanding team with the rest just filling in. Hence, the winner may come to grief when stacked up against a "loaded" outfit from Toronto or some other town. And the kids here are quite young, many just starting in organized ball. The juvenile Terriers ought to go somewhere, though, as this is a powerful team made up of experienced boys who have been far in the playdowns before. It's not even certain if our juniors will go in or not, but they should as the players are available and a good junior squad from here might go right through to the finals—provided they start regular practises.

• • • • • •

Next years is the one to qualify teams for the '36 Olympics, and the only chance of a Peterborough team in this world classic, it seems to us, is in lacrosse. The winner of the Mann Cup—Canadian senior supremacy—goes to the Olympics. Now, this town and district can supply the nucleus of a lacrosse team that will give any outfit in Ontario, if not Canada, a real fight. Add to the best in and around here, say, three or four outstanding lacrosse imports, enter them in senior competition next year, practise them hard, and it's quite probable they'd get into the Canadian finals. This is no pipe dream but could become an actuality. But it would need a strong executive, finances and a lot of work.

McLARNIN SAYS HE'LL K.O. BARNEY ROSS IN SEPTEMBER

Will Take No Chances on Decision of Judges, Believing He Was Robbed of Last Bout—Chicago Jew Confident He Can Stop Jimmy.

(By Damon Runyon; Copyright by Central Press Canadian)

NEW YORK, July 27.—This writer believes that Barney Ross, double-barrelled world's champion, will find himself, in September, confronting an entirely different fighter than the man he defeated for the welterweight title.

Jimmy McLarnin, his pride sorely wounded by losing his championship honors in his very first defence of them, will be in better condition, more determined, in this next meeting.

He will have a better pull in the weights. The writer thinks the weight condition in the fight last spring militated against McLarnin. He agreed to make 145 pounds at 12 o'clock on the date of the battle, and drew himself too fine to make sure he would be under that mark. He was risking a $10,000 weight forfeit.

JIMMY McLARNIN

This time McLarnin is doing the ordinary welterweight championship weight, 147 pounds at 2 o'clock. That is catchweights for him, which means it is so easy for him to do that he could step on the scales at any time, before or after his training, and not be over the mark. In short, his normal weight is inside 147 pounds.

McLarnin, and most of McLarnin's admirers, think he should have had the decision in the other fight, an opinion with which the writer does not agree. The usually mild, placid Irishman is deeply incensed about the decision, and promises his friends a knockout in September.

McLarnin and his friends may be surprised to learn that Barney thinks he will do the knocking out. Barney Ross, fighting McLarnin with considerable caution last May, has convinced himself that he has nothing to fear from McLarnin, and promises to dispell the impression that he, Ross, cannot punch.

Thus the indications are that the return bout will be even a greater fight than the first, and the writer thought that was a corker. Those who did not see the first fight will be eager to witness the second, and a gate in excess of $300,000 is quite probable.

Getting Big Gates

A gate of this size will bring the total receipts of three outdoor shows this summer to around $750,000 gross, and adding the smalled outdoor shows of the season, we will probably find that boxing this summer has drawn over $1,000,000.

This sum is a far cry from the gates in the days of the pugilistic gold rush, to be sure, but it indicates that boxing is on it way back. The first Ross-McLarnin show was a Milk Fund production, so was the Beer-Carnera bout in conjunction with Madison Square Garden. The second Ross-McLarnin event is for the benefit of the Christmas Fund.

TWO FINALS WON BY DETROIT IN FIRST DAY HENLEY PROGRAM

Argos With One First, Three Seconds and a Third, Lead in Points.

TOTAL OF TEN.

ST. CATHARINES, July 27 (CP) —The Double Blue of the Toronto Argonauts last night carried a constructive threat to prevent Buffalo Westsides from making their fourth successive annual sweep of the Royal Canadian Henley regatta.

The versatile Toronto crew gained the major points in to-day's opening events which will count in the final totals. Argos gained one first place, three seconds and a third to amass 10 points, compared with six gained by their nearest challenger, the familiar Light Blue and White of Detroit.

Two wins gave the Detroiters second place over Westsides, considered the major threat of the annual meet. But Buffalo can not be counted out yet. They still display the sheer determination in digging their broad blades into the waters of the murky old Welland Canal, the same determination that has brought them victory in the last three years.

Weather conditions were ideal for the opening card. Hamilton Leanders waited until the final heat before demonstrating a threat still might be expected from the 1932 Olympic representatives. The Hamilton Red and Whites maintained a bitter inter-city rivalry in junior 150-pound eight battle with Argonauts and Toronto Dons. Hamilton won the event with a good lead, but they failed to make the best time of the day. Their time, however, was eight seconds better than Detroit, winners of the second heat, who will fight it out with Leanders on Friday, along with Argos. Argos qualified for Friday's event in the heat won by Hamilton.

St. Catharines, on their own home course, ran an erratic race and tossed away a chance of two victories by their constant zig-zagging, which disqualified them on one occasion, along with Westsides.

Mackay, Bank of Montreal manager for Water street branch. Mr. Cummer was using a Dunlop ball when he made his perfect shot. He generally goes around in about 92 strokes, but three times last week made it in the low eighties.

Canuck Open Golf Starts Next Week

TORONTO, July 27.—The finishing touches are being put on the Lakeview course in preparation for the Canadian open golf championship, which will be held there on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week, the final 36 holes of the 72-hole competition being on the final day. The course has been brought along slowly but steadily throughout the season and at present is in great shape. Most of the work at present is on the championship tees, which are seldom used except when titles are at stake and which make the holes considerably different from what they are during the regular part of the season. The greens are in excellent condition and are practically the same weight from the 1st to the 18th.

Canadiens Refuse To Transfer Games

MONTREAL, July 27 (CP)—Leo Dandurand, who with Joe Cattarinich owns the Canadiens in the National Hockey League, has turned thumbs down on the suggestion made by Claire Brunton, manager of the Ottawa Auditorium, that some of Canadiens' games be played in Ottawa in the coming season.

Mr. Brunton last night said he hoped to take some of the scheduled games of the St. Louis Fliers, made up chiefly of former Ottawa Senators, but would be willing to accept some Montreal Maroons and Canadiens games.

ORPHANS LEAD MEN'S LEAGUE

9-3 Victory Over Brintons Last Night Gives Harrison Crew Top Berth.

HEAVY SLUGGING.

The big guns of the Orphans batting order boomed last night at Central and as a result the Scates-Harrison outfit find themselves in sole possession of first position in the men's softball league. Frank Shine did the mound duty for the winners and held his opposition hitless and runless for the first four frames and only allowed them three runs on nine hits in the next five stanzas, whiffing five and walking two.

Currie hurling for the losers, was touched for twelve blows, which coupled with his shaky support, accounted for the nine runs gathered by the Waifs. Fred Jones starred at bat for the white-shirted crew with three hits out of four times at bat followed closely by Wilshaw with two out of four, one being a circuit clout in the opening frame. For the Carpetmen Johnny Playford, just back after a hand injury, was the most successful with the stick, collecting three singles out of five appearances at the plate while the rest of his teammates were almost helpless before the splendid pitching of Shine.

The Brintons were rather weak in the field having four costly bobbles, mostly overthrows, which accounted for several unearned tallies. Orphans fielded well, having but three misplays none of which led to the scoring of runs. They completed the only double-play of the game in the fourth inning, Shine-to-Wilshaw-to-Board being the order of the twin-killing.

In the outfield Playford made some fine one-handed catches for Brintons as did Jones for Orphans.

The teams:

Brintons: H. Dormer, 2b; Smith, 1b; Playford, cf; Calladine, c; Weir, lf; Newson, 3b; Currie, p; Dugan, rf; Bradshaw, ss.

Orphans: Wilshaw, 2b; Weese, 3b; Jones, cf; Cadd, c; Hope, lf; Miller, rf; Board, 1b; Fleming, ss; Shine, p.

Score by innings:

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 59

"How did you come to go down here, to Tor Cottage?"

"I had missed my key three days ago," Etta went on. "John gave us each a key. The only three there were. Alysia's was in a locked bag where she keeps keys. Mine were always kept in a little tortoiseshell box of odds and ends on my dressing table."

"Did you miss anything else at the same time as the key?"

"Yes, but nothing of any importance, only an envelope. When Mrs. Burnham kept insisting that Gillian had gone to Brussels, I thought of that key that some one had taken. And I decided she was being kept down here till it would be safe to get her out of the country. When I told Mrs. Burnham where we were going, she looked odd." Etta's lips tightened at the memory. "I think she was half unwilling to come, and half fearfully excited to find out and have it over and done with. I only know that though she pretended to scoff at the idea, she took the wheel from me part of the way and drove through the storm like a woman possessed."

"As she was. By a devil," Pointer said gravely. The idea of Lucy Burnham hurrying to the slaughter of Gillian Dundas was a terrible one.

"Of course, she expected to find a corpse ——" he went on, "and trusted to your presence to give her an alibi. But—well—there she slipped up. Ah, here comes the police I had Smith telephone for."

Etta laid a hand on her brother's arm. "Shall we go now?" she asked gently. "We're not needed any more."

He did not reply. Just for a second he strode to the dead girl and looked down on her. Then, turning as a blind man might have done, he made his way down the garden path.

Another woman might have tried a word of consolation, or at least some sentence such as that he had nothing to reproach himself with, that he was quite right that it wouldn't have done, but Etta said nothing. Claud was saying all this to himself, she knew, or would say it when time had worn off the first shock of what he had just seen. He did not love Gillian, but that was only because he would not, because he refused to give way to the strange attraction she had for him, an attraction which he believed was of the senses, but which had some strange, deeper root that he himself never understood.

Only as they stopped at the house in Great Cumberland Place did Etta venture a word.

"You won't do anything foolish?" she whispered. He shook his head scornfully, and whether he did it or not depended on one's point of view. Within this year he was engaged to a wealthy commonplace girl of unimpeachable family, married her at the same time that Etta married Westmacott, and within another year became a K. C., and was spoken of as a man who would go far, because he was all brain and no heart.

But he never would go near a hard court, and to the end of his life he grew white when he saw bags of cement standing on the ground.

Back at the Yard, the assistant commissioner was waiting for Pointer. uperintendent Dartmoor came in for a second, too.

"You're asking where the lady is?" Pelham saw the eyes of the chief inspector sweep the room. "Taken away, of course. You should have seen her gentle indignation, her pathetic efforts to understand what I meant by not believing her story. Though she wilted a bit when Dartmoor brought her into Mrs. de Souza."

"Good idea of yours, Pointer," the superintendent said, "to have had Mrs. de Souza's horn disarranged so that she tooted a peculiar note which we could tell our men to look out for. Seething a kid in its mother's milk to help hounds on to the right trail. Neat idea.

"As you found with Miss Dundas' hat, so both Mrs. de Souza and her sister wore ones that could be turned inside out to make apparently a different hat. Their cloaks too were reversible. Silk one side, different cloth the other. That was how the Dundas girl and Mrs. de Souza got away from your watcher at Harrod's, of course. They were prepared for anything. I wonder why Gillian Dundas went along with the other?"

"She hadn't much choice," Pointer said thoughtfully. "And there was always the possibility of it really being another post, a good one. The higher the place, the more useful she could be to them. Mrs. de Souza would have told her some well gilded tale, I fancy, when she drove her down to the cottage to call on the dear dowager duchess probably. What about the maid, she must have been in the blackmailing?"

"She's slipped through our fingers," Dartmoor said regretfully, "for the present."

"But her absence allowed the superintendent and me to put some very telling guesses into her mouth," Pelham added with a faint smile. "Egged on by what they thought she had revealed, the two women fairly turned and rent each other to shreds. It was rather unpleasant."

It had been a horrid scene.

"But I have had one treat," the assistant commissioner went on more cheerfully, "almost the happiest moment of my life, in some respects. When I had a word with Lady Ida . . . of course, she won't be prosecuted, Westmacott will see to that, but I talked as if penal servitude were a certainty. However, to come back to the case in hand, how did you come to telephone for a warrant to be made out in Mrs. Burnham's name? What put you on to her before you went down to Tor Cottage? I don't mind saying that I was sure at first that the superintendent couldn't have got the name right."

"I wondered myself!" Dartmoor said stolidly.

"I'd have come up and explained, of course, sir," Pointer hastened to say, "but, if I was right, no further time would be waster. I always feared that the first chance they got to get Miss Dundas out of town and to themselves would be the end."

"Yes, but how did you come to pitch on that dear, pretty little woman who had lost a handsome husband and 5,000 pounds a year by Tait's death?" Pelham persisted. "When did you drop the notion that the motive for his murder was to hide the Lady Ida—Strange—Mrs. de Souza trickery?"

"The instant I learned that the envelope in which Tait was carrying the boutonniere had come from the house in Great Cumberland place, sir. I confess, the solid earth seemed to rock under me." Pointer's eyes were on his shoes, he was living again through that second of amazing revelation. "It wasn't a fresh envelope, which he might have taken himself for another reason, or had in his pocket. It was one which had been in Miss Etta's toilet box for weeks. That meant that all my theory of Lady Ida—Mrs. de Souza—Strange trio was wrong. None of them would have taken this particular envelope. It would have been simpler to get a fresh one from the Ricci shop. It pointed straight to some one in the Great Cumberland house itself, who wanted to keep to the Ricci trail, and who was pressed for time.

"Yes, yes," Pelham put in. "But why suspect Mrs. Burnham? Why not one of the Naylors? They benefited through Tait's death, or even, why not Lady Tait?"

"Ah, I had two clues, sir. The first, the bitten pen top had led me wrong, but there was still the second one—the clue of Gillian Dundas' terror. We all agreed that Miss Dundas was but the underling—the decoy, and that the blackmailing in which she had taken part went back at least a year — Lord Mills first payment was about a year ago—well, as for the Naylors or Lady Tait, we couldn't trace any previous connections between them and Miss Dundas."

"But why wasn't Mrs. de Souza good enough for you as an explanation of the girl's terror?" Pelham insisted pushing a box of cigars across the table.

"She had been until that envelope told of some one else in the house who had been the actual poisoner of Tait, Sir. Yet we knew that Mrs. de Souza was in the poisoning too. I thought Lady Ida was, but I knew Mrs. de Souza was. So I looked around — mentally — for some one linked with her as well as Gillian Dundas and actually at Great Cumberland house."

"You did some swift 'mental' looking," Dartmoor said with a faint smile.

WINDSOR McCAY CARTOONIST DIES

Well Known as Creator of "Little Nemo"—Hearst Chain Employee.

PASSES AT 63.

NEW YORK, July 27. (AP). — Windsor McCay, widely known cartoonist and creator of 'Little Nemo' died yesterday at the age of 63. He was cartoonist for the Hearst newspapers and before that had been with the New York Herald and "Evening Telegram."

McCay was born in Spring Lake, Mich., then chiefly a lumber camp.

Roaming to Chicago, he found work making crude circus posters, and studied art sporadically. His acquaintance with theatrical people led him to Ohio doing posters and eventually to decorating the old Vine street museum in Cincinnati.

His first recognition came when the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune engaged him for its art staff. Later he worked for the Cincinnati Enquirer, illustrating news events.

In 1903 McCay came to New York painting signs enroute and at once made a success. Within a few days he was at work on the old "Telegram" and then on the old "Herald" creating such well-remembered comic strips as "Little Nemo in Slumberland," "Dreams of a Rarebit Fiend," "Sammy Sneeze," "Hungry Henrietta," and others.

At one time, McCay drew $1,000 a week for working 20 minutes twice a day on the vaudeville stage.

WILL NOT AFFECT LOCAL EXHIBITION

"Ontario Government Never Exhibited Any Extent Here," Says Mayor Denne.

"It won't hurt our show," was the comment of Mayor Roland Denne, president of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, in regard to the announcement that the Government will make no exhibits at the fall fairs of the province this year. "It will be a blow to the Canadian National Exhibition but the Government has never exhibited to any extent here."

Mayor Denne stated that, as far as he knew, no exhibits had been planned by any of the Government departments for the coming Peterborough Exhibition. At various times during the past few years small exhibits have been made, however, by the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Game and Fisheries and the Department of Lands and Forests.

The mayor declined to comment on the wisdom of the Government's move in discontinuing exhibits at the fairs but others who have been in fair work in Peterborough and vicinity seemed to be of the opinion that the step is somewhat shortsighted. Premier Hepburn has been hasty in overlooking great benefits which accrue to Ontario through the exhibition of its products at the C.N.E. and the other large fairs, it was said.

County Cricket

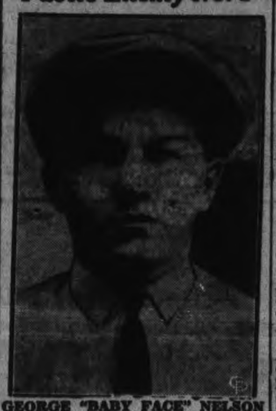
LONDON, July 27 (CP Cable).— The Gentlemen defeated the Players by seven wickets in the three-day cricket fixture ending to-day at Lord's.

In first class county matches, Lancashire defeated Gloucester by 103 runs at Manchester, and Yorkshire defeated Worcestershire by 10 wickets at Worcester.

The remaining four fixtures were all decided on the first innings, with Hampshire winning on the first innings over Somerset, Derby over Surrey, Northamptonshire over Essex, and Kent over Sussex.

YOUTHFUL PROSPECTORS FACE BEAR ALONE IN MINERS' CABIN

Public Enemy No. 1



GEORGE "BABY FACE" NELSON

America's new "public enemy No. 1" since the slaying of John Dillinger in Chicago, is George "Baby Face" Nelson, above, his bank robber pal who killed a federal agent, when Dillinger's mob blasted their bloody path out of a U.S. department of justice trap at Spider Lake, Wis., last spring.

Felt Sort of Queer as Large Bruin Came Towards Them.

LOOKING FOR GOLD.

By Jimmy Nicol
(Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

SUDBURY, Ont. July 26.—Regarded as Northern Ontario's youngest prospectors, Artie Chyka, a sturdy lad of eight years, and Frankie Racicot, 10, equally as husky and wise to the ways of the bush, met a great big black bear when they hit the trail for gold recently, and that was almost enough for them.

Artie Chyka is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Chyka, of Sudbury, and his chum is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Racicot, of Wahnapitae. Frankie's uncle, Dave Racicot, is the well-known prospector who recently made a discovery near Lochalsh in the Michipicoten field. Only this spring Mr. Racicot himself had an encounter with an angry bruin that attempted to tear off his hand. His rifle jammed when he tried to shoot it at close range, and he would have been killed had not his husky dog, Mon Pete, tackled the bruin.

Undaunted by Mr. Racicot's close call, Artie and Frankie left Sudbury alone by train to visit him at his cabin and help him find more gold. They obtained pack sacks and the regulation equipment that every grown-up prospector carries. When they reached Lochalso, Artie Chyka bought a big hunting knife just in case a big bad bear should turn up.

Bear Heads for Cabin.

Surely enough, one did after they had been in the bush only two days. Mr. Racicot had left the boys in the cabin while he visited a road camp. His faithful dog, Mon Pete, went with him.

Frankie was just in the act of cracking an egg into the frying pan for his breakfast when he looked out the window and saw a bear wobbling through the underbrush. The bruin was making straight for the cabin.

"It was a great big bear, three times as big as I am," said Artie. "Frankie dropped the egg on the stove instead of into the frying pan, he was so excited."

"Were you frightened?" Artie was asked. "Oh, neither of us were exactly scared. That is—we weren't scared stiff," the young prospector replied. "I had my knife and Frankie tried to get his Uncle Dave's rifle off the wall, but it was too high up for either of us to reach, even though we did stand upon a chair."

Then tc two young prospectorsu locked the door. "No, we didn't cry or hide under the bed or say our prayers," Artie went on. "But we felt sort of queer. Frankie said that if one bear had nearly chewed off his Uncle Dave's hand,this one might do worse than that to us. The bear came closer. He was about 100 feet away I guess. That made us feel a little more queer. But a couple of minutes later, he disappeared in the bush and Frankie's uncle came back with Mon Pete and we were all right."

Artie and Frankie discovered no mines, but they had plenty of excitement.

TORIES VICTORS IN RUSHCLIFFE

Majority Drops to 3,000 From 22,000 in General Election of 1931.

LABORITES GAINING.

LONDON, July 27 (C.P. Cable)— Another vast decline from Conservative majorities registered in the general election of 1931 was shown in the Rushcliffe by-election today.

As in virtually every by-election fought since 1931, the Conservative vote showed a drastic drop. They retained the Rusncliffe seat when R. Asheton was given 19,374 votes to 15,081 for H. J. Cadogan, Labor, and 5,261 for A. T. Marwood, Liberal.

The Conservatives had 968 votes less than the combined opposition in contrast to an absolute majority of 22,000 in the general elections. The by-election was necessitated by the resignation of Sir Henry Betterton, Minister of Labor, who now heads the new unemployment commission.

It was the 44th by election since the general election. In 38 seats the Conservatives have been re-elected, although with reduced majorities. Five others, Labor seats that went Conservative in the 1931 landslide, have been recovered. The other by-election resulted in a Labor victory in a traditional Conservative seat, East Fulham.

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP) — Reporting that "revolt against the New Deal" is brewing in the Middle and Northwestern States, Chairman Henry P. FIVE LICENSES RECEIVED HERE

Windsor and King's Hotels Ready for Beer Trade To-day.

AMERICAN SOLD OUT.

Two more local hotels received beer and wine licenses this morning

King's Hotel on Simcoe Street and the Windsor Hotel on Brock Street turned on the taps and uncapped bottles for the week-end business which was increased by the usual influx from the district.

The American Hotel ran out of beer about eleven o'clock last night, on their opening day, but planned to lay in a sufficient stock for the Saturday demand. The Empress and the Grand Hotels shared last night's beverage trade, and with five hotels permitted to dispense beer there were signs of the effects of competition to-day reflected in the top prices.

King's Hotel have renovated their billiard-room specially to meet the requirements of the new law, and have attractively decorated it. Meanwhile the Empress has been getting the bulk of the business, but a natural result of the receipt of new licenses has been to direct the public to some of the other sources of supply.

WOOD-SHIELDS VANQUISHED IN OPENING SETS

Twin Victory Gives England Overwhelming Advantage to Retain Cup.

DOUBLES ON MONDAY.

U. S. Must Win All Three Remaining Matches Next Week to Gain Trophy.

WIMBLEDON, July 28 (CP-AP)—England made a clean sweep of the opening singles matches with the United States in the Davis Cup finals to-day, Fred Perry defeating Sidney Wood after H. W. (Bunny) Austin had won in straight sets from Frank Shields.

Austin defeated Shields 6—4, 6—4, 6—1, and Perry then conquered Wood, best of the Americans, 6—1, 4—6, 5—7, 6—0, 6—3. To-day's double victory gave England an overwhelming advantage in her fight to retain the treasured cup.

The double defeat means the United States must win all three remaining matches—the doubles Monday, and the final two singles Tuesday, when Wood will play Austin and Perry will meet Shields—to retain the cup lost to France in 1927 and won last year by Britain.

MODEL VILLAGE STRIKE CENTRE

Two Are Slain in Kohler, Wis., and Score Sent to Hospital.

GUARDS CALLED.

KOHLER, Wis., July 28.—(A.P.)—National Guardsmen to-day hurried to this turbulent "model" industrial village, where gunfire between deputy marshals and strikers took two lives and sent two score of persons to hospitals.

The dead: Lee Wakefield, 25, of Sheboygan, whose chest was pierced with shotgun slugs, and H. Engelman, also of Sheboygan.

Both died after a battle last night between some 125 deputies and a throng of 1,200 strikers, villagers, curious spectators and neutral employees of the strike-bound Kohler company plant.

Minneapolis —"Business as usual" was the order of the day, except for commercial trucks, as National Guardsmen maintained order in the truck drivers' strike; Governor Floyd B. Olson denied any muzzling of the press under military rule.

Decision Near.

San Francisco— A decision was expected to-day from striking Pacific Coast maritime workers as to a return to work, after employers offered their condtions.

Chicago—Progress was reported toward settlement of the strike of 800 livestock handlers, tieing up the Union stockyards.

New York— The possibility of a general strike on all heavy construction work in the Metropolitan areas was voiced by union leaders, charging contractors with wage scale evasions on the midtown tunnel project. The contractors asserted they are abiding by their contract.

Pittsburgh—The Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union, not an affiliate with the American Federation of Labor, called a national convention here August 3 to consider a strike.

Wives for Sale

NANKING, China, July 28.—(C.P.) — Having succeeded in marrying off 19 of its inmates in June through the operation of a novel scheme, a Nanking institution known as the Door of Hope has announced a "new mating season will be held during the last week of August."

The Door of Hope is an institution which shelters and educates former slave girls and ex-concubines. These girls are kept at the institution for domestic training for periods of from six months to one year, and any man marrying one of them must pay the Door of Hope from $30 to $40 (Mexican) as an "educational fee."

The "mating season" at the Door of Hope is conducted in an unusual manner. For a whole week photographs of the forthcoming girl graduates are hung on the walls of one room, and any man wanting a wife may inspect the photographs at leisure.

NINE FISHEMEN BELIEVED LOST IN BLAST AT SEA

Danish Steamship Rescues Five From Schooner Astrid W.

ADRIFT SINCE TUESDAY.

Separate From Shipmates Who Are Adrift With No Food.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 28 (C.P.). — After drifting four days in an open dory, five fishermen came into Sydney to-day to reveal nine other members of the crew of the schooner Astrid W. had been adrift on the Atlantic since Tuesday morning.

With scanty food and water they had set out from the fishing vessel 100 miles off this port, abandoning her just a few minutes before she sank, following an explosion in her engine room.

Separate Thursday.

The fate of the nine remained a mystery. The five who were brought into Sydney aboard the tug Cruizer had separated from their shipmates in the two other dories Thursday morning and drifted about the steamer lanes another day and a half before being picked up.

The missing men, including Captain Walter Crouse, were believed to be heading for Lunenburg, the Astrid W.'s home port.

By now, the rescued fishermen declared, their companions must be suffering intensely from hunger and thirst. In the frantic haste of leaving the doomed ship, the men snatched only a few mouthfuls of food and little water.

Little To Eat.

From Tuesday morning until 10 o'clock last night, when the Danish steamship Aaussland picked them up, the five men subsisted on a quart of water and a dozen hard tack, dumped into the boat in the 15 minutes that elapsed before the schooner, her deck and sides ripped away, plunged to the bottom.

In that eventful quarter hour there was no time to gather up anything but the barest necessities, and besides looking out for themselves, the fishermen had to care for an injured companion—young Braddy Whynott—who was lowered into the captain's boat. Extent of his injuries was not known.

Though weak from hunger, thirst and exposure, none of the men reaching here to-day bore injuries. They were Clarence Crouse, 18, a cousin of the master; Eric Smith, 25; Lloyd Feener, 26; Walter Demont, 35; and Harry Decourcey, 23, all of Lunenburg.

Their nine shipmates all hailed from the same port. In the captain's boat were Mate Albert Crouse, his cousin; Walter Corkum, Noble Conrod and BraddyWhynott. Four were in the second dory—Norman Crouse, Allace Feener, Amos Crouse and Bert Shankell.

OTTAWA, July 28 (CP)—Direct relief, for which more than $100,000,000 has been disbursed by the Federal Government, will be the topic of the Dominion Provincial Conference here Monday, which may be held in camera.

THREE AIRMEN RIDE IN GONDOLA DURING ASCENT

Bag, World's Largest, Takes Off From Field at 5.45 a.m.

IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

Expect to Rise 15 Miles—May Drift for 400-800 Miles.

CHICAGO, July 28.—(A.P.)—The stratosphere balloon was reported "practically stalled" at an altitude of 14,000 feet near Manderson, S. D., near the Nebraska line at 10:35 a.m. C.S.T. today. Capt. A. W. Stevens wirelessed.

Talking on a cleared radio wave to New York, Captain Stevens said they were about 120 miles southeast of Rapid City.

"We're climbing very slowly," Captain Stevens said. "We don't know yet what the trouble is, we should be travelling to beat the devil, with a strong sun out, but we're just barely climbing."

It was the first contact they had made since shortly before 10 a.m. Radio engineers had been paging them over the stratosphere since 10:16 a.m., but apparently the balloonists were busy with their instruments.

The takeoff was entirely successful and the balloon moved out northeast. Major William E. Kepner was on top of the gondola as it moved out. Later he will join Captain Albert W. Stevens and Captain Orvil A. Anderson inside the gondola.

A few minutes after the takeoff from an altitude of 7,400 feet, the men wirelessed "everything O.K."

Sponsored by the National Geographic Society and the United States Army Aircorps, the expedition aimed at a new altitude mark of 15 miles to study conditions in that unmapped region above the clouds.

The massive craft, weighing more than 14,000 pounds, resembled a gigantic exclamation mark. The 210,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas with which the bag was inflated was concentrated in the top, and the fabric dropped in folds nearly 300 feet below.

Working under the glare of powerful floodlights, a ground crew of 120 men finished inflation at 1:30 a.m.

Ton of Instruments.

Two hours later the metal sphere holding a ton of precious instruments was rolled under the balloon and lashed 50 feet below it with heavy lines.

Final checking followed and the pilot made last tests of the air currents over the bowl by sending up small balloons.

Crowds estimated at 30,000 mass-

NEW ECONOMIC SYSTEM C.C.F. PLAN IF ELECTED

SASKATOON, July 28 (CP)—If a Co-operative Commonwealth Federation Government is elected to power at Ottawa, it must establish a new economic system and not attempt to repair capitalism, declared M. J. Coldwell, Regina, leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, Saskatchewan section, to-night.

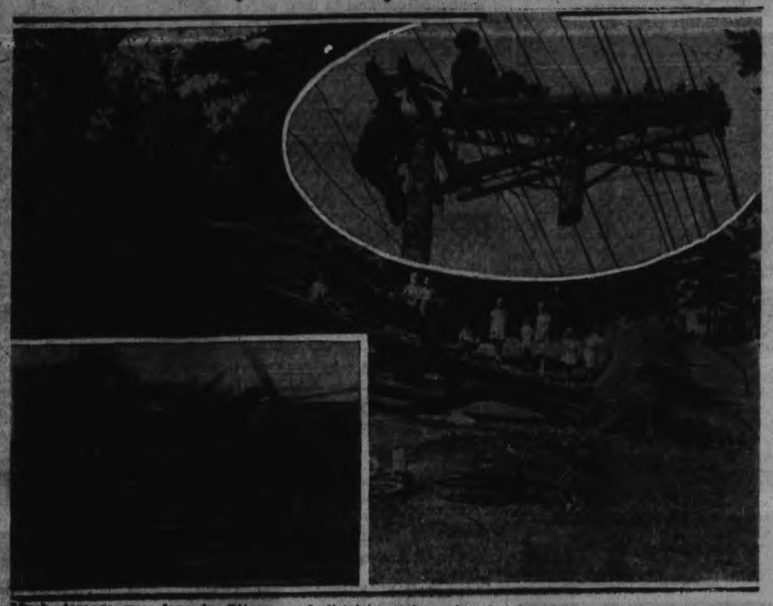
Addressing a public meeting, Mr. Coldwell cited the "Herculean efforts" of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to repair capitalism in the United States. His efforts, noble though they were, had brought only strikes, disturbances and martial law, with social upheavals threatening throughout the country.

George Williams, M.L.A. for Wadena, declared the future offered two pathways—Capitalism, strife, and war; or a planned economy under a Socialist Government with peace and proper distribution of necessities and luxuries of life.

The C.C.F. group in the Saskatchewan Legislature would assist the Government in any measure it might take to remedy present conditions, but it would point out repairs under capitalism would not be lasting.

In a package of ship's sails sent to Hull, England, to be repaired was found a human skull believed to be 200 years old.

Ottawa Valley Struck By Terrific Wind Storm



Much damage was done in Ottawa and district when a terrific storm hit the city, paralyzing traffic, tearing down communication wires, uprooting trees, etc. No one was reported seriously injured by the storm, but the coast will be reckoned well up in the thousands. The layout shows some of the scenes that confronted citizens after the blow. UPPER RIGHT, a telegraph pole with the top knocked off. CENTRE, a huge tree uprooted by the sudden blasts of wind. LEFT, the roof of a building which fell on a passing car, burying it completely. Five persons in the car at the time escaped injury. Many were the peculiar incidents reported by Ottawans during the storm's height.

FAMILY QUARREL OVER DRINKING LEAVES 2 DEAD

London Man Shoots Wife When She Remonstrates Over Habits.

TURNS GUN ON SELF.

LONDON, Ont., July 28 (C.P.)—Argument over a bottle of liquor today left a London couple dead, the man from self-inflicted bullet wounds and his wife from a shot allegedly fired from the gun the man later turned on himself.

According to police information, Alexander Forbes, 39-year-old former chef, and his wife had had prolonged arguments over the husband's drinking habits. During the past week the quarrels between the two became more violent.

Last night, police said, Forbes had a bottle of liquor and his wife endeavored to take it from him. He became angered and drew a revolver. A shot from the .32 calibre weapon pierced her head. Forbes then turned the gun on himself and inflicted fatal wounds. He fell back upon the bed where, according to authorities, he had lain drunk for several days.

Three children of the Forbes' were taken into the home of a neighbor.

Mrs. Forbes was taken to hospital, where she died to-day. The body of the former chef was taken to a nearby morgue.

Number Of Drunks Showing Increase

Drunk in charge of a horse-drawn vehicle was the "old time" count to which a North Monaghan resident this morning pleaded guilty when he appeared before Alderman Robert S. Cotton and City Treasurer Frank Adams in Magistrate's Court.

Along with two local youths who pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication in a public place, each of the trio was fined $10 and $4.50 costs or in default ten days in the common gaol.

Commenting to The Examiner on the increasing number of "drunks" Chief Constable Samuel Newhall claimed that removal of restrictions governing the sale of wine in particular was responsible.

The young woman who was yesterday remanded in custody on a charge of vagrancy was this morning released on bail until Monday morning.

CAR HITS TRUCK ONE DIES, 3 HURT

St. Catharines Girl Gets Neck Broken as Machines Crash Near Orillia.

INQUEST ORDERED.

GIRL DIES IN CRASH

ORILLIA, Ont., July 28. (CP).—One girl was killed and three men injured here about 2 a.m. this morning when a car driven by Phil Marron of Bracebridge, crashed into a truck, about four and a half miles north of Orillia on Highway number 12.

The girl, Mary Keenan, 20, of St. Catharines, was a passenger with Marron in the car and died soon after the crash from a broken neck.

Marron, aged 18, is in the Soldier's Memorial Hospital here suffering from a broken knee cap and deep cuts on the face.

The truck was driven by Bert Scheer of Aldershot and with him was Steve Boychuck, also of Aldershot.

Marron, thought to be returning to Bracebridge, apparently smashed the truck from behind. He admitted going 35 miles an hour to Provincial Constable Fraser Bell who investigated the accident.

The truck, loaded with two tons of vegetables and fruit, rolled over and Marron and one of the truck drivers were extricated from beneath. Marron's car is a total wreck. The whole front is smashed and the truck is badly damaged.

An inquest will be held.

HIT AND RUN DRIVER MAY HAVE PLACED BODY

OTTAWA, July 28 (CP)—A theory that Joseph O'Brien, 31-year-old Peterborough man found dead on a log-boom near the Hull side of the Alexandria bridge on Tuesday, was killed by a hit-and-run driver early on Monday morning, and the body thrown over the bridge rail to avoid detection, was advanced to-day as Provincial Detective Gustave Massie continued his investigation of the tragedy.

The Quebec detective is questioning friends and fellow-workers of the victim, and has succeeded in partially tracing O'Brien's movements the night before his death.

JOBLESS LISTS DOWN 41,414 SINCE JUNE 1

Situation Generally Better Than Same Dates in 1932-33 Says Stevens.

MORE FACTORY WORK.

OTTAWA, July 28. (CP). — A marked improvement in employment statistics was shown in the report issued to-day by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce. Employers reporting to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics had 941,165 persons at work on July 1, as compared with 899,751 on June 1.

"The situation generally was better than on the same date of 1933 and 1932" said Mr. Stevens, in commenting on the report.

"The favorable movement noted in the last three months has provided work for nearly 91,700 persons, besides increasing the working hours of others previously employed.

"This improvement compares satisfactorily with the agregate gains of approximately 79,000, 11,000 and 36,000 reported in the same three months of 1933, 1932 and 1931 respectively.

"The second quarter of the year is normally a period of intensified industrial activity, but the general increase in the last three months has considerably exceeded the average in the years since 1920.

"Employment in manufacturing showed further improvement, contrary to the usual seasonal trend on July 1; most of the gains occurred in the food, lumber and pulp and paper groups. Mining (except coal), communicatians, services, trade transportation, logging and construction also indicated substantial advances. The greatest expansion was in highway construction, in which some 25,000 additional workers were placed.

HUNGER MARCHERS GET PERMIT

TORONTO, July 28. (CP). — Over-riding the decision of his subordinate, Parks Commissioner C. E. Chambers to-day ordered permits be issued to the hunger marchers to meet in civic parks, it was announced after a private meeting of Board of Control. E. F. Collines, Superintendent of Parks, announced yesterday no permits would be issued. To-day he advised the board, according to the statement issued, he had been instruction to issue the permits.

Duce Doubles Frontier Troops —Nazis Fight Backs to Wall in Carinthia.

VIENNA, July 28. — The spirit of the assassinated Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was invoked today by Acting Chancellor Ernest Von Starhemberg to plead before the throne of God for Austria's independence as thousands lined up before the Vienna City Hall to pay their last honor to the slain Chancellor.

Other hundreds of thousands lined the streets through which his body was carried. Millions of persons in every quarter of the world listened to the broadcast of his funeral exercises.

"I am not saying farewell to you, beloved leader, comrade and friend" declared the tall Von Starhemberg at the coffin of his little predecessor, "for, as a Catholic, I know that only that which is mortal of you will perish. You will continue to live.

"Already, you have entered the proud history of our fatherland.

"I implore you to be our mediator before the throne of God, the all highest."

Square Riot of Color

A riot of color, which except for the abundant black crepe in evidence everywhere, almost belied the sorrow of the Austrian nation and made the picturesque square before the city hall seem almost as though it were adorned for a joyous occasion.

Scores of candle lights around the Catafalque, bright white-red cloth in which the coffin was wrapped, the natty blue uniforms of the members of the Old Imperial army, the gay bluish-grey of the Heimwehr men, the gold dress uniforms of the diplomats, the field grey of the regular army, andthe purple and gold robesof the clergy: All presented a picture in the midst of which the gently sobbing and desolate Frau Alwine Dollfuss, clinging to the arm of Von Starhemberg, seemed confused and bewildered.

President Arrives

Shortly before the funeral exercises began, President Wilhelm Miklas arrived in an automobile to be greeted deferentially by high government officials.

He was soon followed by a procesion of 13 army motor trucks heaped high with the foral tributes that had arrived from every part of Austria.

Promptly at 2.30 p.m. a chorus assisted by a brass band chanted

Rebels Ousted From Styria Re-organize as Comrades Hold Out in Corinthia.

VIENNA TENSE.

City Jammed With Troops for Burial of Assassinated Chancellor Dollfuss.

By WADE WERNER
Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press

VIENNA, July 28 — Government forces to-day smashed fighting Nazis over the Yugoslav border in Styria, but a Nazi leader declared: "If the Nazi forces in Carinthia can only hold the executive party at bay until to-night we shall be ready to start a new putsch in Styria and this time, believe me, it will be more successful!"

The guns of civil war cracked anew to-day, echoing ominously as a politically torn Austria buried its murdered chancellor.

Desperate fighting is underway in southern and western Austria. Nazis, their casualties in the thousands, continue grimly to carry on the four-day-old warfare.

Engagements are on at numerous points near Salsburg, near the German border.

An official communique to-day said severe fighting is in progress in Carinthia, southern Austria near the Italian and Yugoslavian borders.

Another sector of conflict is eastern Tyrol. Feldkirchen, close to Switzerland, Klagelfurt, Carinthia's picturesque capital, are centres of civil war. The government is rushing troops in increasing numbers to that section in an effort to stamp out the revolt.

Carinthia is a tangle of barbed wire. It is jammed with soldiers bearing gleaming bayonets. The wounded are pouring in from neighboring battlefields.

Dollfuss' Funeral Day

There was no serious fighting in Vienna to-day as the capital prepared to bury Engelbert Dollfuss, the little "gamecock" chancellor whose assassination Wednesday was the bloody signal for revolt.

Guns, however, bristled everywhere, evidence of fears his funeral might be an occasion for fresh outbreaks.

The funeral hour was 3.30 p.m. (9.30 a.m. E.S.T.), with services at the Socialist City Hall.

Dollfuss survived by scarcely five months the many Socialist victims of the February civil war.

Thousands viewed the body as it lay in state.

With Dollfuss dead, his policies continue to live, guided by his successor, Prince Ernst Von Starhemberg. "Do not depart one inch from the way prescribed by Dollfuss" was his plea to the country.

Reports were circulated that Franz Von Papen, named Germany's Minister to Austria, would attend the funeral.

Festival Goes On

The fighting raged to-day around Salzberg as the famous annual festival opened with a presentation of the tragedy "Everyman."

Fighting in Styria, where the revolution broke out with volcanic violence Wednesday night, has subsided. The government appears to have conquered Nazi resistance there.

The Government also announced it has taken Steveit in Carinthia, storming it with artillery fire.

Casualties in all fighting since the revolt began are estimated at close to 3,000, but there are no official figures.

Authorities express confidence the revolt can be crushed before it has a chance to develop into a conflagration compelling the intervention of one or more neighboring powers.

There is no attempt to conceal the fact that Italy is fully authorized to rush her troops across the border if the Nazi uprising becomes too powerful for Austrian Fascism.

The jumpy atmosphere in Vienna was graphically revealed when a brisk and lengthy exchange of shots developed between two Government forces during the night. A lorry of Fatherland front troops skirmished with equally pro-Government police and Heimwehr patrols because of

Police Troubles

LONDON, Ont., July 28 (CP) London policemen, who played Good Samaritans to three lost children, four to seven years old, were rather perturbed when the frightened tots set up alternate howls in the police station. However, a kindly officer, perhaps with kids of his own, managed to establish their identities as three farm children who had roamed three miles into the city. By midnight, they were with their family again.

QUINTUPLETS 2 MONTHS OLD

Be End of August Before Dionne Babies Can Leave Incubator.

YVONNE LEADING.

CALLANDER, Ont., July 28.—(CP)—The diminutive Dionne girls who have gained world recognition by their upset of all precedents for longevity of quintuplets are two months old today, though none of them could boast the weight of an average newborn babe.

Stronger members of the quintette are gradually reaching a stage of normalcy according to their physician Dr. A. R. Dafoe but it will be the end of August at least before they can be removed from their incubator homes. At present he said, covers of the "hot beds" are left open and the temperature maintained within has been reduced from 90-92 degrees to 75-80.

It will be a month, in the opinion of the Northern Ontario physician, before Yvonne, who at less than five pounds is the heavyweight of the group, reaches life expectancy.

They surpassed the previous record of 50 hours recorded officially as the longest period of life by such a set, and 10 days ago they all shattered the precedent for 50 days of life, established by the last surviving member of a Lisbon quintuplet in 1866.

Assured by intervention of the Ontario government they would not

ITALIAN ARMY MOVES SWIFTLY

Troops, Artillery Transported by Motor Faster Than Ever Before.

SPEEDY TANKS.

UDINE, Itay, July 28.—The new motorized Italian army units moved more swiftly than at any time in their history to-day when ordered to take up strategic positions along the Asutrian frontier.

The first mechanized division of 8,000 men in tanks and armored cars advanced into the mountainous zone, usually one of the most difficult terrains in Europe for movements of large bodies of troops. They brought up motorized light and heavy artillery types of weapons in shapes never seen in combat.

The army trucks and tractors have four, six or eight wheels. These with miniature tanks operated by one soldier, were still moving into position to-day along the Austrian border from Tarvis and Monte Croce.

Motorized units occupied the main road from Udine to Tarvis. Other units consisting of the picturesque Bersalieri, with the flowing cluster of cock-feathers in their helmets, were proceeding on motorcycles along the highways leading from Monte Croce.

The Piedmontese Lancers, in their gleaming helmets, galloped to stated posts along the Monte Croce highway.

The moment the command came to these garrisons from Premier Benito Musolini, it was only necessary to load rations and ammunition and get started. All units assigned to cover the Austrian border already had engaged in their Summer manoeuvers and were ready to go.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 28. — Ideal weather conditions added to the success of the lawn social held on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. John Rannie, Menie, on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the congregation of Stephen's Church, Hoard's. Although showers scattered the surrounding country, Menie remained free from rain, and the social carried on to a successful conclusion.

The prizewinners were as follows: Person coming the longest distance, Mr. Holmes of Foxboro; youngest person present, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Linn; largest family on the grounds, Mr. and Mrs. Linn; oldest person present, Mr. William Rannie; and the couple married the longest, Mr. and Mrs. Rannie.

Vacancies

CAMDEN, N.J., July 28 (CP) —Miss Grace Riggins is looking for two good-bad players for her baseball team.

They've got to be bad to be at the county detention home, she explained to Judge Garfield Pancoast, and they've got to be good to make the team.

The judge said he'd try to catch a catcher and bag a first baseman who aren't too bad to be good.

50 FLEE FIRE IN APARTMENTS

Passer-by Spots Flames, Kicks in Door and Rouses Tenants.

$15,000 DAMAGE.

TORONTO, July 28 (C.P.) — Nearly fifty people were forced to rush to the street to-day when a fire swept the Abberley apartments on Sherbourne street. All the residents of the building, a score of whom were young children, reached safety.

Tongues of flames shooting skyward made the blaze a most spectacular one, and for two hours it provided firemen with a stiff battle. Damage was estimated at $15,000.

The fire was discovered by Edward Phelan, who was walking past the apartment at the time. He noticed wisps of smoke trailing from the roof and running around to the rear could see the reflection of flames through a window.

He kicked in the front door and aroused the sleeping tenants.

No Hanging Back

BRANTFORD, Ont., July 28 (CP)—Thirsty flames caused some consternation here when Bizel's Brewery sent in a hurry call. Local humorists said firemen broke all records in hastening to the scene of the fire. Fortunately, the blaze was in a brew tank outside, and the fire was soon out.

SECOND ITALIAN WAVE OF TROOPS FRONTIER BOUND

Mussolini Determined Nazis Shall Not Gain Upper Hand in Austria.

NO FURTHER PARLEYS.

By JOHN LLOYD
(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press)

ROME, July 28.—A second wave of Italian troops started northward to-day to support 48,000 men now concentrated on the Austrian border, the Associated Press has learned.

The reinforcements are not on the border but are within striking distance of it. They were sent up from military posts in the south to corps headquarters at Bolzano, Udine and Trieste.

Official military circles demonstrated great uneasiness to-day as reports from Austria showed the Nazi revolt still flamed.

Italian cities from Florence on the south and particularly Rome present an unusual appearance. Normally every fourth man appears to be in uniform but now about the only uniforms visible on streets are those of Fascist juvenile organizations.

Officers and soldiers have moved north, most of them into training camps and other posts near the frontier.

Further Parleys Useless

Premier Musolini is represented as feeling that any further diplomatic overtures can serve no useful purpose. He appeared determined to-day to lead a prompt hand if he feels the situation warrants.

Spokesmen for the government, however, insist that intervention is not necessarily imminent. They are watching Vienna with a particularly keen eye to-day, fearful that the funeral of the assassinated Chancellor Dollfuss may prove the match to set off new disorders.

ARCHIVES STAFF IS CUT IN HALF SEVEN LET GO

Hepburn Cuts Outlay in Department From $17,700 to $6,000.

PREMIER IN OTTAWA.

Col. Little, Head of York Children's Aid, Susended Pending Charge.

TORONTO, July 28. (CP)—Temporary quiet hung over Queen's Park, home of Ontario's Government to-day, Premier Mitchell Hepburn was in Ottawa for the Dominion-Provincial relief conference, preparing to meet on an equal footing the Dominion Government's leader, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett to whom only a few months ago he was just another bencher in the House of Commons.

Before leaving for the capital last night, Mr. Hepburn announced a few more steps in his path to administrative economy. Feature act of yesterday's drama was the renewal of treasury bills totalling $15,000,000 at a new low rate of 3¾ per cent per annum.

Further slashing took place in the civil service with the halving of the staff of the Ontario Archives. The total salary list was reduced from $17,700 a year to $6,000. This involved the dismissal of seven employees.

Those Let Out

Col. Alexander Fraser will be superannuated. Dismissals included: Dr. A. E. Lavell, historian; Mrs. C. C. Creed, clerk; Murdoch McLeod, senior clerk messenger; John S. Carstairs, specialist in historical and biological research, his assistant, L. H. Irving, and J. Silverthorne, clerk.

Two officials were dropped from the Health Department when the Dental Service was merged with the Child Hygiene Branch. They were Dr. Fred J. Conboy, director of the Provincial Dental Service, and E. E. Inkster, departmental clerk.

Col. George B. Little, local superintendent of the Children's Aid Society for York County, was suspended yesterday by Hon. David Croll, Minister of Public Welfare. Referring to the judicial investigation now in progress concerning Col. Little's work, Mr. Croll said the suspension was in accord with the usual practice where serious charges are being investigated.

ONE OF THE GOOD THINGS OF LIFE

"A man can't live by bread alone in this world. He can't do without all the good things of life. He has to take time out for a little relaxation once in a while. And . . . I ask you . . . how can a man relax better than over a fresh-lit pipe of Picobac?

"Picobac is a mild, cool Burley tobacco, you understand. And there's something about a Burley — well, if you ever smoked Burley you know what I mean. "But, of course, all Burley tobaccos are not the same. Picobac is a better Burley — the pick of Canada's Burley crop grown in sunny southern Ontario.

"Graded and cured by experts and matured for at least two years in wood. I tell you, gentlemen, it's a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke, believe me. Try it for yourself.

"And don't forget you get more tobacco for your money. Good for making cigarettes, too."

I Kings 22:14—"What the Lord saith unto me, that will I speak"

Some Early Pages of Canadian History

By DEAN O'SULLIVAN.

THIS year we celebrate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of Canada by Jacques Cartier, and the planting of the Cross on Canadian soil. Next month many notables from England and France will visit us to join in the celebration of this auspicious event.

Much water has passed under the bridges since "from the seaport of St. Malo, in a smiling morn in May, the Commodore Jacques Cartier to the westward sailed away." His was a truly Christian expedition, for the historian tells us that he and all his associates assisted at solemn Mass in the Cathedral of St. Malo and received Communion from the hands of the Bishop before setting out on their journey. On July 24th, 1534, he landed on the Gaspe Peninsula. In a subsequent expedition, he navigated the St. Lawrence River as far as Stadacone and Hochelaga, the sites of the present cities of Quebec and Montreal. No permanent colonization, however, was accomplished at that time. It was not until nearly a century later, to be exact, in the year 1608, that Champlain founded the city of Quebec and New France came into being.

At the request of The Examiner, I am writing a series of articles giving a birdseye view of the development of our life as a nation from that far-off day that saw its birth down to Confederation. The original source of the current of our national life was the early emmigration from the shores of France, and the principal tributaries which since have enlarged and enriched it flowed from the highlands of Scotland, from the lowlands of England and from the hills and the valleys of the Emerald Isle.

Champlain.

History is best learned by grouping a period around one or two individuals who were the principal actors in the scene. Two names stand out most prominently at the very dawn of our history, the one that of a statesman and temporal ruler, the other that of a zealous shepherd of souls—Champlain and Laval. Every school boy and girl knows, or should know, the story of Champlain's life. The story of his wisdom, his perseverance, his courage, his valour, and above all, of his virtues which made him an exemplar for succeeding generations. We should have a special interest in him, for he passed down the Trent Waterway on his return from Huronia. I remember, as a boy, being shown the hulk of an old boat which local tradition held was abandoned by Champlain on this journey.

"The salvation of a soul," said Champlain, "is of more value than the conquest of an empire, and kings should think of extending their rule in infidel countries only to assure therein the reign of Jesus Christ." Acting on this principle, he brought missionaries to instruct and convert the Indian tribes. The first of these to reach Canada were the Recollets, a branch of the great Franciscan Order, whose members had followed in the wake of Columbus and had celebrated the first Mass in Spanish America nearly a century and a half before. It was one of these, Father Le Carron, who was the first to offer up the Holy Sacrifice in Ontario in the year 1615 at a spot marked by a monument, erected a score of years ago by the Knights of Columbus, near the town of Orillia.

Arrival of the Jesuits.

Finding themselves unequal to the task assigned them, they sought the aid of the Jesuits. Of these men Bancroft, the historian, wrote: "The horrors of a Canadian life in the wilderness were resisted by an invincible, passive courage, and a deep internal tranquillity. Away from the amenities of life, away from the opportunities of vain-glory, they became dead to the world, and possessed their souls in unalterable peace. The few who lived to grow old, though bowed by the toils of a long mission, still kindled with the fervour of Apostolic zeal. The history of their labors is connected with the origin of every celebrated town in the annal of French Canada. Not a cape was turned nor a river entered but a Jesuit led the way." Martyrs' Shrine, near Midland, which many of our citizens have visited, was erected in memory of their labors and martyrdom. Through them Ontario enjoys the honor of having the first canonized saints in the North American Continent.

Laval.

For half a century after the founding of Quebec there was no bishop in Canada. During that period New France was an outlying portion of the Diocese of Rouen and St. Malo, and was governed by a vicar-general. In 1659, a bishop was appointed in the person of Francois de Laval Montmorency, the scion of a noble French family. He was made directly subject to the Holy See, and thus the Church in Canada became an independent entity. Thanks to the labors of such brave explorers as Marquette, Joliet, Hennepin, La Salle and Cadillac, the original Diocese of Quebec covered some territory. It embraced practically all Canada, in which there are now ten ecclesiastical provinces, and that portion of the United States lying west of the Mississippi River and the north of the Rio Grande. Space does not permit that I refer to the life of Quebec's first bishop, whose memory is perpetuated in some of our famous halls of learning. Let anyone who wishes a pen picture of this remarkable man read "Shadows on the Rock" by Willa Cather.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Religious and Social Questions Answered
By DR. WYLIE CLARK

Is it true that the faith of many Christians can be described as a "lazy faith?"—T.B.

A lazy person is one who is adverse to labor and indisposed to exertion. A lazy farmer may have a fine bit of land and know it, but his lack of energy prevents him from cultivating it properly. The weeds grow, the land loses its richness, crops dwindle and the results are meager—the possibilities are swallowed up by inactivity. The same is true in any line of business or method of development.

Dr. Wylie Clark

There is no pace where this is more true than in the spiritual realm. An idle faith cannot increase and certainly cannot accomplish anything in appropriating and using the gifts of God's mercy and love.

I am afraid that very many of us fall down and come far short of what we might be just because the germ of laziness is destroying the vitality of our faith.

What is meant by the "Recovery of Pentecost?"—M.B.

At Pentecost there was the baptism of the Holy Spirit accompanied by the gift of tongues and the power to testify. In other words, there came to them the possibility of God using them to manifest Himself as He had been revealed in the life of Christ.

The main thing was the power they obtained which enabled them to overcome their sins and live entirely in the service of the Kingdom.

To recover Pentecost would be to receive that power which came upon those who were waiting by the command of the Master for the coming of the Spirit.

It would not mean that now there would be the fire and the wind and the gift of tongues, but that we would be specially dedicated and devoted to the doing of God's will as it ought to be done to-day in the place where we live.

There is no doubt, but that if we could fully possess that power great things would happen in the churches and we would be hastened toward the day of spiritual victory.

Is it true that life is always at the mercy of death?—A.M.

It is true that death seems to be always near. In the springtime when all nature is alive the death dealing days of autumn are not far away and they are sure to come.

When we are in our youth and middle life the death bringing days of old age are already on the road to meet us.

Then beside these normal ways death has many other ways of slipping in and proving his nearness and determination. In nature there is storm, drought, frost, hail and pests—all of which take their toll.

With ourselves, there are calamities, accidents, wars and a multitude of diseases. These count their victims by the thousands, even by the millions.

Yet with all these doing their best to kill death is not triumphant. Life predominates. Not the dead, but the living, bury the dead. The living own and control the graveyards of the world—even in what seems to be the victory of death life rises up to conquer.

Spring follows winter, youth steps into the shoes of age and immortality destroys the grave.

What is meant by saying the world problem is men, not things.—P.M.

This question is really asking which is greater, man or his circumstances. A man should always be master of circumstances. The trouble is, he is not. He is often overcome by his conditions and sadly defeated by them. When that happens men are the playthings of events and are useless as builders of better things.

The need of the world then is men who will meet and master circumstances and force them to conform to the requirements of what should be instead of yielding and allowing the force of events to dictate to and rule over the intelligence and wisdom which make men the highest of created things.

Christ For Rural Ontario

TO make His presence and power realities in Ontario's rural districts is the task of the Ontario Evangelistic Band. The work is inter-denominational. Sectarian lines are ignored in a ministry that enlists the co-operation of all evangelical Christians. The great fundamentals of the faith are emphasized. Anywhere and everywhere witness is borne to the saving and keeping power of a living Christ. The Lord Jesus Christ as our personal Saviour, Sanctifier, Physician and Coming King, sums up the message given. The work is along faith lines. Your prayers and gifts are needed in this hour of widened opportunity. No ministry is more appealing than one which seeks to proclaim the Gospel to those otherwise unreached.

Mr. C. Troyer, the leader of this work, has recently moved to Campbellford. He plans to establish his centre here. From the Gospel Mission, on Rear street south, which will be opened shortly, Mr. and Mrs. Troyer will reach out into the communities round about. For the past two years they have been ministering in the Stoney Lake district, and during the winter were located near Apsley. Services were conducted in the provincial road camps between Burleigh Falls and Bancroft.

Watch for announcement of the opening evangelistic campaign next week.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

IT is pathetic to see the way humanity clings so fondly to its illusions. The illusion of separateness is based solely upon our lower animal instincts and is responsible for many evils that will continue to perplex us until we rid ourselves of the idea that our lower selves are in anyway lasting or permanent. Butperhaps the most distressing of the great illusions is the illusion of death. It is written that in the end death shall be destroyed and to the highly evolved mystic, this is so. He, by experience, KNOWS that there is no such thing, that it is but a "seeming" induced by the fallacy of separateness, that Life is One, and that he is a conscious part of that One Life. It is inevitable that the physical body should disintegrate and that its elements should return to the earth from which it was made. For that matter so does a suit of clothes, and to the mystic the body is no more than a suit of clothes, a piece of machinery by means of which the real man is enabled to function objectively in an objective world; a machine to be kept intelligently in good repair as long as possible, but no more than a machine. So that death, to the mystic, is no more than the discarding of a worn-out instrument and a passing from one room of the House of Life to another, and that without any break of continuity. That that other condition of Life is unknown to the majority is simply because the majority believe nothing that is not cognizable to the physical senses, forgetting that the things invisible outnumber the things visible. No man has ever yet seen a beam of light. We only see the reflection of a bare octave of the cosmic vibrations. There are sights that lie outside our range, sounds that we never hear with our bodily ears, and a whole universe lies around us, unknown, unseen, unheard, simply because our bodily organs cannot respond to the vibrational stimulus. We are in Life surrounded by Life both visible and invisible, and are a part indivisible of that Life. For in God we live, and move, and have our being.—Frater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.
